The ferry boat called the Piedmont, which is considered one of the finest and largest of its kind in the world, seemed to have new charms for us on that lovely morning, on this trip across the waters of the magnificent bay, which in size and beauty is only rivalled by the bay of Rio Janeiro. The ride on the cars along the winding eastern shore and then on the ferry across the mouth of the Sacramento, where we beheld a perfect view of the far-famed Golden Gate, will not be forgotten. The vessel smoothly glided by the United States reservation at Mare Island, and so absorbed were we in watching the many points of interest that we paid no heed to the passengers who gradually walked toward the bow of the boat until suddenly we felt the jar of the vessel and learned that this was the landing place. Here we boarded the cars for St. Helena, and as soon as the locomotive started on its journey through Napa valley we could not comprehend why people could resist the temptation of not making this charming spot their abode. Every mile traversed revealed new beauties. The marsh, with its myriads of blackbirds and lilies; the meadows with its wealth of eschscholtzias, blue bells and daisies; the solid-looking old oaks with bunches of mistletoe and branches draped with mosses, all had charms for us. Sometimes the cars would stop at a station which seemed cornucopia for on every side for miles, vineyards, orchards and grain fields extended. We passed the insane asylum at Napa, a most picturesque building—in fact, from the train it looked like a marvel of architecture—nestling at the foot of the mountain; in front of it a neatly designed garden extended to the banks of the grass-bordered Napa creek; then on by the Solders' Home at Yountville, a building erected after the style of architecture so common on all United States reservations. The train finally stopped at St. Helena, where our old friend, Dr. Charles W. Aby, greeted us most cordially. Back of the station he had his drag in waiting, and soon we were spinning over the road toward the famous Langtry farm. There never was a more congenial companion than the doctor, and as his increased avoidupois was commented upon, he said: "Yes, I am heavier than when we went 'possum hunting along the banks of the Mississippi, and I'm much healthier, too. I can only account for it in this way: We have the finest climate in the world where we live, and you will agree with me before I let you go."

Around the sharp curves of the winding road, over hillocks and across swift-flowing streams, our host carefully handled the ribbons of the prancing four-in-hand. We soon found that we were gradually climbing, and were told that it was some six miles to the "summit," as the gap on the side of Howell Mountain was called. Onward and upward the horses trotted. The road was a model one, being wide, well-drained and free from mud holes and "bad places." We often stopped to look down on the beautiful panoramic scene that stretched below us as far as the eye could see, valley after valley, hill after hill, all covered with vernal beauty; the noonday sun painting in varied hues the lights and shadows of that emerald sea. Chemisal and chapparel-covered mountains towered high above us, while at our feet the rich, amber-colored branches and trunks of the madrone trees added color to the olive green of the leaves around them. Here and there the light bluish-gray trunks of the lone sycamores could be seen as the gentle breeze caused the pinnatifid leaves to turn their vari-colored sides and tremble continuously. The higher we rode the more interesting became the scene. Here and there we could discern on the hillsides "little clearings," where some industrous pioneers had planted their orchards and vineyards, while almost hidden 'neath the foliage and creeping vines could be seen the white cottages, with the blue smoke curling upward from the old-fashioned adobe chimneys. Almond trees in bloom were almost surrounding more pretentious dwellings; the contrast between these trees and the others in the orchards was most marked. The codiform valley of Napa, almost hemmed in by lofty mountains, was at our feet and heavy-timbered ravines opened into it. Far down in the depths of the dark gulches, beneath the heavy foliage of manzanita, madrones, bay laurel and oak trees occasional glimpses of a silvery stream could be seen as it noisily dashed over the pebbles and rocks on its way to the Napa creek and thence to that great resevoir, the sea.

At last the summit was reached, and, to our surprise, an immense vineyard served to round off the topmost knoll at this, the highest portion of the road. Down the side of the mountain and along the deep ravine, then over gently-rising hills, following the course of other streams until Butt's cañon was reached. The road through it could not be worse, for between huge boulders, old stumps and holes the deeply-cut wagon tracks made this part of the journey anything but a pleasant one, especially as a heavy rain had fallen the day before and landslides covered the roadway in many places. At length we emerged on a clearing, which Dr. Aby explained was the farthermost portion of the Langtry ranch. With every turn in the road the beauties of this far-famed section of the State were revealed. The new fences, the large springs from which a wide stream of water flowed down to the valley and emptied itself into the lake on the Guenoc farm; the fields of growing grain; the cattle in the immense park-like meadows, where gigantic oaks were seen set at such distances apart as to remind one of the parks around the castles in England; all these were noted as we rode rapidly by. Finally we saw the red roof of a pretentious two-story dwelling. This was Mrs. Langtry's residence. Driving into the large barn, where we left the team, we sauntered leisurely over to a less imposing edifice, in which the farmer lived. Supper was ready, and so were we—for the mountain air and the ride had sharpened our appetites, and we were able to do full justice to the bountiful repast set before us. Dr. Aby presided at the head of the table and carved the turkey as only a scientist can, and with stories and toasts, we all felt very much "at home." That evening, sitting around the big log fire in commodious, easy chairs we smoked and talked of our boyhood days and recalled from the dim and distant past scenes that we had almost forgotten. The hours flew rapidly by and when we retired there was no necessity for anything to lull us to sleep.

Bright and early we arose, and, after partaking of breakfast, we, of course, visited the barn where the premier stallion, Friar Tuck, was. The attendant led him out, and as he walked around in a circle we were at once smitten with his style, carriage, beauty and form. He is a typical English racehorse—one of those small, clean-headed, arched-necked, short-backed, heavy-quartered, dark brown horses that is seen copied in every English engraving. His large, prominent eye, delicate and active nostrils small, quick ears, sharp withers, perfect limbs, large girth, prominent flanks and lengthy gaskins denoted at a glance his right to be at once considered above the common. Let us look at his breeding. Is it any wonder that he is siring such grand-looking youngsters? If there is anything in the axiom, "Like produces like, or the likeness of some ancestor," his progeny should be among the finest.

Imp. Friar Tuck was sired by Hermit, out of Romping Girl, by Wild Dayrell; second dam Gay, by Melbourne; third dam, Princess Alice, by Liverpool; fourth dam, Queen of Trumps, by Velocipede; fifth dam, Princess Royal, by Castel; sixth dam, Queen of Diamonds, by Diamond; seventh dam, by Sir Peter; eighth dam, Lucy, by Florizel, and so on to the twentieth dam.

When the question of fashionable breeding is taken into consideration, does not the pedigree of this horse rank as high as that of any horse ever imported? His sire, Hermit, was considered the best sire that ever lived in England. His service fee was $2,500. He sired Shotover and St. Blaise (the $100,000 horse), both Derby winners, and two winners of the Oaks in Thebais and Lonely, and such eminent performers as St. Marguerite, Peter, Candlemas, St. Louis, Retreat, Charon, Queen Adelaide, Clairveaux and Friar's Balsam.

Like all of the Hermits, Friar Tuck was a very sound horse, and ran until he was six years old and won a great many races. His dam, Romping Girl, was a superior race mare, and ran third in the Oaks of 1867; as a four-year-old she won the Shrewsbury Cup. After being placed in the breeding ranks she produced Abelard, Rampage, Lancaster, Merry Monk and Fair Barbarian. It will be noticed that all of Friar Tuck's dams are noted mares. The fifth dam is the imported Queen of Trumps, winner of the Oaks and St. Leger of 1835. She is still spoken of as one of the greatest mares that ever lived.

Since Friar Tuck landed in America his chances have been very limited, but the youngsters in Lake County will soon carry his name to the front, where it belongs. He is a grand individual and a credit to the judgment of his owner, who selected him.

The broodmares chosen to mate with him are all well-bred and good-looking. The first one noticed was Lizzie Hampton, a good-looking chestnut mare, foaled 1884, sired by Hampton, the cup horse of his day in England—winning the Goodwood Cup, Doncaster Cup and other great races. As a sire he has passed Hermit. He has sired Merry Hampton (Derby winner, 1887), Ayreshire (Derby winner, 1888); Rene d'Or, who won the Oaks and One Thousand in 1886; Highland Chief, second for the Derby of 1883, and many other good ones. His dam, Lady Langdon, was the dam of Sir Bevys (Derby winner, 1879) and her sire, Kettledrum, won the Derby in 1861. Harriet, Lady Langdon's dam, was the dam of Caller Ou, winner of the St. Leger, 1861. On her dam's side Lizzie Hampton combines the double cross of Oxford, whose sire, Sterling, has sired Isonomy, Superba, Harvester, Paradox and many other first-class ones. Dynasty, the dam of Lizzie Hampton, was out of Durham, by Lifeboat (a son of Sir Hercules and Peri), out of Honey Dear, by Plenipotentiary, out of My Dear, by Bay Middleton, etc. Many of the best English and American horses of the last fifty years come from this family. She has a good filly by St. Savior here.

Another royal-bred one is Josephine, by Struan, out of Maid of Harris, by Flageolet (sire of Rayon d'Or, second dam (North Star, dam of Polaris and Craig North), by Adventurer; third dam Charlotte Russe (dam of Van Dieman), by Flazzolette; fourth dam Olga, by Charles XII.; fifth dam Fair Helen (dam of Lord of the Isles), by Pantaloon; sixth dam Rebecca (dam of Provost, Alice Hawthorne, Rowena, Armandale, etc.), by Lottery, etc. The blood lines of this mare hardly needs any comment. Her sire is by Blair Athol, out of Terrific, by Touchstone.

Imp. Restless, by Orest, is a racy-looking mare, and can be truly considered among the best of our imported mares. She is out of Lady Middleton, by Surplice; second dam Joanna, by Sultan; third dam Filagree, by Soothsayer; fourth dam Web (sister to Whisker), by Waxy; fifth dam Penelope, by Trumpator; sixth dam Prunella, by Highflyer, etc. Orest, the sire of Restless, is by Orestus, out of Lady Louise, by Touchstone. Restless is the dam of Grayling, Colic and Gossip. Lady Middleton was the dam of Stowell, Church Militant, Dartmore, etc. Joanna was the dam of Joannina, the dam of Cossack, the Derby winner, Bay Middleton, Glencoe, Uncas, Wanderer and Rayon d'Or, the latter's sire, Flageolet, was also well-known in England in 1871 and 1872 as a Cup winner; Adventurer was the sire of such racehorses as Pretender, Apology and Wheel of Fortune, who was perhaps the best mare that ever looked through a bridle. "What racing blood there is in Josephine!" any one can thoughtfully exclaim. She has a fine chestnut filly by Friar Tuck.

There were a number of other good mares on the farm that were bred to Friar Tuck last year, and all of them were in foal. He is sure to be heard of as a sire of speedy ones this fall.

The farm consists of some 5,500 acres; about 2,000 acres compose what is called the valley land, where immense crops of hay and grain are raised. The hillsides are used for pasture, where some two hundred cattle thrive winter and summer. On a beautiful knoll, almost opposite the house, is a rich vineyard of some one hundred acres. The wine-house, cottage and outbuildings are almost obscured by a heavy growth of vines. On every portion of this large farm living springs of water are found. The view from the residence is unsurpassed. The lofty mountains surrounding it were all clothed with a mantle of snow when we were there, while the dark timber line and some very large pine trees could occasionally be seen quite plainly. The climate is one of unparalelled loveliness; neither winds, fogs, frost nor snow ever come to make life miserable. The weak consumptive and the most delicate of the human family here find the fountain of life, and beneath these pine-covered mountains in this high altitude strength is found, despondent spirits are revived, and life, in its most pleasant phases, is fully enjoyed. Delicate plants will thrive luxuriantly in the open air here, and the absence of drouth keeps the meadows green from January to January. The colts and fillies grow amazingly, and the value of this county as a horse-growing section of California will some day be more fully understood and appreciated. This pioneer, Dr. Aby, will yet be spoken of as a man who cared not for the legends of the past, but lived for what the future had in store for him. He has done a great amount of good work here and made extensive improvements.

To speak of the hunting, fishing, horseback riding and outdoor sports we indulged in would take too much space; suffice it to say we never left the place without taking a peep at Friar Tuck and mentally resolving to send a mare to breed to him, knowing there can be no chance for making a mistake in doing so. He will be appreciated as a sire, we know, and many an owner of thoroughbreds will deeply regret when it is too late that he did not breed to this illustrious son of the Hermit, Friar Tuck.

ARNAREE.

Glidelia and Her Late Owner.

Captain William M. Conner is another of the men who will be missed. He was a type is direct contrast to Mr. Withers—warm-hearted, generous and impulsive. As journalist, hotelkeeper, turfman and theatrical manager, he made hosts of friends, and the sorrow for his death is keen and true.

"Billy" Conner was a turfman who carried off many successful raids against the powers of the betting-ring. His greatest coup was made just a decade ago. The stars of the Saratoga meeting in that year were Thora, Bend Or and Glidelia. On July 25th, Bend Or made the mile and 500 feet record of 2:10½, and on July 29th he ran a mile and a half in 2:35½, beating Thora rather easily. The turf talk was that Thora was "off her feed," and that she would beat the big horse in a walk at their next meeting. Glidelia, on August 1st, had won at the Derby distance, with General Monroe second, in 2:35½, but she was not a popular favorite with the Saratogians, who were all worshipers of Miss Thora. The grand prize of Saratoga, one mile and three-quarters, on August 5th, was the meeting of the champions. This summary shows the starters, and how they finished:

W. M. Conner's Glidelia, 5, 116	Costello	1
Churchill & Co.'s Bend Or, 4, 122	Walker	2
O. Bowie's Compensation, 4, 108	J. McLaughlin	3
G. B. Bryson's Bushwhacker, a, 101	Stoval	0
Davis & Co.'s Ella Warfield, 5, 96	F. McLaughlin	0
C. Reed's Thora, 4, 122	Brophy	0
E. J. McElmeel's Gen. Munroe, 4, 96	Quantrell	0

Time, 3:01.

It was a big money-betting event from the time the entries were posted. Auction pools were sold during the afternoon and evening before the race, and at the track before the horses came to the post, and turfmen from all sections of the country struggled desperately to catch the auctioneer's glance. The average prices were Thora, $225; Glidelia, $140; Bend Or, $135; Ella Warfield, $40; Bushwhacker, $35; field, $35.

Saratogians, headed by Charles Reed and a band of New York bookmakers, were Thora's heaviest backers. The late Jim Tiernan, of Chicago, handled a roll of Bend Or money, and the Western and Southern sports followed his tip. Captain Conner and a delegation that had come up from Long Branch made up of well-known New Yorkers played Glidelia as though the race was over. One of Thora's backers was a young business man of Saratoga who had mortgaged his store for $1,000 to put up on the "good thing."

Costello, then under engagement to George Lorillard, had run up from Monmouth Park to ride Glidelia. From the start he cut out the pace, leading by a length until the turn into the home stretch for the final fight. Bend Or, Thora and General Munroe were running a waiting race, and were the last of the field. At the turn, amid a mighty shout of "Here she comes?" Thora moved up to second place. Before the echoes were still the great mare threw up her tail and dropped back. Again came a mighty cry; this time, "Thora's beaten!" As the yell filled the air, the Saratogian who had bet the mortgage money fell in a fit on the floor of the grand stand.

Bend Or was running second at the distance pole and rapidly overhauling Glidelia. He had started one of those dazzling bursts of speed that won all his races in the last few jumps. Just then General Munroe and Compensation, who were lapped on the outside of Bend Or, carromed together, and Munroe swerved into Bend Or. Before the big horse could get in motion again, Glidelia and Munroe had passed the finish head and head. McElmeel (who died at Fordham two weeks ago) always swore that Munroe won by a head, but the judges placed him second and then disqualified him for fouling. The foul was a lucky one for Captain "Billy," for otherwise Bend Or would have spoiled his grand coup. It was a terrible race for the talent. Four of the bookmakers "went broke" over the race; the others lost their summer's earnings.

NORMA, by Arthurton, owned by Prof. E. P. Heald, of this city, is the only living produce of Nourmahal so graphically described by the veteran turf writer, Joseph Cairn Simpson, in our last issue. That Mr. Simpson was right in his estimate of Nourmahal's greatness is proved by the fact that her only daughter, Norma, is already in the table of great broodmares, having produced Grandee, 2:23½, and Grandissimo, 2.27¾. Both of these two are race horses, and will be seen on the circuit this year. Both of them, too, are capable of reducing their records materially. Norma is now in foal to that great horse, Dexter Prince.

Movements in the Right Direction.

The public voice is strong and clear, and while it sometimes grates on the sensitive ear, its enunciation is so perfect that there can be no misunderstanding the meaning of the song it sings. The Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association Directors, we are happy to say, understood what the people wanted, and have acted sensibly. The paid starter and firm, well-informed presiding judge have come, and are here to stay, and now that the association have secured signally able men in J. B. Ferguson and Theodore Winters to fill these respective positions, if the people of California do not flock by the thousands to Bay District track, then we shall say that there is little sporting blood in the veins of the populace.

Colonel D. M. Burns' resignation as President of the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association was much regretted by his fellow-members, but he refused to reconsider his determination, and nothing remained but to elect other men to the positions left vacant. Colonel Harry I. Thornton, Colonel Burns' successor as President, is admired wherever known for the many noble qualities of mind and heart he is known to possess. Being an enthusiastic and exceedingly well-posted turfman, the association could not have made a better selection. Thomas H. Williams, selected as director, is, like Colonel Thornton, well-equipped for the position allotted him, and racing in the East every year, as he does, should be able to offer many valuable suggestions from what he observes on the racing circuits on the other side of the Rockies. It was due to Mr. Williams' efforts that James B. Ferguson was secured as starter. It was a wise move to get such a man, for Mr. Ferguson comes to us with a reputation first-class in every respect. Never before has California had a professional starter, and one of the great drawbacks of the past at our meetings has been poor starting and almost unbearable waiting for the flag to drop at all.

While we have not interviewed Colonel Burns on the reasons he assigned for resigning, it is current talk that the chief cause was the reinstatement of B. C. Holly against his wishes; that Colonel Burns declared his intention of resigning if Mr. Holly was reinstated over his head, and further, we are informed that the resigning head of the association was dissatisfied at being voted down on a number of propositions, one of which was free admission to ladies. Colonel Burns championed the cause of the ladies gallantly, and was very much disappointed when the free list was abolished. However, Colonel Burns kept his word, and, like Davy Crockett, feeling sure he was right, went ahead. It is not our province to criticise any man for doing what he feels is right.

The popular veteran turfman, Theodore Winters, was selected to act as presiding judge, and everyone who knows anything about the gentleman from Nevada has a good word for him. That he understands the rules thoroughly is certain; that he knows all the "tricks of the trade" is also pretty certain, and that any one will have a hard time pulling any portion of the coat of the sheep over Mr. Winters' eyes in a racing transaction is settled. Knowing the men he will be called upon to deal with so thoroughly, there will be few chances to fool this presiding judge, and "funny business" is not likely to be tried. The Breeder and Sportsman is happy in the thought that its fight for a presiding judge whose decisions cannot be set aside by lenient or ignorant associate judges has been crowned with the laurels of success. However, we trust that all presiding judges who shall officiate will not be too hasty in inflicting penalties. A jockey should not be taken down from a horse unless information comes to the judge (from a good source) that a job is on foot, and then the official should look into the betting, question the boy closely and study the matter well. It is a serious thing for a jockey or owner to be called down by a judge, for a bad name is a hard thing to whitewash. Many an innocent owner or jockey has been ruled off by a judge on the spur of the moment—on hearsay testimony from unreliable men or chronic kickers. The judge must always temper justice with facts and sound sense, and, where such official is paid, he ought to get as thoroughly acquainted with the men and boys he has to deal with as possible—at least with their methods of doing business.

The new rules of the Blood Horse Association should please the public immensely—in particular the following: Giving the power to decide all races to the presiding judge alone—and that man a thoroughly competent officer. Doing away with betting on the result of heats. Raising the scale of weights (except for the two-year-olds, which we doubt the wisdom of) so that first-class jockeys will not have to ruin their health "getting down to weight." Guarantee of amount of stakes and purses, and no person allowed to enter a horse who owes forfeit-money. Disallowing the changing of jockeys at the last moment. Entries in ordinary purse races the afternoon before the race comes off, and no entrance fee to purse races. Dropping of flag to standing start after horses have been at the post half an hour without a send-off. These are a few of the good rules adopted, in substance, and now, with their enforcement and the loud and long call for stall room, everything points to a better meeting than has been held here in years.

A Merited Appointment.

On Wednesday President Harrison sent to the Senate the name of Frank L. Coombs, of Napa, to be Minister to Japan, to succeed John F. Swift, deceased. This appointment meets with the approval of all who have ever met this talented young gentleman. Politically, he has always been identified as a leader in the Republican party. In Napa, his native place, his popularity is so great that he has been elected by overwhelming majorities whenever nominated for any office. He was three times elected Assemblyman, and at the last session he was made Speaker of the lower House of Legislature. He has been named as a possible candidate for Governor, and if he so wished it could have been elected to Congress.

Nathan Coombs, his father, was one of the pioneers who brought a number of thoroughbreds, stallions and broodmares, to this State, and started a breeding farm at Napa. Our Minister to Japan seemed to inherit his love for horses for he has been indentified with the best interests of the turf and track ever since he was a child. He was elected President of the Breeders' Association, and filled the position with great credit. He resigned last January. He has been a delegate to the American Trotting Association, and at its last meeting was elected Vice-President of that organization. We believe that he will fill the duties of his new position in that great country across the sea with credit to himself, his State and the nation. The appointment of a young man of recognized ability to that important post is one that every Californian will endorse, for he is worthy of it in every way. We are proud of him.

The reinstatement of Byron C. Holly and his jockey, Dodd, was a pleasant surprise to the ruled-off and their many friends, taking the action of a recent Directors' meeting into consideration. There was no other correct course open to the Blood Horse Association. Mr. Holly had broken no rule of the organization, and was following the custom that had been in vogue for years of "laying up" a heat. Some of the most highly-respected turfmen in America have given the same orders to their jockeys times without number, and, like Mr. Holly, never denied it. Why should they? There was nothing in the rules which said they should not lay their horses up a heat. If a person owned a horse with a little better staying powers than his fleeter opponents, and knew that his only hope of winning was to tire his opponents, it stood to reason that the owner of the stayer would order his jockey to "lay up" one of those heats. However, the Blood Horse Association recently passed a rule covering heat races, in which each horse is expected to be sent for every heat. As there was betting on the result of heats last season, it is to be regretted that the public was not protected at that time. If such a law had been in existence Mr. Holly would not have got into any trouble. However, the P. C. B. H. A. has acknowledged its error by reinstating the Flosden turfman and his jockey, and the latter are, by reason of this, two very happy men.

The Fishing Season.

The angling season opens most favorably. We are informed by those who have been over the State that never before have the streams been so filled with trout. California streams present, under favorable conditions, the finest opportunities for use of rod and line to be found in the entire country, and the conditions this season at present appear to be of the very best.

IF California, with her large area, comparately meager population and small number engaged in the business of breeding fast, handsome and game horses, can even now concentrate the attention of the world, what will be the result thirty years hence? If our horsemen study the blood lines and breeding problem to any extent, no other State in the Union will bear comparison in the same breath with this one. Our climate is conducive to early development, and the absence of blighting blizzards and extreme heat or cold makes it possible for our stock to remain in the open air nearly the entire year. Consequently the horses of California have better lungs than most representatives of the equine race. All of the land used for stock farms in this section is of a "rolling" character, therefore we are breeding horses with staunch legs and good feet as well as with unusual lung-power. When California runners, trotters and pacers go over the Rockies every year and capture more than a fair share of the stakes against overwelming numbers and not a few "combinations" opposed to them, it is not reasonable to suppose that when the horse industry here is fairly out of its swaddling-clothes California will be the greatest horse market in the world? Instead of sending our trotters, pacers and gallopers to Lexington, Chicago, Cleveland and New York, as at present, when prejudice is thrown aside and our friends over the ridge see how vastly superior are the horses of California, they will gladly come to this city to get something in the "phenom" line. We will be ably represented on the Grand and Western-Southern circuits during the coming racing season, and look for even a larger number of sensational wins this year than last.

It is earnestly hoped that the drawing for positions in the races at the Blood Horse meeting will be done the night before the day of each race, so that the programmes will state the exact position each horse must have at the start. Number 1 of course should be on the inside, and therefore the public will see by the printed programme exactly what horse or filly it is by looking at the top of the list. This arrangement will save time and settle all disputes, and everyone will be pleased. We make this suggestion to the directors, and hope they will adopt it.

Important Meeting of Blood Horse Directors.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association, held last Monday afternoon at the headquarters of the organization, 313 Bush street, the resignation of President D. M. Burns was acted upon. Colonel Burns was urged to reconsider his determination, but he was immovable, and nothing remained but to accept the resignation. Colonel Harry I. Thornton was thereupon elected President of the association and Thomas H. Williams Jr., Director in place of D. M. Burns.

A telegram was read from J. B. Ferguson accepting the position of starter and the terms of the association. No better selection could have been made by the Blood Horse people, and they are happy.

The famous turfman, Theodore Winters, of Washoe, Nev., was appointed Presiding Judge. The public can rest assured that offenders will be hauled up short under Mr. Winters' administration, and that the rules will be interpreted intelligently by the able presiding judge selected.

THURSDAY NIGHT'S MEETING.

There was a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association at their rooms, 313 Bush street, last Thursday night, though not a single representative of the press had been notified. With the exception of A. B. Spreckles, a full board was present. Secretary R. B. Milroy was, strange to say, absent, and had probably forgotton all about the matter.

The following gentlemen were elected members of the association: W. P. Shaw, Robert P. Wieland, Chris. Smith, Charles Fair, J. N. Burke, B. D. Murphy, James L. Flood and John W. Ferris. A large quantity of elegant racing lithographs were ordered, and fifty new stalls resolved to be added at the Bay District track. Bookmakers' privileges were fixed at $125 per day to responsible men.

The privileges of making combination books, preparing and selling programmes and fruit were left open for bids until Wednesday next. It was stated that 180 stalls had already been taken for the forthcoming spring meeting, and accommodations are being daily telegraphed for.

Director Thomas H. Williams said that he would personally see that the newspapers were promptly notified of the dates of all meetings of the Board in future.

BIDS for privileges at the Pacific Coast Blood Horse meeting must be in by next Wednesday, April 6th. See advertisement.

ENTRIES in the Terre Haute Stakes will close next Monday, April 4th. Read the advertisement.

Horse-Swimming Exhibition.

Next Saturday afternoon an opportunity will be given the horse-loving public to witness a novel exhibition at the Souther Farm. The new swimming tank will be used for the purpose of showing how horses can be exercised by swimming, and how beneficial this means of preparing horses for track work is. Mr. Gilbert Tompkins is to be congratulated upon what he has accomplished in balancing and improving the gait of trotting horses, and if this expensive innovation—the swimming tank—did not accomplish anything more than it has since its introduction, it has paid for itself. The boat which leaves the wharf at twelve o'clock next Saturday connects with the (broad-gauge) train at the mole, and passengers will be met at the station at San Leandro by omnibusses and conveyed to the farm. This is an opportunity which should not be missed. We bespeak for all who go a most cordial welcome, and we know that they will be instructed and pleased.

What Brings the Prices.

"Good blood in demand" is the announcement that stares the breeder in the face when he holds his first auction sale, and if his stock are fashionably bred he will get good prices. The day for raising fine animals of unfashionable strains of blood is past. The breeders, it seems, are guided by the market. A mare must be fashionable in breeding or else be a trotter with a record or the dam of a trotter that is in the Great Table. No other kinds sell. Every breeder should make an effort to get the very best now, and if there are any poor mares on his stock farm they should be sold for whatever they will bring. It will pay the owners to give them away and replace them with animals that have some value immediately.

Director, 2:17, Sold.

By a short dispatch received in this city from Philadelphia yesterday we are informed that Monroe Salisbury sold the "Black Tornado," Director, 2:17, to A. H. Moore, Proprietor of the Cloverdale Stock Farm, Colmar, Pennsylvania, for $75,000, and thus another of the greatest of sires leaves the Pacific Slope forever.

Director was foaled July 2, 1877, he is a black in color, stands 15 hands 2 inches high, weighs 1,120 pounds, very long and muscular; and when one looks over this great horse, he can easily account for his game trotting reputation. He is heavy muscled over the loins, has a powerful forearm, while the muscles of his hind legs stand out like whip cords, very long from the point of the hip to the point of the hock, and comparatively short from the hock to the pastern. A clear, sharp eye, large, expansive forehead (by actual measurement nine inches between the eyes across the forehead), and small well shaped ears. His disposition is of the very best, a characteristic which he imparts to all his foals.

His pedigree is well known to most of our readers. He was sired by Dictator out of Dolly (dam of Onward, 2:25¼; Czarina, 2:21; Thorndale, 2:22¾), by Mambrino Chief. Dictator is brother to Dexter, 2:17¼, being by Hambletonian 10, out of Clara, by Seely's American Star. Director is sire of Direct, 2:06, pacing, and 2:18¼, trotting, Margaret S., 2:12½ (aide, 2:16¼, Evangeline, 2:19, Directa, 2:28, Directress, 2:28¼, Erma, 2:25½, Katie S., 2:25, Mattie Solomon, 2:30, Stella C., 2:30, and Waldstein 2:29½.

In 1886 the California State Agricultural Society advertised a gold medal, worth $200, to the sire whose get should be awarded, in 1889, the credit of having made the best average performances in races for trotting foals, two, three and four year olds, in 1887, 1888 and 1889, and awarded the glittering prize to Director over such competitors as Electioneer, Le Grand, Hawthorne, Guy Wilkes, Sultan, Anteeo and Jim Mulvenna, who were the contestants arrayed against him for this unusually valuable trophy. It is of no benefit for a stallion to secure a golden gift for a competition with respectable nobodies. But a gold medal obtained over such competitors as the seven above-named is something of which a breeder may be truly proud; and its intrinsic value cuts but a small figure in the discussion of the situation.

He has been as a pet child to Mr. Salisbury, and it is a question whether that gentleman will ever own as good a horse again. Direct, the fastest harness horse in the world is a smaller edition of his illustrious sire and may become as great in the breeding ranks. Director founded a distinct family, and every one of his get could be picked out among a hundred by any horseman.

We congratulate Mr. Moore on his purchase, and will look forward with pleasure to the day when we shall see how much greater Director will appear as a sire when mated to the royal collection of mares on his extensive breeding farm.

Racing Statistics.

Racing in America has grown to enormous proportions since its inauguration after the close of the late Civil War, and the prices of yearlings have increased in like proportion. The first regular sale of thoroughbred yearlings was held at Woodburn Stud Farm in 1866. At this sale six colts and eight fillies were sold. Five colts were by Lexington and one by imp. Scythian. The five colts sold for $3,830, an average of $640. One, Aneroid, sold privately for $7,000. He was an own brother to Asteroid. Eight fillies, seven by Lexington and one by Vandal, brought $5,435, an average of a fraction over $679 each. The colt that sold at this sale at the lowest price, $300, was afterward named Crossland, and raced successfully; but his dam's pedigree was not stated nor was it known at the date of the sale.

One of the fillies was Lute, the dam of Virginius, by Virgil, and grandam of the grand racehorse Troubadour. In 1890 27 head of the Woodburn lot were sold at an average of $1,462.50, 14 colts averaged $2,452 per head, and 13 fillies fillies averaged $805 per head. In 1891 the yearlings of the Nursery Stud, 24 head, 10 colts, sold at an average of $7,210, and 14 fillies averaged $3,740 per head, showing what racing has done for the breeding interest of the country. In England in 1891 there were run 1,626 races, of which 733 were five furlongs and under six furlongs, 205 six furlongs and under one mile, 445 were one mile, 192 one mile and under two miles, 40 two miles and under three miles, 7 three miles and under four miles, and three four miles. In these races 247 different sires were represented. In the United States there were run 7,746 races, of which 2,479 were one-quarter of a mile up to and less than six furlongs, 274 of which were heat races, 233 of these being heats of half a mile; 1,913 were run at six furlongs and under seven furlongs, 72 of which were heats of six furlongs; 793 races were run at seven furlongs and under one mile, 99 of which were 7½ furlong and 3 at seven-furlong heats; 292 races were run at one mile and under one mile and a sixteenth, 108 of which were mile heats; 394 races were one mile and a sixteenth; 429 were one mile and an eighth; 43 races were one mile and three-sixteenths; 1 race of one and one-third miles; 2 of one mile and 400 yards; 211 races were one and a quarter miles; 3 races were one mile and five-sixteenths; 15 races were over one and three-eighths; 107 at one and a half miles; 2 at one mile and five furlongs; 9 were one one and three-quarter miles; 36 were two miles; 1 two and a quarter miles; 10 two and a half miles, and 3 three miles. No race of four miles was run. In these races 508 winning sires were represented and 24 double parentage.

In England nearly one-half of the races run were five furlongs and under six furlongs, while in the United States less than one-third were from one-quarter of a mile (of which there were only twenty-seven) were under three-quarters of a mile, and nearly two-thirds of the whole number of races run were at a distance less than one mile. The number of winning sires represented in the United States was more than double the number represented in England, and more than four times the number of races were run in this country than in England. In 1860, the last year an official calendar was published, until 1870, there were run in the United States and Canada 492 races. All of these were at heats except 101, which were dashes from 400 yards to 2½ miles; thirty-six were run by two-year-olds, six of which were three-year-olds under the present racing rules; nineteen of the two-year-old races were mile heats and seventeen dashes of one mile. In 1891 some of our two-year-olds ran more races than all the two-year-olds in 1860.

Knapsack ran 46 races and won only six; Circular ran 43 races and won four; Blaze Duke ran 40 races and won eight; Ceverton ran 37 and won 13 races; His Highness ran 12 races and won nine. In England no two-year-old ran over 17 races. Novice ran that number and won five; Pasquino ran 16 and won four; Old Hoppy ran 13 and won five; Orme, the best two-year-old of the year, ran six races and won five; he carried in the Dewhurst plate seven furlongs, 131 pounds, whilst His Highness carried in the Futurity Stakes 130 pounds. They must be acknowledged to be the two best two-year-olds out last year.

Hoof Beats.

ROMAIR will not start at the Blood Horse meeting. He has a large number of Eastern engagements.

THE Hartford Stake of $10,000, for three-year-olds, in which all the fast youngsters in the country have been entered, will be decided August 25th.

THE Palo Alto and McCarty strings will come to Bay District track to-morrow. Billy Murry will not race his horses in California this spring.

THE filly Azra is still the winter favorite for the American Derby at 8 to 1. Bashford Chief, Justice and Carisbad are at 10 to 1, while Faraday is at 12 to 1.

"F. F. MOULTON has his fine filly by Silver Bow, dam Young Fanny Wickham, at his home near Fair Oaks. She is a perfect beauty and knows nothing but trot," an enthusiastic neighbor writes us.

MILO KNOX, of Haywards, has a mare called Fanny K., that foaled a bay filly on March 10th by Direct, 2:06. Fanny K. is by Redwood, 2:27, second dam Pearl by Silvertail Hunter, he by Old Kentucky Hunter.

IF D. M. Reavis had held his sale in this city, the probabilities are that his horses would have brought much higher prices. Our breeders, who think they can sell anything in the East, are beginning to realize they are mistaken.

A YEARLING filly by Benton Boy out of Winna S., full sister to Palo Alto, 2:08¼, and a yearling filly by the same horse out of May, by Wildidle, will be seen at the races in Hollister this fall. The fillies will not be allowed to compete in the colt stakes, but will trot exhibition miles.

IT IS possible that "Knapsack" McCarthy will return to his first love—the trotting turf. He has had a very flattering offer from W. S. Henry, the owner of Anteeo and Barnhart, to become his trainer and driver. McCarthy is considering the propositions, and if he can dispose of his stable of runners he will accept. The salary offered him is said to be $6,500 per year.

THE duration of gestation or time the offspring of various animals is carried varies wildly. The average duration in the mare is 335 days; cow, nine months; sheep, five months; sow, four months; bitch, two months; cat, fifty days. It is shortest in the rabbit, requiring only twenty-eight days, and longest in the elephant, covering a period of two years. The male offspring is usually carried longer than the female. The young females go a longer time than older ones, and well-bred females longer than those of coarse, lymphatic breeds.

THE Grand National Steeplechase at Liverpool, on March 25th, was won by Father O'Flynn, Cloister second and Ilex third. The victory of Father O'Flynn was a great surprise, as the impression had prevailed that either Cloister or Ilex would be the winner, with the chances in favor of Cloister. Father O'Flynn had, however, been gaining ground of late among the betting fraternity. The course is four miles and four furlongs. The Grand National Steeplechase is for 2,000 sovereigns, including a trophy worth 100 sovereigns, the second receiving 200 sovereigns and the third 100 sovereigns from the stakes.

OF THE producing sons of George Wilkes, Red Wilkes has forty-nine trotters and ten pacers to his credit; Onward thirty-eight trotters, six pacers; Alcantara thirty trotters, eight pacers; Alcyone twenty-three trotters, two pacers; Bourbon Wilkes twenty-one trotters, four pacers; Simmons twenty-one trotters, one pacer; Jay Bird sixteen trotters and no pacers; Young Jim thirteen trotters and one pacer; Young Wilkes thirteen trotters and no pacers; Guy Wilkes ten trotters and two pacers; Ambassador nine trotters and five pacers; Lumps nine trotters and two pacers: St. Gothard nine trotters and one pacer; Wilkes Boy nine trotters and no pacers. All told George Wilkes has seventy-four sires of 406 trotters and 82 pacers. George Wilkes is the sire of the dams of one trotter and one pacer each, with a record of 2:11½. No daughter of George Wilkes has produced two in the 2:20 list. One daughter has produced three in the 2:30 list; six other daughters have produced two each. Thirty-four of his daughters are the dams of thirty-eight trotters and four pacers.

No bacilli can live in NAPA SODA.

JOSEPH CAIRN SIMPSON.

Kite-shaped Tracks.—There appears to be a furore all over the trotting section of the country for trotting tracks after the pattern that bears the above title. The few that have been in operation the past summer have attracted a throng of horses that at Independence, Iowa, being the big magnet, so much of the loadstone quality, that like the Munchausen mountain, whatever came within its hypnotic influence could not resist. More than one thousand miles journeyed some of the pilgrims, the object of their adoration being enshrined in a temple surmounted by the winged Mercury, holding the caduceus aloft shorn of the entwined serpents, its two wings enlarged into heroic proportions, and in order that all observers could understand the symbol, if not posted in the language of emblems, on both were painted in glowing colors Speed, more speed. A throng of worshippers; not clad in "robe of serge," with "scrip and sandal shorn," but a majority of them well-clad, an air of genteel propriety pervading the assemblage. Rosaries and relics absent from view, if carried, but the potent talisman appeared in the shape of chronographs, the well-to-do division having elaborate and ornate specimens of delicate mechanism in heavy gold cases, chased and jeweled, and grading down through silver, spelter and nickel to the plebeian brass and pewter.

Let us suppose that a foreign visitor, one who has traveled by sea and land "far countries for to see," and who is thoroughly imbued with a love of outdoor sports, has, in his peregrinations, landed at Rush Park on one of those days when the whole afternoon was devoted to Time Tests. October 27, 1891, is the date, and if that particular October afternoon was of the same pattern as many October and November days I have seen in that State, it would be the very perfection of Autumnal climatic loveliness. Indian Summer weather in greater glory than can be found in any other territory than that of the great Northwest. If of that description our traveller, in all his wanderings, never saw a finer, and if there are woods and groves of deciduous trees in the neighborhood of Rush Park he would also be gratified with a grouping of colors unrivalled, far beyond the skill of human artist to equal. The queer-shaped track, so different from the classical racecourses of Europe and Australia, the little loop and the big loop, coated with the rich black prairie soil, so smooth, hard and well-kept that it would seem as though a man of ordinary strength could roll a ten-pin ball with force and precision enough to knock the "frame" into a "cocked-hat" a quarter of a mile away.

No verdant turf to restrain the wheel, no soft grass to tangle the feet, and even though its hardness struck him as being too adamantine to agree with his foreign notions about what sort of ground was best adapted for horses galloping upon, the exactness with which it was graded, the surface which could with truth be said to be polished, elicited admiration.

"What is the object of this singular shape for a race course?" he inquired of a bystander. "To make it a fast track," was the reply. He had heard Americans speak of fast horses, but a fast track was beyond his understanding, but resolving not to make a display of his ignorance, he ventured on another. "Isn't it a bit too hard for the horses' feet?" he queried again. "Not a bit for speed," the response, accentuating the last word with so much emphasis as to convey to the questioner that he need not hazard any more such foolish interrogatories. He glanced at the staff of Hermes and the legend on the wings, speed on that which pointed to the west, more speed on the eastern pinion. The missing serpents might be taken as a warning that silence would be discreet and that wisdom, which they are credited of being the exemplar, would be best shown by giving heed to the warning and pursue a golden course. But when the bell rang and the judges took their elevated positions and one horse was called up, he was so far away in the dark that it became an absolute necessity to ask some more questions if he obtained any knowledge of the "great American sport." This time it was a groom he addressed, and to his query, "Where are the other horses, the field which is to go against this one?" "The whaat?" said the groom. "The horses which are going to run with that one, the competitors, or is it a match and only one more to make a race?" As the groom still bore a puzzled expression, he put the question in as simple a form as possible: "What horse or horses are going against that one on the course?", "Narryone," she replied, "she is going agin the watch."

If the questions were a puzzle to the groom, the answer was a "hidden mystery" to the stranger, and again he pondered over the absence of the entwined serpents. Tiresome it became, although there was a surplusage of activity as he looked at horse after horse going nearly straight away from him, and not showing to his eye a great deal of the speed blazoned on the wings as they traversed the far-away big end of the kite, and then came nearly heads on on their way to the winning chair. But there came a fillip to his dulled senses. Two horses, and though one was galloping, he had heard so much in relation to the marvelous flight of the crack American trotters, that he supposed the one trotting was a sure enough star, and that the task set was to beat the runner. His experience with thoroughbreds gave him the knowledge to judge, and he noticed that the galloper was of good form and there were indications of a good deal of "blood" in its whole appearance. Here was a race now worth seeing, he said to himself, and when it was evident that the horse was going easily a length or two behind on the first section of the course, moving up on the turn so that his head was on the wheel of the leader, and came into the straight run in, as nearly as could be told, head and head, and then showed a little a neck the best a furlong from home, he thought, if his thoughts could be known to others and expressed in words, "I knew that it would be fearfully bad screw that a trotter could beat, and if there had been a chance to wager, I would have laid any part of a century on that good-looking horse." Stationed about one hundred yards from the wire he had a good point to watch the finish, and when in close proximity the driver of the galloper took him back so vigorously that the act could not be disguised, he turned to the groom who had answered his previous questions and said: "The —— rascal, he nearly tore the jaw off that horse to prevent him winning." "Oh! that is only a teaser," the groom informed him, and turning to a comrade, said in an undertone: "What a stupid block that Englishman is. He thought it was a real race."

What with fast tracks and going agin the watch, teasers and other trotting-horse slang, he was completely mystified and not a little disgusted. The attraction of these contests "against time" can only be appreciated by the esoteric division, the far larger army which enjoys actual contests, racing or trotting, will be somewhat in the same predicament as the observant foreigner. There are drawbacks in the way when legitimate trotting in place of trials is the attraction, and from what I saw on my two visits to Stockton, feel quite positive that the "general public" will not be so well pleased, after the novelty has been worn off, as with the regulation tracks. The San Joaquin folks are fortunate in having both within their grounds and therefore can obtain the advantages of the two, but if it becomes necessary to change the kite into a regulation the added expense will not be pleasant to consider when it could have been avoided.

So long as the furor exists, so long as the present fever is raging, I am much pleased that California has one kite in order that comparisons could be made with Eastern performances on one of the same shape. But one is enough, and believing as I do that the system of "going agin the watch," unless when the attempt is made to beat standing records, is inimical to the interests of trotting horse breeders, I trust that prospective tracks will be after the regulation plan. A few more seasons, it may be very few, will, in all probability, end the craze, and when that comes and buyers will pay more for colts without records, and for horses with records below their full capacity, unless the records are very fast, the kite will not have its present magnetic influence.

Laying up a Heat.—Bad enough when using the singular, as has been done in the above "side line;" when the plural is used, still worse, if worse can be. I mean when the intention to do so is the conclusion before the start, and the National Trotting Association, by sanctioning it, in any case, has committed a grave error. While it is true there are certain restrictions, these only make it worse, as it is a sort of quasi acknowledgement that the practice has some grounds to be considered lawful, All that was necessary was the adoption of a rule that "laying up" a heat was forbidden and punishable by fine, suspension or expulsion, and, by way of guidance to the judges, an explanation like that appended to the rule lately adopted by the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association, viz.: That when it was positively apparent that a horse could not win the heat, from a bad start or other good cause, it should not be construed that the driver should inflict unnecessary punishment. Simple enough: Classify the loss of a heat that could have been won the same as losing a race, take the same precautions to guard against the minor swindle, and punish with corresponding severity.

The question has been involved in a maze of argument, the only one having a shadow of logical reasoning being that the custom was universal and that "custom made law." In all probability there are few men, so few that it may safely be said not one in a hundred, who have been on the turf for any length of time who have not ordered the laying up of heats, and not one driver who has been on the tracks for any extended period who has not followed that course. I have heard, time and time again, the plea entered, and admitted by the judges, that they had a right to lay up a heat. "Nothing in the rules agin it" would be the triumphant assertion. That there is not a rule or a section of a rule, in either racing or trotting codes, to sanction the procedure was entirely overlooked; in fact, I have heard the claim made, in several instances, that the rules granted the right, and when confronted with evidence to the contrary, that "it used to be the rule," would be the authoritative dictum. That construction by "the stand" has paved the way for nine-tenths of the rascalities which have been perpetrated, and the right to lay up heats conceded, there is little trouble in laying up the race. Splan's story is a capital illustration of the bearing one has on the other, and whether true or not will serve for an exemplar of the close relationship between the two. An owner ordered the laying up of the first heat. After that the betting not being so satisfactory as was anticipated, another heat had to be sacrificed. Then the betting was more than satisfactory. For every dollar the owner invested there were multiples, and between the anxiety of the posted division to get in, and another and better posted division to have them get in, the owner and his friends had ample opportunity. Another heat went the way of the preceding, and the race was at an end. The driver was called upon for an explanation, and his reply was simplicity itself: "I laid up two heats for you, and it is queer if I could not lay up one for myself." There should be small sympathy for a man who was caught in the trap for which he had furnished the bait. That the wrong was sanctioned by custom is no reason why there should be a continuance of the practice which is inimical to the welfare of the sport, and the minor plea, that it deprived good drivers of an opportunity to display their superiority, is not worthy of the slightest consideration. The object of trotting laws is to give everyone a fair chance to win, and should the power be granted to arrange combinations whereby one or more horses can be laid up while another goes for the heat, and then another, while the one within has to fight each in detail, is certainly awarded by far the worst side of the contract. It does not require an immense amount of talent to drop a horse inside of the distance when there is a margin of six or more seconds to spare, and if the evidence of ability is shown by a quick perception of the situation, so that the astute driver will let others battle, while he is enjoying a mile at his leisure, with that taken away he will still have enough in his favor. There are two illustrations of the bad effects of the laying-up heat custom, that occurred on the last circuit, which are peculiarly pertinent, though to these might be added several more. During the pendency of the consideration of amendments to the rules of the Blood Horse Association I met John A. Goldsmith on the ferry boat on his way to the East, and asked him what he thought of the proposed interdiction of laying up heats. "I like it," he answered, "and will give you one of the reasons I have for favoring it. In the Rupee race at Sacramento I laid up the first heat, which Princess Alice won. The second heat I was called to the stand and told that I must go for the other heats, and therefore had to tire my horse while others were favored by easy heats. Had the mandate been general and every driver received the same commands I should have won the race, but the notice to me was also a notice to them that they could take advantage of the situation, and it is needless to say that they availed themselves of the opportunity. With a rule that laying up even a single heat would not be tolerated, and that rule enforced, there could not be a parallel case." When a driver who is acknowledged to be in the front rank of the profession supports the enactment of a law, which will meet universal approbation of the racegoing public, the plea that the skillful artist is deprived of manifesting his ability falls to the ground. His skill will have a better stage for display and receive warmer plaudits from spectators when every heat is a contested battle, than when lying ever so many yards in the rear, without higher aspirations than to see others taking the heaviest brunt of the warfare.

The other case is not peculiar in one respect, that being that two horses were laid up, one for one heat and the other for two heats, these two being rated as the most prominent figures in the fight. I do not claim that the result of the race was changed by the dual laying up, though it certainly took away the best chance of the defeated one, and what cannot be gainsaid, gave her an inferior position in the race than she ought to have obtained. This was the 2:22 class at Stockton which McKinney won, and won gallantly, as the phrase goes Coral was the other referred to, and the placing for these in the first heat was fifth and sixth; the time, 2:21¾. The second heat McKinney won in 2:20, Coral again sixth, and the published account of the third heat shows plainly that the position, next to the last, was foreordained.

"Third heat—Coral took the lead away from McKinney at the eighth, and soon left the balance to loiter on the way. They reached the half in 1:08, and down to the three-quarter pole the two came at a 2:15 clip, Coral a length ahead. On rounding into the stretch Durfee sent McKinney alongside, and when they got to the drawgate McKinney trotted the mare off her feet, and Durfee kept whipping his gallant black until after he passed the wire." The time was 2:17½, and it must be borne in mind that was made on the old regulation track.

In the fourth heat Coral again took the lead, making the half in 1:08; and led into the homestretch, the account stating: "Here the mare faltered (at the head of the homestretch) and McKinney passed up alongside. The mare, although very lame, kept up gamely, until within twenty yards of the wire her lameness began to tell, and McKinney passed her and came in winner by half a length." The time was 2:19. Now it is a fair interence that if both had gone from the start, that Coral would have won the first heat, as when she did start in earnest it was only at the last hundred yards that she lost the heat, and that the third.

The lameness which troubled the filly is of long standing, so that every heat trotted, if even several seconds within her rate, was likely to increase the ailment, therefore it is not apparent that the laying up was influenced by sound judgment. But as Coral had the benefit of being under the charge of a man who stands very high as a driver, therefore it can be taken as evidence that the best are liable to make mistakes. It is quite a common practice among the high celebrities in the profession to lay up the first heat of a race in accordance with the old maxim to "wait and win," but when for that is substituted the motto of Uncle John Harper to go from "eend to eend," commencing with the first heat and never relaxing an effort until the race comes to a close, heat races will be more popular than they are now.

That McKinney would have won the race with both he and Coral driven from the start is beyond question; that she would have won the first heat in fast time there are good reasons to believe, and that would have placed her dam still higher in the table of great broodmares, having three of her offspring to trot below 2:20.

Imported Bellfounder.—Not long ago I received a marked paper from Captain A. Daingerfield, of Culpepper, Virginia, containing a letter—and a very well written one, too—in relation to "pacing and running blood in the trotter." It was in the Kentucky Stock Farm, where I had formerly read it, but Captain Daingerfield added some marginal notes, one of which was: "In California you have the St. Clair, Flaxtail and A. W. Richmond descendants." It will hardly do to class A. W. Richmond among the pacers, as not one of his near kin, or those for two generations back, have the slightest tendency to adopt the lateral movement. It is one of these apparent anomalies in breeding that his son Arrow and Arrow's sister should have been first pacers from a dam by Crichton, a thoroughbred son of Glencoe, and their next dam by a thoroughbred. From present indications it is altogether probable that hereafter quite a number of the descendants of A. W. Richmond will be enrolled in the army of pacers, and as all of the best families of that growing-in-favor tribe have thoroughbreds among their near ancestry, the anomaly is not so striking as it appears at first sight.

I concur with Captain Daingerfield in his high estimate of the value of the blood of imported Bellfounder, and give it all the credit it so richly deserves. Had it only been "known to fame" through his grandson, so far in the lead of all other progenitors of trotting horses that there is scarcely any chance for comparison, that would have been sufficient to stamp it with the seal of approval. To Abdallah and the Chas. Kent mare, by imp. Bellfounder, Hambletonian owes his greatness in the first place, and back of them their ancestry. But the influence is constantly diminishing, and parents occupy the position which four do in the second generation, eight in the next and so on. Is it not better, then, to accept the first crosses as having more potency than those further back? Let us give due credit to the dam of Hambletonian, as his sire (Abdallah) never got his equal from any other mare; to Dame Winnie (as Palo Alto is the fastest Electioneer stallion), and in that way tender acknowledgements which, if they go across the grain in some cases, cannot be withheld with any degree of fairness.

Captain Daingerfield very properly places an interrogation mark when he writes of the "channels polluted (?) by the plebeian blood of the Norfolk trotter Bellfounder." That his dam was nearly thoroughbred, if not quite so, is well within the range of probabilities. In a letter to the American Farmer copied in the "old" Spirit of the Times in 1839, Mr. Samuel Jacques, who had owned Bellfounder, writes: "Bellfounder was imported from England in 1822 by James Boot, Esq., of Boston. Bellfounder was sired by that well-known, fast and highbred trotter, old Bellfounder, out of Velocity, by Haphazard, he by Sir Peter out of Miss Hervey, by Eclipse. Velocity trotted on the Norwich road in 1806, sixteen miles in one hour, and although she broke fifteen times into a gallop, and as often turned around, won her match. In 1808 she trotted twenty-eight miles in one hour and 47 minutes, and has often done many other great performances against time. Bellfounder, at five years old, trotted two miles in less than six minutes, and the following year was matched for 200 guineas to trot nine miles in thirty minutes, which he won easily by twenty-two seconds. His owner shortly afterwards challenged to perform with him seventeen miles and a half within the hour, but it was not accepted.

Old Bellfounder was a true descendant from the original blood of the Fireaways, which breed of horses stand unrivalled in England, either for "gig or saddle."

There was certainly good grounds for Mr. Jacques making the above statements over his signature, and that a comparatively short time after the horse was imported. Mr. Jacques was a prominent gentleman who, at his country seat, Three Hills, near Boston, originated the famous breed of Cream Pot cattle. The editor of the American Farm, who, by the way, was J. S. Skinner, the pioneer in turf literature in this country, precedes the communication with some remarks, the opening sentence being: "The following description recommendatory of a horse is by one of the best judges of a horse and one of the best horsemen in this or any other country."

And reasoning from analogous cases, the presumption would be that Bellfounder had some good blood. The founder of the Bashaw family, Young Bashaw, was by imported Bashaw (Barb or Arabian), from Pearl, by First Consul, granddam Fanny, by imported Messenger, great grandam by imported Rockingham, etc. The grandsire of Hambletonian was the thoroughbred Mambrino, founder also of several prominent tribes, and in every instance where the genealogy can be traced the good blood is not far away.

The Equine Nursery.

At no time of the year are broodmares entitled to such close attention and careful management as during the breeding season. Many breeders then meet with their heaviest losses through the death of foals, and occasionally the dam from various causes, largely due to neglect. A very great percentage of such losses could be saved to their owner by prompt attention and rational treatment.

No mare upon which value is placed should be left alone during foaling. As the period of gestation varies from thirty to forty-five days, an attendant should be, after a lapse of 320 days from date of breeding, prepared to give her assistance at any moment. It is therefore important that every owner should keep for reference a register of the date of service.

In many cases the foal, being unable to stand, is allowed to lie on damp ground, and, becoming chilled, falls a victim to inflammation and dies from some cause which is a mystery to the owner. If such colt had been given some of its mother's milk at intervals of every few minutes and been kept warm and comfortable it is quite probable that it would have recovered in a very short time. In other cases it dies from suffocation after delivery owing to the fœtal membrane covering the nostrils remaining intact. Any person present at the time could easily puncture or remove the membrane and thus save the little animal's life. The symptoms which frequently occur and contribute to their death are constipation or the opposite condition, diarrhœa, retention of urine, etc. The first of these symptoms, constipation, is usually easily overcome if early attended to. If allowed to continue for two or three days it is liable to produce griping pains in the bowels, and not infrequently causes inflammation of the bowels (enteritis), the result of which is nearly always fatal.

A healthful foal will usually have a movement of the bowels in one, or, at most, two hours after standing on its feet. Should they remain inactive for a longer period, with no other symptoms, then castor oil given internally with injections in the rectum of tepid water would be indicated, after which, if there was no response, the services of a skillful veterinary surgeon should be engaged.

Diarrhœa is occassionally seen in foals from a few days to a few weeks old. In very young foals it is usually the result of an irritated condition of the mucus membrane of the stomach or from the condition of the mother's milk, which may be either too nutritious or deficient in the elements of nutrition. Pepsine and nux vomica given to the foal and lime water to the dam usually have the desired effect. In older foals it may be necessary to give, in addition to the above, small doses of castor oil and opium. This applies more especially to those cases that are free from pain. If there are symptoms of violent pain it is advisable to get professional assistance immediately.

Retention of urine is only symptomatic of some other difficulty due in foals usually to spasmodic contraction of the neck of the bladder. This may and does very frequently accompany constipation, and is usually relieved when the spasms are relieved. If not, small doses of stimulants may be given, and should this fail the insertion of a catheter may be necessary.

A disease peculiar to young foals that usually presents the most serious difficulty is that called "scrofulous ostitis," or, in other words, a scrofulous inflammation of bone. The general symptoms, especially those of the more violent form, are easily recognized. The first observable sign is dribbling of urine at the navel opening. Concomitant with this unnatural flow of urine the little animal becomes stiff and lame in one or more of its limbs or joints. The affected parts are swollen, hot and very tender. In a very few days the swollen joint suppurates and discharges pus, abscesses form in various parts of the body, the animal evinces excruciating pain, and death soon ends its existence. In each and every case where swelling of the joints appear it is an act of mercy to destroy the little sufferer, as the disease then assumes an incurable form. But many cases of the milder form are susceptible of treatment, and as soon as that dribbling of urine is observed professional aid should be summoned. The symptom of dribbling is usually first seen about the time that the naval cord drops off. Colts over three weeks old are not liable to be affected. In some cases, which are certainly very rare, there are exceptions to the first symptom named above—dribbling. Many foals show a weakness at the fetlock or knee joints, some being so weak as to be unable to walk without dropping on those joints. Such cases usually develop a mild form of this disease, and should have the most careful attention.

There is no doubt whatever that the mare's milk has a very great influence in this disease. Experience would seem to indicate that acidity of the milk is an exciting cause. Many cases that have resisted the action of popular remedies have shown a decided improvement when this acidity was overcome by the administration to the dam, as well as the foal, of a liberal supply of lime water. From the action of lime in this case, as well as its action in controlling diarrhœa, it is quite apparent that a good supply of this alkaline substance is a most useful adjunct to the breeding barn, and breeders who use it liberally will have cause for congratulation.

Give the mare a little lime water every day for a week or two before foaling, and continue the same preparation for at least three weeks after foaling, and the result will be both pleasure and profit to owners.—"L" in Clark's Horse Review

The Dam of Roy Wilkes, 2:08 1-4.

Flora is a low, compactly-built bay mare, with heavy mane and tail that are fine and silky. Her head is a trifle larger than the average for her size, but is shapely, clean and strong in outline. Has dark, large, full and expressive eyes, fine, active ears, rather short, strong, slightly arched neck, a little thick at the throttle, but not coarse, rather high at the withers, good, strong shoulders, deep, well rounded body, short, strong back, round, full hips, heavy limbs, plenty of bone and sinew, splendid knees and hocks and the best of feet, carries her head very high in harness, is a bold, free, quick-stepping trotter, a rapid walker and a splendid draft mare for her size; could road about twelve miles an hour and could handle a load wonderfully well at the trot. When trotting has a dancing motion of the hips which, with her disposition and conformation, indicate a Morgan ancestry, an honor to any family. She is none the less great if a Morgan. They have proved their title to the highest honors. Hambletonians's greatest sire of race horses had for a second dam a Morgan mare, and Red Wilkes, who holds the same distinction among the sons of George Wilkes, has double the Morgan blood of his sire. Another good one of the Wilkes family is Rosalind Wilkes. Her mother is a Morgan. Jim Wilson, the Blue Bull that has impressed me as looking like Flora, is the best son of his sire, and his dam is by Gray Hawk Morgan. Nelson, 2:10, that has more speed for a brush than any other horse, has for second dam a daughter of Black Hawk 5. Young Rolf, his sire, also had a Morgan dam. Clark Chief's best son gets the Morgan cross, and is the sire of Guy, 2:10¼. Fearnaught won the ten thousand dollar stake at Buffalo, and with it the world's stallion record. He is deep in Morgan blood. His son, Royal Fearnaught, has other lines to his family of beautiful workers, and is the sire of Silverthreads, 2:15, and many others in the list.

The sire of Johnston, 2:0 5¼, is nearly all Pilot and Morgan, Jack, 2:12¼, is the best of the Pilot Mediums, thanks to his Morgan mother. Monbars, 2:16½, has for dam Lady Maud, 2:18½, another Morgan. Annie Easton, by Morgan Rattler, has four in the list and a daughter with two in the list. Among a long list of 2:20 or better horses that have Morgans for first or second dams we find such as Rarus, 2:13¼, Gloster, 2:17, Hopeful, 2:13¾, Moody, 2:18, Phil Thompson, 2:16½, an inbred Morgan, So So, 2:17½, Belle F., 2:15½, and Lucille Golddust, 2:14½, that has a Morgan sire. The Pilots have a decided Morgan aspect and would add many good ones to the Morgan family. A black son of Justin Morgan was taken to Canada, and left some stock; he was the most speedy son of the old horse. It is not known that Pilot is a descendant of this horse, but he has produced a family that in size, courage, endurance and all-around good qualities are true Morgans. Great as the Pilots are, it is not a sure thing that one of them can shade the Morgan horse, Panic. Taken to Madison county, Iowa, by a pioneer horseman, he was not appreciated, getting about one hundred colts in seventeen years, embracing but one standard mare. Yet of the thirty-odd 2:30 performers produced in the county all but four were sired by this horse or were from Panic dams. These mares have produced Wonder, 2:22; Blue Charley, 2:22½; Pickpania, 2:14¾, and of the twenty-five mares by Panic still in the county all but four or five will produce 2:30 or better speed if mated with trotting sires. Panic is the sire of Butter Scotch, 2:20, and his family are racehorses. These are but a few of the great horses that owe at least a part of their superior qualities to the Morgans. They speak in no uncertain tones of the value of this sturdy blood. It has overcome prejudice and will in the future, as it has in the past, keep its possessor in the very front rank of the greatest horses in the land.

To favor the Morgan blood in Flora, some may imagine we are not getting the greatest amount of leather in our boots for the money, but it seems to be a fit, and there is nothing small about them.—C. C. Hayden in American Trotter.

Sprains in Horses.

No matter how slight a strain may appear, it should be carefully treated, and here is another popular error, the prevailing idea being that if a liniment is rubbed into the part the animal can go on working. In a sprain there is loss of function, and it is owing to this that lameness is present in proportion to the severity of the injury and the importance of the part. Neither "white oils" nor "black oils" are equal to restoring this; in fact, there is only one thing that will do it, viz.: Nature's remedy, rest—rest with a capital R.

Some people seem to have an idea that rest means turning the horse out into a bare pasture, where it has to walk eighteen hours out of twenty-four for a living; and then they wonder that the animal gets worse instead of better. We have even known some who have given horses walking exercise when lame from sprained tendons, under the impression that exercise is good for sprains.

Rest is just the very thing that most owners are unwilling to allow, unless the animal is absolutely broken down and unable to move. They will pay for any amount of liniment, but meet all suggestions as to throwing the animal out of work with the remark that they cannot spare it. This is penny-wise and pound foolish, for a slight sprain that a week would suffice to heal is, by continued movement and maltreatment, converted into a serious injury that keeps the horse idle for months, or perhaps hopelessly ruins it. A sprain of the tendons, especially if at all severe, calls for a prolonged period of rest, even after all symptoms of lameness have passed away, as experience has amply demonstrated that one injury predisposes to another, and that such animals are always to be regarded with suspicion.

The object of treatment in the first stage of a sprain is to keep down or reduce inflammation and to prevent exudation or swelling. The shoe should be removed at once, before the limb has got so swollen and tender as to make putting on another a matter of difficulty owing to the acute agony handling gives the animal. We want not only to rest in the sense of stopping labor, but to place the injured parts as much as possible in a state of rest, and to effect this relaxation surgical shoeing is very useful. If we observe how the horse stands, we shall gain an idea of what kind of shoe will be best to relieve him, and common-sense suggests shortening the toe and applying a high-heeled shoe.

The next thing is a dose of physic, which tends to prevent fever and keep down inflammation—acting magically in this and other causes of lameness. The animal should be secured in a position to discourage movement, and either hot fomentations or cold astringent lotions should be applied continuously. There is, perhaps, some difference of opinion as to whether cold or heat is best, but whichever is adopted must be kept up continuously. Fomentation does not mean to dab about with a little half-warm water for a quarter of an hour and then leave the part wet, but to continue to apply the water as hot as it can be borne for several hours at a stretch. This makes cold applications the easiest to use, as swabs of bandages can be frequently dipped in a lotion and re-applied, so that constant attendance is less necessary. For a recent injury, without much swelling and congestion, cold is perhaps preferable, but if there is much pain and swelling, relief is most promptly afforded by hot water. A useful lotion is hydrochlorate of ammonia, one-half ounce; acetic acid, one ounce; tincture of arnica, four ounces; water to one pint. If warm water is used an anodyne such as opium or belladonna may be added. This treatment must be kept up until heat and tenderness have subsided, when the high-heeled shoe may be removed, the foot shod level, and, if thought desirable, a stimulating liniment applied daily. It is at this stage, if any, that these preparations are useful, and not at the beginning of the treatment. If slight lameness continues, or there is thickening or enlargement, it will be best to blister; indeed, it is seldom bad practice to blister after a sprain, as it at least ensures a prolonged rest.

Great caution is necessary in taking the animal into work, and if there is any change of the limb now standing it should be fired.

A case of breakdown means months of enforced idleness, generally permanent deformity, unfitness for fast work, and in some instances incurable lameness.

Sometimes permanent shortening or contraction of the tendons results, and then the operation of tenotomy is sometimes resorted to with success. This consists in dividing the tendons and making forcible extension so as to bring the heel down. The details of this operation have, of course, no great interest for the amateur, who would hardly think of attempting such a thing and would naturally employ a veterinary surgeon.

Sturgis (Mich.) Fair Association Stake Entries.

Following is a list of nominations to the Sturgis Fair Association stakes (which closed March 1, 1892) from this coast or where the horse was sire by a California stallion:

No. 1—$5,000 Stake for Two-year-old Trotters, Eligible to 2:50 Class. Sixty nine Nominations.
C. W. Williams' br f Eoka, by Sphinx, dam by Nutwood.
S. B. Kitchel's Kitchel's Romeo, by Sidney, dam Maud R. by Buccaneer.
Waters Stock Farm's b f Dacia, by California, dam Miss Dickey by Pilot Medium; b f Monecha, by California, dam Maggie B. by Menelaus.
H. S. Henry's Cecil Wilkes, by Guy Wilkes; b c Anteeoyne, by Anteeo, dam Anna Lotta by Red Wilkes.
San Mateo Stock Farm, b f Sabledale, by Sable Wilkes, dam Vixen by Nutwood; br f Liza Wilkes, by Guy Wilkes, dam Hannah Price by Arthurton; blk c Oro Wilkes, by Sable Wilkes, dam Ellen Mayhew by Director.
Sutherland & Benjamin's b s Ora, by Sphinx, dam Julia by Chimes.
Prospect Hill Stock Farm's b c Antella, by Ansel, dam Graphelia by Gen. Benton; ro f Silk Floss, by Electioneer, dam Flossy by Gen. Benton; g g Silver Ore, by St. Bel, dam Retchelders by Messenger Chief.
G. Valensin's b c Dictator Sidney, by Sidney, dam Ellen Torridson by Dictator.

No. 2—$5,000 Stake for Three-year-old Trotters Eligible to 2:25 Class. Twenty-five Nominations.
Geo. H. Hammond's Pauline, by Sphinx.
Prospect Hill Stock Farm's br f Belleflower, by Electioneer, dam Beautiful Bells by The Moor.
San Mateo Stock Farm's br f Sabino, by Sable Wilkes, dam Eva by LeGrand; b c Freedom, by Sable Wilkes, dam Laura Drew by Arthurton.
Sutherland & Benjamin's ch c Gift O'Neer, by Sphinx, dam Lizette by Mambrino Gift.
W. H. Davis' b c St. Lookout, by Sultan, dam Kitty Wilkes by Red Wilkes.
Pleasanton Stock Farm's blk c Directum, by Director, dam Stemwinder by Venture.

No. 3—$5000 Stake for 2:30 Trotters. Twenty-six Nominations.
San Mateo Stock Farm's b m Meta Wilkes, by Guy Wilkes, dam Montrose, by Sultan.
George H. Hammond's Duchess, by Sidney.
Prospect Hill Stock Farm's b g Answer, by Ansel, dam Flora, by Hambletonian.
O. A. Hickok's b h Prince Warwick, by Alcona, dam Warwick Maid, by Almont; ch g Ariel, by Whips, dam Glendale, by Messenger Duroc.

No. 4—$5,000 Stake for 2:20 Trotters. Twenty-one Nominations.
Alex Lewis' Contractor, by Sultan, dam Madam Harding, by Overland.
San Mateo Stock Farm's ch m Hazel Wilkes, by Guy Wilkes, dam Blanche, by Arthurton.
The Ketcham Farm's b m Morea, by Electioneer, dam Maria Pilot, by Mambrino Pilot.
Pleasanton Stock Farm's b h Steve Whipple, by Chrisman's Hambletonian, dam Twist, by Whipple's Hambletonian.

No. 5—$2,500 for 2:30 Pacers. Twenty-four Nominations.
L. G. Dunton's b m Jennie Hawthorne, by Hawthorne, dam Roan Mare, by California Lambert.
O. A. Hickok's ch g Chris Smith, by Guy Wilkes, dam Lucy.
Pleasanton Stock Farm's blk g San Pedro, by Del Sur.

No. 6—$2,500 for 2:30 Pacers. Eighteen Nominations.
Pleasanton Stock Farm's b g Flying Jib, by Algona, dam by Middletown.

The Pacing Horse 2:30 List.

[OPEN LETTER NO. 2.]

TO BREEDERS AND OWNERS OF PACERS:

The National Standard Pacing Horse Breeders' Co. was incorporated for the exclusive benefit of the pacing-horse interest. Vol. 2 of its Register will contain a complete list of 2:30 pacers. Vol. 7 Wallace's Year Book, published by the American Trotting Register Association, contains 5908 2:30 trotters, while their list of pacers (under the system to "admit the pacer," but keep him out as much as possible) shows up a magnificent 894 pacers, all told. Perhaps owners of pacers will be satisfied with the generous (?) position. The Pacing Register Co. was first in the field, and is "for" and "not" against the pacer. It has registered more horses in the past sixty days than during any other like period. The replies to our open letter of February 18th were very numerous and covered a range from Maine to California, and from Canada to Texas. The sentiment was clear and decided—that this company, being first in the field, and now established and meeting with public favor, we are here to stay. We have not encroached upon the rights of any; we came into the field as a necessity, and the maladministration of the interests of the pacer in Vol 7, "Wallace's Year Book," clearly shows a necessity greater than ever for a Register and Year Book (such as ours is intended to be) exclusively for pacers. The preservation of the 2:30 list of pacers is of the "utmost" importance to owners of pacers, and others as well, no matter as to the views of 400 TROTTING horse men.

It will require but a little time to demonstrate that the 400 gentlemen who own the Trotting Register will have their hands full in attending strictly to their business of creating and establishing a breed of trotters on an intelligent (rather than a "mongrel") basis. We desire to arrange at once for a correction and completion of our 2:30 list of pacers, and to that end we invite owners of pacers with records, 2:30 or better, to send to us promptly, by letter or postal card, the name and breeding of animal, record, where and when made, and owner's name and address.

There is no reason why the pacing and trotting register interests should come in conflict. There is no just reason why pacing interests should submit to the killing handicaps placed upon it by the trotting interests. Let us put forth every effort to establish and perpetuate, as the pride of American breeding industry and talent, a distinct breed of pacers; the trotters as a breed, established by Mr. Wallace, should be kept separate unto itself.

We earnestly solicit the earnest thought of breeders on this important matter and your continued hearty support. Now is the time for influence and action. Respectfully, THOS. C. PARSONS.
Registrar.

The Loeber Sale.

"The elements seemed ill at ease" on Monday and Tuesday. The rain fell in torrents, the wind blew "great guns" and the hail fell pitilessly on the blossoms in the orchards and scattered the blooms on the damp earth. The advertised sale that was to take place at Napa was the only topic of conversation among horsemen: whether it would take place or not was a question. On Wednesday morning the clouds looked leaden, the sun was hidden by the darkness which made everything look cold and dreary. The rains of the previous night made the streets and the roads almost unfit for travel; still those who knew Mr. Fred W. Loeber believed that his closing-out sale would surely take place, and the results showed that their faith was not misplaced. Only a few from San Francisco were seen at the wharf, and when the cars stopped at the race track just thirty passengers alighted and wended their way toward the grand stand. Among those present was noticed: Messrs. Charles Scott, Barney Murphy, Zeke Wilson, Nat Coombs, M. Kemper, Gilbert Tompkins, Lee James, J. Evans, Ira Pierce, H. Pierce, J. L. McDonald, R. B. Milroy, John McCord, Prof. E. P. Heald, George Wiley, J. F. Boyd, G. W. Monteith, Homer Norton, J. W. Williams, L. H. Trainer, R. H. Allen, Dennis McVicker, Thomas Jackson, W. A. Mackinder, T. Downey, R. G. Head, John McPike, R. H. Brown, B. C. Holly, Dr. E. Z. Hennessey, J. B. Childs, E. B. Jennings, John Evan, Wilfred Page, A. P. Waugh, H. Latham and D. Hackett.

Considering the state of the weather and the smallness of the crowd present, the sale was a very fair one.

The Oakwood Park Stock Farm secured the Woodnut filly Woodline for $380, the brown filly Directess for $1,200, the Woodnut filly Venus for $700 and the Mountain Boy filly, out of Madonna, for $875. H. Pierce secured the following: Munio, by Milton Medium, for $345, Madonna (dam of Del Rey, 2:29, and Alcona Jr, 2:24) for $1,675, and several other good ones. Prof. Heald purchased Jessie E. for $350. A colt by Noonday, out of Madonna brought $350, John Evans of Napa being the purchaser.

The following is a list of the animals sold and the prices obtained:

The Pierce Sale.

In the introductory article of the catalogue of horses to be sold at auction in Oakland on the thirteenth of this month is the following:

The Moor Family.—The great prominence that this family has attained in the United States is almost unprecedented in the history of the trotting horse. From the loins of the founder of this family have come those great horses and mares that have proved so valuable to cross upon the Hambletonians. Wherever this has been done the progeny has been noted for beauty, hard limbs, good bone, well-placed muscle, solid colors, style and finish, besides that other great desideratum—early and extreme speed. That the descendants of The Moor nick well with all trotting families, and especially with the Hambletonian family, is admitted by all. They are a clear out-cross in style and form, and a climatic out-cross which, in our belief, exercises a beneficial influence. The Moor family, as a family, is characterized as being more rangy, larger and having more quality and a higher nervous organization than any other of the great families of trotters, and this will become an important element of improvement to individuals lacking in these qualities. That they have speed, and extreme speed, the records show. Speed is now the ever-shining quality, and of course, to an extent, justly so; yet size and style will, in the near future, play an important part in the stallions. We are now getting to a place where horses will have to be sold for use and enjoyment for driving purses, and size, style and beauty will be important factors in fixing their value.

There has never been a family of horses that brought higher prices in the market than The Moor, as the records show. Millions of dollars have been received for a few ani-animals, and at the auction sales they lead all others. At the very last one held in Chicago the descendants of The Moor kept up this reputation, for they averaged over a $1,000. Breeders should take this great feature into consideration: no better criterion of the value of horses can be had than the amount they bring at the sales.

Take The Moor and his descendants—Sultan, Stamboul, Alcazar and Bay Rose—what quality on earth can excell them for all the qualities requisite by breeders who desire to improve their stock of horses? Bay Rose, 2:20½, is pronounced by all horsemen to be one of the most beautiful, stylish, perfect-gaited and resolute trotting stallions living, and his colts and fillies that are offered at this sale will demonstrate to every one's satisfaction that they inherit all his qualities. His list of 2:30 performers will open wide, and numbers will go in from this on. He has been bred to some royal matrons, and all colts and fillies that have been sired by him show that they are possessed of speed of a high order. They are kind, intelligent, perfect-gaited, and represent, in a remarkable degree, all the many valuable characteristics of their sire."

The list of animals offered include yearlings by Bay Rose 2:20½, Sidney 2:19¾, Mambrino Wilkes and others; while the mares, colts and fillies are a grand-looking lot; a like opportunity to get splendid representatives by so many different sires may not occur again in years. The following are some of the names of the stallions: Stamboul 2:11, Alonzo Hayward 2:30, Jester D. 5696, Kentucky Whip, Reliance, Grand Moor, Cresco, Standard N., Redwood 2:27, Mambrino Wilkes, Vick's Ethan Allen Jr., Hambletonian 725, Prompter, Monroe Chief 2:18¼, Bay Rose 2:20½, Almont Ford, Eugene Casserly, Echo, Walker, Sterling, Volo, Alaska, Wapsie, Gen. McClellan, Belle Alta, Hubbard and Newland's Hambletonian. The broodmares are heavy in foal to Bay Rose 2:20½, Sidney 2:19¾, Direct 2:06 and others. If road horses are wanted some grand individuals are to be offered. The youngsters are all royally-bred, and will be a credit to any stock farm. Messrs. Henry and Ira Pierce have been selecting their collection of choice ones and as many have been bred to their handsome stallion Bay Rose, they want to see the produce scattered among trainers and breeders, and in order to encourage people to train the youngsters they offer the sum of $250 to the owner of the first colt or filly that gets inside the charmed circle. In our next issue we will give a review of the stock offered.

Tacoma Horse Items.

Tacoma, Wash., March 26, 1892.

Our track is now being worked under the supervision of Robt. Breege, and horse interest is commencing to boom. There are a number of good horses at the track now. James Hicky has three, viz.: Bishop Hero, 2:26; Alverta Jr., and Grand (son of Almont, out of the dam of Delcho, 2:23).

Happy West, by Col. West, is a beautiful brown stallion. He has only had three weeks' work, and showed a quarter in 12 seconds.

Chambers has seven in his string—Martha Washington, a great pacing mare lately from Iowa; Pow Sheir, a three-year-old gelding by Legal Tender Jr., dam by Little Joe, 2:28½, grandam sister to Mahaska Belle.

Dan Murphy, brown colt, by Soudan, 2:27½, dam Patchen Mollie, by G. M. Patchen Jr., 2:27, is a late arrival from California.

Nominator, bay horse, by Ross S. (by Nutwood), dam by Prompter. Mr. Chambers hopes to win the prize that D. J. Murphy offers for every Soudan colt that trots inside of 2:30 this year with the brown colt Dan Murphy. The balance of Mr. Chambers' string we will speak of later.

W. R. Rust, the manager of the Tacoma Smelter, owns three trotters that will be heard from this season in good company.

Mansion Boy, bay gelding by Alarm, is able to trot in the thirty list when called on. Jessie Crocker, by Little Joe, dam Wapsie Girl, is the handsomest mare in Tacoma. She is a candidate for track honors. Richard Owen's brown colt by Bismarck will make it interesting for three-year-old trotters this year.

Mr. Rust's stable is in charge of Mr. Sangle, of Denver. We wish Mr. Rush success, as he don't hold back the money when he wants a good horse. C. A. H.

Chaldean is Sold.

Chaldean, the handsome four-year-old black stallion that was over at Pleasanton, has been sold to the Marin Farm and Stock Company, San Rafael. This young horse is considered one of the finest of individuals, and as a trotter he is "phenomenally fast." We understand that he shows such marvelous speed that his new owners will enter him in some free-for-all races this fall. That he will not reflect honor on his able backers no one who has seen him "work out" can deny. Owners of good mares should see this stallion before they decide on selecting a horse for them, and try and induce this company to place him in the stud for a short season.

A New Departure.

A windmill that never requires oiling, obviated by having graphite bearings, made of steel, light yet strong—this is all found in the Gem Steel Wind Mill. The Gem Steel Wind Mill combines beauty, strength, durability and simplicity to the greatest degree, and is easily erected. A person with any knowledge of machinery can set it up without the least trouble. The name of the firm (Woodin & Little) having this mill for sale is a sufficient guarantee of its ability to perform all that is claimed for it. Write them for circulars regarding Wind Mill and pumping machinery of all kinds.

Roach's American Star.

The pedigree of the above-mentioned horse has long been in doubt, but from the appended letters we believe the matter is now cleared up satisfactorily. William B. Bradbury, owner of Little Albert, 2:17¼, has been investigating the matter of the breeding of the dam of Little Albert, who was by Roach's American Star. The last-named horse was also known as Wild Warrior. He was a very good race horse in his day, and known on tracks from New Orleans to Buffalo. His owner, Tom Roach, was an old turfman, and always claimed the horse was by Seely's American Star. He even went so far as to declare that he would wager $1,000 against $500 with any one on his horse's breeding, which is given by Chester and other authorities as being by Bolivar, dam by Jim Thumb, son of Tom Thumb. The following letters were dictated by J. W. Hoyt, of Lawton, Orange County, N. Y. That gentleman, who was once Sheriff of Orange County, is now totally blind:

Lawton, November 17, 1891.

Mr. Bradley, Esq. My Dear Sir: Your letter received. In 1859, Nesbit and E. J. Nodine bought the stallion you speak of. Robert Carr of Mount Eve, Orange county, N. Y. who bred him from a bay pacing mare who was sired by Jim Thumb, and he by Tom Thumb. She was put to a horse that stood in Florida, N. Y., owned by John Prescott, called Bolivar. Afterwards, at Mapes' Corner, Orange county, she was put to American Star, so the owner, Mr. Edmund Seely, owner of Star, told me, and his man, who took care of Star, Zeke Dusenbury, told me he served Star to the mare. The same season myself and Nodine bought the horse there was a purse given four-year-olds at Long Island, two miles and repeat, to show which breed had the best looking and the colt won easy. I then bought Nodine's interest out. In 1861 I stood him for service in Middletown, Orange county. He had served two or three mares when he got kicked in the testicles and came near losing them. I advertised him as a good trotter as he had two fathers. I challenged any horse in the county two miles and repeat for $500 to $1,000 a side, and had no takers. That fall I sold him to Tom Roach. He trotted him all over the country, from one mile to three, and generally won. He won a great many races under all kinds of names. Roach at one time sold him to Mr. Alexander, the great breeder of Kentucky. Afterwards he bought him back and went to trotting him again under all kinds of names.

Roach was in Baltimore when the war was going on, and the government seized all the horses in Baltimore, and they seized this horse of Tom's. Tom went and bought a good horse, and traded and got him back again. After the close of the war he took the horse, went to New Orleans and trotted him there, and sold him. Afterwards he bought him back again and trotted him in all the Western States. The last time I ever saw Roach was at a trotting meeting in Buffalo in 1873, when he had one in full for the horse. That is the last I ever saw or heard of the horse until your letter. I called him, when I advertised the horse, Wild Warrior, and he trotted on Long Island by that name. Mr. Seely, the owner of Star, always claimed that he was got by his horse, and he had such everlasting bottom that I had no doubts about it myself. Please give my warmest regards to John H. Goldsmith, as his father and myself were always the warmest of friends, and I always loved his two boys (Jim and John). The turf has lost one of its very best drivers in the death of James Goldsmith, and I have lost a dear friend. Tell John that I have passed the seventy-five mile post, and have been totally blind for three years, but, if the Rocky Mountains are between us, I have not lost or forgotten old friendships.

Lawton, Orange County, N. Y., December 15, 1891.

Mr. Bradley:

My Dear Sir: I received your letter of date November 23d, stating you had received a letter from me not signed. It was a mistake that it not being signed, as I meant it should be, and thought it was. As I am blind, my son wrote it for me. He does not see how he made the mistake, and the history of Roach's stallion was substantially correct as he wrote in that letter. I have not gone away from the house this winter, and there is no notary public short of six miles of here, but as soon as I am able, will write the pedigree of this stallion and swear to it before a Notary Public and send it to you, as you request.

Very respectfully yours,
J. W. Hoyt (per W. S. H.)

Blue Bull 75.

The following article is taken from the Western Horseman: The article of Mr. D. L. Thomas in Wallace's Monthly quoted by the Western Horseman of March 11th in regard to Blue Bull is interesting. Mr. Green Wilson, according to that article, had no knowledge of the horse prior to the Cincinnati event of which he spoke; it is evident that he cannot be used as a witness to establish facts in his early history.

As the man who bred and raised Blue Bull, bred and raised his dam and owned his grandam, is still living, I thought it would be interesting to horsemen to hear what he knows about the great horse before he sold him to Daniel Dorrell.

Mr. Elijah Stone is an old and respected citizen of Johnson county, whose honesty and integrity has never been questioned, and from the fact that he is not identified with the horse interests, and never has been, any further than to give to the world Blue Bull 75, it is evident that he has no axe to grind in regard to pedigrees, and it seems reasonable to suppose that his version of the early history of the horse would be authentic, and settle forever the absurd stories going the rounds about the grand old horse's origin. His origin is of very small moment, as it relates to himself, for he is a king, and as a king he came of royal blood, from the fact that a king's blood is royal.

Mr. Stone says that Blue Bull's grandam was nearly 15 hands high, a bright bay and a trotter, purchased by him from Mr. Barcus, of Switzerland County, Ind. She was bred to a black horse about 16½ hands high, called Young Selim, a Truxton horse, a powerful fellow with good trotting action, full of vim and energy. Her tireless energy and wonderful power of endurance as shown in the common drudgery on the farm, her speed and staying qualities in many a long-distance trip over the poor roads of her day, fully demonstrated her right to the name that they gave her, "Queen." This mare Queen was foaled in the year 1848; she was a chestnut sorrel, 15 hands and one inch high. She died in the spring of 1858. At five years old Queen was bred to a horse called Sam; he was a Claybank horse with a stripe on his back and down his shoulders, a powerful horse of fine conformation and good action. The product of this union was the greatest of sires—Blue Bull 75. Blue Bull was foaled in 1854 and remained in Mr. Stone's hands until the spring of 1857, when Mr. Stone sold him to his brother-in-law, Daniel Dorrell.

The Withers Sale.

New York, March 31st.—There was a large crowd at the sale in Brooklyn of the stable owned by the late D. D. Withers this afternoon. The best price was $11,100, for the two-year-old chestnut filly Experiment, bought by D. Bradley, representing Fred Gebhardt. Among the orher good sales were: Brown colt, by Uncas—Mimi, $6,000; chestnut colt, by imp. Mortemer—Wanda, $3,000; chestnut colt, by Stonehenge—Nell, $2,000; brown colt, by Uncas—Cadence, $7,300; brown colt, by Uncas—Necromancy, $4,200; chestnut filly, by imp. Mortimer—Addie, $4,100; chestnut filly, by imp. Mortemer—Trill, $5,500; brown colt, by imp. Mortemer—Retribution, $2,600; bay colt, by imp. Mortemer—Bassinet, $3,050; bay colt, by King Ernest—Wyandotte, $3,000; bay colt, by imp. King Ernest—Kindnach, $4,100; chestnut colt, by Sensation—Bassinet, $2,400; chestnut colt, by Uncas—Coupon, $2,300; chestnut colt, by Uncas—Cadence, $5,100.

A Tale of the Races.

He could tell you all the horses
That had run at all the courses,
When they ever held a meeting
Since the racing year began.
And not only could he tell you
All their names, but he could—well, you
See he made their form a study—
Saw exactly how they ran.

For he knew which horse was leading
At each quarter, and their breeding,
With the time for every quarter,
And the horse that won the race.
He knew which had "sulked" or faltered
And just how it would have altered
Their positions at the finish
Had the favorite made the pace.

He knew records to a second,
Who had made them and had reckoned
Just what other horse could do it,
When the track was fast or slow.
He remembered, too, the betting,
And the jockeys, not forgetting
To note specially the distance
Every one of them could go.

So you see in half a minute
He knew just what horse could win it,
Whether at a mile or over,
Or a short six-furlong dash.
Then he never hesitated,
Not a single instant waited,
But he backed them in the betting
For a goodly pile of cash.

As a plunger he was noted,
And his tips were often quoted.
Be it fair or stormy weather,
He was always at the track.
He came always, too, with money,
But, although it's very funny
He could tell so much about them,
He was always walking back.

Concentrated Trotting Blood.

Breeders, in selecting untried animals for the stud, are divided in opinion as to whether one that possesses great trotting power or one that inherits through many lines of pedigree the blood of families of horses from which have sprung large numbers of trotters is most certain to breed fast trotters. Some think the fast individual is of paramount importance, and "breed to the winner" is their motto. Others think that family is of greater importance than individuality, but all agree that where the two conditions can be found united in one animal the selection has the highest possible recommendation that an untried animal can possess. Tried producers of speed and the blood of tried producers is, with many, a still higher recommendation, though the remarkable fee freely paid for the service of great untried performers like Arion, 2:10¼, (2); Axtell, 2:12 (3), and Allerton, 2:03¼, would not be as readily commanded by the sires of those remarkable animals, nor by any sire whose reputation rested upon stud achievement instead of track achievements.

We are yearly grading up to higher rates of speed. The trotting breed is not yet a fixed breed, but is still in the formative stage. The broadest and strongest foundation has not yet been laid, or, at least, if it has now been laid, it had not been before the present generation of greatest performers were foaled because a majority of their dams were not standard until by their own greatness they reflected back the standard qualification upon them. Sunol's dam was not standard until Sunol's speed made her so; Maud S.'s dam was not standard until the speed of her offspring made her so; Palo Alto's dam was not standard until his speed made her so; Nancy Hanks and Allerton were of standard parentage; the dam of Jay-Eye-See was not standard until his speed made her so; the dam of Nelson was not standard until his speed made her so, nor was the dam of Arion standard until the speed of her full sister made her so. Here, then, are the eight fastest trotters in the world, of which the dams used for breeding six had not enough trotting blood by inheritance to make them standard, yet as six to two the outsiders have beaten the standard-bred dams in producing the eight most extreme cases of trotting speed the world has seen. This does not militate against the necessity of using standard trotting blood, for a preponderance, or, at least, an equipoise of it, is found in all of these performers, but it does go to show that there are other qualities than merely a proclivity toward the trotting gait that are well worth considering, and farther shows that breeders have been fully justified in going outside of strictly standard parentage when seeking to augment the capacity of their stock for maintaining extreme speed for a distance.

Yet it is plain that the day will come when any departure from blood that has entered the standard upon a level of such extreme speed as we have been discussing will deteriorate instead of augment its capacity, because when lines are finally formed that have absorbed such capacity from every source that can contribute it—in other words, when the trotting standard rests upon the broadest base of capacity-giving blood as well as proclivity-giving blood, then a concentration of trotting blood of that character, always keeping within the standard so formed, will carry with it every qualification of a trotter of the highest type extant. This the standard of the past has not done. In the strife of argument for and against thoroughbred blood in the trotter, both sides have, from different points of view, been right. The thoroughbred blood cannot be successfully absorbed without bringing it in contact with currents of strongly concentrated trotting blood. Ah, says the opposer of the thoroughbred blood, it is our trotting blood that did the trick. Then why has not your trotting blood done the trick alone? asks the advocate of thoroughbred crosses. The impartial student sees that neither alone are as great as both combined, when a happy fusion and amalgamation has been effected. Ever since trotting speed began to be cultivated just such a blending of thoroughbred blood has insiduously progressed. The families of trotters that have bred on and maintain a position to-day are those that were vitalized by thoroughbred infusions. The cold-blooded families that used to win a majority of the races in old times, like the Moscows, Torontos, St. Lawrences, etc., have fallen to the rear and disappeared. Those that had infusions of Messenger, Henry, Eclipse, Trustee, Consternation and other thoroughbred sources kept step with the march of progress, and the trotting proclivity is as strong to-day in these higher bred families as it was in the colder bred ones of years ago, with the advantage that the former have the capacity to train on to greater achievement. There is far less difference now between the physical organisms of the best trotter and the best thoroughbred as relates to capacity for maintaining the violent effort necessary to putting forth great speed at any gait for a protracted period. The very best trotter of to-day much by original absorption and somewhat by selection and cultivation comes very near the standard of the thoroughbred in perfection of physical organism, some say he is fully equal. If that is true there would be no use for further infusion of thoroughbred blood, but that such infusions of quite recent date have hurt nothing is pretty well attested by the top records.

Yet the principle of concentrating the blood of these extreme performers or their protopyes must in the end prove the most highly scientific method of breeding, however much the "kickers" may philosophize against the unscientific order of the methods that brought them into existence. The true location of the philosopher's stone is sometimes in the root, when the conceit of the seeker makes him perfectly confident that he will find it among the branches.

There are some trotting strains of great capacity for extreme speed. If we must breed solely within trotting lines it is best to adhere to those which meet this test. The 2:30 standard has passed its day of usefulness. Nothing less than 2:20 will satisfy the demands of the future, and 2:15 will one day be not thought too extreme. But let no dreamer imagine that he will pasture in those fields by doubling up trotting blood that has been able to make no further demonstration than to enter the easy and end of the 2:30 list, no matter how often that task has been repeated. Breeding incompetency to to incompetency, no matter how many standard crosses deep, will never produce competency, which means capacity. Director, with a record of 2:17, got a four-year-old with a record of 2:12½. That indicates capacity. His sire, Dictator, got a five-year-old with a record of 2:10¾. It is a capacity line. Sidney got a three-year-old with a record of 2:14¼. Stallions that to-day stand on thh highest round of the ladder of popular favor never got a trotter of any age to equal that. Sidney's sire had a record of 2:17½, and his dam, with a record of 2:21¼, was by Volunteer, whose forte was capacity. Director, 2:17, bred to the dam of Sidney, begot Lavalard, Mr. A. B. Darling's junior stallion at Valley Farms, N. J. Lavalard represents a remarkable concentration of trotting blood of very high order of capacity—sire Director, 2:17, by Dictator, out of Dolly, dam of four in the list, dam Sweetness, 2:21¼, by Volunteer; second dam by Edward Everett; third dam by Harry Clay. If like produces like, or breeds in accordance with colateral blood, he should be able, properly crossed, to breed extreme speed. While his lines would be generally spoken of as purely trotting, yet it is an interesting question how much capacity came into the various strains of his blood from thoroughbred sources in American Star, dam of Volunteer, dam of Edward Everett, grandam of Dolly and other "foundation" sources.

Years hence, when animals appear bearing the concentrated blood of Maud S., Allerton, Sunol, Palo Alto, Arion, Nancy Hanks, etc., everybody will agree that they will be trotting-bred animals, but who will say that they owed nothing to the thoroughbred after all the scoffing a majority of their ancestors have undergone on account of the possession of that feature? Animals so bred will then stand in like relationship to the thoroughbred that the so-called trotting-bred ones of extreme capacity now do. The "Instinct Philosophers" will not admit it, but it is rather queer, if their theory is sound, that no family has grown up from a purely cold-blooded source capable of competing with those which have been at intervals insiduously fortified by infusion of the abhorred thoroughbred.

How to Develop Good and Eradicate Bad Traits in Horses.

It is very desirable and important to be able to catch a horse in the pasture field, which can most always be done when he is treated with uniform kindness. It is often necessary to get up a horse quickly, and if he is hard to catch, the delay thus occasioned may result quite seriously to his master's interest. I never go into a field to catch a horse without a nubbin of corn, bit of apple, handful of oats or something else he likes, and, as a consequence, never have the slightest trouble in catching him.

In turning a horse out to pasture, never frighten him and make him run away from you by striking him with the halter or bridle and yelling at him. This is a mean, heartless habit, and is apt to make a horse hard to catch. I know a farmer whose horses cannot be caught in the field, and the only way they can be stabled is to get the dogs after them and drive them in. Should the dogs be away from home some day (or night) when he wants to go for a doctor or to see a sick neighbor, he would doubtless realize what it was to be "in a pickle."

Of the many bad traits the horse may possess, that of being breachy may be classed as one of the worst. I think that the author of the expression, "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," must have had some experience with breachy horses; at any rate the adage holds good in this connection. Ordinarily it is no very difficult matter to keep horses from becoming breachy when managed with discretion—discretion, "aye, there's the rub," for many farmers possess but very little of this essential characteristic. They buy a horse or colt and take it home and turn it right out in a poorly-fenced field before it becomes accustomed to the place, and being discontented and anxious to get back to its old home, it pushes down or jumps over the weak, low fences and bounds away like a deer in the direction of its home. Then the farmer goes after it again and brings it back and turns it out in the same field, after having slightly repaired the fence. But it has now become breachy and has but little respect for fences. It thenceforward goes whithersoever it pleases, regardless of fences or yokes.

When you buy a horse and take him home, don't turn him out for a few days unless you can provide him with a very well-fenced lot or field. And, in weaning a colt, exercise some judgment. Don't take it away from its dam and put it in a poorly-fenced field. It will be sure to jump if you do. Never force nor even permit a horse to jump back out of a field he has jumped into, but open a gate or lay down a panel of fence for his egress.

Before turning a horse (or any other kind of stock) into an unoccupied field, go around the field and inspect the fences. Horses often form the habit of pushing down the fences and jumping, in reaching over after grass and weeds within their reach. If such weeds and grass were cut with a scythe, and the fence corners kept clean, the temptation for them to get into mischief would often be removed. Exercise a little "horse sense" in this matter, and your horses will not become breachy.

Heavy Winners Among Thoroughbreds.

Below will be found a compilation covering the ten largest American bred winning horses in the history of the turf in this country. Of the list Iroquois alone won the bulk of the amount credited to him on other than the soil of his nativity:

The Trotting Associations.

The following article we clip from the Breeder and Turfman, and it is a very sensible view to take of this all-absorbing question:

Amalgamation! Why not?

There is a growing sentiment among horsemen that the government of the trotting and pacing turf can best be controlled by one association, one that is national in every respect. The situation at present can hardly be termed satisfactory except to a select few. We have the highest esteem for both the American and National Trotting Associations, and recognize that their work has been of material value in the elevation of their turf. But acknowledging this, we believe that one association can better promote the interest than two, for the simple reason that conflicting authorities are an impediment to harmony, which is essential in attaining perfection in anything. The substantiation of the assertion that harmony is lacking between the two turf powers can be found in the several "comity" effusions that have been published in the leading turf journals during the past few months. After perusing the articles, it is evident that the two associations are rivals, and it is but natural that each should exert their best efforts to achieve the greatest influence. Success must eventually fall to the lot of one of the organizations, and failure must be the resultant of the other's effort. Amalgamation will avoid any possibility of such a condition of affairs, and we say let it come.

The financial benefits to be derived from one government plan for the turf is sufficient to convince any one of its desirability. The support of the two associations is derived from its members—the different racing associations. They pay into the treasury annual dues, etc., which are applied to the payment of the expenses of conducting the work of the association. A large percentage of this amount is absorbed by the officers, who are said to receive fat salaries. Assuming this to be true, amalgamation would do away with just one-half of the number of officers, thereby lessening the expenses of manipulating the machinery. The dues, etc., of the members would at the same time be reduced, and we are sure this would be hailed with joy by the associations everywhere. Economy demands amalgamation. As we said before, we appreciate the good that the two associations have done, but we believe that for one interest one government is better than two. A conference between the two associations has been called. The question will no doubt be intelligently considered. Private interests should be ignored and the welfare of the turf be paramount at the conference.

Amalgamation! Why not?

Horsemen will be glad to learn that a resolution has been introduced in the National House of Representatives for the printing of 300,000 additional copies of the work entitled "Special Report on the Diseases in the Horse." Though somewhat imperfect, this is one of the most valuable works on the diseases of the horse ever printed in America, and it should be in the hands of all.

More About Michigan Horses.

Vallejo, March 27, 1892.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—I notice an article in your last issue under the heading of "Old Time Michigan Horses," paying a warm tribute to E. C. Walker for the importation of Mambrino Chief Jr. As that is my birth-place, I remember the old-time horses and horsemen and can give a more correct statement of them. I was born within eleven miles of Coldwater, Branch county, Mich., and the credit is due Camfield Fisk for bringing Mambrino Chief Jr. to Branch county. He brought him there when four years old, and he obtained a record of 2:31½, I believe. He made two seasons in the stud, and then was sold to Ben Wright, of Boston, where he was in the stud for several years. Mr. E. C. Walker then brought him back to Coldwater. About the best of his get was Mambrino General.

I enclose you the photograph of Marshall Chief, that I have had for a number of years. He was owned at Marshall, Mich., by Chauncey Goodrich. He could trot a mile in 2:28 when in good condition. He was a very determined-going horse, and was rather vicious about the stable, having bitten off the fingers of several of his grooms. He was the sire of Primus, a horse that was brought to this country a good many years ago. He was also the sire of Doc Lewis and Little Sam, a horse that I campaigned very successfully for a number of years. His sire, Vermont Hero, once held the stallion record of the State, of 2:35. He was owned by Camfield Fisk, of Coldwater. The last I knew of him he was brought to St. Joe, Mo., by D. D. Streeter, President of the Overland Park Racing Association, Denver, Col.

Moscow was a very small Canadian horse. He also was owned by C. Fisk, of Coldwater. He was a very speedy horse, but was crippled in the whirlbone when quite young. He was rather a failure in the stud. Frank Moscow, who could trot in about 2:35, was about the best of his get.

Masterlode was also owned by C. Fisk, and was quite a trotter when four years old, until his wind was affected. He was a success in the stud. About one of his best campaigners was Edward, but he had a host of them.

Tom Hunter was a large dappled gray horse, rather blue, and his first name was Bluejay, under which he obtained his record. He could not be considered as much of a success in the stud. He resembled a Norman. I always had my doubts about his being the sire of Albemarle.

Magna Charta was a grand horse in every particular. He was the most graceful, bold, cheerful-going horse I ever saw, in all ways—walking, jogging and speeding. He was a nice pure bay horse, standing 15 hands high, and when harnessed looked 16 hands. Pure-gaited, with a very rapid turn of speed, he obtained his record of 2:31 at four years old, in 1859. He received the diploma for best four-year-old stallion in that year. He was badly handled when young, and his temper was spoiled. For a number of years during the prime of his life he was kept in Chicago by Mr. Crosby (owner of the Crosby Theatre) for a gentleman's driving horse. He was a success in the stud, being the sire of a great many good ones, and they were all dead game racehorses who would fight it out from morning till night. Yours truly,

B. C Holly.

Clara's Defender.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—In your last number you have something to say of Miss Russell and other great brood mares, and the performances of their descendants entitle them to the high positions which you assign them. Here is another brood mare which has been made illustrious by the victories of her descendants in many hard-fought contests. I allude to Clara, the daughter of the brood mare sire American Star. She is the dam of Dexter, the peerless trotter of his time and the equal of any trotter of any time, and of Dictator, one of the greatest sires of extreme speed, gameness and resolution that ever lived. In racing qualities her blood excels that of all others. Three of her progeny have records of 2:10 or better. Has any other brood mare equaled that? Jay-Eye-See 2:10 is the grandson, and he had not only extreme speed, but he was the highest type of a racehorse. He had the head for rating in a race and the rugged limbs and constitution that enabled him to train and race on. Of Nancy Hanks 2:09, a great grandaughter, it is not necessary to speak. She is the racing queen of the turf, and a greater race mare than has before appeared in trotting history. Direct 2:06, the king of all harness horses, is a great grandson and a Clara all over. For speed, gameness and all other racing qualities he has not now and never had a peer. Clara has six descendants with records better than 2:15; nineteen with 2:20 or better to their credit; forty-five with records of 2:25 or better and one hundred and forty-four credited with 2:30 or better. Old Clara's blood is evidently racing and money-winning, and has proved the controlling factor in crosses to the fourth and fifth generations. If there has ever been her superior in these respects the history of trotters does not show it. H. L.

Large Sale of Choice Holsteins.

One of the largest sales of thoroughbred and registered cattle that has taken place in years in this State was the transfer from Geo. B. Polhemus, of Coyotte, to the well-known breeder, Frank H. Burke of La Siesta Ranch, Menlo Park, of the entire herd belonging to Mr. Polhemus and consisting of fifty-four head all thoroughbred Holstein-Friesians, with King Aaggie Clothilde, a great show bull at their head.

This deal virtually corrals every Clothilde on the coast, as no breeder here had this blood except Messrs. Polhemus & Burke, and neither of them have ever disposed of a single head of this celebrated and valued blood.

The price is reserved, but must have been a large one, as Mr. Polhemus had a magnificient lot of milkers, averaging (including two-year-old heifers) over fifty-four pounds of milk per cow per day, or about six and one-half gallons each. His head bull, King Aaggie Clothilde, is the finest animal of the Clothilde tribe that could be obtained, and is further reinforced in deep milk and butter strains through his Aaggie dam.

These animals, together with his former large and well-bred herd of Holsteins, gives Mr Burke far and away the largest herd west of the Rocky Mountains, and it is not excelled in individuality and breeding by any herd of these great milkers anywhere and in point of numbers by only two herds in the world

Mr. Burke's latest purchase, called Clothilde 5ths Clothilde, has just arrived from the Smith & Powell herd, of Syracuse, New York. He is a fine, straight-backed, good-sized yearling, whose yellow hide shows butter all over. He may well have good milk and butter for points, his seventeen nearest female ancestors (all that have been imported or bred in this country) have records that average twenty pounds six and four-elevenths ounces of butter in a week and 16,310 pounds of butter in a year.

Mr. Burke is satisfied that for a practical working dairy, where cows are only worth what they actually earn net per year, the Holstein-Friesians excel all others, and as he has been dairying on a large scale for the past five years and achieved great success, he ought to know.

ON THE DECLINE.

The Trotting Horse Industry in Australia Receives a Set-Back, Owing to Bad Management.

A correspondent at Melbourne sends us the following, together with some clippings from leading papers in the country of the kangaroo:

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—I want to ask a favor of you. I believe it concerns horse-raising in America, and is really an attack on one of the most popular of your National sports. I am sorry to say it is not the first time I have had to defend the position in Australia from the prejudices and influence of the unscrupulous and designing persons who only care for horse-racing as a gamble, pure and simple, and as a medium for speculation at any cost of principle and honesty. If you can, send these truths through the United States, that they may be justly controverted through the press and hurled back to Australia with the censure they have called for and deserve.

In 1881 the inbred Hambletonian horse Contractor was brought from Kentucky to mate with some of our well-bred mares. A few earnest workers secured a grant of land near Melbourne, formed a trotting club, stood the brunt of an introductory position, giving a purse of £500 for a champion trot, the race being won by imported Honesty, from California, he making a record of 2:30¼ for a mile and 5:13 for two miles, which stand, even up to date, as best. These performances pleased the public immensely, and the horse was purchased by a true supporter of the sport for a £1,000. The late Mr. Andrew Towns then imported Childe Harold, and for a time trotting fairly boomed, but alas for the future of sport. The club had necessity to change its secretary, and with him and his following may be dated the decline of trotting, as with his opportunity of writing his own reports the sport was always written down and damaged through the press. The few supporters in the club being out-voted, it has been terribly hard work to keep it alive, but it has now climaxed, and the late trotting club intend to excise the word "Trotting" from its name and the sport from its programme. I enclose you newspaper clippings which will explain. Thanking you on anticipation, and with compliments and best wishes,

Yours truly, J. J. M.

The Decline of Trotting.—It is a matter of regret, though not of much astonishment, that the Victorian Trotting Club should feel inclined to abandon its original objects. There can be no question of the great benefits that spring from the healthy pursuit of trotting, for it is evidenced in the country renowned for the sport, while ordinary knowledge teaches us that it must have a beneficial effect upon the breed of horse most commonly employed in every day life. At the same time it is a branch of racing that can as easily become an evil as it may prove an advantage, and our experience of it in Victoria amply supports this view. That experience has not been pleasant, but rather the reverse to both to participants and public. Despite the efforts of the conductors of the V. T. C., which we are assured have been invariably directed against malpractices, we know that fraudulent trotting has been rampant; and given dishonest competitors it is hard to see how it can be otherwise. For trotting contests, as we know them, are a class of competition in which dishonesty can be practiced and detection defied. "Give a game a bad name, and drop it." is a sporting proverb which is often illustrated, and if would seem that trotting is our latest realization of it.

When it is remembered with what earnestness and expense the few enthusiasts entered into the sport it is more than ever to be deplored that their honest endeavors should now be in danger of being marred by the unsportsmanlike conduct of unscrupulous persons. We trust, however, that a complete collapse may be averted. But if it be determined to persevere in the laudable attempt to acclimatize trotting in Australia, the club devoted to the sport must proceed on very different lines from those followed in the past, and with a view to making a fresh and a fair start, we think the club might suspend active operations for a space, and in the breathing time thus afforded thoroughly thrash out the subject and devise a new plan of procedure. Among the points that should receive consideration is the important one of handicapping. It is this practice that has done as much as anything else to prevent trotting from receiving popular favor; and to it is doubtless due the fact that there is hardly an instance of a real race between any two or more trotters. As a rule half a lap has separated the competitors all around. Now were time and distance handicapping dispensed with and a system of classification substituted, it would of course greatly diminish the number of competitors at present available, but this would be compensated for by the superiority of the racing, which we feel confident would so animate the sport that in a little time the lack of real competitors would disappear. The important thing now, however, is for those concerned not to hastily give up all hope of succeeding in their aim. The past has been more a period of experimenting than anything else, and we feel assured that if the lessons of experience have been learnt and are acted upon, the evils now associated with trotting will be to a great extent unknown in the future. Match Race of $200 a Side.

There was a good-sized crowd at the matinee race on Saturday at the fair grounds. Frank Wickersham had put Ah Woy, the little black gelding, into excellent shape, and Owens' gray gelding, Dutch, was prepared to lead the procession to the wire, but he didn't.

In the first heat (the race was three in five) Dutch came in a close second and won the next heat by a scratch. Then Ah Woy went to work again. He grew a little steadier and more confident and a trifle faster. He won the first heat, lost the next two and won the last two.

SUMMARY.

F. P. Wickersham's b g Ah Woy	1	2	3	1	1
C. A. Owens' g g Dutch	2	1	1	2	2

Time, 2:35, 2:41½, 2:44, 2:44, 2:41½.

Frank and Harry Doble, who backed Ah Woy, gathered in several hundred dollars as the result of the little gelding's good work.—Fresno Expositor.

The association will give a series of races every two weeks during the spring and summer.

Elmwood Stock Farm.

About one mile from Milpitas, on the Alviso road, is a beautiful tract of some four hundred acres of level land, fenced and divided into paddocks and fields. The soil can be truthfully called rich, alluvial bottom land, which makes the finest vegetable land in the world, as the heavy yearly crops attest. Thousands of boxes of fruit are daily shipped during the season, while the hundreds of boxes of asparagus that bear the stamp of the Elmwood Farm are among the very first that are seen in the San Francisco markets.

It is not of the fruits of the soil nor of the great reputation of this productive farm that we wish to speak, but of its fame as the home of a number of very promising colts and fillies and the harem wherein a number of famous matrons are nibbling the luxuriant grasses and alfalfa.

A large portion of the farm is divided into paddocks, into which are turned the broodmares and foals, young colts and fillies. Nearly all of the latter are by the imported horse Brutus, whose pedigree and description we will give further on. There is a mile track on the place; a large number of box stalls, stables and sheds will be erected adjacent to it this fall.

In every paddock troughs filled with water are seen; if there is any one thing that this portion of Santa Clara county can boast of it is pure water and plenty of it. Artesian wells are sunk, and at a depth of three hundred feet everflowing streams are struck, and even with the strongest capping on the iron wells the force with which the water comes is most surprising.

The stallion barn is close to the large residence, and herein is the handsome mahogany bay horse Brutus. He is a stallion of good finish; he has a fine set of limbs, well-shaped body, deep through the heart, sharp withers, good coupling, straight, large joints; black, hard hoofs; the head is rather plain and sensible-looking, his eye is mild and his neck is fine and straight. In height he is close to sixteen hands, and must weigh 1130 pounds. His breeding is of the very choicest; in fact, it is hard to excel, for he is an inbred Touchstone, and as this sire figures so much in the pedigree of the very greatest of all the great horses of this era, Carbine, there can be no disputing its value. Brutus is by MacGregor, by Macaroni out of Jocose, out of Banter, the dam of Touchstone. MacGregor is out of Necklace, out of Bracelet by Touchstone. Teardrop (dam of Cyrus, sire of Kylo), the dam of Brutus, is by Scottish Chief, by Lord of the Isles, by Touchstone, and his third dam, Miserrima, is out of Phyrne, by Touchstone. He carries more of the blood of Touchstone in his veins than any horse in America.

Brutus was a good racehorse, and was purchased from the Palo Alto Stock Farm by C. T. Boots last year. His progeny cannot be excelled for perfect conformation and disposition. The colts and fillies are a grand lot, and Mr. Boots is to be congratulated upon breeding his broodmares to such a splendid individual, for he will prove a most valuable outcross for them. The following is a list of the yearlings there and the date of their foaling in 1891:

January 15, 1891, bik c brother to Sir Walter, by Nathan Coombs, dam Bessie, by imp. Hercules.

February 16th, b c by imp. Brutus, dam Bonny Jean, by imp. Hercules; second dam Lizzie Marshall, by Lodi.

March 1st, b c Romulus, by imp. Brutus, dam Beauty, by imp. Hercules; second dam Mamie Hall, by Norfolk.

March 1st, bik c Remus, by imp. Brutus, dam Leda, by Nathan Coombs; second dam Gypsy, by imp. Hercules.

March 18th, br f by imp. Brutus, dam Ledette, by Nathan Coombs; second dam Gypsy, by imp. Hercules.

March 25th, br f Brenhilda, by imp. Brutus, dam Brown Maria (dam of Initiation), by imp. Hercules; second dam Lizzie Marshall, by Lodi.

March 31st, ch c by imp. Brutus, dam Ariola, by Bob Wooding; second dam Gladiola, by Norfolk.

April 3d, b c by imp. Brutus, dam The Swayback, by Nathan Coombs; second dam Lizzie Marshall, by Lodi.

April 25th, b c by imp. Brutus, dam Mollie H., by Wildidle; second dam Mamie Hall, by Norfolk.

April 29th, br c by imp. Brutus, dam Nabette, by Nathan Coombs; second dam Beauty (dam of Nabeau), by imp. Hercules.

These are the names of the foals of 1892:

January 16, 1892, b c Sir Brutus, dam Bessie (dam of Sir Walter), by imp. Hercules.

January 22d, b c by imp. Brutus, dam Installation, by Inauguration; second dam Brown Maria, by imp. Hercules.

January 26th, b f by imp. Brutus, dam Forma, by Inauguration; second dam Beauty, by imp. Hercules.

February 6th, b f by imp. Brutus, dam Leda, by Nathan Coombs; second dam Gypsy, by imp. Hercules.

February 9th, ch c by imp. Brutus, dam Nerva, by Bob Wooding; second dam Lizzie Marshall, by Lodi.

February 17th, b f by imp. Brutus, dam Beauty, by imp. Hercules; second dam Mamie Hall, by Norfolk.

February 22d, b f by Duke of Norfolk, dam Ledette, by Nathan Coombs; second dam Gypsy, by imp. Hercules.

Nearly every person interested in horses who visits San Jose feels that they have not seen all the best-looking youngsters until they pay a visit to the Elmwood Stock Farm. Here the mares and their foals that are seen standing knee-deep in the pastures come forward and love to be fondled, for their gentlemanly owner has every one of these "children of the winds" as gentle as lambs, and fond of the companionship of all who go into the fields.

La Siesta's Revised Catalogue.

In these days of great sales the breeder who sits idle and does not take advantage of the opportunities offered to secure the very best at the lowest possible prices is behind the times. This fact strikes one most forcibly when he sees the enlarged edition of the La Siesta Ranch catalogue. It is a book of some eighty-eight pages, neatly covered with a granite-colored, striking title page. The heavy, super-sized and calendared, cream-tint paper within is far superior to that usually seen in catalogues. Typographically it reflects great credit on the printers. We have mentioned the list of stock that was published before the new additions were made.

There are several mares added that were sold at the Palo Alto sale, and all of them are out of producing dams, besides Maggie E., 2:19¼, and Patcheneer, by Eros, out of the dam of Maggie E., 2:19¼, and the colt Roswood, by Eros, out of Maggie E.

On the title page of the appendix are to be seen the following words:

"The close proximity of my ranch to the Leland Stanford University has greatly increased the value of my land. Sales have considerably reduced the acreage left for permanent pasture, and even that has been encroached upon by the planting of thousands of fruit trees that are now ready to bear, and require all the attention that I can spare from my business in San Francisco. On this account, together with the absence of land suitable for a track, I offer for sale at reasonable prices (breeding and producing qualities considered) all the stock listed in this catalogue."

The broodmares, colts and fillies at this farm were selected and bred with rare good judgment. The result is that there are no culls, but all are superior individuals.

ATHLETICS.

Athletic Sports and Other Pastimes.

EDITED BY ARPHIPPUS.

April 16th—Olympic Club, out-door handicap meeting at the club grounds.
April—Olympic Club, "Ladies' Night" exhibition in the gymnasium.
May—Olympic Club, annual boxing tournament, to decide the championships of the Pacific Coast, in the gymnasium.
May 30th—Bay City Wheelmen, bicycle tournament, at the new grounds, Bay District track.
May 30th—Pacific Association of the Amateur Athletic Union, second annual championship meeting at the Olympic Club grounds.
May 30th—Alameda Bicycle and Athletic Club, bicycle tournament at Schutzen Park grounds, Alameda, Cal.
July 4th—California Division, L. A. W., annual race meet, under the auspices of the Bay City Wheelmen and Capital City Wheelmen, at Sacramento, Cal.
July 4th—Scottish Thistle Club, amateur games, under the auspices of the P. A. A. A. U.
Sept.—State Fair games, under the auspices of the P. A. A. A. U., at Sacramento, Cal.

SUMMARY.

If promises count for aught the amateur athletes and wheelmen should, during the next couple of months, make an excellent showing. Several important events are on the tapis for the future and it only remains for the athletes and wheelmen to carry out their intentions. Of course, some allowance must be made for draw backs, but, apart from all interferences the out-door programme of sports as at present arranged for the coming season should prove unusually interesting to the sport-loving public. As soon as the weather becomes warmer it is not at all improbable but that a boom in aquatic sports will take place. It is gently hinted that the Ariel Rowing Club members are preparing a surprise for the other clubs, and that before long these enthusiastic oarsmen will "astonish the natives" with a showing of new boats, a new club house, a couple of well drilled crews, etc.

THE ATHLETES, WHEELMEN, OARSMEN, CRICKETERS, ETC.

To-morrow the second heat of the amateur four-oared barge race will take place at Long Bridge. The race will be under the auspices of the Pacific Rowing Association, and the Ariel, South End, Dolphin and Alameda Clubs will be represented on this occasion. The crews have been doing some practice work lately and doubtless some good rowing will be witnessed by the spectators. The association will offer a valuable set of prizes for a single amateur sculling race before long and several of the crack single scullers will go into training at once for the contest. The Ariel Rowing Club is putting up a new club house which will be far superior to the one which was destroyed during a heavy storm last winter. The club will also order several new boats as soon as their new headquarters are finished and it is expected that this leading organization will do much towards booming aquatic sport during the coming season.

There was an intercollegiate football game at the Haight Street grounds last Saturday afternoon and, thanks to the broad lungs of the players' friends, all of San Francisco was aware of the fact long before the contest began. From early morning until the hour set for the battle to begin the students of the opposing universities made a gallant attempt to popularize the game and their efforts were not wholly unsuccessful. The Berkeley boys had engaged all the big busses in town beforehand and on the day of the fight they decorated these vehicles with the colors of the U. C., blue and gold, and in them drove through the principal streets shouting the war song of the University, "Ha, ha, ha, Cal-if-or-nia, U. C., Berkeley, zip, boom, ba." The Stanford University won the game by a score of 14 points to 10, however.

Several of the athletes are anxious that the Pacific Coast clubs withdraw from the Amateur Athletic Union and remain all by themselves. Since the P. C. A. A. joined hands with the A. A. U., it would appear that the boys have taken less interest in athletics, and if a change is not soon made, the field-days of the future will be a flat failure. Before the local clubs joined the Union, it was customary to present the club whose members won the most points at a championship meeting with a pennant emblematic of the coast championship for the following year, but since this rule has been changed, the athletes do not seem to take half as much interest in their work as before.

The following leader was recently published in the "Occident," the organ of the University Athletic Club:

"There is a very new project in the air which is fast assuming shape, and which, if effected, will have the very greatest influence upon our athletics. While we are not going to attempt to go much into details this week, we will endeavor to present to our readers the project in itself and the very apparent reasons for which, as we shall show, are valid ones, in our eyes. It has been suggested that the U. C. formally withdraw from the P. C. A. A. A. immediately after the coming championship games, and ask the Stanford and other similar colleges near us to come in and form a purely intercollegiate association. There are three very cogent reasons in favor of this change. In the first place, we would be safe from dirty work on the part of the Olympics—dirty work of all sorts, from drawing us into championship events to crawfishing and lying out of foot-ball games. We have been patient and forbearing with the Olympics towards their every dirty tendencies, but, now the chance comes, we may be able to wreak vengeance. Then, again, we will not be compelled to associate with people who are not gentlemen; for though the Olympic Club contains many fine gentlemen, everyone knows that also, unfortunately, it has men whose all is in their muscle. It is, unfortunately, true that men who have no physical ability at all are always welcome in the Olympic Club, no matter from what station of life they come. Some of our students had several very unpleasant encounters with a party of these scrubs at one of our last field-days. Several requests were met with insolently, impudent and hoodlumish replies, and the only thing to be regretted is that some one of our hercules did not get angry and kick the whole baggage and truck down into the creek. We will be sorry to part with some of our friends in the Olympics, but we feel they can hardly blame us for refusing to have anything to do with such cattle. Then, again, our withdrawal from the Association will enable us to cast off, as the unpleasant odor of the semi-professional which now hangs over us is keenly felt by many of our athletes, for they object to the unpleasant notoriety in the daily papers and the becoming heroes. If we confine ourselves to intercollegiate games, we will not obtrude ourselves so much in strange circles, and thereby it will be the better for us. Altogether, we favor the new scheme, and will give it our hearty support."

A special meeting of the members of the Acme Athletic Club will be held on Thursday, April 7, 1892, for the purpose of amending some of the by-laws, and also to draw for the safety bicycle presented by Osborn & Alexander to the club.

A "club tramp" will be held in the near future. Where, has not yet been decided.

The Acme will have several entries in the May boxing tournament at the Olympic Club; among them Jack Kitchen, who will probably meet his old opponent, Billy Kenealy.

Judging from the great interest taken in the late intercollegiate foot-ball game it is safe to presume that this kind of sport will become exceedingly popular in the future. There is no doubt but that the next game in which either the Stanford or Berkeley teams cut a figure will draw a "full house" at the Haight Street grounds.

The postponed boxing championships will be held in the gymnasium of the Olympic Club sometime in May and the chances are rather favorable for a large entry list. In the heavy-weight class the O. A. C. will be represented by the veteran, W. J. Keneally, and his friends seem to think that he will do much better than he did when he lost his battle with young Kitchen, of the Acme Club.

Owing to a misunderstanding, the first annual out-door athletic meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association, which was held last Saturday afternoon at the base ball grounds, San Jose, was not the success that the promoters of the undertaking looked forward to. To use the words of a member of the local branch: "The San Jose representatives wanted all the glory for themselves, and the consequence was that the members of the San Francisco branch were not given long enough time in which to get ready for the contests." The programme of athletic sports was a long and interesting one, and in nearly every instance better than average records were made. The young men who represented the Oakland branch cut quite a figure in the proceedings, but they stood no chance of getting away with the championship pennant. The San Francisco branch has many fine athletes on its membership roll, and if these men had been notified in time, there would have been a more even fight for first honors.

This afternoon the members of the Pacific Cricket Club will indulge in a practice game at the Alameda grounds. A week from to-morrow the first regular game of the season will be played. Mr. William Geer Harrison, the President of the Pacific Cricket Club, has very generously offered a fine silver cup to be contested for by the clubs of the cricket association.

A few of the crack athletes are training hard for the coming field day of the Olymaic Club and one or two records may be lowered on this occasion. Judging from the present outlook the entry list will not be very long, but the men who will compete will give a good account of themselves, and this fact should, in a measure, make up for the lack of interest on the part of their fellow-athletes.

Several exciting games of hand-ball were played at Butler's court last Sunday.

Petaluma Notes.

At the close of my last correspondence I was endeavoring to show that we were not bad off for the want of trotting blood of the highest order, notwithstanding so many of our fine horses had been taken away.

I said in substance that Dawn had left a splendid representative in Oaknut. There are several crosses in Oaknut that are highly prized by the most intelligent of breeders. His dam, Miss Brown, was a daughter of Volunteer 1758, record 2:27, and he by General Dana, 1857, and he by Hambetonian 725. Miss Brown's dam was Maggie Dale, a thoroughbred daughter of Owen Dale, and Owen Dale was a grand race horse—one of the best sons of grand old Belmont, a sire of both runners and trotters of a high grade. The dam of General Dana was by Brown's Belfounder. She was also the dam of Alexander 490.

There are several well bred stallions at Agricultural Park. Lee Shaner, a good judge of trotter, and by the way is an illustration of the fact that a man can be a trainer and driver and a gentlemen at the same time, has two of them. Jack Dempsey, now Commodore, is his pride. Jack is a trotting bred pacer, and faster than the wind. He is by Sidney, one of the famous producers of early speed in the Hambletonian family, his colts now holding the records for yearlings and two-year-olds. The other is a Wilkes, called Philosopher, and his youngsters are fine-looking.

Robert S. Brown also has two. One of them is a black son of Stamboul and a Sultan mare, that ought to be as good as the best. The other is by Red Wilkes out of a Black Hawk mare. He is the handsomest Wilkes I ever saw. He resembles the Black Hawks in style and finish.

The Horse Club of Santa Rosa is making arrangements for a horse show, and some special trotting races in the afternoon of the same day.

Mr. McDonald has the track at Agricultural Park in fine shape just now, and why not have a horse show and some exhibitions of speed at Petaluma in the near future? The Agricultural Fair is set this year from August 29th to September 3d, which is a long ways off, and in the meantime it is hoped that Mr. McDonald will have several speed contests on his track.

It begins to look as though there might be such a thing as too many trotters. This would be the case undoubtedly if it were not for the fact that trotters, like everything else, wear out and pass away and new ones must be produced to take their places. The principal thing, however, which encourages those who are engaged in breeding trotters is the demand that is increasing for such horses all over the civilized world.

England and her colonies are buying them in large numbers, while the market in France and Germany is very active and growing stronger every day.

Trotting sport has taken such deep root in English soil that the "Trotting Stud Book" of Great Britain and Ireland, complied by F. Cathcart, has appeared.

The calendar in its "List of Authentic English Track Trotting Records," gives the best time made as follows in actual races. One mile, 2:25; one and one-half miles, 3:44; two miles, 5:25; three miles, 8:15; four miles, 11:27, five miles, 14:14.

I know that comparisons are odious, but, nevertheless, we must take a look at what our horses have done in actual races. We have no record of one mile and one-half that I know of, but for other records they are not in it. Nancy Hanks and Delmarch, one mile, 2:12; Steve Maxwell, two miles, 4:48½; Huntress, three miles, 7:21; Trustee, four miles, 11:06; Lady Mac, five miles, 13:00. In England the stallion record of 2:40 is held by the British-bred stallion, Murphy. Many of us have seen Dawn beat that more than twenty seconds on the Petaluma track.—J. H. McNabb in Petaluma Imprint.

Himyar and Fellowcraft.

Major B. G. Thomas, of Lexington, Ky., has every reason to feel proud of the success of his two stallions, the high-class race horses Himyar and Fellowcraft, during the season of 1891; but more especially so of Himyar, whose get last year showed brilliantly. In 1891 Himyar had twenty-seven of his get to face the starter, of which twenty were returned winners, leaving only seven that did not win. There were thirteen two-year-olds by Himyar that started, and ten won, leaving three that did not earn brackets. Among his two-year-olds out last year were the flying Georgia, winner of the Hudson Stakes, and Faraday, winner of the Pepper Stakes, while among the older ones, Correction won at six furlongs in 1:11½ and 1:14¾, five furlongs in 1:01 and 1:02¾, and five and a half furlongs in 1:08 3-5; and Estelle won at a mile in 1:42½ and 1:43. The two-year-old winners were: Dago, Georgia, Greenwich (winner of four races), Faraday (winner of four races), Hamilton (winner four times), Henry Tyler (twice a winner), John Winkle (winner of four races), Lou Dudley (five times a winner), Macintosh (six times a winner) and Wah Jim (brackets on five occasions). In addition to the above-named, Fannie S., by Fellowcraft or Himyar (more probably the latter), dam Lulu S., and The Hero, by Fellowcraft or Himyar (almost certainly by the last-named), dam Lulu S., were winners, the former winning twice and The Hero six times, including the Southern Hotel Stakes.

In 1891 of Fellowcraft's get nineteen in number started, and of the lot nine, namely, Captain Brown, formerly the Radha colt; Hansa, Hydra, My Craft, My Fellow, Simrock, Timberland and Tom Tough, were winners. Since 1886, up to 1892, eighty-one of the get of Fellowcraft, whose four miles in 7:19½ has only been beaten once, and then against time, have started, of which forty-seven have scored brackets—a great showing. From the above showing the genial and whole-souled Major Thomas has cause to be happy over the successes of his pets on the turf in 1891.—Live Stock Record.

THE SCEPTIC.

He don't believe there's any self-abuse among stallions, anyway. Wants to argue with you about it.

What's the use? One of these days he'll know more. He'll find that bull-headedness doesn't pay. He'll know to his cost that stallions do have the habit, some more, some less; and he'll probably have learned that to prevent it by letting them injure their organs is a mighty poor way.

When he gets as far as that, we're ready to talk to him about the Perfection Stallion Guard. That stops the practice absolutely, and without risk or injury. It's flexible, simple, clean, and humane. No tacks, no metal, no chafing and no danger,

VETERINARY.

Conducted by Wm. F. Egan, M. R. C. V. S., F. E. V. M. S.

Subscribers to this paper can have advice through this column in all cases of sick or injured horses or cattle by sending an explicit description of the case. Appleants will send their name and address that they may be identified. Questions requiring answers by mail should be accompanied by two dollars and addressed to Wm. F. Egan, M. R C. V. S., Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco.

M. K., Haywards.—I have a two year-old stallion colt by Redwood, 2:27, who had a lump appear under the breast plate on the left shoulder, and soon other lumps appeared and pimples formed all over the point of the shoulder, and since, lumps and ridges have appeared all over the shoulder. His left leg is very badly swollen, his flesh is very sore; sometimes he is a little stiff in his left leg, but now is as limber as ever. Please inform me through the columns of your next BREEDER what is the matter with him, and what I shall do for him. Answer—It looks rather suspicious of farcy, but may be only an inflammation caused by pressure of the breast plate. A purgative, followed by a drachm of iodide of potassium three times a day for three weeks will help to reduce the swelling. Fomenting the parts two or three times a day with warm water will also be of benefit. If possible, get a qualified veterinary surgeon to see him.

Subscriber, San Mateo.—Please give me some of the symptoms o cerebro-spinal-fever, as I had a colt die from what was said to be that affection. Answer—There is paralysis of the hind quarters, more or less complete, sometimes accompanied with spasms and convulsions. The horse generally becomes unconscious and may live so for several days, with or without excitement at times. Pain is evidenced on pressure along the spine. In some cases the attack may destroy life within 24 hours. The temperature is elevated as a rule, but not always in proportion to the severity of the attack.

H. T. S., San Franisco.—My Spaniel (English) bitch, five years old, was taken lame without any apparent cause, about a week ago, which I attributed to rheumatism. Have been rubbing the shoulder and limb with soap liniment and kept it bound up with flannel. The lameness seems to be in her right shoulder or limb, but seems a little swollen just below the shoulder in her right limb. Her general health, spirits and appetite are good. Kindly give me information through your valuable medium to relieve her of the difficulty and what caused it. Answer.—From your description the lameness appears to be due to rheumatism. Hot fomentations and soap liniment applied to the swollen parts are good. Give her internally ten grains of salicylate of sodium three times a day, and keep her in a warm, dry place.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Answers for this department MUST be accompanied by the name and address of the sender, not necessarily for publication, but as proof of good faith. Write the questions distinctly, and on one side of the paper only. Postively no questions will be answered by mail or telegraph.

T. T., City.—Give breeding of Little John, a thoroughbred horse raced here in early days. Answer—By Lorenzo Dow, dam by St. Louis.

Can any of our readers inform us of the pedigree of Fanny Belmont, that once belonged to S. R. Lyons, of Kings City, Monterey county, and can any one tell us who owns the stallion Nutford?

C. P., Tacoma, Cal.—The dimensions you give are something remarkable, and no better evidence is necessary regarding the perfect proportions of the colt. He ought to make a magnificent horse.

J. K. N., Santa Rosa.—Can any of your readers give me the correct breeding of Oregon Yank, a noted trotting horse in his day? He trotted in and around Corvallis, Or., and is said to have a record of 2:25.

Subscriber, Plainsburg, Cal.—Electric, brother to Ella M., 2:28¾, is by Elector, dam by Yorktown, he by Speculation; second dam by Black Hawk Prince, a horse imported to California by Dr. Holden many years ago.

W. W., City.—What was the sire of Highland Mary, at one time on the San Mateo Stock Farm, I believe. Answer.—According to an old catalogue (Colegrove's), she was by Sleepy Dave (son of Easton's David Hill and the Sargent Mare), "of Messenger extraction."

Subscriber, Dillon, Mont.—I have made a bet regarding the year Mollie McCarthy and Ten Broeck ran the match race for $10,000. Please state in your next the year. Answer—The Ten Broeck-Mollie McCarthy match was run at Louisville, Ky., July 4, 1878.

W. M., Davisville, Cal.—1. Give me the breeding of a horse called Hiram Woodruff that stood in Marysville some time ago, and his record, if any. 2. The first, second and third dams of Black Ralph. Answer—1. By Young Morrill 118 (son of Morrill 850 and mare by Lock Goss Horse, son of Sherman Morgan). His dam we know nothing of. His record was 2:37, made at San Francisco August 21, 1871, driven by G. W. Dickey, against Alexander, Ajax and Copperhead. 2. Wallace says "dam not traced," therefore in lieu of other good testimony we will have to disappoint you about breeding of the dams.

T. W. B., San Jose, Cal.—Give the breeding of Bracelet, a mare owned by Henry Seale. Also her record, if any, and how many she has in the 2:30 list, and their names and records. Is Bracelet the dam of Black Swan, 2:28? Answer.—We are informed that Bracelet was by McCracken's Blackhawk, dam Mary Hill, said to be of Blackhawk blood. Bracelet was a half-sister to Black Swan, 2:28½, being out of same mare. Maurice Dooley, of Stockton, owned Mary Hill. Bracelet had a mark of 2:40¾, gained October 8, 1870, at San Jose, but we are informed that she showed trials in 2:32 on a number of occasions. She is the dam of nothing in the list that we are aware of, but Albert Seale, Mayfield, or M. H. McManus, San Jose, can give you more information on this point than we can.

W. H. G., Auburn, Cal.—1. I wish to know if my Lodi Third is not entitled to be put on the register. Enclosed find pedigree of same. 2. The pedigree of the horse Seedwheat, that used to race at Stockton. Answer.—1. Your horse cannot be put in the trotting register. We believe it is a thoroughbred horse, and could be put in Bruce's American Stud Book (for thoroughbreds) if you could trace the horse's breeding to running stock on both sides of the house for five generations. Seedwheat was quite a race mare herself and the dam of Fireman, who won many races in California. We are also told Seedwheat was a sister to Comet, a mare celebrated in her day, winner of nearly forty races. We have been unable to trace Seedwheat's pedigree, though we hope to do so ere long.

Subscriber, Santa Maria, Cal.—Please find enclosed pedigree of Elite. Is the above pedigree correct as represented? If so, what record has he got at trotting? Answer.—As far as we know the breeding is correct as given on the card; however, where a horse is not registered or is not a well-known performer we cannot be expected to know a great deal about such animal's pedigree. We know nothing of this horse's record, though we do find that a black horse named Elite beat Bay Rose and Lulu F. at Fresno, Cal., October 7, 1884 (when this Elite on the card would be two years old), gaining a record of 2:43¾. This Elite is given in Chester as being by Revolution. If you are very anxious to find out about the matter you might write to the breeder of the horse, J. R. Micky, of Stockton, or to J. M. La Rue Secretary San Joaquin Valley Agricultural Association, Stockton, Cal.

K. M., Davisville.—1. Glancing over your last issue I saw an item of Dixon news that attracted my attention, namely—that Nutwood Jr. had a record of 2:29¼ at three years old. Please answer in your next when and where he made it, and whether he has a record at all or not. 2. Please give me the breeding of the horse Lightning. I think that he was a pacer, and, if any, what record did he have? Answer—1. One Nutwood Jr., chestnut gelding, gained a record of 2:29½ at Boston, Mass., August 5, 1886, but this horse was over three years of age at the time. 2. A horse named Lightning (sometimes called Young Lightning, too, I believe) won a race at Sacramento, Cal., Nov. 29, 1866, driven by a Mr. Smith, and gained a record of 2:36½. He was a pacer, and defeated Queen of the Pacific and Mike O'Brien. His breeding is not given. In those days they were not very particular about trotting horse pedigrees.

D. W. McG., Arcata, Cal.—I see as to that mare Topsy that I wrote to you about that you want to know which particular one I refer to. Since writing to you I have learned that she is by Leonard's Poscora, and out of a Black Hawk mare brought from the Eastern States. She has white strip in face, with two white ankles, and was owned at one time by Dodge, Sweeney & Co., of San Francisco. If you can, please furnish me with any thing further without going to any bother. Answer—We find that a chestnut mare named Topsy won three races at Oakland, Cal., in the years 1872, 1874 and 1876, driven by R. G. Goodhue and W. Patrick. She gained a record of 2:36. In her first winning race she beat Sam and Post Boy in 2:55, 2:51, 2:54. In the second she beat Alameda Maid, Lady Emma and Goldfinder in 2:43¾, 2:42½, 2:36½. In the third she defeated Dan, Howell, Maid of the Plains and Pluck. Dan took the third heat in 2:37¼. Topsy's time in this was 2:41, 2:41½, 2:36½.

Names Claimed.

I claim the name SELECT for my black colt, by Secretary, dam Elmorene, by Elmo. B. E. HARRIS.

I hereby claim the name DAN MURPHY for brown colt, foaled 1890, sired by Soudan, 2:27½, dam Patchen Mollie, by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31. Patchen Mollie is the dam of Commodore Nutwood, 2:32.

Respectfully yours, N. HARRISON, Tacoma.

I desire to claim the following names:

BRENHILDA, for bay filly, foaled March 25, 1891, by imp. Brutus, dam Brown Maria, by imp. Hercules.

ROMULUS, for bay colt, foaled March 1, 1891, by imp. Brutus, dam Beauty, by imp. Hercules.

REMUS, for black colt, foaled March 1, 1891, by imp. Brutus, dam Leda, by Nathan Coombs.

I claim the name of Romulus and Remus for these two, as they were both foaled at 1:30 A. M., March 1st).

SIR BRUTUS, for chalf brother to Sir Walter, bay colt, foaled January 16, 1892, by imp. Brutus, dam Bessie, by imp. Herald.

C. T. BOOTS, Elmwood Stock Farm, Milpitas.

THE STANDARD.

As Revised and Adopted by the American Trotting Register Association, May 19, 1891.

In order to define what constitutes a standard-bred horse, and to establish a breed of trotters and pacers on a more intelligent basis, the following rules are adopted to control admission to the records of pedigrees. When an animal meets the requirements of admission and is duly registered, it shall be accepted as a standard-bred animal.

FIRST.—Any trotting stallion that has a record of two minutes and thirty seconds (2:30), or pacing stallion that has a record of two minutes and twenty-five seconds (2:25), or better, provided any of his get has a record of 2:25 trotting, or 2:20 pacing, or better; or provided his sire or dam is already a standard animal.

SECOND.—Any mare or gelding that has a trotting record of 2:30, or pacing record of 2:25, or better.

THIRD.—Any horse that is the sire of two trotters with records of 2:30, or two pacers with records of 2:25, or one trotter with a record of 2:30, and one pacer with a record of 2:25, or better.

FOURTH.—Any horse that is the sire of one trotter with a record of 2:30, or one pacer with a record of 2:25, or better, provided he has either of the following additional qualifications: 1. A trotting record of 2:35 or a pacing record of 2:30, or better. 2.—Is the sire of two other animals with trotting records of 2:35, or pacing records of 2:30, or one trotter with a record of 2:35, and one pacer with a record of 2:30, or better. 3.—He's a sire or dam that is already a standard animal.

FIFTH.—Any mare that has produced a trotter with a record of 2:30, or a pacer with a record of 2:25 or better.

SIXTH.—The progeny of a standard horse when out of a standard mare.

SEVENTH.—The female progeny of a standard horse when out of a mare by a standard horse.

EIGHTH.—The female progeny of a standard horse when out of a mare whose dam is a standard mare.

NINTH.—Any mare that has a trotting record of 2:35, or a pacing record of 2:30, or better, whose sire or dam is a standard animal.

FOR SALE.

On account of departure of owner, one of the most promising young stallions ever bred in this State, three years old, standard-bred, 15.2 hands high, as fine a youngster as a man could wish to see (can show speed enough to go in first-class company) is offered for sale. He is by CARTOON 2308, son of Wissahickon, he by William Welch 341, he by Rysdyk's Hambletonian. Cartoon's first dam was the Hamilton mare, by Norfolk; second dam by John Nelson 187; third dam McCormick mare (the dam of May Howard, 2:21). His second dam, Neren, has a record of 2:23½, and was sired by John Nelson, a son of Trustee, imported thoroughbred. Among his relatives is Sallie Taylor, by General Taylor, son of the Morse horse. I will only mention a few of his relations to show that he is of a trotting family that breeds on:

LORD BYRON, 2:18	PEANUTS
NERKA, 2:23 1-2	FRED
AURORA, 2:27	SISTER
GOV. STANFORD	NETTIE LAMBERT
NEMO	BIDLER

In addition to the above named his sire,

WHEN YOUR BLACK SMITH TELLS YOU

That he doesn't need a SOUTHER FARM RASP, that he can level a horse's hoof for the shoe with the common rasp, he is glori ously mistaken. However, don't point ou the error of his ways too suddenly, but merely tell him to go ahead with his old rasp.

When he pronounces the foot level, use the file side of the SOUTHER FARM RASP as shown in adjoining cut, and all hands will be astonished to see how uneven a bearing surface is made by the common rasp, even when handled by a first-class workman. When used by any sensible man, the SOUTHER FARM RASP does perfect work, and leaves the bearing surface absolutely level; and it is the only tool on earth that will give a perfect bearing o both heels and the entire wearing surface.

CONDITIONS.

The foregoing programme may be changed in any respect (but not as to the fixed events, except as to th day on which they may be run), when it seems advisable to the Board of Directors.

In all the races of the meeting, except the four fixed events, entrance will be free.

When it is not in the conditions of the race how the purse shall be divided the second shall receive $75 and the third $50.

In heat races the second shall receive $100 when not otherwise provided in the terms of the race.

Entries to purse races (except handicaps) shall be made at 5 o'clock P. M. on the day preceding the race.

In handicap races (except owners' handicaps) entries shall be made at 5 o'clock P. M. on the third day preceding the race. Weights shall be announced at 5 P. M. on the second day preceding the race, and declarations shall be due at 5 P. M. on the day preceding the race, unless otherwise provided in the conditions of the race.

The fixed events will be run under the rules of the Association existing when entries were made in them.

Racing will begin each day promptly at 2 o'clock. The first bell will be rung fifteen minutes before the starting time; the second bell ten minutes later; the third bell will be the signal for the starter to take his position at the post. Trainers will be required to parade their horses in front of the stand with their colors up, and be at the post when the starting bell rings.

The Association reserves the right to postpone races on account of unfavorable weather or other sufficient cause.

In the event of postponement, handicaps stand; all other declarations are off.

A clerk will be in attendance at the scales on and after 12 o'clock noon of each racing day. Jockeys will make their weight and be in readiness to pass the scales without delay when races are called.

All declarations, either of starters in races, non-acceptance in handicaps or otherwise, must be in writing. Blanks will be furnished by the Secretary.

H. I. THORNTON, President.

R. B. MILROY, Secretary, 313 Bush street, San Francisco.

TERMS AND DESCRIPTION.

SILVER BOW is a handsome bay, no white; stands 15.3; weighs 1,150 pounds; was foaled June 26, 1887. A glance at his pedigree will show that he is bred in the purple and inbred to Hambletonian 10. He will make the season of 1892 at our farm, one and a half miles from Milpitas, on the Oakland road. Season from February 1st to June 1st, at which time all bills are due and payable in United States gold coin. Limited to fifteen outside mares.

SERVICE FEE, $150 for the season. Last season we did not give him a fair show; he served thirty-nine mares and did service up to June, and was compelled to start in races in July against the best horses in Montana, being very short of fast work. At Butte, Montana, he won the $2,500 purse, Free-For-All, defeating Faust, 2:18½, Steve Whipple, 2:23, Ida D., 2:25, and Frank M., 2:18, Faust winning the first heat in 2:20, Silver Bow the second in 2:22½, Frank M. the third in 2:22, and Silver Bow the fourth and fifth in 2:24¾ and 2:24¼. He won nine races in all last season, and had it not been that he was troubled badly with a tender mouth, he would not have lost a single race.

With his speed he will make a wonderful record the first time he starts on a good track and in perfect condition. His oldest colts are yearlings, and are very promising animals. We have one of his colts foaled May 23, 1891, which is a wonder, showing a burst of speed and perfect trotting action surpassing anything I have ever seen except in a carefully trained colt. I have also three others by SILVER BOW which are marvels of beauty and speed. We have reserved one hundred and fifty acres for pasturage for mares, and give the best of feed at $5 per month and the most careful attention, but no responsibility for accidents or escapes. "LACONA" made a 2-year-old race record of 2:42½, with 17 days track work. Every one of the above descendants of ALCONA were trained by different men, in different parts of the country, and all made their records in races over regulation tracks. ALCONA is 14 years old and has already two producing sons and a producing daughter. TERMS, $75 FOR THE SEASON.

GRANDISSIMO 14,995. RECORD, 2:27 3-4. (FULL BROTHER TO GRANDEE, THREE-YEAR-OLD RECORD, 2:23½.)

Sired by La Grande 2868, dam Norma, by Arthurton 365; grandam Nourmahal, full sister to A. W. Richmond 1687.

GRANDISSIMO got his first work last season better than 3 minutes November 11, 1891. Was worked out four times and trotted to a record of 2:27¾ in a race Thanksgiving Day at Napa, finishing the last quarter in 36 seconds. Fifteen days training, certainly a remarkable showing. I expect him to get a low mark next season. His colts are fine lookers and natural trotters. He will be bred to a limited number of mares at the low price of $50 FOR THE SEASON.

ALCONEER 15120. FULL BROTHER TO ALCONA JR., 2:24, SIRE OF SILAS SKINNER, 2:17. Sired by ALCONA 730, dam Madonna (dam of Alcona Jr., 2:24, Del Rey, 2:29), by Cassius M. Clay Jr. 22; grandam by Joe Downing 710.

ALCONEER is a handsome, good-sized horse, and a natural trotter. With two months training last fall as a 3-year-old he trotted a mile in 2:41; last quarter in 37½ seconds. TERMS, $50 FOR THE SEASON.

CADUCAS 10,840. Sired by ALMONT MEDIUM 2133, record 2:28½, dam Amelia T. CADUCAS is a handsome individual, and will make a trotter. His pedigree is all one could desire. He will be bred to a few mares at the low price of $25 FOR THE SEASON.

KING WHIPPLETON (Standard). PRIVATE STALLION.

Sired by WHIPPLETON 1883, dam Kate Chapman, by Nauduc 504; grandam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31 g g d by Ethan Allen 2903.

The season to commence February 1st. ALCONA'S season to close September 1st. GRANDISSIMO, ALCONEER and CADUCAS' season to close July 1st, as I expect to trot them during the circuit. Mares can be shipped by rail from any part of the State direct to St. Helena or by boat to Napa City, where they will be looked after. The very best of pasturage at $4 per month; hay and grain $8 per month for mares if necessary. Mares kept same as my own at $60 per year. Mares not proving with foal can be returned the following season free. Should any of my stallions die or be sold, mares will be returnable to any of my other stallions by paying difference in service, if any. For further particulars, address

Australian Thoroughbred Blood

Loyalist and Chesterfield

Two Sons (from Grandly-Bred Mares) of THE MARQUIS, one of Australia's Greatest Sire,

Will make the season of 1892 at the SOUTHER FARM, San Leandro, Cal.

These horses can hardly fail to produce speed and staying qualities from the strains of thoroughbred blood in this State.

Mares that prove not to be with foal may be returned without service fee in 1893, provided the horse bred to is alive and at the Souther Farm.

LOYALIST - - - - - $100, INCLUDING KEEP OF MARE TILL JULY 1st, 1892.

Bay horse, foaled 1884. Winner of the Brunswick Stakes, worth about $7,000, one and one-quarter mile in 2:08½.

LOYALIST'S mile and a quarter in 2:08¾ was the best on record in Australia when made, and has only been surpassed by Abercorn and the great Carbine. His sire was a race-horse and a sire of race horses; his dam was a winner and has produced winners. Loyalist has proven himself a race-horse, and he will produce race-horses.

CHESTERFIELD - $75, INCLUDING FREE KEEP OF MARES UNTIL JULY 1st, 1892.

Bay horse, no white, foaled 1876. Bred by Mr. C. B. Fisher, Victoria. See Australian Stud Book, Vol. 2, page 201.

CHESTERFIELD was a good race horse and a first-class weight packer. In ten important stakes he was first in four, second in four and third in two. He will produce great two-year-olds from our California mares; in his own two-year-old form he took up 128 pounds and won the Flying Handicap at Wollongong.

Fourth Dam, ELLEN JOURDAN, by Blacknose, by Medoc, son of Duroc by imp. Diomed, and Miller's Damsel, by imp. Messenger.

Fifth Dam, EMILY JOURDAN, by imp. Jourdan.

Sixth Dam, ELLEN TREE, by Henry, son of Sir Archy by imp. Diomed and of a daughter of imp. Diomed.

Seventh dam, Betsy Ransome by Virginian, son of Sir Archy by imp. Diomed; Eighth dam, Favorite, by imp. Bellair; Ninth dam, Fairy by imp. Bedford; Tenth dam, by imp. Pantaloon; Eleventh dam, by imp. Master Stephen; Twelfth dam, by imp. Juniper; Thirteenth dam, imp. Duchess, by Cullen Arabian, etc.

DESCRIPTION HOCK WILKES, foaled 1888, is a handsome bay with black points, 15¾ hands high, of speedy conformation, good bone and powerful muscular development. He is pure in trotting action, very speedy, and, but for difficulty with one fore pastern, he would now have a low record. He is one of the handsomest sons of Guy Wilkes, with the Wilkes substance and trotting instinct and the thoroughbred quality and type of conformation. The sire of Hock Wilkes, Guy Wilkes, stands at a service fee of $1,000, and he is conceded to be the best representative of the great Wilkes and Hambletonian family. The dam of Hock Wilkes is a large mare, 16¾ hands, of powerful build, a daughter of Hock-Hocking, who produced the speedy and long-distance performers St. David, Beaconsfield, Batchelder, Arthur H., Four Aces, etc., and whose dam was the third dam of Antevo, 2:16½, Antevolo, 2:19½, and Coral, 2:25.

TERMS, $40 FOR THE SEASON of 1892, from February 1st to July 1st, with return privilege for the season of 1893 on any mare not proving with foal, provided either the mare or stallion does not change ownership. The season of 1892 will be made at 2536 Market Street, San Francisco.

NO. 7. $1,000 STAKE. For trotting horses eligible to the 2:36 class. Entrance and payments same as in No. 5.

NO. 8. $1,000 STAKE. For pacing horses eligible to the 2:28 class. Entrance and payments same as in No. 5.

CONDITIONS.

Division in Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4: Main Stakes, 60, 25 and 15 per cent.; in the Consolations, 50, 25, 15 and 10 per cent.

Division in Nos. 5, 6, 7 and 8, 50, 25, 15 and 10 per cent.

Main and Consolation Stakes, two or more days apart.

No entry liable for more than amount paid in, but a non-payment forfeits previous payments.

Above Stakes are for Face Value--- No More, No Less.

Except in case of a walk-over, or a horse distancing the field, the winner will be awarded the whole of amount paid in; in no case exceeding the value of stake, however.

Rules of the American Trotting Association to govern. All in harness.

In any and all of the above stakes we reserve the right to refund the first payments, and declare the same off, should they not fill satisfactorily.

The usual weather clause. No nomination received unless accompanied by the first payment.

Liberal purse classes will be advertised later at the popular entrance of five per cent.

TERRE HAUTE PURSE.

$10,000.

For Foals of 1892, to Trot in 1894.

Colts, Fillies and Geldings (the get of Stallions that may be entered in this purse) to trot as two-year-olds at Terre Haute, Ind., at a meeting to be held in August or September, 1894, under the rules of the Association of which this Society is then a member; mile heats, best two in three, in harness. Distance, 125 yards.

On or before April 4, 1892, the Stallions, all of whose get thus become eligible, must be nominated, and any Stallion even if dead, that has foals foaled in 1892, is eligible.

All colts, Fillies and Geldings eligible to this purse shall on or before December 1, 1892, be entered and described, and there may be as many starters by one sire as there are different owners; but no person shall be interested in more than one starter, later than ten days before the race.

This purse will be divided as follows: $5,500 to the first horse, $1,500 to the second, $1,000 to the third, $500 to the fourth, and $1,500 to the nominator of the Stallion that is the sire of the winner.

ENTRANCE AS FOLLOWS:

Fifty dollars to nominate the Stallion April 4, 1892; $5 to nomina each foal December 1, 1892; $15 second payment on foals December 1893; $30 third payment on foals May 1, 1894, and $100 for starter payable on or before August 1, 1894.

THIS PURSE IS FOR $10,000—NO MORE, NO LESS;

Except in case of a walk-over, or of a horse distancing the field; in either of which cases, should the amounts paid in hereto fall short of $10,000, the winner shall only be entitled to receive the whole of the amount paid in; and further provided, that should the original nominations to this purse be such as to make reasonably certain a considerable loss to this Society, then and in that event, we reserve the right to refund said first payments and to declare the purse off.

The above purse will be trotted for at the same meeting in 1894, whereat the $11,000 Guaranteed Purse for foals of 1890, and the $11,500 Guaranteed Purse for foals of 1891 will be contested, thus making this meeting in 1894 the greatest race meeting ever held in Indiana, if not in the United States, as other magnificent purses and stakes have been outlined and contemplated for this meeting, and will at the proper time be placed before the public, thus making the Terre Haute Fair for 1894 the Banner Race Meeting and Horse Fair of that year.

Stallions to be nominated on or before April 4, 1892, and addressed to

CHAS. C. OAKEY, Secretary,
Terre Hante, Ind.

DIRECTOR JR.

WILL MAKE THE SEASON OF 1892 AT THE ASYLUM RANCH, SAN RAFAEL.

DESCRIPTION.

DIRECTOR JR. is a grandly-formed stallion, a handsome black in color; stands 15.3 hands; weighs 1,175 pounds. In appearance and disposition he is more like Director than any other son of that famous sire. He has never been trained for speed, but can easily show a 2:20 gait on the road, and will surely get a mark much below that this fall, as he will be put in training for this season's campaign. Up to the present time he has been in the stud in Oregon and never given an opportunity to show his speed. His colts, like himself, are all grand lookers, show great trotting action, intelligence and gameness. A three-year-old now in training has shown a mile in 2:21, and Directwood, a two-year-old son, won every race in which he was entered last year, and could have gone in the thirty list had his owner so desired. At the Oregon State Fair last year Director Jr. and five of his get were awarded first premiums.

PEDIGREE.

It will be seen that Director Jr. is bred on blood lines almost identically the same as Direct, 2:06, the Greatest Harness Horse in the World.

MELROSE

DESCRIPTION.

MELROSE is a handsome bay stallion, foaled in 1889; stands 15.3 hands high and weighs 1100 pounds. In conformation he is symmetrical throughout, splendid bone and muscle, stylish and a grand individual in every respect. At twenty months old, with very little work, Tom Murphy drove him a mile in 2:35. As he was growing fast it was decided better to cease working him until this Fall, when he will be prepared for the track and put in the list, barring accidents.

His splendid individuality and fashionable breeding makes him one of the most desirable young stallions on the Coast.

DESCRIPTION AND TERMS.

Not only is Memo full brother to Frou-Frou, the champion yearling trotter in the world, but he is also one of the very best-bred young stallions in service, having three crosses of Rysdyk's Hambletonian, one of Harry Clay, sire of Green Mountain Maid (dam of Electioneer, etc.), and Long Island Black Hawk. Through Flaxtail he traces to Canadian Pilot (sire of Pilot Jr. 12), through Bull Pup, sire of Rowdy Boy, 2:13¾, and two others. Sidney, Memo's sire, is universally known and recognized as the best young sire in the world, as a producer of extreme speed at an early age. The average speed of his progeny is lower than that of any of the get of the twelve leading stallions of America.

Memo trotted to public in his two-year-old form, obtaining a record of 2:49, though he was close to Grandee in a race on the Bay District Track, the second heat of which was made in 2:31½, the first in 2:32. He exhibited phenomenal speed when three years old, for on the Oakland track he was timed a mile in 2:20¾, and frequently trotted quarters in from 32 to 34 seconds.

He is sixteen hands high, and of powerful build throughout. His color is a glossy black, with both forefeet white. His disposition is all that could be desired, and his action superb. He is a sure foal getter, only one mare being reported not in foal during his last season.

Terms—$100, with usual return privileges, for a limited number of mares. Season to close JUNE 15th, when he will be prepared for track purposes.

Good pasturage at reasonable rates. No responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, address

THE BEST-BRED AND FINEST-LOOKING WILKES STALLION IN THE STATE.

No. 8707. BILLY THORNHILL Rec. 2:24 1-2

By BEVERLY WILKES, Brother of
PROSPECT MAID, 2:23½, WALSINGHAM, 2166 (sire of LATITUDE, 2:19¾ at 4 years).
GEORGIA WILKES, sire of VALENTINE, 2:18¾, BAS BLEN WILKES, 2:24½, BILLY WILKES, 2:29½, BESSIE WILKES, 2:31½.

Dam EMILY, Dam of
FORTUNA, 2:22, BILLY THORNHILL, 2:24½
COL. YOUNG, 2:30.

Second dam SUE STOUT,

Third dam LEAR MARE, Dam of
JIM IRVING, 2:23, and YOUNG JIM, sire of BUTTERFLY, 2:19¾, GARNETT, 2:19, and twelve other performers.

By GEORGE WILKES, Sire of
GUY WILKES, 2:15¼, HARRY WILKES, 2:13½, and seventy-four others in the 2:30 list, and seventy-five sires of 249 trotters.

By GEORGE WILKES, 2:22, Sire of
Seventy-five producing sons and forty-six producing daughters.

By ASHLAND 47, Son of
MAMBRINO CHIEF 11 and sire of HIGHLAND WIN 1226, and others in list and the dams of EDWIN THORNE, 2:16¼, and others.

By LEAR'S SIR WILLIAM, Son of
HOWARD'S SIR CHARLES.

BEVERLY WILKES (who died when but three years of age) was out of Neilson, by Mambrino Pilot 2:27½ (sire of Hannis, 2:17½, and others), out of Juliett, by Pilot Jr. 12; second dam by Webster, son of Medoc; third dam by Blackburn's Whip. Ashland was out of Utilla, by imp. Margrave; second dam Too Soon, by Sir Leslie, etc.

The above extended pedigree needs no further comment. That it is bristling with the names of some of the greatest trotters, as well as most prepotent sires, none will deny, but a description of the representative that has such a royal lineage is much more difficult to give. In color he is a deep mahogany bay, no white markings; he stands 15.2½ hands, and weighs 1,050 pounds. He represents the highest type of a trotting horse. He has a faultless head and neck, well-sloped shoulders, magnificent back and loins, remarkably well-built across the coupling, well-rounded barrel, muscular arms and thighs, well-shaped hocks and good joints, fetlocks strong and elastic, the best of feet, and he stands with them well placed under him. He is a perfect line trotter, and can trot in 2:40 without boots of any kind. His first colt showed trials last fall in 2:20 in his 3-year-old form, and all of his 2-year-olds that have been handled any show lots of speed and a nice way of going. He is a sure foal-getter, and all of his progeny are bays or browns, without white, and they inherit his excellent disposition and intelligence to a remarkable degree.

He will make the season of 1892, commencing February 1st, at Milpitas, Santa Clara Co., Cal.

TERMS, $75 WITH USUAL RETURN PRIVILEGE.

NUTWOOD WILKES is a handsome chestnut in color, stands 15½ hands high, is level-headed, kind and intelligent.

RAPID TRANSIT,

Limited to Fifteen approved Outside Mares at $75 for the Season.

RAPID TRANSIT is a fine-looking bay horse, stands 15½ hands high. He is by DIRECTOR 1989, 2:17; dam Lida W., record 2:18¼, dam of Nutwood Wilkes, 2:20½ at 3 years. (See above tabulated pedigree.) He is a horse of splendid individuality and excellent blood lines.

LONG BRANCH.

Limited to Fifteen Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

LONG BRANCH is a magnificent bay horse, 15¾ hands high, sired by Antevolo, 4-year-old record 2:19½ (brother to Anteeo, 2:16¼, sire of seven with records from 2:17¾ to 2:30), by ELECTIONEER 125 (sire of 100 trotters with records from 2:08¼ to 2:30, 22 of which have records better than 2:20), dam Zola (dam of Maud C., 2:19), by Steinway, 3-year-old record 2:25¼ (sire of seven with records from 2:10 to 2:28¼, including the dam of Maud C., 2:19, and Bourbon Russell, 2:30), second dam Fanny Malone (grandam of Charles Derby, record 2:20, and Maud C., record 2:19).

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD.

Limited to Fifty Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD is a handsome chestnut horse, stands sixteen hands one and one-half inches high, and is the sire of Maud C., 2:19; Annie C., 2:25; Albert H., 2:27¾, and several others with trials from 2:37 to 2:50. He is by the greatest living sire, Nutwood 600, record 2:18¾ (sire of 77 with records from 2:11½ to 2:30; 17 from 2:11½ to 2:20, and half-brother to Maud S., 2:08¾, the fastest trotter in the world on a regulation track); dam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31, record 2:27 (sire of ten with records from 2:18 to 2:30; the best son of Geo. M. Patchen, record 2:23½, made in 1869; the fastest and gamest representative of the Clay family). This pedigree demonstrates that California Nutwood represents the best strains of Hambletonian and Clay blood, a combination that cannot fail to produce fast and game race horses as well as great broodmares. He is a horse of splendid conformation, stylish, level-headed, pure-gaited, speedy, game and intelligent, qualities that he transmits to all of his get. He gets bays and chestnuts from all kinds of mares. He is just the kind of a horse that a poor man can make no mistake in breeding a good mare to, as he will get a horse large enough for work on the ranch or road, besides a chance of producing a very fast and valuable race horse.

NOTICE.

The great blood lines represented in the four above stallions, GUY WILKES, NUTWOOD, ELECTIONEER and DIRECTOR, are, as all horsemen will agree, the best race horse strains—the greatest producers of extreme speed and gameness to be found in the trotting families. NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT are the two greatest representatives of developed race-horse speed there are to be found in the stud to date. This is a broad assertion, but it can be demonstrated by anyone who will take the trouble to look it up. Their sires, Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼, and Director, 2:17, were two of the fastest and most consistent race horses on the turf in their day, and about as safe horses as a man ever placed his money on, for they would gamely fight a race out to the bitter end, almost invariably scoring a victory. The dam of NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT is Lida W., record 2:18¼, made after raising five colts, the last one last spring, her record being made on the 20th of October last. She is one of the fastest daughters of the great Nutwood 600, 2:18¾, who, besides being a great and game race horse himself, is the greatest living sire. Among the produce of his daughters are to be found Arion, the phenomenon, two-year-old record 2:10¾, and nineteen others from 2:18¼ to 2:30.

Mares not proving in foal may be returned the following season free of service fee. Parties desiring the services of any of the above horses must send the mare or ten per cent of the service money with the engagement. Excellent pasturage at $5 per month, and when the condition of the animal requires it, hay or grain or both will be fed at $10 per month. The best of care will be taken of mares, but no liability will be assumed for accidents or escapes. Mares may be shipped direct to me at Irvington, Alameda Co., Cal., via Broad Gauge Railroad.

All bills are due at time of service, but must be paid by August 1st. No stock will be allowed to leave the place until all bills are settled. Season from February 1st to August 1st, 1892.

YOUNG STOCK FOR SALE.

Visitors welcome any day.

    - Harry Clay 45, Sire of dams of Electioneer and St. Julien, 2:11.

Delwin 14,681, record 2:26 1-2, will, if he has no setbacks, pace in 2:15 or better, and beat 2:30 trotting over the fast Stockton kite track this fall. Delwin is one of the handsomest grandsons of the great Moor; in color, he is a dark dapple bay, sound as a dollar, outside of his broken hind leg, and the best of feet and legs; 15.1½ hands high, and weighs 1,000 pounds; he is one of the finest-formed horses for great speed in the land; has the same level head and intelligence that his half-brother, Guide, 2:16¼, has; in color and form he resembles Harry Clay 45 (sire of the dam of Electioneer and George Wilkes, 2:22), more than any horse that we ever saw. Delwin has the same blood lines as the handsome grandson of The Moor, Stamboul, 2:11; he has two crosses of American Star 14, also of Clay, one of Hambletonian 10, sire of the dam of Stamboul, 2:11; one to Mambrino Chief, sire of the dam of Director, 2:17, and two of the great Pilot Jr., sire of the dam of Nutwood, 2:18¾, combining altogether the same blood lines that lay in the grandest stallions, living or dead—Arion, 2:10¾, Stamboul, 2:11; also the first yearling to beat 2:30, and who trotted the fastest last quarter in that mile that was ever trotted by any yearling, 34 seconds—Freedom, 2:29¾.

Del Sur, 2:24, sire of Don Tomas, 2:20, and Cousin Joe, 2:20¼, being a full brother to the dam of Sable Wilkes, 2:18, sire of Freedom, 2:29¾, and two others better than 2:28. Delwin's colts all show the trot out of any kind of mares.

Terms $40, with usual return privilege.

Good water and pasturage at $5 per month, but will not be responsible for accidents or escapes. Mares can be shipped to the farm and home of Delwin, the Meese Stock Farm, Danville, Contra Costa County, Cal., per S. P. R. R., via Martinez. For further particulars, address,

George Washington

11,623.

2-year-old Record, 2:44;

3-year-old Record, 2:30;

4-year-old Record, 2:20.

GEORGE WASHINGTON is a handsome bay horse, hind feet white, foaled 1886, bred by Thomas Smith of Vallejo, stands 16 hands high, and weighs 1200 pounds.

PEDIGREE:

GEORGE WASHINGTON, by Mambrino Chief Jr. 11,622, record 2:34. George Washington's dam was Fanny Rose (full sister to Prince Allen, 2:27) by Ethan Allen Jr. 2903 (sire of the dams of George Washington 2:20 and Bessie S., 2:29¼, also of Lynwood, sire of Lynette etc, three-year-old record 2:25½; also sire of Prince Allen 2:27) second dam, Jenny Lind, thoroughbred, dam of Prince Allen 2:27.

GEORGE WASHINGTON has proven himself a great race horse, and would have been given a much lower mark last season had it not been for an accident. As an individual, he is all that can be asked, being perfect in form, intelligent and of kind disposition, and represents the highest type of a trotting sire. As he will be put in training for the campaign of 1892, he will be allowed to serve only a limited number of approved mares.

TERMS: $100 FOR THE SEASON.

Mambrino Chief Jr.

11,622.

Record 2:34. Sire of George Washington, record 2:20 at four years Blood bay horse, hind feet white, 15.3 hands high, weighs 1100 pounds. By McDonald Chief 3583, Mambrino Chief's first dam Venus by Mambrino Patchen 58, second dam by Wardloes' Shakespeare, third dam by Love Gold, fourth dam by Silver Heels.

WILL MAKE THE SEASON OF 1892 AT $50.

McDONALD CHIEF, 3,5_3.

Seal brown horse, 16 hands high, and weighs 1175 pounds, foaled June 24th, 1868, got by Clark Chief 89, first dam by Berthune, son of Sidi Hamet grandam by McDonald's Copperbottom. Bred by Thos. Van Meter, Clarke Co. Ky., passed through the hands of Isaac Smith of Lexington, Ky., to Rufus Ingalls of Chicago, Ill., to Thomas Smith of Vallejo, Cal. Trial to wagon, 2:32, has wonderful bone and muscle and very pure-gaited. He sired Catherine, 2:28¼, Mambrino Chief Jr., 2:34, trial 2:26, sire of George Washington, 2:20, Maud, 2:29¾, Highland Chief, 2:30, Daisy S., 2:42 at three years old, trial one-half mile 1:12, Peat Treat 2:23 and a number of others with the ability to beat 2:30 with proper handling.

WILL MAKE THE SEASON OF 1892 AT $40.

Mares not proving in foal may be returned next season Free of Charge. Season commences February 1st. Good pasturage at $3.00 per month, and excellent care taken of Mares in any manner that owners may desire, but no responsibility for accidents or escapes. Mares received by cars or boat on due notification. All bills payable at time of service, but must be paid by July 1st, 1892.

Wilkes-Electioneer Stallion.

COMBINED BLOOD

— Of the Greatest Son of

GEO. WILKES

— And the Greatest Son of

ELECTIONEER,

ANTEEO WILKES.

Black horse, foaled May, 1889; sired by GUY WILKES, race-record fourth heat, 2:15¼.

First dam Amy Fay, by ANTEEO, race record 2:16¼, sire of Myrtle, three-year-old record 2:19½, Alfred G., four-year-old record 2:19¾, James Madison, record 2:17¾; second dam by Alexander, record 2:31¼, son of George M. Patchen Jr., record 2:27, and grandsire of Yolo Maid 2:12; third dam by Naubuc, son of Toronto Chief, record 2:24½ and Gypsy Queen, ten-mile record 28:30, and full brother to the famous trotter, Thomas Jefferson, record 2:23; fourth dam Sacramento Belle, ten-mile record 31.07, one-mile record 2:38.

Anteeo Wilkes as an individual is worthy of his great blood lines; he is 15:3 hands high and of perfect form. Although handled but little and never driven once by a professional driver he has trotted a mile in 2:52 quarters in forty seconds without shoes, as a two-year-old, with the marked purity of gait, for which the Guy Wilkes trotters are noted. At close of season will be trained for a great record.

Anteeo Wilkes will make the season of 1892, at the stables of his owner, cor. 45th and Watts street, near Oakland race track; look for sign board on Park Ave., leading from San Pablo Avenue to race track.

By THORNDALE, 2:22¼, Sire of
EDWIN THORNE, 2:16¼, DAISYDALE, 2:19¾, and five others in 2:30 list, by ALEXANDER'S ABDALLAH, sire of GOLDSMITH MAID, 2:14, ALMONT, etc., out of DOLLY, dam of DIRECTOR, 2:17, ONWARD, 2:25¼. THORNDALE, 2:24¼, and CZARINA, 2:21, by MAMBRINO CHIEF.

By RYSDYK'S HAMBLETONIAN, Sire of
ELECTIONEER, GEORGE WILKES, and forty-one trotters in the 2:30 list.

WILKESDALE is a seal brown, sixteen hands high; bred at Highlawn Farm, Mass. He very closely resembles his sire, Alcantara, four year old record 2:23 (trial 2:17), and a study of his pedigree will convince anyone that if there be anything in inheritance, we may expect extreme speed from his produce. His sire, Alcantara, at fifteen years old has forty-seven in the 2:30 list, and has five praducing sons, two of whom have sired two-year-olds that entered the 2:30 list this year. His full brother, Alcyone, died when only ten years old, yet he is the sire of twenty-five in the 2:30 list, among them being McKinney 2:12½, fastest record for a four-year-old stallion. Another half-brother, out of Alma Mater, is the sire of Strong Boy 2:12, fastest four-year-old record for a pacing stallion. Wilkesdale's dam is herself a trotter, record 2:30, and is in the list of great broodmares, being the dam of Miss Alice 2:17¼ (who was shown trials the past season in 2:14); Thornton, 2:26¼, and Wilkesdale 2:29, all sired by Alcantara. Thorndale 2:22¼, the sire of his dam, is also the sire of Sue, the dam of Egthorne 2:12½, one of the sensational trotting stallions of the past season.

ALMA MATER, his grandam on his sire's side and Dolly, (the dam of Director 2:17, etc.) on his dam's side, are among the few of the great producing dams, Wilkesdale was taken out of the paddock the 1st of October last, soft and in no condition for trotting, yet in less than two months he gained a record of 2:29 in third heat, trotting the second heat in 2:29½. After his stud season closes he will again be placed in training, and under favorable circumstances will no doubt trot under 2:20.

TERMS—He will make the season of 1892 at Wolf's stable in Stockton, Cal., at $75, for the season, from February 1st to July 1st, with usual return privileges for mares that fail to get in foal this season.

The Best Son of Nutwood in California!

Dawn 6407

(Sire of Silky 2:26, Anna Belle 2:27½, Oaknut 2:24¼, Dot 2:29½.)

Will Make the Season of 1892 at the

Agnew Stock Farm,

HILLSDALE, SANTA CLARA COUNTY.

SERVICE FEE $150. LIMITED TO 20 MARES.

DAWN has a record of 2:18¾, and three heats of a race in 2:20 or better. His sire, Nutwood has record of 2:18¾ in a third heat, and is now regarded as the greatest of living sires, having put seventy-seven into the list altogether, of which twenty-six entered the list in 1892. At his present fee Dawn really is the CHEAPEST OF AMERICAN STALLIONS, and, as a recent writer has said, "his form baffles description." Being by the great Nutwood 600, now standing at $1,000, out of Countess (dam of Strathway, 2:20, Placida and Morna, driven as a double team a trial mile in 2:26), Dawn shows that his family is a trotting one on each side of the house. Countess was by Whipple's Hambletonian, sire of Graves, 2:19, and fourteen others in the 2:20 list. The chestnut stallion

BOSWELL, JR.

Will stand at the same place at the low price of $50 the season.

BOSWELL JR., sired by Boswell (a son of Almont 33), dam Nellie B., by Kirtley's Patchen; grandam Sophie (grandam of Nancy Hanks, 2:09), by Alexander's Edwin Forrest; great grandam by Parker's Brown Pilot. This stallion Boswell was purchased by King Kalakaua from Gen. W. T. Withers, Fairlawn Stock Farm, Lexington, Kentucky. Boswell Jr.'s dam, Maude, 2:20, by Bertrand 3262, sire of Frank Fisk, 2:29; second dam by Hamilton Chief, son of Royal George 9; third dam the Dooley Mare, MAUDE started in twenty-one races and won eighteen first moneys, and is well known to all horsemen. BOSWELL JR. showed miles in 2:26 and quarters in 35 seconds on two weeks' work.

Mares stabled or pastured (as owners may desire) on reasonable terms. All bills payable before the animal is removed. No liability for accidents. Best fences in the country. Address,

HARRY J. AGNEW, Hillsdale, Santa Clara County.

The Standard Stallion

WILKES PASHA 2618

Will make the Season of 1891 at the Stables of the undersigned, at the Trancas Bridge, two miles north of Napa, on the Soda Springs Road.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

WILKES PASHA 2618 is a dark bay with white hind feet; 16½ hands high; bred by R. P. Pepper, of South Elkhorn Farm, Frankfort, Kentucky; sired by Onward 1411, record 2:25¼, trial 2:17; sire of 48 in the list. He is proving one of the greatest sires in America and his sons are proving to be sires of extreme and early speed also. Onward is by George Wilkes, 2:22, sire of seventy-five horses in the 2:30 list, ten with records below 2:20; first dam Fisher (dam of Clara Wilkes, 2:18¾, trial 2:25), by American Clay 34, sire of Maggie Briggs, 2:27, Ella Clay, 2:27½, and the dams of Executor, 2:24½, Ranchero, 2.21½, Judge Hawes, 2:24, Ambassador, 2:22¼, Sir Walter, 2:18¼, and nine others in 2:30; second dam by Wilson's Snow Storm, sire of Jim Irving, 2:23; third dam by Paddie Burns, thoroughbred.

WILKES PASHA is the only son of Onward in this part of California. He combines the much-prized Clay cross, his dam being a producing daughter of American Clay 34, who traces to the very best of thoroughbred foundations. As an individual, Wilkes Pasha is as handsome a horse as one could wish to see. He has been bred to ordinary mares. Every one of his progeny shows perfect trotting action and fine size; in color they are all deep bays or browns, and in disposition they cannot be excelled.

TERMS—$30 for the season. Pasturage $4 per month. Every attention and care will be given to mares, but no liabilities assumed for accidents or escapes.

Postoffice address; CHARLES SCOTT, Napa City.

ALCONA JR. 2,755.

Record 2:24, last half in 1:10½ and last quarter in 34½ seconds.

PEDIGREE.—Alcona Jr., 2:24, was sired by Alcona 730, out of Madonna, by Cassius M. Clay 22; second dam by Joe Downing, by Alexander's Edwin Forrest. Alcona 730 (sire of Alcona Jr., 2:24; Flora Belle, 2:24; Clay Duke, 2:29, etc.) is by Almont 33, out of Queen Mary, by Mambrino Chief 11, etc.

DESCRIPTION.—Alcona Jr. is a handsome dark mahogany bay stallion, 16.1 hands high and weighs 1,250 pounds. He represents the highest type of the large trotting horse. His symmetrical conformation from the fine-finished head to the fetlocks, his stylish way of moving, perfect trotting action, magnificent limbs and great muscular development commend him at once to all lovers of the trotting horse. He was not given any training until late in the year, and on a heavy track in a race at Santa Rosa he earned his record of 2:24.

TERMS—$75 for the season, ending July 1st, as this horse will be put in training.

The best of care taken of mares, but no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. Pasturage, $2.50 per month.

ABDOL 17,716.

RECORD, 2:28.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

Abdol was foaled in 1883, bred by John Watson, Oakland, and is one of the finest sons of the Grand Moor. He is a handsome black in color, stands 16 hands high, and weighs 1,200 pounds. He is a horse of splendid proportions, exquisite style and perfect trotting action. He is remarkably level-headed, intelligent and of kind disposition, and possesses the qualities of speed and gameness to a remarkable degree. His record is no mark of his speed. When it was made it was the intention to keep him in the 2:30 class. He has shown in his work last quarters in 34 seconds—a 2:16 gait—and can get away equally fast.

LANCELOT.

The Only Son of ELECTIONEER Standing for Public Service in San Francisco.

DESCRIPTION: LANCELOT is a seal-brown stallion, 15.1 hands high, foaled April 15, 1881. Bred by C. C. Bemis, San Francisco. He is a horse of fine conformation. He has a beautiful head and neck, fine loins, well-shaped body, deep through the heart, sloping shoulders, fine arms, large stifles and the very best of feet and legs. In action he is pure-gaited. As a three-year-old he trotted quarters in 32 seconds, but was injured and placed in the stud. His colts are all blood like, large and fast trotters. Several of them are eligible and will enter the 2:30 list this Fall. Lancelot is one of the surest of foal-getters.

PEDIGREE: LANCELOT was sired by the immortal Electioneer, sire of 100 in the list, dam Lizzie Harris by Comus, second dam by Arnold Harris. Comus, the sire of Lizzie Harris, was a full brother to Iowa Chief 528, sire of Corsande 2:21¾, and others. His sire was Bashaw 50, sire of 17 in the 2:30 list, he by Vernol's Black Hawk, dam Belle by Webber's Tom Thumb; second dam Chas. DESCRIPTION.

Seal brown (no white) with black points, 16 hands 1¼ inches in height, beautifully proportioned and elegantly finished. Balkan is the one horse whose limbs are so correctly formed that a plumb-line from the shoulder drops through the center of the arm, the knee, the cannon-bone, pastern and hoof; consequently his action is straight forward without the slightest side swing, making a pure, frictionless gait. His style and carriage are so lofty that it is universally admitted that in these respects he has no superior on the turf. In a race he is as steady and level-headed as possible, and trots his last quarter the fastest.

PEDIGREE.

By Mambrino Wilkes, son of George Wilkes, sire of Harry Wilkes, 2:13½, and 74 others in the 2:30 list, grandsire of Allerton, 2:09¼; Axtell, 2:12 (three years), and hosts of other noted race horses, dam Fanny Fern by Jack Hawkins, son of Boston, sire of second dam of Maud S., 2:08½, and Jay-Eye-See, 2:10, and grandsire of second dam of Sunol, 2:08¼. The dam of Jack Hawkins was the famous Keenon mare, the great grandam of Sunol, 2:08¼. Jack Hawkins sired the second dam of Direct, 2:06, so that Balkan, while by a son of George Wilkes, is closely related on the dam's side to the fastest horses of the times. His sire, Mambrino Wilkes, by George Wilkes, dam Lady Chrisman, by Todhunter's Mambrino, son of Mambrino Chief 11, grandam by Pilot Jr., has produced Gus Wilkes, 2:22, Bay Wilkes, 2:25, Alpheus, 2:27, Clara P., 2:29½, Balkan, 2:15, and numbers in the thirties. His dam, Fanny Fern, produced Mollie Drew, 2:27, Balkan, 2:15, Fred Arnold, trial, 2:27, and several in 2:40 and better. If there is anything in the science of breeding, Balkan, coming from a producing sire and a producing dam, should be unexcelled as a producer. He is just seven years old.

RESUME.

Considering the size, style, beauty, gait, speed, endurance and unexceptionably fashionable breeding of Balkan it is respectfully submitted that he offers as great attractions to breeders as any of the horses that get a service fee of $500 and $1,000,

AND HIS SERVICE IS OFFERED AT $100 FOR THE SEASON.

The services of no other young horse of his conformation, breeding and quality, with such a record, is offered at so low a figure.

Bear in mind that colt stakes will soon be given for the get of stallions with records of 2:15 or better. If you want to raise colts which will be eligible to enter in all stakes, BREED TO BALKAN, as he is the only horse in this region with a record of 2:15 whose services are offered to the public.

Good pasture and excellent care guaranteed for mares sent to him.
This horse can be seen at The Oakland Track, in charge of A. L. HINDS.

VOTER.

Sired by ELECT (sire of ELECT MOORE, four-year-old race record, 2:27), dam TWIST (dam of STEVE WHIPPLE, four-year-old record in a race, 2:23), by WHIPPLE'S HAMBLETONIAN; second dam JENNY LIND, by VERMONT BLACK HAWK; third dam OLD STUB, by YOUNG TELESCOPE; fourth dam by JUSTIN MORGAN.

ELECT was sired by ELECTIONEER, dam INEZ, by NORDALE; second dam LIZZIE, by WILLIAMSON'S BELMONT; third dam "THE THRIFT MARE," a thoroughbred brought from Kentucky.

NORDALE, by NORFOLK, dam BLUE DALE, by OWEN DALE; NORFOLK, by LEXINGTON, dam NOVICE, by IMP. GLENCOE; OWEN DALE by WILLIAMSON'S BELMONT, dam MARIA DOWNING, by AMERICAN ECLIPSE. YOUNG TELESCOPE by IMP. TELESCOPE, dam by IMP. MESSENGER.

VOTER is a dark bay, solid color, with black points; foaled 1886; 15 hands 3 inches high, and weighs 1,100 pounds. He is a horse of magnificent form, and is in every way a superior individual. In him is combined the HAMBLETONIAN, CLAY, MORGAN and thoroughbred blood. This horse was in Charles Marvin's care for about ten days during the record meeting at Stockton last fall—the only time he was ever on a track—and the first time he was speeded he showed Marvin an eighth of a mile in 19½ seconds. He was taken sick, and notwithstanding he showed such remarkable speed, had to be taken home.

VOTER will make the season from FEBRUARY 1st to JUNE 1st at the BELLOTA STOCK FARM.

TERMS, $50 FOR THE SEASON.

ANDY R.

(FULL BROTHER TO STEVE WHIPPLE, 2:23.)

Sired by CHRISMAN'S HAMBLETONIAN (sire of STEVE WHIPPLE, four-year-old race record, 2:23, and KATE AGNEW, 2:28½), dam TWIST (dam of STEVE WHIPPLE, 2:23, and VOTER), by WHIPPLE'S HAMBLETONIAN (sire of 15 trotters in 2:30; of 9 sires of 12 2:30 trotters, and of 12 dams of 16 trotters in the list.)

CHRISMAN'S HAMBLETONIAN 10,178, by WHIPPLE'S HAMBLETONIAN (sire of nine sires), dam FLORA (dam of three sires of 2:30 speed) by CHIEFTAIN 721; second dam a thoroughbred mare.

ANDY R. is a bright bay, with small star; foaled 1885; 15 hands 2½ inches high, and weighs 1,025 pounds. He is a beauty, and a perfect horse in every way. Will make the season at the BELLOTA STOCK FARM.

TERMS, $40 FOR THE SEASON, FEBRUARY 1 TO JUNE 1.

PRINDEX.

Sired by DEXTER PRINCE 11,363, (sire of seven in the list) dam TWIST (dam of STEVE WHIPPLE, VOTER and ANDY R.)

PRINDEX is a dark brown horse, white hind feet; foaled 1888; 16 hands high, and weighs 1,100 pounds. He is a good-sized, fine-styled and well-gaited colt, and will certainly make a trotter and sire of speed. He will also make the season at the BELLOTA STOCK FARM from FEBRUARY 1st to JUNE 1st.

AT $40 FOR THE SEASON.

The reader will perceive that the four stallions mentioned herein are all from the same mare. Four individually better or nicer-looking stallions can not be found on any stock farm in California. Horsemen are especially invited to inspect the horses, and I wish to call special attention to their feet and legs—better were never put under a horse. Their dam, TWIST, at sixteen years old, is as sound as the day she was foaled. Their second, third and fourth dams were used for all purposes of farm and road work, and all lived to be over thirty years old—their limbs, at the time of death, being as free of blemishes or of any marks of unsoundness as a suckling colt's.

The disposition of these stallions are of the very best, and their produce are all good size, of fine conformation, have perfect feet and legs, and all show speed to a remarkable degree.

I do not favor extremely high service fees, and the prices on these stallions for this year are placed comparatively very low; that of STEVE WHIPPLE in particular being much less than of any other stallion of equal value or merit in this State.

Mares sent to my address, care of WEBER STABLES, STOCKTON, CAL., will be taken to my ranch at BELLOTA free of charge, provided two or three days' notice be given me by letter.

Pasturage on mares to be bred to VOTER, ANDY R., or PRINDEX free for two months, after that $3 per month. All bills payable at time of service or before the mares are removed.

Usual return privileges, provided mare or horse does not change hands, or money refunded at my option.

MOUNT HOOD 12,040 (record 2:22¾) is a beautiful seal brown in color, with black points; stands 15¾ hands high; weighs 1,100 pounds; is a model of perfect symmetry; stylish; a pure-gaited trotter; remarkably intelligent, level-headed, speedy and game. With his unsurpassed breeding and splendid individuality he is the peer of any stallion in the State.

Mount Hood was foaled March 31st, 1885. His colts are all solid colors—bays, blacks or browns.

TERMS: $100 for the Season, February 1st to July 1st, 1892. Will stand at the TALBOT STOCK FARM, two miles northeast of San Leandro, Alameda County. Best of care taken of mares at $10 per month. Outside mares will receive the same care and attention as our own. Mares not proving with foal may be returned next year free of charge in case the mare or horse has not changed ownership. All bills due at time of service, and must be paid before the mares leave the farm. No responsibility assumed or accidents or escapes.

$500 will be given to the breeder of the first one of Mount Hood's get to enter the 2:30 list.

The Fast Trotting Stallion SILAS SKINNER.

RECORD 2:17. STANDARD, 10,681.

Will make the season of 1891, commencing February 1st and ending July 1st, at De Turk's Breeding Stables on Donahue Street, opposite De Turk's Wine Cellars, Santa Rosa, Cal.

SILAS SKINKER, sired by Alcona Jr., 2:21; first dam Fontana dam of Flora Belle, 2:21 by Almont 33, sire of thirty-eight in the 2:30 list; second dam Fannie Williams, dam of Bay Chieftain, 2:28¼, by Alexander's Abdallah 15, sire of Goldsmith Maid, 2:14; Rosalind, 2:21¾; Thorndale, 2:22¼, etc.; third dam by Gaine's Denmark; fourth dam by Robert Bruce; fifth dam by Virginia Whip.

ALCONA JR. was sired by Alcona 730 (sire of Flora Belle, 2:21¼; Clay Duke, 2:30; Prince Warwick, trial 2:18, etc. by Almont 33. First dam Madonna by Cassius M. Clay Jr., sire of Durango, 2:23¼, Harry Clay 2:23¼; Clay Davis, 2:26¼; Cora, 2:30, etc.

The above is a condensed pedigree of Silas Skinner, but enough is given to show him to be as richly bred in the best trotting lines as any horse living, besides being a great individual with remarkable speed and staying qualities, which was shown by his performance on the California Circuit the last two seasons. In 1890 Silas Skinner started in six races, trotting in all twenty-three heats. Of these six races Skinner won four and was second in two, and closed the season of 1890 with a record of 2:19.

The performance of Silas Skinner during the season of 1891 has also been very meritorious, having started in seven races, three of which he won, being second twice and twice third. In his race at Sacramento, September 19, 1891, Silas Skinner trotted so horsemen said one of the gamest races ever trotted in California. His competitors were Frank M and Wanda, whom he defeated, winning the first, third and fourth heats, the second heat falling to Frank M. Time of each heat 2:17, 2:17¼, 2:17¼, 2:19.

SILAS SKINNER is a black horse, sixteen hands high, and weighs in stud season about 1,100 pounds. In color, breeding and conformation he approaches very near the ideal stallion, and he descends on both his sire's and dam's side from ancestors who have few equals in the history of the American trotting horse.

TERMS: $100 FOR THE SEASON.

Mares not proving with foal may be returned next season free of charge, provided SILAS SKINNER remains the property of the present owners. Pasturage $3 per month. Every attention and care given to mares, but no liability assumed for accidents or escapes. For farther particulars, apply to

The Antevolo Stallion SIROCCO

Will make the season of 1892 at Egbert Rancho, near Rio Vista, from February 1st to June 15th at $50 for the season.

PEDIGREE AND DESCRIPTION.

SIROCCO, by Antevolo 7648, 2:19¾, by Electioneer 125, sire of 100 in the 2:30 list, dam by Rifleman (thoroughbred), sire of Col. Lewis, 2:18¾.

SIROCCO is a handsome bay with black points stands 16-1 hands high, 16 2½ over the hip; weigh about 1,150; five years old, and one of the best and speediest sons of Antevolo. He is remarkably intelligent, kind, and a splendid individual. Trial, quarter at three years old .37 to 150-pound cart without regular work. Good pasturage and the best of care taken of mares at $2 per month, but no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, address

DON MARVIN

Five-Year-Old Record 2:28.

DON MARVIN is a beautiful seal brown, foaled 1884; bred by Senator Leland Stanford, Palo Alto, Cal is 16 hands high and weighs 1200 pounds; sired by Ballis, 2:23 (sire of four in 2:30 list), he by Electioneer. Dam, CORA (dam of Don Marvin, 2:28, and Elected [trial] 2:26) by Don Victor, (sire of the dams of five in the 2:30 list) by Belmont. Second dam, CLARABEL (dam of Clifton Bell, 2:24½, and Rebecca, dam of four in 2:30 list) by Abdallah Star. Third dam, FAIRY (dam of Stoner Boy, 2:29½, and Sweepstakes, sire of 22 in the 2:30 list, and three other producing sires and dams) by Rydsyk's Hambletonian. Fourth dam, EMMA MILLS (dam of four horses that have sired 2:30 performers) by Seely's American Star.

DON MARVIN is a horse of great natural speed. His record was made with scarcely any preparation, after making a large season in the stud, and is no measure of his speed. His oldest colts (only five in number) are three years old this spring. One of them with very little work trotted quarters last fall in 36 seconds, and could have easily entered the 2:30 list in his two-year-old form had he been given an opportunity.

DON MARVIN will make the season of 1892 at $40, with usual return privilege, which makes him the cheapest horse in the State, record and breeding considered, having what no other public stallion has on the Coast—Four producing dams.

Eighth dam by Meades' Celer.

El. Benton's breeding is of the best. The Electioneer-Benton and Electioneer-Norman crosses are deservedly famous, and El Benton combines them all through grand individuals. His dam, Nellie Benton, trotted a trial in 2:18 and went East with the Palo Alto string, but broke down before starting (Marvin's "Training the Trotting Horse," page 102). She is now in foal to Palo Alto, 2:08¾; El Benton is her only living produce foaled before 1891. He is a born race horse and a most worthy member of the greatest trotting family the world has seen.

Training The Trotting Horse

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm." Mailed postpaid for $3.50.

THE GREATEST PRODUCERS OF SPEED.

A List of All Mares That Have Produced Two 2:20 Trotters.

Believing that 2:20, instead of 2:30, as it now is, will eventually be the standard of registration of trotting, it is thought that the major part of our readers would be interested in knowing on what foundation such a basis rests at the present time. For this purpose as a preliminary a list has been selected from the table of great broodmares of those which have produced more than one trotter with a record of 2:20 or better:

Beatrice, by Cuyler, dam by Mambrino Patchen—
Patron, 2:14½
Prodigal, 2:17¼ } Average of speed, 2:15 7-8

Beautiful Bells, by The Moor, dam by Bald Chief—
Bell Boy, 2:19¼
Hinda Rose, 2:19½ } Average of speed, 2:19 3-8

Blanche, by Arthurton, dam by Gen. Taylor—
Hazel Wilkes, 2:20
Una Wilkes, 2:19¼ } Average of speed, 2:19 5-8

Columbine, by A. W. Richmond, dam by imp. Bonnie Scotland
Anteeo, 2:16¼
Antevolo, 2:19½ } Average of speed, 2:17 7-8

Countess, by Hambletonian, dam Fly, not traced—
Dawn, 2:18½
Strathway, 2:20 } Average of speed, 2:19 3-8

Fleetwing, by Hambletonian, dam by Geo. M. Patchen—
Ruby, 2:19¼
Stamboul, 2:11 } Average of speed, 2:15 3-8

Green Mountain Maid, by Harry Clay, dam Shanghai Mary, not traced—
Elaine, 2:20
Prospero, 2:20 } Average of speed, 2:20

Mary M., by Bassinger, dam by Hamlet, son of imp. Consul—
Annie W, 2:20
McEwen, 2:18¼
Dam of Tosa, 2:19¼ } Average of speed, 2:19 1-8

May Day, by Ballard's C. M. Clay, Jr., dam by Hiram Drew—
Incas, 2:14½
Margaret S., 2:12½ } Average of speed, 2:13½

Midnight, by Pilot Jr., dam by Lexington—
Electricity, 2:17¾
Jay-Eye-See, 2:10 } Average of speed, 2:13 7-8

Miss Russell, by Pilot Jr., dam by Boston—
Maud S., 2:08¼
Nutwood, 2:18¼ } Average of speed, 2:13¼

Nettie Time, by Mambrino Time, dam by Flying Cloud—
Shadeland Onward, 2:18½
Temple Bar, 2:17¾ } Average of speed, 2:18 1-8

Reina Victoria, by Hambletonian, dam by Volunteer—
Muscovite, 2:19¼
Princeton, 2:19¾ } Average of speed, 2:19½

Sally Chorister, by Mambrino Chorister, dam by Blood's Black Hawk—
Belle Brasfield, 2:20
Proteine, 2:18 } Average of speed, 2:19

Soprano, by Strathmore, dam by Albion—
C. F. Clay, 2:18
Eminence, 2:18¾ } Average of speed, 2:18 3-8

Waterwitch, by Pilot Jr., dam by Kinkead's St. Lawrence—
Mambrino Gift, 2:20
Viking, 2:19¼ } Average of speed, 2:19 5-8

Young Daisy, by Strideaway, dam not traced—
Duke of Wellington, 2:20
Greylight, 2:16½ } Average of speed, 2:18¼

There are seventeen in all. Six are descendants in the male line from Hambletonian, three of which are daughters and three are daughters of sons. Three are descendants in the male line from Pilot Jr., all daughters. Three are descendants of Cassius M. Clay. Two are descendants of Mambrino Chief. One each are daughters of A. W. Richmond, Bassenger and Strideaway.

Of the following list, Miss Russell has produced the fastest representative in Maud S., 2:08¾. The distinction of having produced the fastest average in the foregoing table belongs to May Day. Her produce, Margaret S., 2:12½, and Incas, 2:14½, average 2:13½. As these each have a different sire, it gives a pre-eminent producing quality to May Day, the value of which is difficult to estimate. May Day is by Ballard's Cassius M. Clay Jr., dam by Hiram Drew.

Miss Russell follows May Day with an average for the two of her produce which are in the 2:20 list—Maud S., 2:08¾, and Nutwood, 2:18¾, the average for the two being 2:13¾. These also are by different sires. As Miss Russell has further distinctions, the claim for her as the premier living broodmare, all things considered, perhaps will not be disputed.

Midnight comes third on the list with an average of 2:13 7-8 for two—Jay-Eye-See, 2:10, and Electricity, 2:17¾, the average being 2:13 7-8.

But one-quarter of a second separates Miss Russell's from May Day's average, and but an eighth of a second separates Midnight's from Miss Russell's.

So far as the 2:20 list is concerned, and as a test of the value of a thoroughbred foundation, it is worthy of mention that two of the three mares just alluded to have a strictly thoroughbred foundation through their dams, both of which are thoroughbred mares.

The dam of Miss Russell is by Boston, grandsire of the dam of Balkan, 2:15; second dam, Maria Russell, by Thornton's Rattler; third dam, Miss Shepherd, by Stockholder; fourth dam, Miranda, by Topgallant; fifth dam by imp. Diomed; sixth dam by imp. Medley; seventh dam by Juniper.

The dam of Midnight is Twilight, by Lexington (sire of the dam of Ansel, 2:20, and second dam of Sunol, 2:08¼); second dam Daylight, by imp. Glencoe (sire of the second dams of Palo Alto, 2:08¾; Favonia, 2:15; Lakewood Prince, 2:16¼; J. R. Richardson, 2:16¼; third dam, Darkness, by Wagner; fourth dam, Sir Richard; fifth dam by Ogle's Oscar; sixth dam by imp. Knowsley; seventh dam by imp. Diomed.

Columbine, in the foregoing table, is also out of a thoroughbred mare—Columbia, by imp. Bonnie Scotland, sire of Scotland, 2:22½; second dam Young Fashion, by imp. Monarch; third dam Fashion, by imp. Trustee, sire of Trustee, champion four-mile trotter in 11:06, also twenty-mile record 59:35½.

Beatrice, in the foregoing table, is also bred on a thoroughbred foundation. Her dam, Mary Mambrino, by Mambrino Patchen; second dam Belle Wagner, by Embry's Wagner; third dam Lady Belle, by Bellfounder Jr.; fourth dam Multiflora, by Monmouth Eclipse; fifth dam Multiflora, by Kosciusko, son of Sir Archy; sixth dam by Rosicrucian; seventh dam by Young Bedford; eighth dam by Arion; ninth dam by Brilliant.

Elvira, sister to Beatrice, has a record at four years of 2:18¼. Beatrice has an average for her produce of two—Patron, 2:14½, Prodigal, 2:17¼—of 2:15 7-8.

Beautiful Bells, while not strictly bred on a thoroughbred foundation, yet traces through lines, the constituents of which were principally of a thoroughbred character. Her sire, The Moor, was a son of Belle of Wabash, a thoroughbred mare by Young Bassinger, out of a daughter of imp. William the Fourth, she out of a daughter of Marylander Minnehaha. The dam of Beautiful Bells was by Bald Chief, who was by Bay Chief, by Mambrino Chief. Bay Chief was out of a daughter of Keokuk, by imp. Truffle. The dam of Bald Chief was by Hunt's Commodore, out of a daughter of Hunt's Brown Highlander. Nettie Clay, the dam of Beautiful Bells, was by Strader's Cassius M. Clay Jr., who himself highly-bred, through his dam inheriting the thoroughbred and Arabian blood, which is inseparably interwoven with the Clay blood. The second dam of Beautiful Bells was by Old Abdallah, he by the thoroughbred Mambrino; third dam daughter of Engineer II., a grandson of imp. Messenger, whose dam was by Plato, another grandsan of imp. Messenger. Thus Engineer was very strongly bred in thoroughbred lines.

Mary M., in the table by Bassinger, is bred on a thoroughbred foundation through her dam by Hamlet, son of imp Consul, grandam by George Elliott, son of imp. Leviathan.

Soprano in the table was by Strathmore, dam Abbess, by Albion, son of Halcorn, grandam by Marshal Ney. The grandam of Fleetwing in the table was by Abdallah, son of the thoroughbred Mambrino. Of the producing dams of two or more 2:20 or better trotters four of the seventeen are bred on a strictly thoroughbred foundation. These are Miss Russell, Midnight, Columbine and Beatrice. The first three of these are out of thoroughbred mares. Whether Mary M. is technically bred on a thoroughbred foundation depends whether her pedigree extends further than the Leviathan cross. At any rate there is enough of the thoroughbred in the pedigreee as already extended to warrant the belief that it is the controlling element in her maternal line.

As the matter stands the thoroughbred blood influences to a most prominent degree the blood of the following: Miss Russell, Midnight, Columbine, Beatrice, Mary M., Beautiful Bells, Soprano and Fleetwing. The last three are possibly not of sufficiently stout crosses to uphold the claim of a thoroughbred foundation, though perhaps the thoroughbred is the principal element of their breeding. Eight of the seventeen contain in their blood lines a large proportion of thoroughbred. This comprises nearly half of the entire list. Of the breeding of the remainder in the remoter generations but little is known. There is good reason to suppose from the constituency of these that are known to warrant the precedent that the others would be found to be bred much the same as to quality if their pedigrees should be brought to light.

The fact that so many of the great matrons are so nearly founded on thoroughbred lines would lead to the conclusion that just as the English Stud Book was founded on high-bred mares, so should the trotting stud book be.

The 2:20 standard indicates a more extreme qualification than the 2:30 standard. The fact that it contains so large a percentage of thoroughbred blood through its choicest matrons indicates that for extreme speed and stoutness it is needed in proportion to the intensity of the requirements of these characteristics.

The breeding of the following has not been traced beyond their dams: Blanche, Countess, Green Mountain Maid, May Day, Nettie, Time, Young Daisy. The second dam of Reina Victoria is Clara, dam of Dexter, 2:17¼. Sally Chorister traces to a son of Pilot Jr. and Waterwitch to Kinkead's St. Lawrence.

If the breeding of Clara, dam of Dexter, could be traced, it would disclose it not thoroughbred, something very much akin to it, for there has been no trotting family which has shown more first-class quality than the descendants of the dam of Dexter and Dictator. The fact that she has produced a 2:20 trotter herself adds prestige to her granddaughter, Hyacinthe, who, if not of the thoroughbred foundation of Miss Russell, Midnight, Columbine, Beatrice, etc., has the distinction of tracing to a 2:20 producer.

Mary M. in the table has the additional distinction of having produced the dam of Tosa, 2:19¼. In this connection the idea may be suggested that these greatest of the great broodmares will continue to be the foundation of succeeding generations of the great performers. The time will come when the produce of their descendants will be liable to sweep away those of minor producers. Probably only those will survive which are by their merit able to place themselves on a par with the great ones.

As has been pointed out, a fair proportion of these are founded on more or less strict thoroughbred lines; it follows that these will have the best chance in the struggle for the survival of the fittest.

For laying the theory aside of the value of thoroughbred blood in the maternal lines, the fact that it is so predominating in them will be sufficient to give it prestige. The start it has attained, together with its powers of attraction to augment and stimulate further acquisitions from the same high source, it would appear in time must surely assert the supremacy of the thoroughbred foundation.

The need of a higher standard of excellence will necessitate the establishment of a more exacting rule for performance. The American trotting horse is too cheap a commodity at present; while there are many bred but a small proportion of them are valuable for extreme speed and high quality. A weeding-out process must inevitably follow a state of affairs like this.

It is therefore at no distant day when 2:20 rather than 2:30 will be the basis of representation in the stud books. When this becomes the rule and the registered animal traces through a long line of ancestry based on 2:20 performances through to a thoroughbred foundation, and thence to the blood of the desert, then will the American trotter become properly and securely established on a firm and lasting basis.

DAMS OF FOUR OR MORE TROTTERS.

The following are the dams of four or more in 2:30 list, trotting:

Addie Lee, 4, and 1 sire of 3.
Beautiful Bells, 6, 3 sires of 4 and dam of 1.
Bicara, 4, 2 sires of 11 and dam of 1.
Black Flora, 4.
Emeline, 7, sire of 1 and 3 dams of 3.
Fanny Jackson, 4, and 3 sires of 15.
Flaxy, 4, and sire of 1.
Green Mountain Maid, 8, and 2 sires of 103.
Lady Sherman, 4, and dam of 1.
Laura, 4, and dam of 1.
Lucia, 5, and dam of 1.
Mabel L., 4.
Minnehaha, 5, sire of 1 and 3 dams of 10.
Miss Russell, 4, 4 sires of 79 and 3 dams of 4.
Ned, 5, sire of 1 and dam of 1.
Primrose, 4, 5 sires of 34 and dam of 1.
Reina Victoria, 4, and 3 sires of 4.
Rebecca, 4.
Santa Claus, 4.
Sontag Dixie, 4.
Sontag Mohawk, 7, sire of 1 and dam of 1.
Waterwitch, 5, 2 sires of 8 and 4 dams of 7.

Of the blood lines of the foregoing two are by Pilot Jr., one by Hambletonian, one each by the following sons of Hambletonian: Harold, Jay Gould and Mohawk Chief. This and one other represent those descended from Hambletonian in the male line. Five are descendants of Cassius M. Clay in the male line. Three are descendants of Mambrino Chief. Two are daughters of Pilot Jr. Three are descendants of Vermont Black Hawk, assuming Culver's Black Hawk, sire of Addie Lee, to be a descendant of that horse.—New York Sportsman

THE SUMMER MEETING.

Four Days of Excellent Sport in Prospect—A Good Programme and Liberal Purses Throughout.

A meeting of the Board of Directors of the Trotting Horse Breeders Association was held last Monday to pass upon the report of the Programme Committee appointed to arrange a programme for the summer race meeting of the Association, to be held four days, commencing Saturday, August 6th, and continuing on the following Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

The following programme was submitted and accepted by the Board:

FIRST DAY, SATURDAY, AUGUST 6TH.

2:17 class, trotting, purse $1,200.
2:30 class, trotting, purse $600.
2:25 class, pacing, purse $600.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 9TH.

2:25 class, trotting, purse $800.
2:22 class, trotting, purse $900.
2:20 class, pacing, purse $800.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 11TH.

2:20 class, trotting, purse $1,000.
2:40 class, trotting, purse $600.
3:00 class, pacing, purse $500.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 13TH.

Free-for-all trotting, purse $1,500.
Free-for-all, pacing, purse $1,000.
2:28 class, trotting, purse $700.

Trotting purse for green horses that have never started in a race for money, or against time, $600.

The purses for the four days aggregate nearly $11,000, and the programme was arranged with the end in view of classifying the horses so as to secure the greatest number in each classification. Entries to the above purses will close on July 20th; five entries being required to fill and three to start.

As will be seen above, there is a chance for nearly all the horses, and the extraordinary large number of entries in the fall races leads the members of the Association to believe that all the purses in the summer meet will fill, and fill well. The size of the purses compare favorably with those offered by any association in the land, and the programme is indeed an attractive one throughout. The absence of the leading stables, at the East, is considered a good thing for the trotting and pacing horsemen who remain on the coast, for there is now a chance to get a good slice of the money. Bring in your entries early and keep coming with them.

News from Salinas.

The great valley called Salinas never looked more beautiful than at present. The last rains have helped the growth of the crops and caused the hills and mountains around it to take on their emerald garments of Spring, while the vari-colored pasture fields, with their wealth of wild flowers, look most inviting.

In every little paddock could be seen favorite broodmares, with lusty little foals by their sides, gamboling and running as only-looking ones can. On the excellent roads the farmer, who has nothing but the work of developing colts on hand, may be seen behind some "green 'un," driving carefully and watching with pride the improvements of his trotter. The prosperity of the farmers increases their love for the very choicest of trotters, and already they have had introduced within the borders of this county numerous well-bred sons of Electioneer, Guy Wilkes, Nutwood and Mambrino Wilkes.

The "craze" has struck the county, and struck it pretty hard. At Gonzales a splendid kite-track has been built, and the people of Salinas who are interested in their own racetrack have awakened to the fact that they must be "up and doing." By the way they are pushing improvements on their track demonstrate quite plainly that "competition is the life of trade," and that the kite track has its use as an incentive for the old associations to put their tracks in good condition.

The long row of box-stalls that stood in the way of those that ought to have a little sunlight have been removed, and in their stead the ground has been leveled, and good exercising grounds for the horses to cool out on have been made. In front of the long row of box-stalls it is proposed to put a shed similar to those seen on all other racetrack buildings. The track itself has been fixed a little, but the turns have not been thrown up enough to our notion yet. They should be thrown up twenty-four inches higher on the outside and graditate toward the pole. This track, as a fast one, will be second to none in the State. The Directors of the Association are working like beavers, and, no doubt, will see the benefit of having everything in apple-pie order the day of the races. There are not many horses at the track at present, as horsemen have been waiting for the improvements to be completed before putting their "flyers" in the stalls.

James Dwain has the syndicate Electioneer horse Eugene in the first stall. We considered it a pleasure to congratulate this hard-working trainer on his success with this magnificent colt. He has filled out wonderfully since we last saw him, and looks to be a perfect specimen of a trotter. He is extremely well-bred, being out of the best-producing daughter of Carr's Mambrino—Lady Ellen 2:29½. She is the dam of Ella, 2:29, Elleneer, 2:29¾, and Helena, 2:29¾, all sisters to Eugene. The syndicate has placed his services very low, and owners of good mares should at once avail themselves of breeding to this horse, for another like opportunity this may not occur in a lifetime. He is by the greatest of sires out of a great producing dam.

Judge Vanderhurst's two-year-old filly Lillie V., by Junio 2:22, out of a daughter of Carr's Mambrino, is a very nice-looking one, and Mr. Dwain says will give a good account of herself this fall.

M. J. Smeltzer, one of the most enthusiastic and best-posted horsemen in the State, has a speedy-looking gray filly by Altoona, out of a mare that has proven quite a valuable matron. It is the wish of everyone that this little miss will get inside the charmed circle.

J. B. Iverson, one of the leading authorities on all matters pertaining to the horse in this county, has sent Althea, his two-year-old, to be trained by Mr. Dwain. This one is a very nice mover.

Stormy Jim is the name of a gelding that belongs to James Storms. He is by Jim Mulvenna, 2:27½ (a son of Nutwood), out of a mare by Dan Voorhees, 2:23½.

David Spencer has his black stallion Val Fleet here to be handled a little. Val Fleet is a good-looker, and is by that game son of Crown Point, Valensin, 2:23, out of Flight, 2:29, by Buccaneer.

Messrs. Iverson and Vanderhurst's bay colt Alfred G. (this name must be changed), by Junio, is one of the most promising colts in the string. There are a number of youngsters yet to come to be trained by this gentlemanly driver, and next month he will be kept busy daily from morning until night.

C. Rodriquez, the well-known trainer and driver who handled Jim L., 2:20, and Adrian, 2:26, in their races, has a few very good ones in his string. We noticed Capt. Harris, a brown gelding by Brown Jug, that will trot in 2:25 this fall. San Carlos, pacer, 2:27½, and Lady Grace, a full sister, are doing well; these are owned by B. V. Sargent. There are two others by Brown Jug that will pay for their training quite handsomely this fall; one of them is owned by Robert Ford, of Salinas, a very prominent horseman there.

The Messenger Duroc mare that Mr. Iverson purchased at the Palo Alto sale foaled a beautiful bay colt by Whips, 2:27½, that has set the whole town to talking. It is a perfect little beauty. Mr. Iverson has a Hercules mare with a foal by Eugene at her side, that would be an honor to any stock farm in this State. He has another mare by Hercules with a colt by Napa Wilkes gamboling beside her; this mare is more of a thoroughbred in appearance than her paddock companion.

Rufus Smith has one of the best-looking Napa Wilkes colts in the country He is large in size, well-muscled and a good trotter.

James Duncan's famous road mare Alice D. foaled a bay filly by Napa Wilkes that will be a good one if she inherits any of the qualities of her dam. Mr. Duncan is an excellent judge of horseflesh, and has quite a number of good mores on his beautiful farm.

The Hansen Brothers, who own a farm a few miles outside of town, have a number of excellent horses and are becoming deeply interested in the breeding of trotters.

Matthew Williams and William Lynn have been breeding their mares to Eugene and the stallion Gilpatrick (he by Junio, 2:22, out of a mare by Gilpatrick), and have a number of nice ones to prove that their ideas of breeding are correct.

Jesse D. Carr, the pioneer breeder of fine trotting stock, has a number of good ones that he is keeping quiet about until the time for training commences, when they will be on hand to make a struggle for supremacy with any field of horses they may be in.

To go over the whole field and select the numerous farmers who are realizing the advantages of breeding their broodmares to the very best horses that are here would take up too much space. It is encouraging to see the interest everyone seems to be taking in the subject of breeding trotters of good size; it augurs well for their future. There is no reason why this county should not take a foremost place in this State in the development of this lucrative branch of the horse business.

New Catalogues.

The Souther Farm catalogue of horses that are to be sold at auction at this famous stock farm near San Leandro has just been received. It is a credit to Mr. Tompkins, the compiler, and also to the printer. There are 121 pages devoted to descriptions of the premier stallions there and the animals to be sold. The reputation that Mr. Tomkins gained at his first disposal sale for selling everything offered made friends for him who will rally to this sale and capture the bargains that will be knocked off to the highest bidder. To give extended notices of all the royally-bred ones there would take up too much space for this issue; suffice it to say there are representatives of all the leading trotting families in the State. And as many of them will be shown either to harness or led on the track here, buyers will have an opportunity of seeing just what they are bidding on. There are brood-mares in foal to sons of Electioneer that are sired by the most fashionable horses in the country. There are road horses, roadster teams, trotters, pacers and young stallions and mares that would be creditable to any stock farm in America.

The Penn Valley Stud catalogue is about the handsomest that has come to us thus far this year. It is a well-bound volume (covered with white cloth) of about 200 pages, printed on the heaviest and best paper obtainable. Within the cover is an excellent cut of the head and neck of the adored Anteeo, 2:16½, and an open book, on the pages of which is shown the names of some of the best performers from the Penn Valley stud and Anteeo's get in the list to the close of 1891. Barnhart (brother to Allerton, 2:09½) is also at this breeding establishment. The broodmares, in many instances excellent performers, are by Administrator, Onward, C. M. Clay Jr. 22, American Star 37, Guy Wilkes, Pancoast, Harold, Anteeo, Mambrino Patchen, Jerome Eddy, Barnhart, Young Wilkes 951, Nutwood, Kentucky Prince, Happy Medium, Robert McGregor, Piedmont, Belmont 64, Lord Russell, Wedgewood, Jay Gould, Baron Wilkes, Rysdyk 653, Belvidere, George Wilkes, Nil Desperandum, Sentinel, Grand Sentinel, Sultan and Rumor. Besides Anteeo and Barnhart there are the following stallions: Anteeoyne, by Anteeo—Anna Lotta, by Red Wilkes; Bozzaris, by Young Wilkes—Mill Baby, by Jay Gould; Capitana, by Young Wilkes—Mill Girl, by Jay Gould; Larghetto, by Young Wilkes—Nettie Hawkins, by Belvidere; Leonarde, by Young Wilkes—Mill Baby. Altogether there is a grand collection of trotters at Penn Valley Stud.

The Falcon Stud catalogue of thoroughbred horses is a neat little pamphlet published by the owners, Blair Bros., Sedalia, Mo. At the head of the stud is that good horse Falcon, winner of the St. Louis Derby of 1888, by Falsetto, dam Mollie Wood, by Lexington; second dam Hymenia (dam of Virgil and Ansel), by imp. Yorkshire. J. B. Clay and Long Jack are also in the Falcon stud. J. B. Clay is by Longfellow, dam Anne Boleyn, (dam of Queen Bess), by Tom Bowling. Long Jack is by Virgil (sire of Hindoo, Vagrant, Tremont and hosts of other good ones), dam Heliotrope, by imp. Knight of St. George. The mares are by Frogtown, Damon, Erdenheim, Hi Ban, Leonatus, Buckmaster, Versailles, Virginius, Longview and J. B. Clay, all bred in the purple.

The Judges' Stand.

The burning question of the hour is the judges' stand. Where on the face of God's green earth will you find more despotic power in the hands of three men? On their decision hangs the right or wrong distribution of thousands of dollars of cold cash, the right or wrong placing of horses, which make or mar the fortunes, pleasures or business ventures, as the case may be, of their breeders, backers and friends.

There is great injustice in the rules which grant plenary powers to the stand, without adequate protection to the governed. The judgments from the stand act instanter. The protection afforded by appeal—and the only one afforded under present rules—is very slow and exceedingly uncertain, so much so that in nine cases out of ten "the game is not worth the candle." The usual formula is a stand filled with a lot of stuck-up generals, majors, colonels, captains, judges, esquires, bank or insurance presidents or some equal lot of so-called "good-fellows" who haven't three ideas above a soft brick-bat when it comes to racing affairs. They take position with a self-satisfied smirk, ring the bell, gaze on the field scoring for the word through their elegant lorgnettes, ogle the grand stand, occasionally deigning to call some supposable offender to a halt in front of their throne and imposing a twenty-five or fifty-dollar fine—for nothing. They allow tedious or rather make tedious scoring from thirty to fifty minutes by their unmitigated ignorance and usually give the word to the worst possible send-off. The heat is over, they are all at sea as to placing the field, and frequently have to call on outsiders to assist. A few misdirected maledictions are bestowed, a few fines assessed, a job is "sneaked" through right under their tilted noses and they are none the wiser.

This is a fair sample of the average judges' stand throughout the racing season. How do you like the picture? It's very like "holding up the glass to nature." "'Tis true 'tis pity and pity 'tis 'tis true." The very life of the trotting and pacing business depends upon a thorough and radical change in the methods of conducting the judges' stand.—Mambrino Jr., in American Trotter.

The Agnew Farm.

Again has the scythe-bearer laid a heavy hand upon the little band of broodmares at the Agnew Stock Farm. Daisey, the gray mare by Mohawk Chief, out of a daughter of General Taylor, died last week while foaling a brown filly by Dawn, 2:18¾. Daisey was one of the best-shaped matrons on the farm, and was one of the kind that could trot from sunrise to sunset. With the loss of Emma Temple and this mare, Mr. Agnew has the sympathy of every horseman in the land.

The broodmares that are having their foals are all running a little over time. Maude, 2:20, the famous pacer, had a colt by Dawn, 2:18¾, that is a pacer from "way back." Angie Wilkes, her daughter, by Guy Wilkes, 2:15½, had a bay filly by Dawn, 2:18½; "it's little, but almighty."

The race track on this farm is completed; a visitor from there tells us it is one of the best constructed courses in the State. If Mr. Agnew has given this new improvement as much attention as he has the others on this farm, we know it must be first-class. He is jogging Boswell Jr., the pacer that met with an accident last year and was thrown out of training in consequence, and Maude Woodnut, one of the purest-gaited trotters in the country, by Woodnut, 2:16½, out of Maude, 2:20; also Hillsdale, the Antinous colt that will be in the two-year-old District races this fall. The colts and fillies are all moving well to halter, and now that the weather has moderated and the preparatory work for the races commenced, we believe Mr. Agnew will be kept busy.

A Most Liberal Offer to Owners of Thoroughbred Mares.

W. O'B. Macdonough, owner of Menlo Stock Farm, having the greatest confidence in the ability of his imported stallion Suwarrow to sire speedy and game race horses, as an inducement to breed to the beautiful son of Snowden and Phizgig, Suwarrow, he offers a purse of $1,000 for two-year-old colts and fillies, foals of 1893, produce of mares bred in 1892, the progeny of Suwarrow, the only condition being that there shall be not less than four starters. Of this $1,000, $200 goes to the second horse. Anyone breeding a thoroughbred mare to Suwarrow will be allowed entrance for the colt and filly free of charge. The offer of Mr. Macdonough is not only a new departure, but a sensible and liberal way to bring his splendid horse, Suwarrow, before the public. Suwarrow is not only a magnificent individual, but was a race horse of the first class in Australia. Being from wonderful producing families on both sides of the house, also a direct outcross for our mares with considerable Lexington blood in their veins, Suwarrow should prove a most successful sire in America. To see Suwarrow is to fall in love with him, and mares could not be booked to a horse better bred than he. This liberal offer deserves more than passing notice, and owners of thoroughbred mares should consider well and read the Menlo Stock Farm advertisement in another column of this paper.

Sale of Trotters.

The trotting stock sold at auction at Tattersalls, of New York, recently, did not sell for very high prices, Ned Winslow, the fast black pacer from the Pacific slope, with a record of 2:15, bringing the top figure, $1,625. The others all went low, although some of them were fine individuals. The animals disposed of included about twenty from the Speedwell Stock Farm, Pennsylvania, and a few Californians, the most of which were consigned by Dr. M. W. Hicks, of Sacramento. One of these last, which was sold for $230, was highly valued by the owner, who refused $3,000 for the horse before he was shipped East. The following horses brought $200 and over:

Ned Winslow, blk g, 2:15 pacing, 10 years, by Tom Benton, dam Brown Jennie, by Dave Hill, Jr.; Arthur Jones, New York	$1,625
Sandoval, br s, 8 years, by Shamrock, dam Echo, by Princeps; J. C. Peck, East Orange, N. J.	440
Baron Speedwell, blk h, 5 years, by Baron Wilkes, dam Skipper, by Mambrino Russell; J. H. Swain, Lancaster, Pa.	400
Metaphysics, gr c, 3 years, by Middletown, dam Ethna, by Princeps; J. H. Swain, Lancaster, Pa.	375
Vallandingham, b g, 9 years, by Victor Von Bismarck; M. McDonald, New York	375
Sapphire, br c, 4 years, by Shamrock, dam Jetwood, by Blackwood; S. M. Seldomridge, Farmersville, Pa.	230
Walker, b s, 7 years, by Prompter, dam Flash, by Egmont; M. McDonald, New York	230
Saguenay, b c, 2 years, by Shamrock, dam Suatara, by Sultan; M. McGonigle, Lancaster, Pa.	200

There were in all twenty-eight head sold for $6,350, making an average price of $226.79 per head.

THE SPRING MEETING AT MODESTO.

Bad Location but Some Excellent Sport—The Racing in Detail.

The annual spring meeting of the Stanislaus Stock-breeders Association did not take place as advertised, owing to the inclemency of the weather, but was postponed and billed to commence on Thursday, March 31st. The clouds overhead kept many people away, and the meeting was not as great a success financially as hoped for. However those who did attend went away convinced that they had seen good races and that had it not been for the severe rain storms of last week the meeting would have proved a grand success financially as well as otherwise.

One noticeable and commendable feature was the absence of any "jobbery" or attemps to "job" during any of the races. The horses were all run on their merits, and not even in a single instance did your correspondent hear any complaints of unfair work from either side.

Probably the most sensational event of the meeting was the race between the great Geraldine, owned by R. Porter Ashe and Owens Bros.' Royal Flush; in which the great old race mare was beaten home, both horses having been ridden under whip and spur to the wire.

FIRST DAY, THURSDAY, MARCH 31ST.

The first race called to-day was a half mile dash for district two-year-olds. The starters were Nickel, Dynamo, Nicotine and Stenograph. This race was a grert surprise to everyone. Nickel was looked upon as a sure winner, with Dynamo as second choice, and Nicotine and Stenograph in the field, which sold for almost nothing. Stenograph won handily, with Nickel second. Time, 0:55. Mutuals paid $28.50.

SUMMARY

Thursday, March 31st. Half a mile. Two year olds of the district.

Stenograph	Capps 1
Nickel	Dodd 2
Dynamo	Hennessy 3
Nicotine	Flipper 0

Time, 0:56.

The next event was a mile dash, for which the starters were Owen Bros.' Mero, Maltese Villa Stable's Queen Alta and Perry's Lady Gwinn. Queen Alta sold favorite in the pools, with Mero a close second choice, and Lady Gwinn on the short end. The run proved to be a dead heat between Mero and Queen Alta, with Lady Gwinn close up third. Time, 1:49½. As the run had been a hard one and the track very heavy, the owners decided not to run it off, but to divide the purse and pools, which was agreed to by the judges.

SUMMARY.

One mile; all ages.

Mero, 122	Jenkins *
Queen Alta, 103	Hennessy *
Lady Gwen, 117	Dodd 3

*Dead heat. Time, 1:49½.

The third race was half-mile and repeat; for which were entered Black Joe, 119; Tom Dwyer, 119; Toots, 119; White Light, 99; Ed. McGinty, 119 and Jim R., 119. Jim R. sold favorite in the pool box against the entire field, and with but very few field buyers. Finally Jim R. was barred in the selling, and McGinty and Toots sold first and second choice for place, with the balance in the field. Jim R. won handily by two lengths in the first heat with McGinty second and Toots third. In this heat White Light was distanced. Time, 0:52 1-5.

The second heat was a repetition of the first, Jim R. winning handily and the balance in the order named. Time, 0:52.

SUMMARY.

Half mile and repeat.

Jim R., 119	Dodd	1 1
Ed. McGinty, 119	Long Joe	2 2
Toots, 119	Hennessey	3 3
Tom Dwyer, 119	Capps	4 4
Black Joe, 119		5 5
White Light, 99		dist

Time, 0:52 1-5, 0:52.

SECOND DAY, SATURDAY, APRIL 2.

Owing to the continued bad weather and to the fact that several of the stables here wished to leave in order to secure stalls at the Bay District, for the Blood Horse Meeting, the directors here decided to make this the last day and to run off, as near as possible, the entire programme.

The first race called was a three-quarter dash, in which started Geraldine, 120; Royal Flush, 109, and Myrtle, 104. In the pools Geraldine sold favorite at $10, against $4 for Flush and Myrtle in the field. The result of this race was a great surprise to all, Royal Flush beating the old mare off a good open length, with Myrtle a poor third. Time, 1:19 2-5. Taking into consideration the fact that the race was ran almost in a rain storm over a very heavy track, and that the horses had to keep to the center and outer edge of the track all the way around, as it was too soft for good footing next to the pole, this time was remarkably good, and we do not doubt that by the time the fall races are called, barring accidents in the meantime, Royal Flush will prove himself as great, if not a better race horse, than his full sister, Acclaim.

SUMMARY.

Saturday, April 2. Three-quarter mile dash.

Royal Flush, 109	Brown	1
Geraldine, 120	Hennessey	2
Myrtle, 104	Atherly	3

Time, 1:19 2-5.

The second race has a dash of fifteen-sixteenths of a mile, in which started Owens Bros.' Capt. Al, and Perry's Lady Gwinn. No pools were sold on this race, as it was looked upon as a "Cinch" for Al, which proved to be the case. It is well to remark here that Capt. Al has never come out of winter quarters looking or feeling finer than he does this spring, and judging from this, his initial race of the season, which he appeared to do without the least exertion, it may pay the boys to keep their eyes on him at the Bay District next week.

SUMMARY.

Fifteen-sixteenths of a mile dash.

Capt. Al, 124	Jenkins	1
Lady Gwinn, 119	Brown	2

Time, 1:44.

The third race was a half-mile dash for two-year-olds, for which the Maltese Villa Stables' Sir Reel and Don Fulana sold as favorites in the stable over Owens Bros.' Dick O'Malley and the bay colt Hiogo, in the field. In this the stable proved easy winners, with Dick O'Malley third and Hiogo last. Sir Reel won without half trying, and is also apt to prove himself "hot rags" in the Blood Horse races.

SUMMARY.

Sir Reel, 118	Hennessey	1
Don Fulana, 118	Bob	2
Dick O'Malley, 118	Jenkins	3
Hiogo, 118	Charley	0

Time, 0:53 2-5.

The fourth and last race of the meeting was what proved to be the best betting race and one of the closest finishes of the entire programme. This was a dash of seven-eighths of a mile between Queen Alta, Mero and O. Bee. In the pools Mero sold favorite at $22 against $18 for the Queen and $6 for O. Bee. The start was not as good as could have been wished for, Mero acting badly at the post and being sent off several lengths behind, but the race down the homestretch to the wire was as pretty and exciting as could have been wished for, Queen Alta winning after a hard drive by a short neck from Mero, O. Bee a poor third.

SUMMARY.

Seven furlongs, all ages

Queen Alta, 105	Hennessey	1
Mero, 121	Jenkins	2
O. Bee, 121	Brown	3

Santa Barbara and Ventura Counties' Horse Gossip.

John G. Hill, president of the Ventura Agricultural Association, and proprietor of the famous stock ranch Las Palmas, three miles from Hueneme, has on his ranch Mr. Mitchell breaking and training the young trotters, and Joe Armstrong is training the runners.

A. Levy, of Hueneme, believes in breeding to the best stallions in the country. He sent down his fine broodmare to McKinney, 2:12½. She is the dam of Leon, 2:22½, by A. W. Richmond. Leon, under the tuition of Henry Delaney, last year started with a record of 2:33, and reduced it every time that he started in a race till he got his present record of 2:22½. Henry Delaney is working at the Hueneme track Leon, Wilkes-Moor, by Guy Wilkes, 2:15½, dam Rosalind, by Del Sur. Also Washington, by Anteeo, 2:16½, and John Thompson, by Monroe Chief, 2:18½, and others.

The standard bred stallion San Miguel 5447 by Enchanter 357, dam Octavia, by Satellite 2500, owned in Santa Barbara, is getting slow work, preparing him for a record this fall. He is owned by I. K. Fisher.

The new track at Lompoc, Santa Barbara county, has been completed, and much interest is manifested by the people of that town. They will give a grand meeting this summer. Trotting horses turn up from all directions, and they are trained on the new track.

The $7,500 Alcantara colt Alcaneer, dam by Electioneer 125, has grown much, and he will make a great three-year-old this summer. James Mack, of Santa Paula, in Ventura county, is training him and others. James will have a string of ten trotters.

E. B. Hill, of Lompoc, says that his yearling by Sidney, out of Lady Tiffany, by Gibraltar, the sire of Homestake, 2:11¼, is the finest looking yearling in Southern California.

McKinney, 2:12½, has had a good season thus far; he has covered forty mares. McKinney is entered in the free-for-all stallion race, and will meet Palo Alto, 2:08¼; Silas Skinner, 2:17; Guide, 2:16½; Balkan, 2:15, and Advertiser, 2:16. It is warm company, but he has proven that he is a great race horse, steady, level-headed and dead game.

Rosewald, 2:20½, by A. W. Richmond, is making a season at Santa Barbara. He is looking well and will be worked for a low record this summer.

The racetrack at Santa Barbara that has been in litigation for two years has finally been settled by the Supreme Court, and now that the popular millionaire of New York, Mr. Underhill, has entire control, the track will be much improved. Mr. Underhill owns a beautiful stock ranch at Los Alamos, in Santa Barbara county.

George Sherman, of Santa Barbara, has his gelding, Midnight, by Accident, by Monday, dam by Newry, by Lexington, in training at Los Angeles, by D. Bridges. Midnight will go to the Blood Horse meeting.

E. R. Den and his trainer, F. Menchaca, went to Los Palmas Stock Ranch, in Ventura county, last week, and bought from John G. Hill a full sister to the famous sprinter Gladstone, and a two-year-old filly out of Margery, the dam of Tycoon, Odette and Mikado. The three horses of Mr. Den, El Rayo, by Grinstead, and the two fillies will go to the Blood Horse meeting. El Rayo started last year twenty times and was first ten; he won $1,800. At Oakland he got a poor send-off and was beaten only three inches, nine-sixteenths of a mile in the remarkable time of 54¼ seconds, the world's record for the distance.

The Southern District promises to be a great success this year. The first meeting will probably begin at San Luis Obispo, from there they will come south, Lompoc, Santa Barbara, Hueneme, Santa Ana, San Diego, San Bernardino and Los Angeles. Probably Santa Paula will give a meeting.

Hattie F., by La Grand, the three-year-old pacing mare that got a record of 2:18 last year at Los Angeles, is going very fast and will make a low record this summer. N. A Covarribias, of Los Angeles, has her in training.

Commodore Nutwood, owned by E. B. Hill, of Lompoc, was fired last fall, and the handsome son of Nutwood, 2:18¼, will be worked for a record. He will enter the list, whenever he is started. His colts are large, handsome and well-gaited.

J. M. Rochin, of Los Alamos, who owned the first thoroughbred stallion in this country, Newry, by Lexington, has a lot of fine mares that he breeds to his handsome stallion, Antioch, by A. W. Richmond, dam Bonte Belle by Ten Broeck. Mr. Rochin is a very enthusiastic horseman, and takes much interest in the problem of breeding. He has also on his ranch 1500 head of cattle. He has a young stallion, Don Ramon, that promises to be a fast, game trotter.

John G. Hill's handsome three-year-old thoroughbred, Santa Fe, by St. David, started Tuesday for San Fancisco, where he is entered for the spring Blood Horse meeting. Mr. Armstrong, the trainer of Santa Fe, believes that his bay stallion can give the best of them a race and a beating.

A Boon to Horsemen.

For years past one of the heaviest items of expense to horsemen has been the shoes worn by their trotters. The men who manufactured these shoes were considered artists, and charged accordingly for their labor. No machine-made shoe had been satisfactory until the new Perkins Steel Toe-Weight and Side-Weight Horse Shoes were placed on the market. They were an instantaneous success, and practical horsemen saw their great merit at once. I. S. Van Winkle & Co., 413 and 415 Market street, San Francisco, have these shoes for sale, and not a house on this coast is better known or more reliable than this one. The makers of the Perkins Steel Toe-weight and Side-weight Horse Shoes claim for their goods that in form of their shoes are combined considerable more real merit and a greater variety of points of excellence than any machine shoe ever manufactured. The weight of material is where it should be—at the toe—and the width of the web follows the formation of the shell of the hoof; it is wide at the toe and narrow at the heel. Besides this, it must be borne in mind that they are twenty-five per cent lighter than corresponding sizes of the regular brands of flat shoes, and will wear a great deal longer. It is the only turf frog-pressure shoe, and its shape and form is such that it is equally good when used as a trotting-shoe, snow or mud shoe, for plain shoeing or when calked. These shoes do not pick up stones, snow or mud; do not throw sand or gravel, and clay suction cannot pull them off. Besides their many splendid qualities, these shoes are sold for about one-half the price of the hand-made shoe, and horsemen should hail these articles with joy. On another page of this paper will be found excellent cuts of these horse-shoes and further explanations of the many merits they undoubtedly possess. Read the advertisement of I. S. Van Winkle & Co., and send in your orders.

The Pierce sale takes place at the Oakland Trotting Park next Wednesday.

Forty-five new stalls were built at Bay District track, so great was the influx of gallopers.

The Pierce sale next week should prove attractive to all horsemen who are seeking to improve their stock.

A. B. Rodman, of Lakeport, owner of Advocate, by Attorney, reports everything in the horse line looking well.

John Treat and Fox have again changed hands. G. W. Leihy is the latest purchaser of these California horses.

Remember the Pierce sale of fine trotters and Clydesdales takes place at the Oakland Trotting Park next Wednesday.

My My, the daughter of Eros, owned at Prospect Hill Farm, is expected to beat 2:20 this year, says the Horse World.

The register number of Arion, 2:10¼, is 18,000. This settles the talk about whether he can or cannot be registered.

Jim Duffy, Pescador, and Lew Martin, a full brother of Pescador, are at Hot Springs. They will be raced at St. Louis.

"Knap" McCarty is sticking to the runners. At present he owns a string of five, quartered at Morris Park, Westchester.

Millard Sanders will exhibit Frou Frou and Fausta, the champion yearlings, now two years old, on the Eastern tracks this year.

When your horsey friend on the inside advises you to plunge on a dead sure thing, be sure you save enough to pay your car-fare back.

Strathmore blood was pronounced the past season in the broodmare line, thirteen of the 2:30 performers having Strathmore mares for dams.

Jim R., the Oregon gelding by Conner, is likely to have a say in some of the sprints, as he started in by winning away off at Modesto last week.

Jay Bird, foaled 1878, is the youngest sire of a 2:10 trotter. Allerton entered that exclusive list when his sire was but thirteen years of age.

Martha Wilkes, 2:18¾, that good daughter of Alcyone, and Charley Wilkes, 2:21¾, by Red Wilkes will go through the Grand Circuit again this year.

Millard Sanders will start East about the first of June with the Valensin string. They will stop over at Salt Lake to take part of the races there.

The Souther Farm sale takes place on Wednesday, April 20th. Catalogues will be cheerfully furnished all applicants by addressing Killip & Co., auctioneers.

The Palo Alto string have been kept so "dark" this spring that the boys are wondering what Henry Walsh has got in the shape of a surprise for the students.

There is likely to be a warm struggle for first honors in the Tidal Stakes. We know of half a dozen who believe that stake money is as good as in their pockets.

Zolo (dam of Maud C., 2:19), by Steinway, 2:25¾, died while foaling a full brother to Maud C. last week. The loss of such a mare to Mr. Carter is a heavy one.

Elf, by Steinway, 2:25¼, out of Bertha, by Alcona, is a great filly, if all the news we hear from Pleasanton is true. She could not be purchased from Mr. Valensin now for $5,000.

At the San Mateo Stock Farm one of the broodmares by Le Grand was bred to Guy Wilkes, 2.15¼, and last week she surprised everyone on the farm by dropping twins—a bay colt and a filly.

The following officers of the Gonzales Racecourse Association have been elected: William Sarles, president; A. Gonzalez, vice-president; A. Wideman, treasurer; George E. Faw, secretary.

Don't hurry; don't fret in training, If you can't spare the time to-day to break your colt he can wait. If you try too much in a hurry you will break his disposition as well as your own temper.

All who visit the Souther Farm to-day to witness the first exhibition of swimming horses will have an opportunity of seeing the animals that are to be sold at auction on Wednesday, April 20th.

C. E. Parkman, a well-known horseman of Humboldt county, Cal., left last week with the celebrated Electioneer stallion Alaska, sold by Mr. John Mackey to Mr. Larabee, of Deer Lodge, Mont.

At the Oakwood Park Stock Farm Mr. Laverty is doing excellently well with the youngsters by Chas. Derby and Steinway. The prospects are very favorable for this Stock Farm coming to the front.

Alcona Jr. has a record of 2:26¼, according to the Year Book; it should be 2:24. This record was made at Santa Rosa last fall. Thomas Murphy drove this handsome son of Alcona 730 to that low mark.

Mr. Eugene Leigh, of Lexington, Ky., has sold to W. H. Roller the chestnut filly Azrael, foaled 1889, by Forester, dam Albatross by imp. Glengarry, her dam Arizona by Lexington, out of imp. Zone by The Cure, &c. Azrael is the winter favorite for the American Derby.

Sidney, 2:19¾, has two trotters that gained records below 2:30 at the Oakland track last spring and yet they do not appear in the Year Book. They are Santa Rita, 2:24¼, and Sanders 2:29¼. Why is this thus?

A number of observant horsemen have been trying to get Colonel H. I. Thornton to put a price on his Darebin—Carrie C. colt, but so far he has withstood a number of exceedingly tempting offers for the youngster.

Mr. Forbes, owner of Arion, is said to be gazing long and intently at the stallion crown, and during the coming season the young son of Electioneer may give the older champions a horse race that cannot be sneezed at.

J. B. Iverson's standard mare Wilhelmina, by Messenger Duroc 106, foaled this week a handsome horse colt by Whips, 2:27½. Wilhelmina was purchased by Mr. Iverson at the recent Palo Alto sale.—Salinas Journal.

Matt Byrnes, the old trainer of Salvator and Firenzi, thinks Portchester's chances for the Brooklyn Handicap are exceedingly good. Portchester is owned by Phil Dwyer, and in the future books is quoted at 50 to 1.

Cousin Joe right now gives the best of them notice that they will have to mind their knitting to head him, having gone a quarter Friday in 36¼ seconds over the Warren Park track to top buggy.—Terre Haute Express.

William Rudy, who came up from Los Angeles last Saturday night with his string, is a new-comer to our tracks, but he is an intelligent and pleasant gentleman, and we are glad to welcome such additions to our ranks.

McGinty, the brother to Prince's First in Dan Dennison's stable, is a grand-looking three-year-old, and if stake winnings depended upon good looks, few of the rich events would get away from the big, white-faced chestnut colt.

Rapid Transit, by Director, 2:17, out of Lida W., 2:18¼ (dam of Nutwood Wilkes, 2:20½), by Nutwood 600, is trotting faster than Nutwood Wilkes did at his age, and will prove "hot company" in some of the races this fall.

Charles Fair (son of James G. Fair) purchased the brown two-year-old colt Flood Gate, by Flood, out of Rosetta, by Struan, at the Palo Alo Stock Farm for $5,000. The chances are that Richard Havey will train him.

At a meeting of the Directors of the 37th Agricultural District, held at Los Alamos on Monday last, it was decided to hold the next District Fair at Lompoc on the last four days of September next. The fair will open on Tuesday.

Royal Flush must be quite a three-year-old colt to beat Geraldine a length in three-quarters of a mile, and the mare ridden out. This the brother to Acclaim did at Modesto last Saturday over a muddy track, the time being 1:15 2-5.

It is now stated that instead of being sold for $12,000 cash the Electioneer stallion May King, that has a record a trifle better than 2:24, was traded for five mares and a filly by Red Wilkes, and a filly by William L. out of a Red Wilkes mare.

O'Kelly: "Ochone, Patrick, and will ould Oirland ever be free." O'Snaggs: "Faith, I do not know, Moike; but I belave it would stand a fighting chance if General John E. Turner would prisint the Land League with his green cap."

C. C. Bemis has his two stallions, Lancelot, by Electioneer, and Saladin, by Nutwood, out in their new stables on First avenue, between Turk and Eddy, where they can be seen. They are both excellent representatives of their respective families.

Wilfred Page and brother have issued their catalogue of horses at Rancho Cotati. It is by far the neatest and most complete thing of its kind ever designed, and reflects credit on the orignator and printer. We will notice it more fully next week.

Paullin & Company have a number of fine colts and fillies training at Fresno in charge of Wm. McLaughlin, of Terre Haute, Indiana, among them is a sorrel colt by Reverisco (sire of Hermes) out of Belle Russell by Brown Wilkes, that is trotting very fast.

Matthew Williams, of Salinas, has had the two handsome Percheron stallions, Hamlet, by Cæsar 3526, and Pablo, by Brilliant 1271, sent to his large farm at Gonzales. Both of these stallions are recorded in the stud book and are handsome specimens of their breed.

Lulu Riggs, dam of Oregon Eclipse and Hercules, the property of Gen. Foster, died at the home of her owner in Lake county, Or., recently, from the effects of an injury received in jumping over a fence. She was one of the most valuable broodmares in the State.

Fifty head of horses, most of them valuable blooded animals, were burned to death on the morning of March 30th, at the stock farm of Prentiss Bros., near Downer's Grove, Ill. Unknown incendiaries set fire to the barn, which was completely destroyed. Loss, $30,000.

Dr. A. M. Garcelon, Lewiston, Me., has sold to H. W. Hutchins, of Auburn, Me., for $10,000, the seven-year-old bay totting stallion, The Seer, 2:19½, by General Benton, dam Odette, by Electioneer; second dam Queen, by Young Consternation, son of imp. Consternation.

A Washington, D. C., dispatch, dated April 4th, says: Monroe Salisbury, of Pleasanton, Cal., has bought Marshall Hall, opposite Mount Vernon, and will establish an extensive stock farm, This old place was the home of Chief Justice Marshall and his family for many years.

Bay District track is a very lively spot these days, and while the surroundings are just about as pretty as a museum freak, the course is a fast and safe one. Forty-five new stalls have been built, and Dustin patched up the fence all around the California colliseum in pretty good shape.

Acclaim has developed into a most wonderful mare, and should pack as much weight as the next one, if looks amount to anything. Her speed is unquestioned. When Fairy and Acclaim meet at any distance up to a mile and an eighth there ought to be a "hoss race" of the first water.

Mr. Woodruff, of Rocklet, N. Y., will send for exhibition at the World's Fair at Chicago the shafts that the famous trotting stallion Rysdyk's Hambletonian was first harnessed to. The wagon to which they belonged was built for his owner, William Rysdyk, and is now completely worn out.

Bell Boy, Egotist, Gillig, Journalist, Silver Chimes and Wilkie Russell were all sired in 1885, and yet each one has a representative in the 2:30 list. The first two named are by Electioneer, Gillig is by Aristos, Journalist by Princeps, Silver Chimes by Alcyone, and Wilkie Russell by Mambrino Russell.

The Ocean View Stable horses look up to a race right now, and Annie Lewis is a strong candidate for the Tidal Stakes. Wildwood, who shapes up splendidly, ought to be a hard one to beat over a distance of ground. Folly has developed into a great, big, rangy mare; like Wildwood, she is also bred to stay the route.

Famous horses, like famous men, are never forgotten; they may die or pass out of the public gaze, yet if they have left a record of great achievements behind them, or if their sons and daughters have achieved fame, their memory will be ever dear and will be cherished by those who were interested in them in the days of their triumphs.

J. P. Chinn, of Harrodsburg, has sent to W. S. Barnes, Melbourne Stud, to be bred to Jim Gore, the bay mare Zeal Zabel, by imp. Buckden, dam Jewell, by War Dance, she out of Morgiana, by John Morgan. Jim Gore had only three starters last year, all of which were returned winners. This year he has only two starters, both of which are winners.

Breeders who cannot afford to buy high-priced stock can console themselves with the reflection that the dams of many of the fastest horses in the world have been low-priced mares. Oliver K. was sold with his dam for $150; Jack's dam sold for $75; McDoel's for $140; Allerton's for $200, Axtell's dam cost $150, and the list might be continued up in the hundreds

Red Rose, sister to Bay Rose, 2:20½, is trotting very fast, and will enter the 2:30 list without any extra work this fall; if she does, Madame Baldwin will take a much higher place in the grand broodmare table, for Major C. C. Clay's fine young stallion Majester is also proving quite a trotter, and will also get inside the charmed circle. He is out of Madame Baldwin also.

Notwithstanding the three-year-old Cyclone filly, Annorean, 2:26½, changed hands last week, the challenge issued a few weeks ago by A. J. Hook, her former owner, still stands. Mr. A. H. Moore, of Philadelphia, who owns her now, thinks she is as good, at any rate, as any three-year-old he knows of, and he is ready to meet Ralph Wilkes or Chimes Girl, as signified in Mr. Hook's challenge.

Judge Nelson, the well-known presiding judge at Gloucester, New Jersey, visited us last Wednesday. His reputation as an upright, conscientious judge and a thorough disciplinarian has made him famous all over the United States. He is one of the kind of men we like to see in the stand, for nothing will do more to elevate racing than the employment of just such intelligent officials as he.

C. J. Hamlin, Buffalo, N. Y., has purchased the bay gelding Honest George, 2;17, from William Gray for $5,000. Mr. Hamlin says the horse was bought for a New York horseman, but that he will remain in the Village Farm stable during the summer and be campaigned through the Grand Circuit. In the fall Mr. Hamlin has promised to sell Globe, 2:19¼, to the New Yorker, and the pair will be driven to pole.

The man who argues that the supply of trotters exceeds the demand is one of that class that does not read a great deal. With the numerous new trotting associations daily being organized throughout the country, and the increasing demand for this class of horses in foreign lands, it looks as if the demand will exceed the supply. Every day, reports of sales of American trotters to foreign parties are made.

Mr. S. H. Shallcross, Louisville, Ky., informs us that his Nutwood mare Ha-Ha dropped a nice chestnut filly, sired by Guy Wilkes, and she was bred back to him. They will remain at San Mateo, Cal. Ha-Ha is by Nutwood, and is a full sister to Melissa, race-record 2:25. Her first dam is by Cuyler, second dam by Woodford Mambrino, third dam by Alexander's Abdallah; fourth dam the celebrated Old Black Rose.

The new Year Book would bring more money to the publishers if they only published the tables of trotters, pacers and broodmares and an index of the summaries of the races that are published every month in the Wallace's Monthly that is published by the Register Association. This plan will insure a larger circulation for the journal, and at the same time the cost of publication of the Year Book will be reduced over one half.

Jose Neal, Superintendent of the Pleasanton Stock Farm, arrived from Chicago last week. He has an idea that Chicago is a very poor market for the selling of horses. He says the future demand will be for strictly gilt-edged bred, race-performing horses, and nothing else will do. All breeders should buy the best-bred mares and breed them to the stallions that combine all the racehorse qualities that horsemen are looking for.

We are glad to see the breeders become broader in their views and less prone to become married to any particular family to the exclusion of all others. Theories are not much account when they are not supported by the facts presented on every hand. Writers may theorize from one year's end to another, but the old man with the hour glass is a competent judge and measures accurately the speed capacity of the horse, and presents plain facts to the observing mind.

Nearly 200 horses are quartered at Bay District track, and this should mean large fields in every race. While in the East it is not unusual to see 500 to 600 gallopers stabled around a race course, not over one-third of the number as a general thing, come to the post at a meeting. At our track every horse there is in training and in fair racing shape, and is expected to participate in the meeting. Thus our fields will not be a whit behind those at the East in point of numbers.

Last season a well-known breeder took in the trotting races. He was accompanied by a lady acquaintance that had never been to a trotting meeting. The afternoon's racing slipped along smoothly and the young lady watched the heats closely. There were a couple of horses that wore hobbles among the starters, and they did not show up very well. After sizing them up, she said: "Do you know, Mr. ——, I would never bet my money on a horse that wore his harness on his feet."

Anyone wishing to purchase finely-bred trotting stock at a remarkably low figure cannot do better than to address P. A. Finigan, who advertises in our columns a number of really good mares, besides the handsome trotting horse Cartoon, and his son W. F. The dam of this youngster is Nerea, 2:23½, the fastest daughter of John Nelson. Two of her other daughters, heavy with foal by sons of Electioneer and Nutwood, are offered.

Although there is no possibility of J. Malcom Forbes and Col. John C. Thayer matching their great colts, Arion and Ralph Wilkes, those well-known horsemen will have a meeting. Mr. Forbes has named his colt Bedouin, 2:28½, by Jay Bird, dam of Caliban, and Mr. Thayer has named his Neponsit, 2:33, by Alcyone.

MARTIN CARTER'S fine stallion Nutwood Wilkes, 2:20½, has had over forty mares booked to him this year, and therefore he will not receive applications for any more. There are daughters of Anteeo, Director, Menlo, Mount Vernon, Electioneer, Prompter, Altoona, Junio, Albert W., Woodnut, Altamont, Bay Rose, Fallis, Sultan, Nutwood, Echo, Sidney and several others; surely if Nutwood Wilkes does not get trotters by such mares there will be no more use for talking about good crosses to make trotters.

GONZALES BROS., of Gonzales, Cal., have a filly called Gonzales Maid, by Junio, dam Anita G., by Fallis, 2:23; second dam Carrie F., 2:27½, by Erwin Davis just turned three years old, that last season, as a two-year-old, showed quarters in 35 seconds at Fresno. Matt Dwyer pronounced her at the time the fastest trotter at her age he had ever driven. She knew noting but trot, and had had but five months' training. She is now showing up just as good as her genial owners expected, and should get a low mark this season.

VIC JENKINS has the members of the Owens string looking elegantly. Captain Al was always handsome, but he surpasses himself in this respect now. Royal Flush, brother to Acclaim is doing well in his work, and from his showing last season (five-eighths in 1:02) in his only race, should be a hard customer. Dick O'Malley, a two-year-old Mariner colt, in the same stable, is a good-looker, and the rest in the string present far from a bad appearance. Charles Ambrose will, in all likelihood, do most of the riding for the stable.

THE breeder who carefully and correctly mates his animals, with reference not only to individual qualities, but with reference to known characteristics, will, in the majority of cases, be more successful than the haphazard, happy-go-lucky breeder who pays no attention to blood lines, but unites his sires and dams only with reference to individual qualities. To assert the contrary is to deny all science of breeding, except in so far as it refers to the individuality of the animals mated, and is equivalent to saying that we have learned nothing from the experience of half a century.

MONTROSE was troubled with a "blind splint," but in his early training this spring he seemed to have fully recovered from the effects of his injury and displayed remarkable speed. Montrose was in training at Benning's track, near Washington, and Mr. Labold was congratulating himself on the animal's splendid form, when he received a telegram March 28th announcing that Montrose had broken down and had been shipped down into Kentucky. Montrose will be used in the stud. Already Mr. Labold had received a handsome offer for the famous racer from a Louisville gentleman.

THE feet of the colt need a great deal of attention during the winter. When he is running in the yard or standing in a loose box on a pile of manure there is nothing to wear down his hoofs as they grow out. It is necessary, therefore, to trim them down to the proper shape with a knife and rasp. Some hoofs will be found to have grown out at the toe, and others at the heel. Both are bad and often result in spavins, windgalls, contracted feet, curbs or ring bone. Many young horses have unsound feet and limbs, and their owners think the unsoundness hereditary, while it reality came from neglect.

THE three-year-old filly White Rose, which was quoted at the fine odds of 200 to 1 for the Suburban, has been backed for all the money that could be got on at that price, and it is more than likely her backers will be quite satisfied with a much less price. White Rose was formerly known, as the Cokena filly, and is owned by Mr. Foxhall Keene from whom this backing is believed to come. She started a number of times last year without accomplishing anything worthy of note until the fall at Washington, where she twice defeated the sprinter G. W. Cook, winning a tthree-quarters of a mile very easily in 1:14½.

W. H. SMITH, who purchased old John Treat during the meeting here last fall, and Fox at the Holly sale for $3,350, went broke on these flyers at New Orleans recently, it is claimed. At any rate, G. W. Leihy & Son got the horses. Fox, made a warm first choice, was beaten two lengths by a filly called Giveaway, five-eighths of a mile in 1:01½. Then old Treat was trotted out to even up on the day's losses. He was at four to one, but stable money forced the odds down to 8 to 5. The public, not wishing to let a good thing get away, poured coin in until 6 to 5 and even money was the best offered, but when the old gray son of Shiloh did not come one-two-eight there was a broken gang from California, as well as few from the Southern States.

THE orange trees of Southern California have whispered to us that Sir Roy, the Sir Modred–Teacher colt in the Rose string, is another Tremont and El Rio Rey rolled into one. The bay colt looked every inch a monarch as he led the way for the horses from Los Angeles county last Sunday, ridden by Dick Ward. He has a white strip in his handsome face, a muscular neck of good length, a long, substantial body, immense depth through its heart, great stifles, staunch legs and feet, and stands, I should say, fully 15:2 hands. Dick Ward will be the first jockey of the Rose stable this season, ably seconded by Steve Rafour. However, private trials and public races are different dispositions altogether. Fairy is a good-looking, rangy mare, and Motto is a staunch-looking chunk of a three-year-old.

THE members of Wright's surveying party, who came in from the interior last Monday, report having seen two small bands of wild horses on the llanos or plains between Trinidad and Santa Catarina valleys. The horses were extremely timid, and when they caught sight of the men they started off in an opposite direction at full speed, led by a handsome roan of magnificent proportions. All the horses of both bands were apparently of American breeding, and one, a large gray, which was larger and could not run as fast as the others, is supposed to be a horse that formerly belonged to the International Company, but which strayed three or four years ago and was never heard of afterward. The Indians at Santa Catarina have occasionally caught one of these wild horses in a corral, but never by chase, as the danger to their own animals in running full speed through the large fields of cactus is too great, and moreover the wild horses are almost without exception fleeter of foot than the Indian's measly bronco.—Lower Californian.

THE stockholders of the Vancouver Driving Park Association met at the Hotel Columbia the evening of the 24th to dispose of the remainder of the shares. In the absence of President Biers, Jay Beach, the Vice-President, called the meeting to order. The remaining 320 shares were subscribed by those present, making the Vancouver race track an assured fact. The directors were authorized to at once invite proposals for the clearing and preparing of the race track, for which purpose $15,000 has been set aside. It is expected that the track will be in working order for the August meeting. The meeting adjourned until Tuesday, March 29th, to act upon the constitution and by-laws now being prepared.

GEN. WM. H. JACKSON, of Belle Meade, was one of the dashing cavalry leaders on the losing side of the late war. When the struggle came to an end he accepted the result in good faith, and that the magnanimous course of General Grant toward the South at the close of hostilities commanded his admiration and has not been forgotten is shown by the liberal entries, twenty-five in number, which he has made to the Grant Stakes, to be raced for at Garfield Park, Chicago, in 1893. As he has made no nominations for other stakes, it can be taken for granted that in subscribing to the one named in honor of the hero of Appamattox he desires to show his good fellowship toward the North.

A CORRESPONDENT at San Luis Obispo, Cal., writes us as follows: "In your paper of 2d inst. I notice list of broodmares in the table of great broodmares, Wallace's Year Book, Vol. VII., to close of 1891, claimed by California, and notice several which were not included in the list. Another California mare that should be included, and which has been omitted, is Aloha, by A. W. Richmond 1687, dam Guadalupe, by Crichton. Aloha is sister in blood to the pacers Arrow, 2:13¼, and Elwood, 2:17¾, and is the dam of Miss Monroe, 2:27½ to cart (by Monroe Chief, 2:18½), and Directress, 2:28½, by Director, 2:17. Aloha and Directress, as well as another one of her daughters, were bred this season to Arion, 2:10¾, at Boston, Mass. The mares bred to Arion belong to Mr. Andy Welch, Hartford, Ct. Mr. Salisbury bred Miss Monroe and Directress."

UP TO the time that Mr. Robert Bonner purchased Dexter and retired him to his private stable no horse had ever appeared that could give him a race. He was truly king. He was as much superior to any trotter then as Arion was superior to any two-year-old in 1891. Great as were other sons and daughters of Hambletonian, it was but play for him to beat them. He retired with a record of 2:17¼. What his real capacity was will never be known, but no horseman familiar with the trotting of that day and the ease with which he then did his work believes that under present improvements in tracks and appliances he would have fallen much, if any, short of the best that has been accomplished to date. Many a regret was expressed that Dexter was a gelding, and had he been entire he could have gone into the stud and commanded his own price to unlimited patronage, but those who wanted the blood had to turn to his full brother, Dictator, also a horse of excellent conformation and quality, but with nothing like the speed and personality of Dexter.

THE GONZALES (Cal.) kite-shaped track has been nicely leveled and fenced, and in a few days a competent surveyor will "throw up" the turns properly. The soil (a sandy loam) is of such a nature that the course should be one of the "fastest" in the United States, and at the same time very safe. Dr. Gonzales gave us a pleasant call last Saturday, and in the course of a conversation informed us that the grand stands and stables were in course of construction and that a splendid lot of blue gum trees had been planted all around the new course, protecting the place from the ravages of the wind gods, giving shelter on sultry days, and insuring the making of good time at any period of the year. Back of the grand stands and loop of the kite is an immense parade ground, where choice live stock can be shown to great advantage. The stables are being built by the side of the track from the three-quarter pole down close to the grand stands. Dr. Gonzalez reports the town as growing in importance steadily. A brick school-house and bank will ere long be finished, a $60,000 bridge will span the Salinas, while a new railway will be begun at once.

WILDIDLE, by imp. Australian, dam Idlewild, by Lexington, second dam Florine, by imp. Glencoe, has sired the dams of more 2:30 performers than have been produced by the daughters of any other thoroughbred horse. They are six in number, as follows: Amigo, 2:16¾; Aldena, 2:25; Idle May, 2:27½; Ah There, 2:28½; Miss Naude, 2:29½, and Wild May, 2:30. As they all made their records during last season, great future results may be expected from the produce of his daughters. To the thoroughly-posted horseman there are good reasons why his daughters should produce speed at the trot, and great speed at that, for imp. Australian sired the dam of Alma Mater, the greatest producing daughter of Mambrino Patchen; Lexington sired the dam of Ansel, 2:20, second dam of Sunol, 2:08½, Jay-Eye-See, 2:10, etc., and imp. Glencoe sired the second dams of Palo Alto, 2:08¾, Favonia, 2:15, Lakewood Prince, 2:16½, J. B. Richardson, 2:16½, etc. Senator Stanford has studied the thoroughbred results in the trotter carefully, and in selecting Wildidle mares to breed to his trotting stallions, is undoubtedly justified in his expectations of great speed.

ATTEMPTS to deceive in pedigree, when discovered, are met with prompt penalty in England. One Hopkins manufactured a pedigree for a hackney, and on the strength of it sold the horse for £100. He also got a prize of £20 from an agricultural society. The fraud was discovered and the rascal was tried for intent to defraud. The justice, in sentencing the prisoner, said: "The jury have found you guilty of obtaining the sum of £20 given by the agricultural society for the best animal in the class. You possessed, no doubt, a very fine animal, but, then, you had no pedigree, and by the conditions of the exhibition you were not entitled to take a prize. You manufactured a pedigree—that no reasonable man can doubt. A man who does that to gain a prize gains that prize by false pretenses, and he robs not only the society but the man who ought to have taken the prize, just the same as if it were taken out of his pocket. If you were not sensible that this was a dishonest transaction, then I am sorry for you, for you did not properly appreciate the turpitude of the act. That it was robbing another competitor is the real nature of the case, and if such frauds were allowed to go unpunished there would be an end to open and honest competition. The jury recommended you to mercy, and I take that into consideration. A sentence of three months at hard labor is the lightest sentence I can pass upon you."

IN TRACING the blood lines of some of the fast trotters of 1891, our attention was attracted by the frequency with which we had to jot down the name of Edwin Forrest. More singular still is the fact that as far as shown only two of his get ever trotted into the list. We were too young to know anything about Edwin Forrest in his day, and even now must confess that we know little of his history; but he is surely strongly bred in running blood lines. We find upon investigation that Charleston, 2:15; Nancy Hanks, 2:09; Pat Downing, 2:13½, and Pennant, 2:15, all trace to Edwin Forrest. He is the sire of the dams of a dozen or more 2:30 perfermers, including So So, 2:17½, Dudley, 2:19¾, and Harry Newel, 2:19½. He sired the dams of Almont Jr. 1764, and Hermes, 2:17½. Edwin Forrest was sired, it is said, by Bay Kentucky Hunter, out of a Watkins' Highbinder mare, and, a traces back to Sir Archy and imp. Messenger.

IF ANY class of men are clearly entitled to have the pleasure and comforts derived from using the best horses to be found it certainly is the farmers. They breed them, they raise them and they should have the pick and choice when it comes to selecting what they need for their own use. But a little money will often tempt the farmer to allow the buyer to have the choice of the stock. For a few extra dollars a horse worth two or three times as much money as others which are kept is allowed to be taken away from the very place where he can be of most value. The average life of well-cared-for farm horses is perhaps 18 or 20 years. This would make the average time of actual service for each animal from 15 to 18 years. The difference between the value of a good horse compared with that of a poor one in dollars and cents amounts to a considerable sum. Multiply this by the number of year that you can reasonably hope to use a horse and you will find wherein it pays to keep the best. Besides all this the satisfaction in being able to own and use good horses is no small consideration. There is something stimulating about drawing the reins over horses of value and pride and vigor.

MESSRS. TAYLOR & COLWELL, owners of the Itasca Stables Chicago, Ill., have recently purchased a number of high-bred animals, which will be a valuable acquisition to the American turf. Mr. Taylor went to England some time ago, and word comes that he has bought the following: Juliet, chestnut mare, foaled 1883, bred by Mr. C. Ormerod, by Edward the Confessor (son of Hermit and Princess of Wales, by Stockwell), dam Miss Ward (bred in America), by Baywood, her dam Earring by Ringgold, out of Emma Wright, by imp. Margrave, etc. Move On, chestnut filly, foaled 1889, bred by Her Majesty Queen Victoria, by Pell Mell (son of Young Melbourne and Makeshift, by Voltigeur), dam Miss Mary, by Julius (son of St. Albans), her dam by Rataplan out of Julia, by Launcelot, fourth dam, Miss Nancy, by Cain, etc. Brown filly, foaled 1889, bred by Mr. R. Howett, by Ossian (son of Salvator and Music, by Stockwell), dam Columbine, by Tynedale (son of Warlock), her dam Performer, by Adventurer, out of Olga, by Charles XII, etc. La Bacca, bay filly, foaled 1889, bred by Mr. Luscombe, by Sweetbread (son of Brown Bread), dam Light Heart, by Albert Victor (son of Marsyas and Princess of Wales, by Stockwell), her dam Light, by The Prime Minister (son of Melbourne), out of Candlewick, by The Prime Warden, etc. The above will be shipped, about May 1st, direct to Garfield Park, where they will compete at the spring and summer meetings, for which they are now in training.

THE blood of Pilot Jr., has a great influence in helping to form the American trotting horse, and althongh he himself is dead and the last of his produce will be dead in a few years his blood coming through his descendants in the second and third generations will be valued as highly as ever. The characteristics of the family were a great amount of nerve-force, quick, trappy, trotting action, coupled with iron constitutions which made it admirably adapted to cross on families that were deficient in those qualities, although no one particular family can be picked out as one with which its blood blended more successfully than others, for in nearly all cases where Pilot Jr. blood was mixed with that of other families the result was something in the way of speed equaled, if it did not surpass, anything previously produced by those families. Harold's fastest performer was out of a daughter by Pilot Jr.; Dictator's fastest performer was from a daghter of Pilot Jr.; a daughter of Pilot Jr. produced the fastest of the Champion family; the fastest entire son and the greatest producing son of Mambrino Pilot were out of a Pilot Jr. mare; Belmont's greatest son is out of a Pilot Jr. mare; Happy Medium's greatest son is out of a Pilot Jr. mare, and these instances could be multiplied were it necessary. The trotting horse may continue to be bred for hundreds of years, but the name of Pilot Jr. will occupy a prominent place in its history linked with those of Mambrino Chief and other foundation sires.

W. O'B. MACDONOUGH has gotten together a number of royally-bred gallopers, and as far as looks go almost everything in his string at the Bay District in Dan Dennison's hands should win feed. If we are not mistaken, there are some stake winners in the stable, too. The gray colt by Warwick—Helen Scratch is the most muscular and at the same time racy-looking youngster quartered at Bay District track in many a day, and if he don't win, then there is nothing in good looks. A likely-looking one (good looks done up in a small package) is Tigress, a two-year-old bay filly by Prince of Norfolk—Katie A., by Bullion. Quarterstaff is a rangy brown fellow by Friar Tuck—Sister to Ruth Ryan, and should make a grand three-year-old. Dutch Dancer is a well-built miss by Dutch Roller, dam by War Dance, but Lady Marian is the pick of the string when "quality" is the consideration. She is a full sister to that good colt Sir John, being by Sir Modred out of Marian, by Hubbard. She is brown in color, with a beautiful head, long body and faultless legs and feet, with good depth through the heart. If she does not race well early and late with the best of them, then she is a "counterfeit." The Dwyer's bought this filly once for $1,250, but she had a taste of distemper, and they did not accept her. However, no signs of the disease remain, and one could not imagine that any malady had ever clutched her. Bessie W., one of the best of the coast two-year-old fillies of last season, but who was not in the best shape imaginable, has rounded to and looks exceedingly well. This daughter of Darebin ought to get some of the money later on in the season, even if she does not secure brackets at this meeting. Czarina, a three-year-old bay filly by Monmouth—Zara, is rangy and racy-looking, and should capture many a race later on in the season. Altogether the youngsters owned by Mr. Macdonough reflect great credit on his judgment, for there is not a bad one in the aggregation.

THE GUN.

Shared.

By Lucy Larcom.

I said it in the meadow path,
I say it on the mountain stairs
The best thing any mortal hath
Are those which every mortal shares.

The air we breathe, the sky, the breeze,
The light without us and within
Life, with its unlocked treasures,
God's riches are for us to win

The grass is softer to my tread,
For rest it yields unnumbered feet.
Sweeter to me the wild rose red,
Because she makes the whole world sweet.

Into your heavenly loneliness
Ye welcomed me, O solemn peaks,
And me in every guest you bless
Who reverently your mystery seeks.

And up the radiant peopled way
That opens into worlds unknown
It will be life's delight to say,
"Heaven is not heaven for me alone.

Rich through my brethren's poverty
Such wealth were hideous! I am blest
Only in what they share with me,
In what I share with all the rest.

A large number of the local sportsmen spent Sunday last in practicing for to-morrow's inanimate target tournament, at the Lincoln Gun Club grounds. The scores were not made public as in that case there would have been no chance of "the dark horse" being sprung on the shooters to-morrow. Who will be the winner? Come and see.

In shooting live pigeons at the trap many excellent and experienced shots use number 7 shot in the right and 6's in the left, while many prefer the latter named size of shot in both barrels. As between the two sizes mentioned the choice should be given to the one with which the best pattern can be secured with the shooter's gun.

The Country Club is already astir with energetic steps to prepare for their annual celebration at Monterey in August. The splendors of last season's outing has served only to whet the desire of the club to surpass it in every way by this year's effort. A number of the crack teams of the East will be invited to attend and contest for honors at that time at the trap.

The Alameda Gun Club shoots at Oakland track to-day. This organization presents some of the best shot at the trap to be found in this vicinity. A number of the gentlemen shooting this year with the Alamedas have but this year renewed their devotion to the trigger, but they are as much enthused as though it were a case of first love.

The fact seems to be becoming well distributed among sportsmen generally that the American wood powder when properly loaded is a very superior article. In several instances we have used it and found it productive of the very best of results and this too with less friction and discomfiture found to be the result of the use of many other powders.

To-morrow will witness at the Lincoln Gun Club grounds, perhaps, as general a gathering of sportsmen as will be noticed at inanimate target shooting for some time to come. No one who is interested in the sport should fail to attend. The Lincoln Gun Club membership hold some of the "crack shots" of the Coast in this class of shooting. When Champion meets Champion then is much powder burned.

The Recreation Gun Club, recognizing the fact that the rule of the live pigeon shooting clubs all over the country are well nigh universal as to the position of gun, modified their former rule, which required that the entire butt of the gun should be below the armpit when ordering bird released, so that now each local shooter may hold his gun at will. We understand that other clubs will make like changes in the near future.

Messrs. Kellogg & Hall, the popular and accommodating dealers in sportsman's goods and bicycles at 15 First street, are making a specialty of high grade, hand-loaded shotgun cartridges for trap work of all kinds. They are also agents for the standard keystone traps and targets They challenge comparison of prices and quality of their goods. This firm have every facility for arranging, on short notice, for artificial bird shooting at Alameda Point. Give them a trial.

The Country Club will, we understand, hold a celebration at the trap in Marin county some time next month. The shooting contingent of this club are all "on their nerve" so to speak over the anticipated scores to be made in their next monthly event as from that time on every bird fired at, counts full measure in each man's general average for the year. All desire to secure "a place" at the Monterey shoot and from now on they will shoot to kill.

The interest manifest in the welfare of the State Sportsmen's Association is daily increasing. The inquiries and applications both in person and by letter as to the methods of work, plans and aims of this important association of sportsmen are numerous and of such a nature as indicates a hearty growth and feeling in the work to which the Association is devoted. Let everyone who desires to see the game laws of the State better enforced and who are interested in the preservation of all conditions conducing to the interests of field sports join the association. The membership fee is only $1 and everyone interested in the subject should not fail to join this body at the their earliest opportunity.

Mr. Thomas R. Barney has been expermenting in the manufacture of an inanimate target for trap work, for some time past, and has at last succeeded in producing an artificial bird, that is pronounced by competent men who have examined them to be superior to anything of the kind now upon the market. This is good news for the Coast. There appears no good reason why the birds should not be manufactured here and furnished to the trade at a much less cost than they can be shipped across the country for. The bird in beauty of finish and the qualities which go to make the inanimate target desirable, is said to be first-class. We trust, should Mr. Barney conclude to establish a manufacturing plant here, that success may follow his venture.

The Recreation Gun Club.

The second meeting of the Recreation Gun Club for this season was held at Oakland Track during the first of the week and a most pleasurable day was spent at the traps. A strong wind was blowing from left to right across the traps with just deflection enough to assist the drivers in their all too successful efforts in laying "goose eggs" on the score card. The sportsmen all had one or more to carry away, Mr. George Jackson but a single one, of which fact he was very proud, and he had just cause to be for the absence of a greater quantity of these was evidence of splendid skill. The way those Murphy messengers darted away, clapping their wings as if in derision at the vain attemps to check their flight, was an aggravation which would have caused any but the pious membership of the Recreation Club to indulge in a bit of profanity. But they did not. Perhaps this perverseness on the part of the birds was not wholly unexpected. The day, in temperature, was very fine and the lunch spread by Carterer Vance was heartily enjoyed by the sportsmen whose appetite had been sharpened by the sport of the morning and who rejoiced at the opportunity of finding something they could "down" with a certainty as well as with good relish.

Mr. George Jackson, a comparatively new hand at the trap carried off the honors as above stated, shooting remarkably well, his only escaping bird, being a swift driver which fell dead out of bounds. Mr. C. B. Smith lost his second and third birds flight to right out quarter.

Mr. H. C. Golcher lost two of his birds same flight as last above mentioned, one of which barely managed to flutter over the fence before falling.

Mr. C. J. Haas, also scored ten birds, each of his escaping birds falling dead out of bounds.

Mr. George Sperry killed nine of his birds in good form, his escaping ones being very swift ones.

Dr. "Slade" lost his first three birds all swift drivers, but some of his remaining ones were equally swift which he grassed in excellent form.

Messrs. Allen and Morrison were alone in securing eight each, while Messrs. "Randall" W. J. Golcher, Dunham and Kyle followed with seven kills to their credit.

Mr. T. R. Barney secured but five of his dozen in the main match which must be attributed to other causes than any lack of skill as he is one of the best shots in the club.

Messrs. Brown, Gere and Liddle secured four each, but in shooting up his back score, "Uncle Robert," as the gentlemen all call Mr. Liddle, the veteran sporting goods dealer and gun maker, secured nine birds.

The wind at times was very brisk which coupled with the new membership accounts for the general average of the club being so low.

* Means dead out of bounds.

Pool shooting followed until all the birds were used.

The Blue Rock Club.

The Blue Rock Club met on Saturday last for the first match of the season held by this organization. Owing to the threatening weather very few were present, but a very enjoyable time was spent by those who engaged in the match. The first event aud regular match of the day consisted of firing at fifteen singles and five pairs. As the day was lowering and the wind high the rapid recurrence of turns at the trap compensated in a great measure for the lack of numbers in attendance and the state of the weather.

The score stood as follows:

Kyle	1	1	1	1	1	1	0	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	11
Doubles									10	10	10	10	10	—	5		19
Cadman	0	1	1	1	1	1	0	0	1	1	1	0	0	1	10
Doubles									11	00	11	10	00	—	5		15
"Slade"	0	0	1	0	0	0	1	1	1	0	0	1	0	0	1	6
Doubles									11	10	00	10	10	—	5		11
Samuel Golcher	0	0	1	0	0	1	0	1	0	0	0	1	0	1	0	5
Doubles									00	01	00	11	00	—	3		8
Johnson	0	0	1	0	0	1	1	0	0	1	1	1	1	0	1	—	8
Doubles									10	01	10	00	11	—	5		13

In a pool match of fifteen birds each the score stood as follows:

Slade	1	1	0	1	0	0	1	0	1	1	0	1	1	0	1— 9
Kyle	1	1	1	0	0	0	0	1	1	1	1	0	1	1	0— 9
Golcher	1	0	0	1	0	0	1	0	0	1	0	0	0	1	0— 5

Pools were then shot for the balance of the day, and a pleasant time was experienced by all present.

The State Sportsman's Association.

As inquiry is made from time to time as to the scope of usefuln ss of the association the following taken from the constitution and by laws, will undoubtedly furnish a full and, we believe, a satisfactory response. There is no vestage of selfishness or selfish, narrow policy, either in its past history or future purposes. We challenged contradiction.

"To unite the sportsmen of the State in securing the introduction and acclimitization of suitable game and fish not found here: to educate the people of the State generally to a higher standard, in the benificent results to present and future generations, of a wise code of game and fish laws faithfully observed; to urge the enforcement of the laws now in operation, and to secure the enactment of such further laws as may seem wise, to bring men of kindred tastes into more intimate relations in order that all proper rights, privileges and pleasures may be secured to those whose instincts make them lovers of the rod and gun; and to further such other ends as may properly be within the province of an association of sportsmen."

A Magnificent Sportsman's Emporium.

In passing the Grand Hotel on Market street, even the non-sportsman cannot help but be struck with the magnificent display of sporting goods made in one of the prominent stores of that central portion of the city. Clabrough, Golcher & Co. have long been known to the sportsmen of the Pacific Coast, but never before have they been so well and so favorably known by the local sportsmen, and the fact that they have entered into competition with the manufacturers and the trade of two continents in their gun department has made the name of their firm familiar wherever guns are used. The Clabrough hammerless shotgun has sustained every claim made for it by them, which is that it is equalled by few in shooting qualities and surpassed by none for simplicity of construction, durability and elegance of finish. The simplicity and durability of their ejector has won for it deserved recognition wherever shown. They handle the Greener, Scott, Smith, Parker and Lefever guns of all grades, and especially of the finest quality. They have just received the first L. C. Smith hammerless, automatic ejector gun received on this coast. It is a beauty, and will, no doubt, become very popular. This house makes a specialty of trap shooters' supplies; handling the Cleveland Blue Rock the best and most satisfactory inanimate target to be found on the market; also the new expert trap with electric pull attachment, making the spring instantaneous.

Among the new specialties for this season we noticed handsome sole leather gun cases and leather ammunition cases, each very fine. Their facilities for repairing fine guns is the best. All work guaranteed. A glance at their fishing tackle department brings up visions of foaming streams and leaping trout.

Split bamboo rods we noticed, as fine as the highest skill could manufacture. Lures of all descriptions, enough to make the eye of the angler scintilate with anticipations of pleasure when thinking of their use.

Lawn tennis, gymnasium, base ball, foot ball, cricket and all styles and qualities of outing suits constantly on hand at the lowest market prices. Call in and see them, even if you do not purchase. You can hardly find so pleasant a place elsewhere in which to spend an hour.

Lincoln Gun Club Tournament.

All sportsmen should take special notice of the fact that a a grand tournament will be hold to-morrow, Sunday, April 10th, at the Lincoln Gun Club grounds at Alameda Point, under the auspices of this, the leading inanimate target shooting organization of this State. Be sure and attend. The programme includes a large number of events which will, without doubt, prove most interesting. In order to be in at the inauguration of the sport one should take the 8:45 boat for Alameda Point, as the tournament opens promptly at 10 o'clock A. M. The shooting will continue throughout the day. A splendid time is assured. Be on hand; you cannot afford to miss it.

In mentioning the names of gentlemen who have been prominently connected with the State Association, and to whose untiring zeal and unselfish endeavors in fostering the interests of sportsmen generally throughout the State, more—much more is due than is given credit for—can be mentioned, with every fitness and propriety, that of the honorable gentleman who adorns the position of Fish Commissioner at the present time. We refer of course to none other than R. E. Wilson, Esq. Ever ready with pen and voice, in court and convention, his presence and influence has been made known and felt in every important matter for years past in which our sportsman evinced or claimed an interest. Would the State were honored with many more not unlike him.

Never fire at a bird. When you go to the trap think of nothing save the fact that you may get a swift driving bird and if this should be the case and your bird be a "straightaway" do not fire at him but if a quick shot hold at least a foot over him, as the bird increases in distance from the trap increase your elevation. If your bird be a rapidly rising out going quarterer you must hold over and usually for beginners away ahead of your bird two, three and even four feet or more if a high wind be favoring the bird. This for beginners for in nine cases out of ten the beginner stops swinging his gun the instant he determines to fire a grievous fault which must be overcome to attain a good record. The gun should be kept moving until after the shot is fired and in doing this the bird need not be led so much. This requires practice. Shoot quick, even at the expense of missing your bird. Good scores can only be made by killing the birds the instant they take flight.

Lead a direct incomer, about one inch or practically fire at its head, if quartering lead your bird a little more according to outward deflection of the bird's flight. All birds are rising; always shoot high on your bird.

The absence of serious accident at the trap in this State is a matter upon which the sportsmen of the State may well pride themselves, yet too much care cannot be exercised in the use of the gun in order to avoid any accidents in the future.

On going to the score the shooter should not close his gun until after the boy, who may be filling the traps, has returned back of the score line. Occasionally, from some unknown and unaccountable cause, a hammerless gun will discharge from the act of closing. Perhaps the jar caused by a pronounced or emphatic closing of the gun causes the spring to be snapped. Such was the case, in one instance, at least, at the traps at Oakland Shooting Park. Luckily no one was injured, as the gun was in the hands of one of the most careful men of all who constitute the regular shooting body of this city's sportsmen.

Never leave the score, or turn from your shooting position until you have broken your gun and removed the shell, if any remains in the gun unfired.

If a "No bird" is called from any cause open your gun and let it so remain until the trap or traps are again filled.

Strict attention to these matters is absolutely essential to insure the safety of all concerned. Do not fail to observe them.

We understand that a number of local dogs will be entered at the Los Angeles bench show. Mr. Henry Huber and Mr. John Heffernan, we are informed, have signified such intention. This is well and we trust many more will join them in exhibiting there.

On the 17th inst., a coursing match will be held at Newark by the Occidental Coursing Club. Drawing at 21 Kearney street on Friday evening next.

ROD.

Salmon and Trout of the Pacific Coast.

BY DR. DAVID STARR JORDAN.

Of these species the Blue-back predominates in Fraser River, and in the Yukon river, the Silver salmon in Puget Sound, the Quinnat in the Columbia and the Sacramento, and the Silver salmon in most of the streams along the coast. All the species have been seen by us in the Columbia and in Fraser River; all but the Blue-back in the Sacramento and in waters tributary to Puget Sound. Only the King salmon has been noticed south of San Francisco. Its range has been traced as far as Ventura River. Of these species the King salmon and Blue-back salmon habitually "run" in the spring, the others in the fall. The usual order of running in the rivers is as follows: nerka, tschawytscha, kisutch, gorbuscha, keta.

The econimic value of the spring-running salmon is far greater than that of the other species, because they can be captured in numbers when at their best, while the others are usually taken only after deterioration. To this fact the worthlessness of Oncorhynchus keta, as compared with the other species, is probably wholly due.

The habits of the salmon in the ocean are not easily studied. King salmon and Silver salmon of all sizes are taken with the seine at almost any season in Puget Sound. This would indicate that these species do not go far from the shore. The King salmon takes the hook freely in Monterey bay, both near the shore and at a distance of six to eight miles out. We have reason to believe that these two species do not necessarily seek great depths, but probably remain not very far from the mouth of the rivers in which they were spawned. The Blue-back and the Dog salmon probably seek deeper water, as the former is seldom or never taken with the seine in the ocean, and the latter is known to enter the Strait of Fuca at the spawning season, therefore coming in from the open sea. The great majority of the King salmon, and nearly all the Blue-back salmon, enter the rivers in the spring. The run of both begins generally at the last of March; it lasts, with various modifications and interruptions, until the actual spawning season in November, the time of running and the proportionate amount in each of the subordinate runs varying with each different river. In general, the runs are slack in the summer and increase with the first high water of autumn. By the last of August only straggling Blue-backs can be found in the lower course of any stream; but both in the Columbia and in the Sacramento the Quinnat runs in considerable numbers, at least till October. In the Sacramento the run is greatest in the fall, and more run in the summer than in spring. In the Sacramento and the smaller rivers southward, there is a winter run, beginning in December. The spring salmon ascends only those rivers which are fed by the melting snows from the mountains, and which have sufficient volume to send their waters well out to sea. Those salmon which run in the spring are chiefly adults (supposed to be at least three years old). Their milt and spawn are no more developed than at the same time in others of the same species which are not to enter the rivers until fall. It would appear that the contact with cold fresh water, when in the ocean, in some way causes them to run towards it, and to run before there is any special influence to that end exerted by the development of the organs of generation. High water on any of these rivers in the spring is always followed by an increased run of salmon. The salmon canners think, and this is probably true, that salmon which would not have run till later are brought up by the contact with the cold water. The cause of this effect of cold fresh water is not understood. We may call it an instinct of the salmon, which is another way of expressing our ignorance. In general, it seems to be true that in those rivers and during those years when the spring run is greatest, the fall run is least to be depended upon.

As the season advances, smaller and younger salmon of these species (Quinnat and Blue-back) enter the rivers to spawn, and in the fall these young specimens are very numerous. We have thus far failed to notice any gradations in size or appearance of these young fish by which their ages could be ascertained. It is, however, probable that some of both sexes reproduce at the age of one year. In Fraser River in the fall, Quinnat male grilse of every size, from eight inches upwards, were running the milt fully developed, but usually not showing the hooked jaws and dark colors of the older males. Females less than eighteen inches in length were rare. All of either sex, large and small, then in the river, had the milt developed. Little Blue-backs of every size down to six inches, are also found in the upper Columbia in the fall, with their organs of generation fully developed. Nineteen-twentieths of these young fish are males, and some of them have the hooked jaws and red color of the old males.

The average weight of the Quinnat in the Columbia in the spring is twenty-two pounds; in the Sacramento about sixteen. Individuals weighing from forty to sixty pounds are frequently found in both rivers, and some as high as eighty or even one hundred pounds are recorded. It is questioned whether these large fishes are those which, of the same age, have grown more rapidly; those which are older, but have for some reason failed to spawn; or those which have survived one or more spawning seasons. All these origins may be possible in individual cases; we are, however, of the opinion that the majority of these large fishes are those which have hitherto run in the fall, and thus having spawned not far from the sea, have survived the spawning season of the previous year.

Those fish which enter the rivers in the spring continue their ascent till death or the spawning season overtakes them. Probably none of them ever return to the ocean, and a large proportion fail to spawn. They are known to ascend the Sacramento to its extreme headwaters, about four hundred miles. In the Columbia they ascend as far ar the Bitter Root Mountains, and at least to the Spokane Falls, and their extreme limit is not known. This is a distance of six to eight hundred miles. At these great distances, when the fish have reached the spawning grounds, besides the usual changes of the breeding season, their bodies are covered with bruises, on which patches of white fungus develop. The fins become mutilated, their eyes are often injured or destroyed, parasitic worms gather in their gills, they become extremely emaciated, their flesh becomes white from the loss of oil; and as soon as the spawning act is accomplished, and sometimes before, all of them die. The ascent of the Cascades and the Dalles propably cause the injury or death of a great many salmon.

When the salmon enter the river they refuse to take bait, and their stomachs are always found empty and contracted. In the rivers they do not feed, and when they reach the spawing grounds their stomach, pyloric coeca and all, are said to be no larger than one's finger They will sometimes take the fly, or a hook baited with salmon roe, in the clear waters of the upper tributaries, but there is no evidence known to us that they feed when there. Only the Quinnat and Blue-back (there called Red-fish) have been found at any great distance from the sea, and these (as adult fishes) only in late summer and fall.

The spawning season is probably about the same for all species. It varies for each of the different rivers, and for different parts of the same river. It doubtless extends from July to December. The manner of spawning is probably similar for all the species, but we have no data for any except the Quinnat. In this species the fish pair off; the male, with tail and snout, excavates a broad, shallow "nest" in the gravelly bed of the stream, in rapid water, at a depth of one to four feet; the female deposits her eggs in it, and, after the exclusion of the milt, they cover them with stones and gravel. They then float down the stream tail foremost. As already stated, a great majority of them die. In the headwaters of the large streams, and near the sea, an unknown percentage probably survive. The young hatch in about sixty days, and most of them return to the ocean during the high water of the spring.

The salmon of all kinds, in the spring, are silvery, spotted or not, according to the species, and with the mouth about equally symmetrical in both sexes. As the spawning season approaches, the female loses her silvery color, becomes more slimy, the scales on the back partly sink into the skin, and the flesh changes from salmon-red and becomes variously paler from the loss of oil, the degree of paleness varying much with individuals and with inhabitants of different rivers. In the Sacramento the flesh of the Quinnat, in either spring or fall, is rarely pale. In the Columbia a few with pale flesh are sometimes taken in spring, and a good many in the fall. In Fraser River the fall run of the Quinnat is nearly worthless for canning purposes, because so many are "white-meated." In the spring very few are "white-meated," but the number increases towards fall, when there is every variation, some having red streaks running through them, others being red toward the head and pale toward the tail. The red and pale ones cannot be distinguished externally, and the color is dependent on neither age nor sex. There is said to be no difference in the taste, but there is no market for canned salmon not of the conventional orange color.

As the season advances, the difference between the males and females become more and more marked, and keeps pace with the development of the milt, as is shown by dissection. The males have (1) the pre-maxillaries and the tip of the lower jaw more and more prolonged, both of the jaws becoming, finally, strongly and often extravagantly hooked, so that either they shut by the side of each other like shears, or else the mouth cannot be closed. (2) The front teeth become very long and canine-like, their growth proceeding very rapidly, until they are often half an inch long. (3) The teeth on the vomer and tongue often disappear. (4) The body grows more compressed and deeper at the shoulders, so that a very distinct hump is formed; this is more developed in Oncorhynchus gorbuscha, but is found in all. (5) The scales disappear, especially on the back, by the growth of spongy skin. (6) The color changes from silvery to various shades of black and red, or blotchy, according to the species. The Blue-back turns rosy red, the Dog Salmon a dull blotchy red, and the Quinnat generally blackish. The distorted males are commonly considered worthless, rejected by the canners and salmon salters, but preserved by the Indians. These changes are due solely to influences connected with the growth of the productive organs. They are not in any way due to the action of fresh water. They take place at about the same time in the adult males of all species, whether in the ocean or in the rivers. At the time of the spring runs all are symmetrical. In the fall all males, of whatever species, are more or less distorted. Among the Dog Salmon, which runs only in the fall, the males are hook-jawed and red-blotched when they first enter the Strait of Fuca from the outside. The Humpback, taken in salt water about Seattle, have the same peculiarities. The male is slab-sided, hook-billed, and distorted, and is rejected by the canners. No hook-jawed females of any species have been seen. It is not positively known that any fully hook-jawed old male survives the reproductive act. If any do, the jaws must resume the normal form.

On first entering a stream the salmon swim about as if playing. They always head towards the current, and this appearance of playing may be simply due to facing the moving tide. Afterwards they enter the deepeet parts of the stream and swim straight up, with few interruptions. Their rate of travel at Sacramento is estimated by Stone at about two milts per day; on the Columbia at about three miles per day. Those who enter the Columbia in the spring and ascend to the mountain rivers of Idaho, must go at a more rapid rate than this, as they must make an average of nearly four miles per day.

As already stated, the economic value of any species depends in great part on its being a "spring salmon." It is not generally possible to capture salmon of any species in large numbers until they have entered the rivers, and the spring salmon enter the rivers long before the growth of the organs of reproduction has reduced the richness of the flesh. The fall salmon cannot be taken in quantity until their flesh has deteriorated; hence, the Dog Salmon is practically almost worthless, except to the Indians, and the Humpback Salmon is little better. The Silver Salmon, with the same breeding habits ss the Dog Salmon, is more valuable, as it is found in the inland waters of Puget Sound for a considerable time before the fall rains cause the fall runs, and it may be taken in large numbers with seines before the season for entering the rivers. The Quinnat Salmon, from its great size and abundance, is more valuable than all the other fishes on our Pacific Coast taken together. The Blue-back, similar in flesh, but much smaller and less abundant, is worth much more than the combined value of the three remaining species of salmon.

The fall salmon of all species, but especially of the Dog Salmon, ascend streams but a short distance before spawning. They seem to be in great anxiety to find fresh water, and many of them work their way up little brooks only a few inches deep, where they perish miserably, floundering about on the stones. Every stream, of whatever kind, has more or less of these fall salmon.

It is the prevailing impression that the salmon have some special instinct which leads them to return to spawn in the same spawning grounds where they were originally hatched. We fail to find any evidence of this in the case of the Pacific Coast salmon, and we do not believe it to be true. It seems more probable that the young salmon hatched in any river mostly remain in the ocean, within a radius of twenty, thirty, or forty miles of its mouth. These, in their movements about in the ocean, may come into contact with the cold waters of their parent rivers, or, perhaps, of any other river, at a considerable distance from the shore. In the case of the Quinnat and the Blue-back, their "instinct" seems to lead them to ascend these fresh waters, and, in a majority of cases, these waters will be those in which the fishes in question were originally spawned. Later in the season the growth of the reproductive organs leads them to approach the shore and search for fresh waters, and still the chances are that they may find the original stream. But undoubtedly many fall salmon ascend, or try to ascend, streams in which no salmon were ever hatched. In little brooks about Puget Sound, where the water is not three inches deep, are often found dead or dying salmon, which have entered them for the purpose of spawning. It is said of the Russian River and other California rivers, that their mouths, in the time of low water in summer, generally become entirely closed by sand-bars, and that the salmon, in their eagerness to ascend them, frequently fling themselves entirely out of water on the beach. But this does not prove that the salmon are guided by a marvelous geographical instinct, which leads them to their parent river in spite of the fact that the river cannot be found. The waters of Russian River soak through these sand-bars, and the salmon instinct, we think, leads them merely to search for fresh waters. This matter is much in need of further investigation; at present, however, we find no reason to believe that the salmon enter the Rogue River simply because they were spowned there, or that a salmon hatched in the Clackamas River, is more likely, on that account, to return to the Clackamas than to go up the Cowlitz or the Des Chutes. "At the hatchery on Rogue River the fish are stripped, marked, and set free, and every year since the hatchery has been in operation some of the marked fish have been recaught."

In regard to the diminution of the number of salmon on the coast, Dr. Gilbert and myself published in 1880, in the report of the United States Census Bureau, the following observations: "In Puget Sound, Fraser River, and the small streams, there appears to be little or no evidence of diminution. In the Columbia River the evidence appears somewhat conflicting. The catch in 1880 was considerably greater than ever before (nearly five hundred and forty thousand cases of forty-eight pounds each having been packed), although the fishing for three or four years has been extensive. On the other hand, the high water of that year undoubtedly caused many fish to become spring salmon which would otherwise have run in the fall. Moreover, it is urged that a few years ago, when the number caught was about half as great as in 1880, the amount of netting used was perhaps one-eighth as much. With a comparatively small outfit the canners caught half the fish; now, with nets much larger and more numerous, they catch them nearly all, scarcely any escaping during the fishing season (April 1st to August 1st). Whether an actual reduction in the number of fish running can be proved or not, there can be no question that the present rate of destruction of the salmon will deplete the river before many years. A considerable number of Quinnat Salmon run in August and September, and some stragglers even later; these are all which now keep up the supply of fish in the river. The non-molestation of this fall run, therefore, does something to atone for the almost total destruction of the spring run. This, however, is insufficient. A well-ordered salmon hatchery is the only means by which the destruction of the salmon fisheries of the Columbia can be prevented."

Since this was written the over-fishing has gone on steadily, the number of nets used is two or three times as great as it was in 1880, while the catch has steadily fallen off. Seines are now used freely in the Columbia, and other appliances by which great numbers of young salmon, too small for use in the canneries, are destroyed, and the utter disappearance of the salmon fishery of the Columbia is only a question of a few years unless some vigorous means is taken to prevent overfishing, to prevent the destruction of young fish, and to replenish the losses from all these causes. The same story of the destruction of the rich fisheries of the Columbia will be told again in the Frazer River and in the Yukon, and in every other stream where unlimited fishing is allowed, and where no adequate effort is made to keep up the supply. Just as the forests are wantonly and thoughtlessly destroyed by early settlers and by lumbenmen, just so the fisheries of this coast will go under the hands of the canner.

The angling season has come. This means a thousand beautiful and enchanting pictures to the eye; a thousand tints on cloud and sky; a thousand ravishingly sweet odors borne upon and permeating every winging breeze; a thousand enchanting voices from bird and brook and the enjoyment of untold pleasures; pleasures so dear that money cannot buy them; free, life-giving and vivifying joys that make the heart throb with rejoicings, the eye scintillate with anticipation and the cheeks glow with warmth as the health-giving blood courses with renewed vigor through the veins. There are few forms of out-door sports that can equal, not to say excel, an outing at this season of the year with rod and line. The streams are now becoming quite well settled and the reports presented from over the State represent the fishing everywhere to be more than usually satisfactory.

On Tuesday last Messrs. Turner and Reed, in company with Captain Cummings paid a visit to the Purissima Creek and for two days enjoyed a pleasant outing, having but little trouble in filling their baskets each day.

Mr. A. H. Brown, of Novato spent a few days in the city during the first of the week. Brown knows how to handle the gun as well as the rod and line. He riports good sport with the latter in that vicinity.

The fishing on the Purissima is said to be very fine. A number of the angling fraternity of this city have whipped its waters with eminently satisfactory results during the opening days of the season.

Messrs. Kittle, Adams and Wooster, with other members of the County Club, have had some splendid sport with rod and line on the club's preserve in Marin County this week.

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths, in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

FIXTURES.

Bench Shows.

The New England Kennel Club's eighth annual bench show, Boston, Mass., April 7, 8, 9 and 10. E. H. Moore, Secretary.

The Southern California Kennel Club's bench show, April 20, 21, 22 and 23, 1892. C. A. Sumner, Secretary, Los Angeles, Cal.

The California Kennel Club's bench show, May 4, 5, 6 and 7, at San Francisco. Frank J. Silvey, Secretary, 636 Montgomery street, San Francisco.

Boston, Mass., April 7th, 8th, 9th and 10th, 1892.—The New England Kennel Club's Eighth Annual bench show. Address Mr. E. H. Moore, Secretary.

Chicago, Ill., June 12—World's Fair Dog Show at the Columbian Exhibition Stock Building, Entries will close on May 20th.

Vivisection of a Mephitis Americana.

The methods of warfare adopted by the carnivorous animal of the genus mephitis order when cornered, are well known. With this mode of warfare C. H. Mason seems to be thoroughly familiar. In assuming to reply to recent statements made in these columns in an exchange, he proves himself to partake of the nature of these highly-scented little animals by using the word "blackguard" with its various terminals twenty times, or more, in less than two columns of "matter," which he would have the public believe is the product of the brain of a gentleman and scholar than whom the age has not produced an equal! All this because he was not chosen a judge of the coming bench shows at this place and Los Angeles! The facts are these: Some time since the California Kennel Club, casting about for a judge of the coming bench show to be held by that organization in this city, sent letters to a number of gentlemen stating this fact. Among those addressed was this man Mason. He replied. To his reply he received this answer from Mr. E. P. Schell, President of the California Kennel Club. It reads:

"Yours of the —— duly received, and was referred to the Executive Committee on the evening of the 13th inst. We regret very much our inability to accept the terms you offer. While realizing fully that they are low enough, the outlook for bench shows on the coast this season is not such as would warrant us in incurring such an expense. We hope, however, to some day be in a position that will warrant us in having you with us. Thanking you for your kindness in answering our letter so promptly, we remain."

Mr. James Mortimer, the able, popular and experienced gentleman of New York, who is universally accredited by every one who knows aught of kennel matters, to be a thoroughly honest and competent judge of dogs, was selected as judge of the show to be given by the California Kennel Club of this city, and the Southern California Kennel Club at Los Angeles as well. Subsequently Mason rushes into print with the following statement: "The reason, and the only reason, why I am not going to two of these shows is not because they wanted anybody else, but because my terms were higher than the clubs are in a position to accept." We are responsible for the italics. The words italicized convey two separate and distinct falsehoods.

Mr. Schell's letter was written—as the language used clearly states—for and on the behalf of the Executive Committee of the club. The language is his own, and as we have before intimated, all gentlemen in informing any person that the services of that person are not wanted, are apt to couch such negation in diplomatic language. The fact still remains, however, that Mason was never considered in the race for honors, and the reply, in fact, only was formed, as far as the club was concerned, to convey that statement to him. What a wry face he makes over having to swallow even so sugar-coated a pill! Poor fellow! it seems to gripe him very much. There are other and very potent reasons why he was not selected to judge at this point. The same reasons, we are creditably informed, have been potential in practically shelving him as a judge of bench shows in the East, where the reasons are better known.

We have stated, and the fact cannot be successfully questioned, that the California Kennel Club and the Southern California Kennel Club "are in a position to accept anything which they might desire," and the truth of the matter is that they declined Mason's services because they did not desire them.

In speaking of this matter, this shameless trickster says: "A man might not be in a position to pay $1,000 for a horse, though well able to get "financial backing" if he chose to seek it."

The California Kennel Club in this case evidently did not want to purchase the "'orse." They showed that they did not want the "'orse" at all, as the letter contains not one word of bringing the price within range of the pocket, which Mason infers was the only reason for non-acceptance on the part of the Club.

There is nothing to prevent any man from offering a blind, spavined, balky ass for sale at a round figure and it would seem to be the height of egotistical assumption on the part of the owner, and prove him to be an ass himself, to take the objection to price to be the only reason for a failure to purchase. Men of sense, like those composing the Californian Kennel Club and also that of the Club at Los Angeles, if buying "'orses" are not so verdant as to gauge the quality of offers made by the prices asked. In whatever they do they act wisely, regardless of price.

To quote Mason, you "cannot possibly get me into a discussion on the 'gray matter of their brains!'"

Well, whoever supposed you could discuss anything? We have never been so foolish, for you show your utter incapacity for any such purpose. Confine yourself to the work of the order of the genus Mephitis. You are in a measure calculated for it, but even in this, if your liliputian quantity of "gray matter" were not so putrid you might give us less parrot-like effusions. He quotes the following question asked in these columns, touching his claim to imperial rank in the kennel world. It is:

"If your services are really worth so much more than that of other men as you would have us believe, in this capacity, why were they not required by the great Eastern shows recently? 'Answer—My "services in this capacity" may be worth no more than the California clubs have given, and are in a position to give, the judges they have from time to time employed. But inasmuch as I have a record in England as a breeder, owner and exhibitor of high-class dogs, extending over many years, and they (the other judges) have not, and because I have been a lover of good dogs all my life, and was prominently connected with the fancy many years before our judges, with but one or two exceptions, had been heard of in the doggy world, I feel that I am justified in naming terms higher than theirs.'"

Such rot and assumption! No one, save a man whose mind has actually became diseased from pondering on his own self-assumed greatness would be guilty of making such a statement. It is not the statement of a man possessing even ordinary sense.

Poor egostistical ass! We had not, until this statement fell under our notice, deemed him so utterly devoid of common sense. Of all the men who have ever judged in California in the past, not one of them is or has been his equal! He has a record in England! What a white elephant he is! He must be superior to all others! He has climbed the mountain of wisdom and surveyed with the "hye of han heagle" the whole universe of intelligence! Behold, the proof! He has a record in England!

In speaking of the question as to why he has not been employed as a judge of kennel shows in the East, the same egotistical pose is assumed, and, with the devil's own dissembling, the arch hypocrite makes this reply: "Every passably well-informed fancier knows that if I would put aside the pen and sell my conscience and convictions to a 'gang,' I could have more judging than any two men in the country, regardless of terms." That is to say that he, Mason, charges the management of more shows than are judged by "any two men in the country" to be thieving tricksters who buy the judges of their shows! If he would do, as other judges, according to his statement, that is "sell their conscience and convictions to a "gang," he would "have more judging than any two men in the country, regardless of terms?"

With what ease the charge slips from this Munchausen's pen that the two most popular judges of our shows are rascals who "sell their conscience and convictions" at every show.

This dirty lie carries its own refutation with it, to every sensible mind. Even this shameless egotist would not have given expression to this palpably false statement could he have accounted otherwise for the "severe letting alone" which the kennel clubs of the country have given him for years past. The bombastic egotist goes on to quote a letter from Mr. C. A. Summer, of Los Angeles, secretary of the Southern California Kennel Club in which that gentleman says:

Dear Sir: The South California Kennel Club seem quite anxious to have you to judge at their next show on the 20th to 23d April next in this city, but will not be able to afford to do so by themselves unless San Francisco joins with us. * * * Our club is solvent, with money in the bank, but our clubs only just about pay expenses, consequently we are not able to stand as much as some other places, and are anxious not to run behind. Added to this to have a competent judge he must travel some distance, and so we are somewhat handicapped. Kindly let me know if you see any way for us to avail ourselves of your services. Yours truly,

C. A. Sumner,
Sec. S. C. K. C.

San Francisco did not want you, and consequently did not "join" with the S. C. K. C., and you were not chosen. Mr. Sumner's letter clearly conveys the idea that that club was able to have employed you, and the fact that they did not shows that you were not considered worth the price asked.

The slimy trickster evades any allusion to his unusual methods in attempting to obtain money from Mr. Belmont by means that caused every honorable man to blush that such a trickster should remain in the ranks of the kennel world. Come, come, you bombastic blusterer, you ass in a lion's skin, cease your disgusting and contemptible methods of reckless assertion and simmer down. There will be little left of you when the frothings of imbecility and bubbles of assumption are gone.

Barzoi vs. Deerhounds.

"Now by St. Paul the fight goes bravely on!" They have met the wolf, and the hounds belong to the wolf!

* * *

The wolf-hunt took place as advertised at or near Hardin, abont seventy-five miles northeast from Denver, and was a severe trial to the adherents of dogs, proving a complete victory for the gray wolf.

* * *

The crowd left Denver very sanguine as to the final results, that is, the wolf would be destroyed in short order, but, alas! the reverse was the case. To my mind the contest was very poorly conducted in every particular. We were led to believe from the paper talk that the owners of the dogs, on both sides, knew what they were talking about, but, as usual in such cases, they fully showed, by their actions, that they were counting chickens before they were hatched. From my limited experience in hunting wolves, especially gray ones, I doubted very much the ability of any two dogs to successfully cope with a healthy gray wolf, and I am now fully convinced that no two dogs live, of any breed, that can kill a good, gray wolf.

* * *

Mr. Hacke showed very poor judgment indeed in making the match the way he did. He sent his dogs to this country about ten days before the date set for the match, and then sent them out to the country for training, thus showing his utter ignorance or carelessness of the object to be accomplished by his hounds. His representative was the wrong man, as he seemed to get the impression that all the people out here were desirous of seeing his Barzoi defeated by fair means or foul, and this has caused a great deal of friction.

* * *

Dr. Van Hummel had a quarrel at the hotel with Dr. Grimes and refused to judge. Charges and counter-charges were thick and personal, and the scene was simply a disgrace to the cause. The Western people are a true, square lot, and only wish to see the best dogs win, and certain actions were entirely uncalled for.

* * *

The match was declared no contest by the judges, as neither contestants were in it at all, showing neither courage nor killing power, especially the Borzoi, which were completely winded with a couple of hundred yards run, due, no doubt, to the high altitude to which they were not accustomed, an error on Mr. Hacke's part. They also lacked courage to go in and get and give punishment. To the best of my belief the deerhounds showed the most courage, of the very little shown on either side. The truth is, neither side knew what their dogs could do on gray wolves, but made a grand hurrah, and "tackled" something they knew nothing about, and the result was a grand fiasco. Therefore, to be able to course and kill gray wolves we will have to breed and train up from puppyhood, and as to which is the best of these two breeds for this purpose remains absolutely an open question.

* * *

The result of this contest proved the dogs—under the existing circumstances, lacking in courage and tenacity, as they refused absolutely to go in and get punished by the wolf, a slight snap from he wolf being sufficient to cause them to seek a safe distance and snap and snarl back. This expresses the entire contest—a snapping and snarling match.

* * *

Come, gentlemen, try again, and a good lesson to the balance of you who own such wonders (on paper), take the advice of Davy Crocket: "Be sure you're right, then go ahead." I shall not detain you with a long, detailed account of the alleged contest, leaving that to others. No doubt you will hear about this until you are weary, as the journals will be rushed with "ifs and buts." I shall probably have more to say about the matter in the near future, but remember this, it was simply a fiasco so determined on the authority of Aloin.

* * *

If Mr. Hacke ever expects to have wolf killers he should take a fools advice and establish his kennel in the West where the gray wolves grow and breed, and train his dogs, as such dogs should be and not take it for granted, as he has evidently done in this case, that because some blooming Russian, with an awful name, from whom he purchased the dogs has sworn and attested that the dogs he sold him were wolf killers, that such is the truth. Now, again, his handler should be also well posted as to the gray wolf—and the best methods to cope with him, as I know from experience that Mr. Wolf is capable of keeping the most experienced man a-guessing.

* * *

For conceit, commend me to some of the greyhound men, as four greyhounds are enough to litterly tear a grey wolf to pieces, so say the Greyhound men, permit me to doubt you Gentlemen. Your dogs may do so, I don't say they can not, but I rather fancy after one such a scrap, you will need four new dogs.

* * *

I am inclined to think your pets will need repairs sadly, and would be pleased to have you demonstrate the case. Talk is very cheap as you are aware, and men sometimes say things when excited that they are not willing to back when calmed down.

* * *

A very great deal of bitter feeling has been aroused over this contest, almost to personal encounter, and I am indeed very sorry to see this as it marks the "hot head" and the amateur.

* * *

Gentlemen, neither of you in this case have, at present, dogs that are able to kill wolfs in the way and manner in which you went at it. I doubt, very much, if you will ever have in your kennel two dogs that can together, and without assistance kill a gray wolf. I have possibly aided to, and have killed as many as any one of you, and I have always had to use three and no less dogs. Now just keep your shirts on and see if you can do any better.

* * *

Mr. McDougall is a nice gentleman and can only regret one act of his—the shooting of his black dog for cowardice—in a moment of disgust and anger at the dogs actions. We all regret this, and I am sure he does also, and as he grows older in wolf chasing such actions as this, from some of his untried dogs, will not cause him to lose his head.

* * *

It is all very well for those who are wont to romance, to sit around the hotel office and describe how your greyhounds, your deerhounds, your barzois, will rush in and absolutely chop and tear a wolf all to pieces. You can detect the "greenie" at the business the moment you hear him describe how the dogs worked. You can put him down as a romancer and tell him to "read his answer in the stars."

* * *

To kill a gray wolf and a coyote is a very different matter altogether. One good snap from a gray wolf is quite enough to convince most any one dog, or any two dogs, that distance "lends enchantment," especially a green dog at this kind of quarry.

* * *

This fizzle should teach each contestant to go to work and practice on a few gray wolves before he comes to the front with his dogs, as true gray wolf dogs, will ultimately result in good to all concerned, as there is and will be a large demand for dogs that can and will kill gray wolves.

* * *

The owners were foolish in holding that two of their dogs could kill a wolf. The ranch men don't ask for such dogs. They say give me a pack of four or six and we will be satisfied. But the greyhound men who seemed, by the way, to have had things all their own way in the management of this contest, steps up and says, "What! four or six deerhounds? What! four or six Borzois? Nonsense! we can kill a gray wolf with four greyhounds ourselves!" A statement I would much rather see demonstrated than to hear about, and which to my mind will stand a lot of demonstrating before I am convinced, and if I was a gambling man I would wager a few dollars on the result, but as I am not I will contribute a small sum toward a pool, if others will do likewise, and thus raise a snug little sum which Mr. Greyhounds can have provided any three or four of them can kill a found gray wolf.

* * *

Mr. Hacke should have the encouragement and not the wholesale ridicule and condemnation which I know will be heaped on his head. I am certain he has acted in good faith in every way and has spent his money for our good, like a man, but foul yelps of the jackals will occur as usual and "I told you so" will be thick and plenty. Aloin.

PIERCE'S AUCTION SALE.

The Collection of Fine Looking Road Horses, Driving Teams, Standard Mares, Colts and Fillies to be Sold.

Years ago, Ira and Henry Pierce engaged in breeding and raising trotting horses. Both were good judges and careful business men, and in time their possessions of good stock accumulated. Whenever they found a good mare possessing merit for sale they bought her and placed her in the breeding ranks, and after they purchased the handsome stallion, Bay Rose, 2:20½, they bred a number of these mares to him; consequently, their stock increased so that they decided to hold annual sales. In order to make these sales attractive they have set an example which will no doubt be followed by many other breeders—that is, in selecting and selling such animals as will satisfy all classes of horsemen and breeders. Their first sale this year will eclipse every one heretofore held, and a review of the catalogue will cause every horseman to exclaim: "I will try and be there!" Here are the finest of roadsters and road teams, and the most royal of royal-bred colts, and fillies, and broodmares in foal to the greatest of stallions. Those seeking Clydesdale mares can have an opportunity of selecting some of the finest individuals ever sold at auction.

The first two trotters in the list, Mollie and Taylor, are good looking gray mares, that can be worked single or double, and as they are by Alonzo Hayward, 2:30, out of General Taylor mares, they must be as tough as iron and will prove valuable anywhere.

Caterer, by Jester D., is a growthy roan colt and will make a good general-purpose horse.

Liz is a sorrel mare by Kentucky Whip; stinted to Brookdale (a son of Woodnut, 2:16¾); she is a fast pacer.

Some one will be there who will need a good game, bay gelding, Hard Lines, by Reliance, 2:22½, out of Sallie Hart by Mambrino Rattler, will satisfy him. He is the making of a fast trotter, is well-proportioned, and a horse that will prove valuable.

There is no finer son of The Moor on this Coast to-day than the horse, Grand Moor (sire of Abdol, 2:28), he is the sire of the two-year-old colt, Grand, out of the game trotting mare, Flora Belle, by Alonzo Hayward, 2:30. Grand is considered one of the finest descendants of The Moor blood in this State.,

The excellently-bred son of Strathmore, called Cresco, is ably represented by the standard mare Nancy C., out of Nancy, by Capt. Webster, sire of Venus (dam of Cupid 2:18, Adonis 2:11 and Leah, the filly that won all her races last year, Frank 2:20, Freestone 2:20 and the dam of Crescent 2:23½) by Belmont, sire of Venture 2:27¼. She is a "green one," and although a perfect driving animal, has shown evidences of becoming a very fast trotter.

Flyer is a large rangy filly whose blood lines should at once recommend her; she combines the blood of Almont, Nutwood, Electioneer, through his best son, Anteeo, 2:16½, George M. Patchen Jr. 31, and on the dam's side she traces to the great campaigner and the dam of campaigners, Katy Tricks. Flyer will trot in 2:25 this fall if given any track work.

Redwood, 2:27, by Nutwood 600, is the sire of Daisy R., that will be highly esteemed by the lucky purchaser.

The bay mare Belleta, by Mambrino Wilkes (sire of Balkan, 2:15, etc.), out of Poscora Belle, by Billy Hayward; second dam, Poscora Maid, by Poscora, is pure-gaited, a perfect trotter and should be given a record this fall. She is standard.

Lady Allen, by Vick's Ethan Allen Jr., is a regular breeder; her produce is her best recommendation. She is stinted to Bay Rose, 2:20½.

The most noted mare in her day in California was the $22,000 mare Lady Blanchard, 2:26¼, by Whipple's Hambletonian out of Lady Livingstone (dam of Whippleton and Bloomfield Maid), by General Taylor. She is strong and healthy; Mr. Pierce has a two-year-old filly by Waldstein and a one-year-old filly by Memo from this mare. She was stinted to Bay Rose last year, and is believed to be with foal.

The two Prompter mares, Clarissa and Theresa, should be purchased by some owners of Hambletonian stallions who desire to get colts that will trot extremely fast at a very early age. They are both standard and individually excellent.

There are no mares more sought for at present in the East by breeders than the daughters and descendants of Monroe Chief, 2:18¼ for they are proving invaluable in the harem. Mon Tricks the grand-looking standard daughter of this great horse is a mare of most excellent finish, and as she is out of Sally Tricks, by Patchen Vernom; second dam Katy Tricks (dam of Conde 2:20 and Empress 2:24) and is heavy with foal to Bay Rose 2:20½, she should be secured by some one of the many owners of stock farms here. Her filly Rose Vine by Bay Rose will also be sold, and we know she will be able to show her merit at the sale.

Monica is another good daughter of Monroe Chief, 2:18¼, she is only five years of age, a sure foal-getter; the prospects are most favorable for her dropping a foal to Bay Rose, 2:20½, about a week after the sale. Her filly, Rosette, will also be sold. Monica's dam is Poscora Belle, by Billy Hayward 489, a mare that money cannot buy, for everything she ever produced has trotted fast. Monica is standard, and breeders know the value of standard mares on their stock farms.

One of the best-bred young mares in the lot is Ida Wilkes, by Mambrino Wilkes, out of Ida May, Jr. (dam of Lady Ellen, 2:29½, dam of three in the list), by Owen Dale. If she ever gets an opportunity she will enter the list quite easily, then what a broodmare she will make, standard and registered as she is?

Lucy Collier is a thoroughbred-looking mare by Almont Ford, out of Lena, by Wm. Welch. She is a strong, pure-gaited trotter, level-headed, and a broodmare that can be depended upon. This mare was purchased for $1,000, and at that price was considered remarkably cheap. She is with foal to Bay Rose, 2:20½.

The demand for the Sidneys seems unabated, and from all parts of the United States applications have been received by the owner of this famous sire for colts and fillies. There is no doubt that this stallion is considered among the greatest of all sires. This year a number of "baby" trotters and pacers by him will be taken East, and after our Eastern brethren have seen what these youngsters are capable of doing, the demand for the colts and fillies by Sidney will be greater than ever, and prices will increase in proportion. One hesitates before making a statement regarding the trotting records made at Valensin Farm every week. In this sale Mr. Pierce is giving the public an opportunity to make money, for the mares he purchased from Mr. Valensin are heavy with foal, and all of them are good for many years in the harem. Miss Casserly is a chestnut mare by Eugene Casserly, out of a daughter of Hambletonian 725; second dam, Belle Rene by Volscian. Clara P. is a bay mare by Don Victor (by Williamson's Belmont), out of a daughter of Colusa, by Belmont; she got a record of 2:38. Towhead, by Echo, is another handsome broodmare; she is the dam of St. Nicholas (trial), 2:27¼ as a three-year-old. Echo mares are getting very scarce, and she is one of the best individually. Maye, by Newland's Hambletonian, out of a daughter of Langford; second dam, sister to Bell Alta, is another good mare. Miss Trehern is a large, fine-looking bay mare by Gen. McClellan 143, out of Belle Mahone (dam of Memorandum, 2:34¼ at three years, and grandam of Voucher, 2:22), by Norfolk; second dam, that great mare Maid of the Oaks, by Jack Hawkins (sire of the dams of Balkan, 2:15, Mollie Drew, 2:27, Echora, 2:23½, etc.) Jack Hawkins has left a name that will be perpetuated through his daughters for all time to come. Jennie O'Jones is a grand-looking mare by Hubbard (the four-miler), son of Planet (sire of the dam of Palo Alto, 2:08¾, Gertrude Russell, 2:23½ and Big Jim, 2:23½). Jennie O'Jones' dam was by that game trotter, Gen. Taylor, whose name appears in the pedigrees of so many campaigners. Belle Patterson, by Williamson's Belmont, is known as a producer, she is out of a mare by Hanley's Hiatoga. Dagmar is a good-looking chestnut mare by Hambletonian 725, out of the Ralston mare. Lurline (dam of Monroe S., 2:20) contains more of the blood of Williamson's Belmont than any mare in America, and as she is the dam of a horse that will go down in the teens this year, she should bring a long price. Individually, she is hard to excel. All of these mares have been stinted to Sidney, 2:19¾, and as he has been retired from public service, their produce will increase in value every year. Such an opportunity to get the blood of this, "the greatest horse of his age in the world," may never occur again.

That handsome mare by Hambletonian 725, Blanche, that will be sold, is stinted to Bay Rose, and as she has always proven a producer of good ones, she will be worth selecting.

Walker 8136 is represented by the chestnut colt Prince, out of Empress, 2:29¾. He is a fast youngster.

Gipsy, by Sterling, out of Sybil, is another little trotter that will make a name some day for herself; she is a good one.

The lack of colts by Sidney in this State is because most of them have been sold in the East, but no better one ever left this State than the one called Discovery, that will be sold next Wednesday. He will show for himself what he is capable of. He is out of a magnificent mare by Hambletonian 725.

One of the best young pacers in this State is the standard colt, Brino Tricks, by Mambrino Wilkes, out of Sally Tricks, by Patchen Vernon. He can pace quarters now in thirty-four seconds and should go in the 2:20 list this fall; he is good looking and game as a bull dog.

The Bay Rose fillies are all handsome, but Roseate, out of Lady Allen, is a little darling.

Cricketer, another standard colt by Mambrino Wilkes, is a fine individual, and as he combines the blood lines of Wilkes, Happy Medium, Mambrino Chief, Signal and Black Hawk, he should become a valuable horse at the head of some stock farm.

Whoever is seeking a young horse that combines the blood of The Moor through one of his greatest grandsons, and Electioneer through his greatest son, will not allow the bidding to flag when Rose Bug, by Bay Rose, 2:20½, out of Toots, by Anteeo, 2:16¼; second dam Flora, by Hambletonian 725, is offered. The public will be the best judges of the merits of this youngster then.

If anyone doubts Antevolo's qualities as a grandsire, the colt Discount, by Volo, out of Maud Palmer, by Nutwood, will quickly dismiss such an opinion. He is a perfect line trotter, and "fast as a bullet."

Will Tricks is a trotter, and is brother to Brino Tricks, the pacer above mentioned. His dam must be a great mare if these are samples of what she can do. This fellow is also standard and registered.

Alabine is a pretty name for one of the best-looking mares in the list. She is a large, strong-going, well-formed trotter by Alaska (a son of Electioneer), out of Black Woodbine, by Reardon's Patchen; second dam Woodbine, by Woodburn; third dam Victress (dam of Monarch, 2:28¾). In her we see the great Patchen and Electioneer crosses founded upon the strongest of thoroughbred foundations.

Some of our turfites will want a well-matched team, they cannot do better than to try and get the perfectly-gaited geldings, Mack and George. They do not pull a pound on the bits, and can trot together inside of three minutes. This team cannot be excelled by any in this State.

Jerome is a model road horse that a lady can drive without fear; he is pure-gaited (needing no boots), stylish, of good size, intelligent and resolute.

The owner of a stallion sometimes gets mares on his farm that are too closely bred to his horse; this is the case with the owners of Bay Rose; they have the mare Moor Maid, by The Moor (grandsire of Bay Rose) and her five-year-old daughter, Grace B., by the great Stamboul, 2:11. They bred this young mare to Direct, 2:06, the fastest harness horse in the world, and she is, they firmly believe, safe with foal. In order to give our breeders an opportunity of securing a standard and registered daughter of Stamboul they have decided to offer her for sale. This will be the only chance our owners of stock farms will have for securing an excellent individual of such royal breeding for many a day. Her second dam is by Crichton (sire of the dam of Arrow, 2:13¼, and Elwood, 2:17¾). After she has her foal by Direct what a great broodmare she will make. She is sound as a dollar, faultless in every respect, a beautiful bay in color, stands 15.2 hands, and as well finished as any judge of breeding might be led to expect.

Roser is a brown yearling colt by Bay Rose, out of Blanche, by Hambletonian 725, that may win the $250 offered by the owners of this sire. He will pay his owner to keep as a stallion.

Uno is the name of a good-looking bay mare, nine years old, by Reliance, out of Navonia, by Skenandoah; she is with foal to Dexter Prince. Her foal by such a sire will pay to train.

Jessaline, by Whippleton, is a good-sized bay mare, heavy with foal to Grandissimo, 2:27¾.

Murphy is a black yearling by Dick Patchen, out of Nellie Gray, by Prince Albert, a son of Geo. M. Patchen Jr., 31.

Maye, by Soudan, 2:27½, out of Lady Topham, by Grosvenor; second dam Lady Syer, by Geo. M. Patchen, Jr., 31, is a large, rangy yearling filly that has a very nice way of going.

The great team of heavy Clyde mares that have won premiums wherever exhibited, will also be sold. No better representatives in this State are to be found than they, and to whoever buys them they will prove a bonanza.

Vende, sired by Venture, 2:27¼, is a typical road horse sixteen hands high, that can pull two in a buggy at a three minute clip anywhere on the road.

This large lot of fine stock will be sold at the Oakland race track next Wednesday. As they will be there on and after the Monday previous to the sale, intending purchases can have an opportunity of seeing and judging for themselves. Killip & Co. will be the auctioneers. All who desire to improve their stock of horses cannot do better than to attend.

TROTTING REGISTER ASSOCIATION.

Important Meeting at Which Rules Were Adopted to Go Into Effect Immediately.

CHICAGO, April 6, 1892.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—One of the most important meetings of the American Trotting Association was held at the Auditorium to-day. A large number of stockholders were present, and rules were presented and adopted that will do more to harmonize the breeders in the United States than any that have heretofore been adopted.

The rule proposing that stallions with a record of 2:30 or better and mares or geldings with a record of 2:25 or better be declared standard-bred was, after a long discussion, tabled, but will come up again at the annual meeting in 1893. Had this rule been passed it would have been regarded as a serious blow against the interests of small breeders. Hereafter there will be separate registers for trotters and pacers, and thus harmony is again restored within the ranks.

The trotting standard as adopted provides these rules to secure admission to registration. When an animal meets the requirements of admission and is duly registered it shall be accepted as a standard-bred trotting animal. These standards go into effect to-day:

First—Any trotting stallion that has a record of 2:30 or better, provided any of his get has a record of 2:35 trotting, or better, or provided his sire or dam is already a standard trotting animal.

Second—Any mare or gelding that has a trotting record of 2:30 or better.

Third—Any horse that is the sire of two trotters with records of 2:30 or better.

Fourth—Any horse that is the sire of one trotter with a record of 2:30 or better, provided he has any of the following additional qualifications: A trotting record of 2:30 or better, or is the sire of two other animals with trotting records of 2:35, or has a sire or dam that is already a standard trotting animal.

Fifth—Any mare that has produced a trotter with a record of 2:30.

Sixth—The progeny of a standard trotting horse, when out of a standard trotting mare.

Seventh—The female progeny of a standard trotting horse, when out of a mare by a standard trotting horse.

Eighth—The female progeny of a standard trotting horse, when out of a mare whose dam is a standard trotting mare.

Ninth—Any mare that has a trotting record of 2:35 or better, whose sire or dam is a standard trotting animal.

This is the new pacing standard: First, any pacing stallion that has a record of 2:25, or any horse that is the sire of two pacers with records of 2:25. Fourth, any horse that is the sire of one pacer with the record of 2:25 or better, provided he has either of the following additional qualifications:

First—Pacing record, 2:30 or better.

Second—Is sire of two other animals with pacing records of 2:30.

Third—Has a sire or dam that is already a standard pacing animal.

Fifth—Any mare that has produced a pacer with a record of 2:25 or better.

Sixth—The progeny of a standard pacing horse when out of a standard pacing mare.

Seventh—The female progeny of a standard pacing horse when out of a mare whose dam is a standard pacing mare.

Ninth—Any mare that has a pacing record of 2:30 or better whose sire or dam is a standard pacing animal.

Tenth—The progeny of a standard trotting horse out of a standard pacing mare, or of a standard pacing horse out of a standard trotting mare.

Hereafter performances against time to receive recognition must be trotted or paced at regular races, and must be on the programme with no less than two regular events.

This is believed to have been aimed at the Independence track, which turned out records by the wholesale last fall.

The old Board of Directors, with the exception of Walter Clark of Battle Creek, Mich., F. L. Coombs of Napa City, Cal., and H. C. Jewett of Buffalo, N. Y., were re-elected.

The three new Directors are S. A. Brown, of Kalamazoo, Mich., M. W. Cliver of Cincinnati, O., and O. A. Sanburn of Sterling, Ill.

William R. Allen was re-elected President; F. S. Waters, Vice-President; F. S. Gorton, Treasurer; J. H. Steiner, Secretary and Registrar.

Blood Horse Directors Meet.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association last Wednesday night at their rooms, 313 Bush street, President H. I. Thornton presided. A letter was read from Theodore Winters, of Washoe, Nev., stating that it would be impossible for him to officiate as Presiding Judge at the coming meeting. Thereupon Thomas H. Williams was selected to fill the responsible position.

The question of admitting ladies free of charge came up, and was warmly discussed. The ungallant were victorious, and the ladies will have to pay. This refers to the grand stand and places outside within the gates—except the clubhouse. Members of the Association, of course, will be allowed to bring a limited number of ladies to the clubhouse.

After the bids for the various privileges had been acted upon and a number of bills audited the meeting adjourned.

The Haggin Sale.

Those in need of a good road or work horse or Shetland pony should not forget that 200 head of this description from the Haggin ranchos will be sold by Killip & Co. on Tuesday and Wednesday, May 10th and 11th. Those who have seen the Haggin horses at former sales know that no finer lot could be asked for. Catalogues will be ready April 10th, and the animals to be placed under the hammer can be seen Saturday, May 7th, at the salesyard, corner of Market street and Van Ness avenue, this city.

The World's Columbian Exposition.

Send 50 cents to Bond & Co., 576 Rookery, Chicago, and you will receive post paid, a four hundred page advance Guide to the Exposition, with elegant Engravings of the Grounds and Buildings, Portraits of its leading spirits, and a Map of the City of Chicago; all of the Rules governing the Exposition and Exhibitors, and all information which can be given out in advance of its opening. Also, other Engravings and printed information will be sent you as published. It will be a very valuable Book, and every person should secure a copy.

NAPA SODA sold in all saloons, restaurants and drug stores on the Pacific Coast.

Our Champion Trotters.

In looking over the records the reader's attention is at once attracted by the number of "Californians" that appear in the list. The last, and the fastest trotter on the list, commencing with the gray mare Lady Suffolk, that got her record of 2:28 on the old Beacon Course, Long Island, October 7, 1844, is the California-bred queen, Sunol, that got her record of 2:08, at Stockton, October 20, 1891. This table covers a period of a little over forty-seven years.

The champion five-year-old that appeared in 1868 and the first to go in the list was Tattler, a gray horse by Pilot Jr.; his record of 2:26 was not beaten by any five-year-old until 1872, some four years afterwards, and then by Lady Maud, 2:22, who gained celebrity again by being the dam of the great two-year-old Monbars, 2:16½. Sunol appears at the end of the list with her mark of 2:08¼, standing out in bold relief as a representative Californian.

Coming to the four-year-old brigade, the name of Bruno appears heading the list. As a 2:30 performer he made this record at Flushing, New York, in 1865. He was by Hambletonian 10, out of Kate. Fourteen years after Sunol took first place, and now holds the three lowest records, 2:15, 2:14½ and 2:19½.

The champion three-year-olds that have entered the "charmed circle" number exactly ten, and they broke in at Lexington, Ky., October 1, 1874, Lady Stout being the leader. The Californians, Hinda Rose, Sable Wilkes and Sunol (the latter the fastest with her record of 2:10½), have had the other two champions, Elaine and Steinway, for companions on this coast. Even these are now recognized as strictly Californian, both having sired champions: the former was the dam of Norlaine, 2:31½, the champion yearling for three years; the latter the sire of Cricket, 2:10, the champion pacer of 1890.

As the years rolled by the two-year-old Californians got all the records, viz: Sweetheart 2:25, 1880, Fred Crocker 2:25½, 1880, Wildflower 2:21, 1881, Sunol 2:20½, Sunol 1888, 2:18, Arion, 2:15¾, 2:14½ and 2:10¾. Surely there must be "something in the climate" to make youngsters trot so fast in this State.

With the exception of the brown filly Sudie D., by Hambletonian 5864, in 1887, every champion yearling that has trotted inside of three minutes was bred in California. They made their first appearance in 1881, as phenomenals, led by Pride—a very appropriate name, by the way—who got her record of 2:44 at the Bay District track, November 5, 1881, on the same day the Palo Alto filly, Hinda Rose, came to the front in the battle of the giants. She got her record of 2:43 and reduced it the next week to 2:36½; then the infant brigade kept quiet for six years. The "surprise" came from the Blue Grass region the shape of the little brown filly, Sudie D., who lowered the mark to 2:35½. The Californians were challenged to beat that mark; Palo Alto sent Norlaine out, and she wrested the crown from her Eastern rival, who was only queen one month. Norlaine set the mark at 2:31½, just one second and a half outside of the "magic circle." For three years nothing further was done until Mr. Corbitt, of the San Mateo stock farm, thought the silence unendurable, and forthwith Freedom, by Sable Wilkes, was piloted safely inside of 2:30 by that peerless reinsman, John A. Goldsmith, the mark was set at 2:29¾, and people marvelled at it. No greater performance ever astonished the thousands of breeders and horsemen, and doubts were expressed regarding the colt's age, but the truth was mighty and did prevail, Freedom was crowned "king of the yearlings." The battle was begun in earnest, and Palo Alto's brown filly Bell Bird, driven by Charles Marvin, essayed the task of blotting out the "king's" record and establishing herself as queen. On October 6th, at the kite-shaped track at Stockton, she did it twice, the first successful attempt in 2:27¾ and the second in 2:26½. Her glory was short-lived, however, for in exactly thirty days Frou Frou started, driven by Millard Sanders, and trotted to the same mark, 2:26½, but the chestnut lassie kept lowering it, and in seven days after set the mark 2:25½ for the whole trotting world to shoot at.

The stallion record, as every one knows, is also held by a Native of the Golden West, Palo Alto, and his record of 2:08¼ is another great factor in summing up the total of how our California trotters appear in the great statistical tables.

The above list of champions is, to all thinking minds, most conclusive evidence as to the merits of this State as a horse-breeding centre. There are many horses young and old in training in this State, or about to be trained, that will appear among the tables of champions, and that is one way, perhaps, that will attract the attention of the Eastern breeders to the fact that this State has only commenced to send out "wonders," for in the last ten years it has done more to enhance the value of trotting horses than any other State in the Union.

The Value of Imported Blood.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof," said some philosopher many years ago. It is a true saying, but pudding is not the subject we intend to discuss at present, but horseflesh. The thoroughbred stallions brought over to America from England, France and Australia have been wonderfully successful in producing fleet and game racehorses, but, as well as we admit they have done, when imported mares have been mated with native American stallions the produce has in almost every instance made its mark on the turf. Take our wonderful performers of the past ten years as a sample of what can be done, and when one looks into the matter he is at once astonished and delighted. A change of climate and a sharp outcross works wonders, truly. If English, French and Australian horses can accomplish so much when mated with native American mares and imported mares perform such wonders when stinted to American horses, does it not stand to reason that the English, French and Australian racehorses could be improved by bringing a number of American stallions and mares into their countries? We implicitly believe it would result satisfactorily, but the Englishman and Australian, as a rule, believe that there is no such thing possible as improving their race of thoroughbred horses. Americans are less prejudiced than their brothers across the sea on this question, hence we are improving every day our breed of racehorses. According to a number of thoroughly-posted English writers, the thoroughbred horses of Great Britain are not as good to-day in point of stamina as they were twenty-five years ago. Ours are deteriorating in this respect, too, through inbreeding and failure in most instances to get a good outcross. By importing thoroughbred stallions and mares from foreign countries we get the desired outcross, and the English and French people, by securing American horses and matrons, could also get a valuable cross.

Among the real good American race horses from imported mares that we might mention are Kingston, His Highness and La Tosca, the champions of last season in the two and three-year-old and aged divisions; Laggard and Sluggard, from imp. Dawdle; Racine and Fairy, from imp. Fairy Rose; Flambeau, from imp. Flirt; Rinfax and Nomad, from imp. Amelia; Getaway, from imp. Cutaway; Ormonde and Mulatto, from imp. Patilla; Nero, from imp. Queen Bess; Rhono, and Rosebud, from imp. Rosetta; Raindrop and Tearless, from imp. Teardrop; Catalpa, Mabel Glenn and Dungarven, from imp. Calphurnia, and numberless others. We have given the imported mares in the Palo Alto stud because it brings the matter close to our homes, and any one can take up a catalogue and see how the imported mares produce two winners to one native mare in a majority of cases. It is not because better blood flows in their veins or that they were better race mares, for this cannot be claimed for them, but they simply make a sharp outcross, and that is what is needed in this country. Potent as was the blood of the great Lexington, there is such a thing as getting a surfeit of it, and we should cast prejudice to the winds and endeavor to get a good outcross once in a while, whether the blood that we need comes from Kamschatka or Madagascar. If our bigoted English, Australian and French friends would only cast off the cloak of prejudice and give us a little reciprocity in the horse line, all parties would be benefitted thereby and a profitable trade between the countries established as well. We are getting our eyes open to the value of an outcross, and trust our brethren over the ocean may come to a realization of its worth in the work of breeding good race horses.

Some Good Suggestions.

While the directors of the various associations are trying to solve the difficult question as to the best way to make racing popular, there are a number of deep thinkers who have given the subject serious consideration, and the following, written by one of these gentlemen, "hits the nail squarely on the head," and we believe that it would pay the association well that adopts this plan. Once get the public interested in racing and success will surely follow; free admission to the races is the only way to insure its accomplishment. The industry of breeding good animals will not become universal until there is a universal demand for the good ones that the general public has been taught to select by witnessing the contests for superiority.

San Francisco, April 8, 1892.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—The way to make a race meeting, whether it be trotting or running, popular, is to get the public interested. The success of a meeting depends upon the attendance; making the amusement a popular one will tend to raise the standard of excellence of the horses and their value in the market. This being the case, I offer a few suggestions which I implicity believe will bring about the desired result:

Make the entrance to the grounds absolutely free, and charge a price for tickets admitting to the grand stand, reserved balcony and quarterstretch. The experiment has been tried on a number of tracks, and is an old-time custom on some of the leading European courses; experience has proven its success. If it were tried here I feel safe in asserting that thousands of spectators would flock to see the racing and thereby add to the life of the meeting, and a majority, after being induced to attend by a free gate, would purchase tickets for some one of the reserved places. The management could safely count on getting enough money from the grand stand, the balcony and the quarter-stretch tickets to make up for what they would lose on free admission to the gate, while the amount realized from privileges, such as pool, bookmaking, bar, refreshments, etc., would be nearly doubled.

Another thing to be taken into consideration, is the fact that having the crowd there (by increasing the liveliness of the scene), it would tend to interest those who had money to pay and went there for the excitement of the place and the contests. It might be necessary for the management to increase the number of marshals or special policemen on the grounds, as the free gate might draw a large miscellaneous crowd, but by this precautionary measure that could easily be controlled. If a policeman was stationed at the gate, who could recognize objectionable characters quickly, they could be refused admittance to the grounds.

Another thing that would add to the interest of the races and popularity to racing, and that is to see that the public is protected. Let the Association employ paid judges and starters, adopt more stringent rules in regard to starting of fields of horses; make the meeting lively by having no longer waits than are absolutely necessary between races, and not act as if they were running the meeting in the interest of the bar. The bar will do business enough if the crowd is large, and these suggestions are offered and I would like to see some association try the experiment on this coast this year. Yours,

"Fairy Rose."

It is not our aim to theorize on thin air, but on the contrary to applaud that system of breeding which produces the fastest and gamest trotters. If a cross of thoroughbred close up will secure the best results, by all means let us have the blood of the galloper in the harness horse, and if "intense trotting blood" in the trotter brings us closer to the two-minute goal, that we should breed trotter to trotter will be unquestioned. But at present the fact remains that the three fastest trotters in the world (Sunol, Maud S. and Palo Alto) have thorough blood not far removed. The Kentucky Stock Farm claims that the thoroughbred-in-the-trotter theorists (classing us amongst them) are in a bad way. They base their claim partly on the editorial that appeared in this paper not long ago, in which we said in conclusion: "The thoroughbred of the present could easily distance all the purely-bred Arabians, Barbs or Turks, and when the time comes that a horse can show five or more crosses of good trotting blood on both sides of the house, there is reason to believe that he will know little but trot, and trot fast. The business of breeding trotters is comparatively new now, but there will yet be a fixed type of trotter, to whom the gallop will be a gait almost unknown." We have not altered our opinion an iota, and believe there will yet be a fixed type of trotter. But any house that has not a good foundation is likely to be blown away by the first severe wind storm. The good, game trotters of the present have excellent foundations, fired up as they are with the warm blood of the thoroughbred, and we confidently look for much greater speed at the trot that has yet been reached. The record-breaker of the future will not be a cold-blooded beast though, "by a dun horse out of a piebald mare, pedigree untraced," but will have some good, stout blood for a foundation. The wise man buildeth upon a rock, the foolish man upon the sand, and no statesman ever had an idiotic mother. It is foolish in these days to scoff at thorough blood in the trotter, for almost without exception the best harness performers trace to the thoroughbred rock on one side of the house or the other. When any person can demonstrate to us that thorough blood has been a detriment to trotters, we will gladly accept the inevitable, but, as we said before, the "trotting industry" is a comparatively new one, and there is as yet no fixed type. Build your light harness horse on a good foundation, and the day of the two-minute trotter will yet come.

The Summer Meeting.

By referring to another column in this journal it will be seen that the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association will hold their summer meeting Saturday, August 6th, and the following Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. Nearly $11,000 will be given at this meeting, and races have been arranged for nearly all classes of horses. Pacers and trotters will have an opportunity of making their first appearance on the turf, and the campaign will begin in earnest. This large organization includes in its roll of membership horse-breeders from all parts of the Pacific Coast, and, as many of them are beginning to feel it is about time for them to develop their young colts and fillies and see if they are worthy of competing for the purses offered, the Directors can look for a large list of entries before the last day for receiving them, July 20th. We predict the greatest success for this meeting, and hope that the members will make as many entries as possible, so that each day's races will be noted for its pleasant surprises.

THOROUGHBREDS IN TRAINING.

List of Gallopers Quartered at Bay District Track—Largest Number on Record.

The ancient Bay District course and its immediate vicinity has had a perfect transportation within the week just nearing a close. The croak of the lonesome frog and the chirp of myriads of crickets have been drowned by the hoof-beats of blue blooded thoroughbreds and the glad shouts of expectant trainers, stable boys and hosts of hopeful followers of the festive thoroughbred. The musty stables have been subjected to a thorough cleaning-out, and here and there fences have been built to keep out intruders and for the safety of the valuable animals housed at the course. From out the open doors of stables floats the merry music of the sunny South thrummed on the darkey's loved old banjo, further along can be heard some joyful notes from a mandolin and snatches of Spanish song, while clustered about are many happy-faced urchins, down on knees or sitting prone on the lap of Mother Earth, ever and anon giving vent to their feelingswith shouts of "Come a-seven!" "I'm up!" "How can I lose?" "Come, my honey!" "Now I've got you!" Out on the track can be seen bunches of hooded horseflesh walking slowly around, Indian file, then further on four or five that are not bianketed being sent a fast half, at another point a group taking a slow gallop. Some are fat as the proverbial pig, in others the ribs can be discerned through the fine coat, but all are being prepared for the combing battles of the turf. Stop watches are so common nowadays that it is a hard matter to give a horse a fast trial without at least half-a-dozen persons knowing as much about it as the trainer of the flyer himself, and when the bugle sounds for the mount in the opening event to-day the person who has kept his galloper's capabilities from the investigators will indeed be entitled to a diamond-studded medal. The weather has been all that could be desired during the past six days, and never before have so many thoroughbreds been quartered at the local track. Last Sunday, the largest number of "strings" arrived, but the horses have been coming in at an encouraging rate ever since that time. Following is a list of the thoroughbreds in training at Bay District course, together with their pedigrees, names of owners, trainers and jockeys:

STABLE OF W. O'B. MACDONOUGH—DAN DENNISON, TRAINER; JOE NARVAEZ, FIRST JOCKEY.

STABLE OF W. B. SANBORN.

Inkerman, b g, 5, by Ironclad—Alice, by Wheatley.
The Flood, b c, 2, by Flood—Marilee, by Glengarry.

STABLE OF PHILIP SIEBENTHALER.

Sheridan, ch h, 6, by Young Bazar—Lost Girl.
King Hooker, ch h, 5, by King Hooker—Viola.

The stables of Col. H. I Thornton, S. I. Reed and others, in the hands of Ben Timmons, were booked to arrive to-day (Friday) from Sacramento, adding a dozen or so to the above list. Stemler was expected with the great dark bay colt Lodowic, and others also.

Old Applause looks better than he ever did in his life, and is likely to surprise someone before the meeting is over. One of Billy Appleby's two-year-olds (the John Happy–Jess colt) is a gigantic youngster, but mighty well-turned. He has been ailing, though. A racy-looking chunk of a horse is Echo, a three-year-old colt by Judge McKinstry–Lottie L., by Wildidle. The Cyrus–Marcella colt, Bijou, is the best thing in Rose's stable, and that is saying a good deal, for Sir Roy is a pretty fair one himself. Acclaim looks well and powerful, but is hardly up to a bruising race as yet, we fear. The best youngsters in the Macdonough stable are the gray Warwick colt, Grandee, and the brown sister to Sir John, Lady Marian. Bessie W., in the same string, looks well. In McCarty's lot Prize, Adolphus and Castanet are our fancy in the two-year-old division, while Romair is sure to be a magnificent racehorse if well handled this season. Herald and Munster in the Kerr stable are bigger than the proverbial house and twice as handsome, but look a little too high to do much just at present. The Apache–Brook filly is declared to be a "corker" Royal Flush, in the Owens stable, is a magnificent-looking chestnut colt, welt-turned and with lots of substance. Of the three-year-olds at the track, we do not know any better one to pin faith to than this brother to Acclaim. Captain Al looks splendidly. Duke Stevens, in the veteran William Donathan's stable, is declared by the San Jose contingent to be chain lightning, as is Conde, in Orville Appleby's stable. The best thing in the Maltese Villa stable is supposed to be Sir Beel. Geraldine is hardly herself at present. Cadmus, the Palo Alto youngster, is generally believed to be a crackerjack, but as private trials and races are different things altogether, it remains to be seen what the horses we have named will do. Good trials are reported as being made by Fairy, in the Rose stable, and the Lisbon colt, in Thompson's stable—but they will soon get the flag and show for themselves.

There are lo's of high-class two-year-olds at Bay District, but the three-year-olds are not considered as good as the youngsters, taken as a class.

Trotter vs. Hackney.

"Each new invention only serves to worry and annoy our troubles:
Thus science follows after people of our land,
With motor, horse and cable to keep days work scarcely able
To walk or ride in peace o' mind—an' 't is n't safe to stand."

So sings Ella Wheeler Wilcox in the Century for April, and very appropriately calls her song, "Wail of an Old-Timer." There is more than one old-timer who will join in the plaint, and none of them with greater unction than the old-time road-drivers. Their pastime, while not entirely a recollection, has been so demoralized by "motor, wire an' cable" in our day, and so nearly discomfited by the breaking up of roads in and near our large cities and towns that it is a mere shadow of what it was in the past.

Even with the "speed drivers" which are now, or promise to be in the future, a feature of the larger cities of the United States, there is trouble in reaching them owing to the occupation of streets by the railways, and these carried so far into the suburbs that it is nearly impossible to escape the annoyance, and whoever essays the task of a trip from the central residence portion of the city to the drive must be somewhat enthusiastic in his fondness for the distinctly American recreation. The obstructions in the way of road-driving may have had something to do with the late hackney craze, but I am more inclined to the belief that that "fad" has been one of the causes for the falling off of the interest in the "roadster." A craze for aping foreign fashions, an anxiety to emulate European practices, an overruling desire to pattern after the Old World models and adopt the customs, however frivolous, which prevail on the far side of the Atlantic. The younger pilgrims to European shrines cannot resist the glamourie which surrounds titled aristocracy and from the cockade in the hat of the flunkey to the cumbersome equipage every detail is firmly fixed on their shallow brain, not an item lost, the whole paraphernalia mentally photographed for reproduction to startle and surprise their neighbors at home.

Nearly as ludicrous as when a South Sea Islander returns from his trip and parades under a tropical sun with a high beaver hat, a huge pair of jack boots, garnished with jingling Mexican spurs, and a breech clout to complete his costume. The "turnout" which has so thoroughly captivated the anglicised American, when compared with the typical "rig" of his own country, falls so far short in beauty, in harmony of proportion, in all the essentials which attract admiration, that there is little necessity for comparison. A glance is sufficient to decide that one is immeasurably inferior in point of beauty when both are at rest, when in motion the gap is still wider and the foreign importation not worthy of being classed in the same category.

The "chunk of a horse" which has been picked as the king of the tribe, with short, stubby legs, a middle piece after the pattern of a Devon bull, cloddy quarters and shoulders, short neck and ears, tail curtailed until it looks like a knob to hold the crupper in place, and cannot be termed either useful or ornamental; "plenty of bone" I will admit, so much of it that the small (in proportion) ligaments and tendons are completely dominated by the spongy substance; no quality, no finish were it not for the heavy harness, heavily mounted with silver and gilding he would look more like a miniature draft horse than a horse for a gentleman to drive. The vehicle is in keeping with the sturdy razeed draft horse. Cumbersome and unsightly: paint, varnish, upholstery and heraldic devices giving the lumbering trap the only claim to consideration.

Years ago I read a description of an English scene, the delineator of which after a glowing eulogy on the landscape wrote: "The crowning beauty was a handsome English girl on a thoroughbred horse under the spreading branches of one of the grand old oaks in the park, girl, horse and oak the three glories of the country." America can present the same kind of a spectacle equally as deserving of encomium, and California can show a trio of glories, two of which, girl and oak, will win the first prize over all competitors, and I cannot believe that all England can produce a finer specimen of the thoroughbred than this coast can show. But granting that England can equal America in the highest type of equine form and beauty, when hackneys and colts are brought into juxtaposition with our highly-bred trotters, the differences are so palpable and so much in favor of the trotter, that a competent judge of beauty and of form, will say that in every point the trotter is superior, and that for all the purposes which horses are usually used (unless it may be to carry an old man of heavy corporosity when the 14½ hand hack or cob will make mounting easier) the trotter excels.

Were I called upon to present the most striking picture of horse life in North America the still scene presented to the artist for reproduction on canvas would be a pair of American trotters "hitched" to an American road wagon and, of course, an American harness. Hundreds of horses could be found which would serve for the living part of the outfit, thousands and tens of thousands superior in form to the best hackney ever imported or bred here, but say that Antevolo and Stamboul were companions for the nonce, the wagon turned out from one of our best shops for that species of work; for harness there is no necessity for going outside of San Francisco. Plenty of men to grace the seat; enough of them yet who would not be ashamed to have their "picture taken" in such an un-English position, and young men, too, though I would prefer to show one of the old-timers, even were his hair shaded with gray, and his shoulders a trifle less square than a score of years ago, when the Cliff House road was in its glory. The skill of an "old master" would be necessary to show the ruddy cheek, the bright eye, the look of satisfaction, and then when the scene changed, and motion portrayed, the intensity of feeling, the fierce joy, the absorption of faculties, while the brush lasted, victory or defeat either way, not affecting the steady nerves. All of these characteristics clearly outlined on the countenance which has felt these emotions year after year. And there are other reasons for selecting the old-timer to hold the reins over our pictured trotters. The most enthusiastic drivers of my acquaintance have been men on the shady side of the half-century mark, and as they grew older, there appeared to be a keener appreciation of the enjoyments of road-driving. Every year added to their pleasures, and rarely, indeed, has age interfered with their regular routine, so long as there were opportunities to gratify their propensities. A boon to the active business men of cities and towns; to old men, whether in business or retired, road-driving is more than a boon, a health-giving exercise, better than all the drugs in the pharmacy, better than health resorts, famous springs and sanitariums

But to our pictures. Few of our readers who have not a clear conception of the American rig, a very small proportion however, who are at all familiar with the hackney, and English vehicles which cannot be separated from the animal, the horse would be out of place in the shafts of a light road-wagon and a pair of them before a one hundred and forty pound Brewster an unseemly agglomeration. The low heavy wheels, the big crooked shafts, a harness which will cover a good deal of the horse and afford room for lots of brass, the bridle, with its bit and chains, will weigh as much as a track harness complete. The mountings are bright and the workmanship on harness and vehicle good. Horse, harness and vehicle well-groomed; every hair lying straight, every strap just the right shade of blackness, varnish polished till it reflects the light like a mirror. And yet how inferior even at rest; in motion, pshaw! The spluttering action, jerking in front, string-halt behind. Pace! Well that is sedate enough to suit the languid young man, the two-hundred-pound dowager or the twenty-stone brewer. Stately, the embodiment of dignity, so far as dignity can be shown by the button-tailed cob, and the adornments and trappings of this ultra-aristocratic turnout.

It does not matter if the horse bears about the same resemblance to the thoroughbred, or highly-bred trotter as the prey does to the greyhound, Fashion, with a big F, sanctions the fad and no one can deny that at the late horse show in New York the "big four" (hundred) gave all their plaudits to the hackney division. Not long ago I heard a gentleman argue that that endorsement should turn the tide in favor of the swell, and that at no distant day the "American trotter" would take second place in the ranks of driving horses for gentlemen. Should his prophesy prove true one can look for almost any sort of a transformation in the tastes of people, and not entirely beyond credence when the claim is made that eventually East Indian buffaloes will drive horses from the roads.

KNEE-BANGLES.

PHILADELPHIA, March 25th, '92

JOSEPH CAIRN SIMPSON, Esq., OAKLAND, CAL. DEAR SIR:—You remember some time ago I wrote to you in reference to the contrivance to place in the fork of a pacing horse to stop him from interfering in front, and you kindly answered, stating that you was going to have it published and would send me a copy of the paper which it would appear in, and you kindly advised me to shoe him so as to better the action and boot the leg he hits. I have shod him every way I know how, have followed your advice in your book in regard to three quarter shoe, also heavy on outside with no better result. He is a pacer, comes of good stock, Tom Hal; his dam was by Pocahontas Boy, and he has no mark. The trouble is this, when leaving the ground with the right foot he turns it up and in and when going his clip 2.20 he winds the leg and brings upon the left leg at the knee and arm with the inside toe of the right foot, the left is all right he goes straight with that I boot the left leg with knee and arm boots and he bruises through them. I had steel plates put in and he came off the track bleeding like a stuck pig. As soon as he commences to hit he gets rattle-headed, can't keep him steady. I want to track him this season if he goes all right so please advise me as best you can. Have you ever had that article published yet? If so, please let me know and I will send for it.

Thanking you kindly for former recognition and hoping to hear from you soon, I am yours.

VANCE WESTBROOK,
217 South 5th Street, Philadelphia, Pa

The "contrivance alluded to in the above letter was described in Horse Portraition some twenty-six years ago, and the one instance in which it was tried that or other appliances remedied the faulty action in the worst knecknocker I ever had. Quoting from the book: "I notice there is still an enlargement of the knee which must be reduced, or there will be more likelihood of her hitting it. Her formation is such that she ought to trot without touching. Like grabbing the quarters it may have resulted from defective shoeing or bad driving. When it arises from natural action, it is one of the worst defects a trotter can have, and is generally caused by a wrong set in the elbows. We cannot change structural growth, but we can modify the effects of it by a little difference in shoeing, making the outside of the shoe a trifle the heaviest, increasing or decreasing the whole weight of the shoe, cutting away part of the iron, and rasping the corresponding part of the hoof. I once cured an inveterate "knecknocker" by making him wear an instrument similar to what hatters use to stretch hats. This machine was confined between his four legs and against his breast, by a strap running from girth to collar. It was covered and padded to prevent chaffing, placed on him when he commenced walking in the spring, every day or two lengthening the screw a trifle which gradually increased the distance between his knees as he traveled. He was kept at walking exercise for a couple of months, when he was jogged with the instrument on, till he finally acquired a different "way of going" and never hit his knee again while I had him." Recalling the particulars as well as I can after the lapse of so many years, I am somewhat in doubt regarding the efficacy of the implement used. Previous to the time mentioned the horse had been quite thin in flesh. The practice which then prevailed was plenty of feed, plenty of work and heavy sweats, and when the horse came into my possession he was nothing but skin and bone. He banged his knees so hard that he had to be thrown up and took on flesh rapidly in the idle days. His two months of walking long walk and then long jogging exercise hardened him so thoroughly that he was strong and robust, and as I parted with him before commencing an active campaign he did not have a fair trial. Then again to avoid the risks of sharp turns on a track of five-ninths of a mile, he got most of his fast work on the road, and when on the track was driven the reverse way, that being done to favor the left knee which was permanently enlarged.

It is troublesome enough to solve problems which are constantly present and to prescribe the proper treatment for horses which have never been seen a still more arduous task. Conjecture and experiment in one case, conjecture alone in the other. Mr. Westbrook has apparently exhausted tentative trial so far as shoeing goes, and further than to recommend light shoes, and still better, light tips on both fore and hind feet will let that phase of the question pass. The object of getting light weight on the feet, commensurate with proper protection, is to reduce the force of the blow, but even the bare foot is sufficient to wound. We will therefore endeavor to protect the parts which are injured so effectually that they cannot be injured, and, if possible, change the action with the same appliance. Hard leather and steel plates are not the right kind of protection against blows. The concussion is nearly as severe, and though the actual cutting may be prevented, there are bruises, frequently worse than a cut. In lieu of hard leather and steel plates, form a buffer of light and elastic material. I have found that light, tough leather, the kind which is called rawhide in our stores, but is a kind of oil tan, is the best material I have tried, better than calfskin. There has been no necessity in my practice for knee and arm protection since tips have been the order, though in some instances light knee boots have been worn on the principle that an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure. About as trying a place to test resistance is quarter and scalping boots. In both of these rawhide stuffed with hair has been found superior to hard leather, and in the case of scalping boots, where that material was substituted for copper the change was beneficial. When a horse hits a steel plate so hard that "he came off the track bleeding like a stuck pig" it may appear foolish to replace that with a few ounces of pliable leather and hair, but with a sufficient body of that the boot properly made and fitted, the blow will be comparatively harmless. It will project, of course, so that the foot will come in full contact, and it will be necessary to hold it securely in place so that it will not be turned and expose the part that must be protected. I am fully satisfied, however, that knee and arm boots can be made on this plan that will keep their place, and that without interfering with the motion of knee and elbow to any greater extent than many of the patterns which are now worn. The yielding surface will not present so great an obstacle as does the hard leather and, consequently, less likelihood of being knocked around. This is on the principle that a spike can be driven much further into wood if struck with a sledge than if the blow came from a wooden maul of the same weight and impelled by the same force.

And arguing from the same data the concussion will be greatly lessened when the hard body is replaced by the softer and with a greater elasticity. The first knee boot I ever saw made, or rather applied, as there was little to savor of construction, was simply a piece of a thick blanket rolled around the knee in several folds, extending some six inches above the joint, a strap buckled above the projection of the knee and the upper part turned down. Crude as this was it served the purpose better than many patterns I have seen in use in later years. Turning or shifting of the wrapping did not make any difference, and if the projection of the upper bone was prominent the strap would keep it in place without being drawn so tight as to interfere with the motion of the joint.

I have little faith in mechanical appliances to change the action, as it will be better to depend on boots and treatment of the feet than on "spreaders" or kindred remedies; but if boots and shoeing failed to accomplish the purpose, and the animal of sufficient promise to warrant the trouble, these would be tried. As stated before, in the few horses I have had in the past fifteen years there has not been one which has struck knee or arm.

But in the endeavor to give more "knee action" an experiment was instituted which might be of service in this case.

A rod was projected from the point of the shaft, the fastening there being made by slipping a cup over the end which was held in place by a spring catching over a round-headed screw. It projected twelve inches with a downward slope of forty-five degrees, then turned backwards, the length of that branch being twenty-five inches, the end fitted with a semi-circle which clasped the lower and outer part of the shaft sixteen inches from the point. On this rod ran a carrier which slid forward and back with as little friction as possible, and to that was attached an elastic webbing the other end fastened to a quarter boot which had an oval spur to fit in the cleft of the frog. When the foot was at its furthest back extension the elastic was at the fullest strain, and the moment the foot left the ground it aided the flexor muscles in pulling it up, and that, of course, by a sharp jerk, without interfering in any great degree with thrusting the foot forward. There was an outward pull as the rod ran parallel with the shaft, but were the object to guard against striking the knee, this could be increased by setting it outside of the line of the shaft. It was founded on the same principle as the Whittaker spreader, though I used it before I had heard of that invention. Like every other new departure in trotting horse equipments, it elicited any number of adverse criticisms and a few favorable comments. I dubbed it "Action Accellerator," and from trials on three horses, came to the conclusion that it might be made of service.

There are great drawbacks, however, in the way of using so much rigging, and until other resources were met by failure, should not advise mechanical devices. The check must not be overlooked in correcting faulty action. If, as I think it is altogether probable, Mr. Westbrook's horse is driven with a high check, lower it, and vice versa. Protect with such boots as I have outlined, on both legs, confine the fast work for a time to the stretches, and never the "right way" of the turns until the horse gains confidence that he is not going to be hurt.

The question of padded boots versus hard leather and metal is so important, that it will be made the subject of a future article.

Speaking to Horses.

The horse is possessed of as good hearing as his owner, usually, and can be made to heed words of command given in moderate tone as well as those hurled at him with all the strength of the driver's lungs. Some have gotten in the habit of yelling at their horses as if they were half a mile away, and seem to think it is the only way to get along with a team. It may be, if the horses have been educated in that way, but there is no need of teaching them in the first place.

I notice that the horses of such men don't mind as well as those of their milder-spoken neighbors; they seem to have become used to the racket, and found that nothing less than a terrific howl (and maybe a clod or cut of the whip) means much. It is noticeable that children constantly scolded pay least attention to rebukes, and the same holds good with dogs and horses in obeying orders. I believe as a rule it is best to speak to horses in a tone somewhat above the ordinary, always taking care to make the command distinct.

Never give a word of command unless it is meant. Some men say "whoa" when they don't mean for the horses to stop at all; result is, when they whoa and mean it, the horse doesn't always stop. Another thing is necessary; when certain a horse has heard, always make him obey. Some horses are like men; they hear, but don't heed, and it is necessary to wake them up every now and then. I have never seen a man yet that didn't sometimes get rattled and yell at his team with all his power, nor a team that wouldn't make most any man lose his temper occasionally; but there is no need for either man or team making a habit of it.—National Stockman.

VETERINARY.

Conducted by Wm. F. Egan, M. R. C. V. S., F. E. V. M. S.

Subscribers to this paper can have advice through this column in all cases of sick or injured horses or cattle by sending an explicit description of the case. Applicants will send their name and address that they may be identified. Questions requiring answers by mail should be accompanied by two dollars and addressed to Wm. F. Egan, M. R. C. V. S., Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco.

C. C. Oakland.—I have a bay mare four years old that never was a day sick in her life until this week. I drove her to San Francisco on Sunday last and gave her an easy drive round the Golden Gate Park. She did not appear tired or over-driven and came home feeling in good spirits. On Monday morning she refused her food and does not feel well since then. I think her throat is somewhat swollen. A friend of mine says that she is getting glanders, and says she must have caught it in the city, as it is very bad there. Is there any chance to save her, as she is now only two days sick? Please reply in your next issue, as I am very anxious about her. Can a horse take glanders by merely driving through the city? I did not let her eat or drink there, neither did I put her up in a livery stable. Answer—Your mare appears to have what is commonly called "distemper," which is not very dangerous when attended to. Keep her on soft food, such as warm bran mashes and some green grass. Poultice her throat, and keep her in a clean, well ventilated stable. Glanders can not be taken by merely driving through a city where it is prevalent, and glanders does not prevail to any extent in San Francisco. Communicate with us again in a few days.

Livery stable owner, San Francisco.—I, as a livery stable owner, think it an outrage to have us run down as being men who harbor glandered horses, and hide them from the eye of the law until our stables are so infected that we can no longer keep it secret, as you said in the Examiner a few days ago. This is an assertion that is ungrounded and should not be let pass by unnoticed. I have kept a livery stable for over sixteen years in this city, and have never had a case of glanders as far as I know of inside my stable, and furthermore, if I knew of its existence among my horses I should be the first to remove the affected animal and disinfect the stall. I have seen glandered horses outside of this State and know how fatal it is to the interests of any livery stable owner, rancher or stock owner, to allow any such disease remain among his horses. I have called at several other livery stables and inquired about this supposed epidemic, and each and every one of the proprietors declare that no such disease exists in their stables. This is not merely an assertion, but we are all prepared to make an affadavit to the effect, and will leave our stables open to inspection by any three veterinary surgeons of good standing. We are not only willing to do this, but request that the Board of Health or some other body of authority may take the matter in hand without delay, and give us a chance to clear ourselves before the public. Please put this in your veterinary column and ask your own veterinary surgeon how much glanders he has seen in the past month in the livery stables of San Francisco. Answer.—I have not seen a single case of glanders in any of the livery stables of this city during the past month, although I can recall fourteen of those places where I have attended sick horses during that time. The article referred to in the daily papers was entirely uncalled for and the writer displayed his ignorance by publishing illustrations of an entirely different disease. The article was purely sensational and horsemen need not feel alarmed, as glanders is not more prevalent now than at any other time. This disease does not exist to any extent in this city or county, in fact, this locality is freer from that terrible disease tha most other large cities in the Union. A veterinary surgeon should be employed, however, to inspect places where live stock is kept.

[Joseph Cairn Simpson, the well-known horseman and writer, and who conducts a department of this paper, stated since the publication of the article referred to above that in all of his experience on this Coast he had seen but one case of glanders and that was several years ago.—ED.]

Foals Reported.

Property of H. J. Agnew, Agnew Stock Farm, Hillsdale, Cal:

March 21—Bay mare Lena Monroe, by Monroe Chief 875, 2:18¼, dam Lena Bowles, by Ethan Allen Jr. 2903, dropped chestnut colt by Dawn 6107, 2:18¾.

March 25—Bay mare Maude, 2:20, by Bertrand 3262, dam by Hamilton Chief, dropped brown colt, no marks, by Dawn, 2:18¾.

March 26—Grey mare Daisy by Mohawk Chief, dam by Gen. Taylor, dropped brown filly, no marks, by Dawn, 2:18¾.

March 31—Bay mare Angie Wilkes, by Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼, dam Maude 2:20, by Bertrand 3262, dropped bay filly, no marks, by Dawn, 2:18¾.

Property of Marin Farm and Stock Co.:

April 3, 1892—Bay (?) colt, few white hairs in forehead, by Alcona 730, dam Rosenetta, by Whippleton 1883; second dam by Naubuc 506.

April 4, 1892—Brown filly, one hind foot white, by Alcona 730, dam Queen Ad, by Admiral 488; second dam by Blackhawk 767.

Property of P. J. Shafter.

My gray mare Pastime, by Rustic (dam of Silky, 2:26, at five years, by Dawn; of Antevenio, by Antevolo; three years, 2:33; of Secut, by Secretary; one year, 3.03—showed me an eighth in nineteen seconds last August) foaled a black filly to Leo Wilkes on Monday morning.

Property of A. Zollner, Oakland, Cal.:

April 1, 1892—Light bay colt, one hind foot white, by Alcona Jr., dam Emma Taylor, by Alexander 490; second dam Belle, by General Taylor; third dam by Boston Boy (son of Blackhawk 5 and Boston Girl, by Sir Henry).

Property of Col. Caleb Dorsey, Oakdale, Cal.:

Chestnut colt by Cyclone, dam by Thad. Stevens, son of Langford. This colt stood 41 inches high when dropped.

Property of W. O. Bowers, Sacramento, Cal.

Bay colt, foaled March 19, 1892, by Cornelius, dam the Belmont mare, Belle Mc.

Property of P. Dolan, Modesto, Cal.:

Bay colt by imp. Brutus, dam Young Jule (dam of Revolver.)

Names Claimed.

We claim the following names:

TUGAWAY, for bay colt, few white hairs in forehead, foaled April 3, 1892, by Alcona 730, dam Rosanetta, by Whippleton.

LISA, for brown filly, one hind foot white, by Alcona 730, dam Queen Ad, by Admiral 488. MARIN FARM AND STOCK CO.

I claim the name ALCONA TAYLOR for bay colt, one hind foot white, foaled April 1, 1892, by Alcona Jr., dam Emma Taylor, by Alexander 490; second dam Belle by Gen. Taylor; third dam by Boston Boy (son of Blackhawk 5 and Boston Girl, by Sir Henry. A. ZOLLNER, Oakland.

We claim the name GONZALES MAID for dark bay filly, three years old, by Junio, dam Anita G., by Fallis, 2:23.

Also claim the name LILY OF THE VALLEY for yearling bay filly by Junio, dam Anita G., by Fallis, 2:23.

GONZALEZ BROS., Gonzales, Cal.

I desire to record the name FOLLOW ME for black colt, foaled March 26, 1892, sired by Almont Patchen, 2:15; first dam, the pacing mare Lark, by Packard's Nutwood; second dam, Cora, the mother of Wormwood, 2:27, and Jolly Boy, three-year-old, trial 2:28.

BEN E. HARRIS.

I claim the name of SPOTLESS, for black filly, no white, by Leo Wilkes, dam Pastime (dam of Silky, 2:26.)

P. J. SHAFTER, Olema, Cal.

OUR great works are not perfected at once. Every picture may be touched up and improved; every rounded oratorica perion may be beautified; any piece of sculpture may bear a few more touches of the chisel. Any work of ours, in whatever line it may be, can be improved by constant retouching. There may be as much difference between the first outline and the work complete as there is between the architect's plan on paper and the last touch to the gilded dome of the citadel. Every time we drive our horse we find something we knew not of before. We may improve in many ways: filling in on one side and chiselling out of another of our equine statue. It requires at all times an effort on our part; a constant care; each day's duty marked on the work like the links of a chain; break one, and the unity is lost, the combination destroyed.

Holding Up Heads.

I see in your paper, the Horseman and Turf, Field and Farm this item to horse-owners: Teach your horses to hold their heads up high; of course (by way of parenthesis) let their heads down often to relieve their tired necks. If the Spirit of the Times shall teach me speed, "not the California paper of that name," but the spirit of Palo Alto, Pleasanton Stock Farm and others. Let us consider the high head in horses. Anglomania big head teaches high head and docked tails. Such horses are not too fly, they are all flies, their head is in chancery; their hairy hands are tied, when their tails are cut off. No flies light on 'em does not apply to these poor, upheaded brutes; they are impotent, they could not bite a fly.

Look at the race horse! Whoever saw him run with his head up, except when under a pull? How about the pacer, when he skims the ground with his head low down? A high head means a straightened shoulder blade (scapola), hence a shortened step. In the same way a high wither means excessive knee action, not the low, direct strides obtained from the thoroughbred or pacing cross. Check your horse for comfort and speed, just enough to steady them. Drive with a light hand. You get your horse's confidence through his feelings. Women say the way to a man's heart is through his stomach; I say the way to a trotting horse's heart is through his mouth. I would not write so confidently for fear of being charged with carrying my own head too high, but that I know the astute Orrin Hickok, the urbane Valensin, Goldsmith, J. C. Simpson and many drivers voice my sentiments.

Yours very truly,

RUSTIC.

How Dave Colross Cured Johnston, 2:06 1-4, of Nervousness.

The following taken from Clark's Horse Review, and republished in a late issue of the Rochester, (N. Y.) Post, is interesting to horsemen, and especially to a resident of Santa Rosa, John Colross, now in charge of Rufe Murphy's string of trotters at their stables on Sonoma avenue. It shows how Colross worked the great pacer, Johnston, 2:03¼, when he had charge of him. Johnston was a nervous horse, and when left alone would tramp up and down in his stall like a tiger in a cage. He lost flesh and did not have the strength to carry his great speed. John Splan, when he took Johnston in charge, recognized the gravity of the situation, and when he began shaping up the bay pacer to beat the world's record the first thing he did was to hunt up a former rubber of his, Dave Colross by name, and paid him twice the salary of the ordinary care-taker to devote all his time to Johnston.

The first thing Colross did was to get a small but amiable puppy, which he said he was going to put in the horse's stall for company. He was advised to keep an eye on the pup, as Johnston was not over-friendly to dogs, but Dave evidently knew what he was doing, for in a little while the dog and horse were on the best of terms. Colross, however, went further than this in his exploitation of the idea that a nervous horse needed company, because he actually took up his residence in the horse's stall, having his meals brought to him there, and practically was never absent from Johnston's side. The result was that the pacer lost his nervousness, took on flesh rapidly, and the first time he was asked to beat the world's record went out and stepped a mile in 2:03¼, taking the last quarter at the fastest clip of the journey. Goldsmith Maid had a dog to which she was much attached, and her attendant, "Old Charlie," slept out of her stall only twice in five years. Rarus would fight for his dog, a Scotch terrier called Jimmie, and other instances of famous trotters and pacers being much attached to their care-takers and animal companions are numerous.

The Blood of Guy Wilkes and Hock-Hocking.

It should not be forgotten by owners of trotting-bred mares that there is a great young stallion in our midst with the above-mentioned blood in his aristocratic veins and that of other families equally noted in the production of trotters with the ability to go fast and stay almost any route. The horse we have reference to is Hock Wilkes, son of the great Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼, dam Eda, by Hock-Hocking, the famous four-miler, winner of many great races. We all know what a sire Guy Wilkes is of great speed, for Regal Wilkes, 2:17½; Lillian Wilkes, 2:17¾; Sable Wilkes, 2:18; Allanna (p), 2:18; Rupee, (p), 2:14¾; Una Wilkes, 2:19¼, and Hazel Wilkes, 2:20, are living examples of his worth. Through Eda Hock Wilkes gets the much-prized blood of imported Trustee (which figures in the lines of Palo Alto 2.08¾; John Nelson 187 and other great horses), two crosses of Boston (sire of the grandam of Maud S., 2:08¾, and many others), imported Glencoe (sire of Revere, dam of Longfellow 2:24¼, and of Priam, the sire of Frank M., 2:17¼), and five crosses of imp. Messenger, grandsire of Abdallah 1. Mares mated with thoroughbreds from these splendid long-distance families have produced some of our gamest and best trotters. If Hock Wilkes is bred to some intensely trotting-bred mares the produce will have the same percentage of thorough blood as Sunol, 2:08¼; Maud S., 2:08¾; Jay-Eye-See, 2:10; Electricity, 2:17¾; Direct, 2:06, and other wonderful performers. Hock Wilkes himself is bred considerably like Palo Alto, 2:08¾, and Bonnie Wilmore, 2:14½, and is in addition a fine individual, only four years old. He was bred by Dr. Farnham, of this city, and is standing at a very reasonable figure. Read the advertisement on another page and address Joseph Michel, 2536 Market street, San Francisco.

A CONTRIBUTOR to the National Stockman claims to have cured cases of scratches, which were so bad that the horse could not lie down, and the legs were swollen and skin cracking "from the hips to the hoofs" by bathing with thick, sour buttermilk. The worst case was taken on Monday evening, and after three applications the animal was put at work on Thursday cured, "as sound and supple as she ever was." Two other cases were cured by two applications each, and the bare spots had been covered by a thick growth of hair in a short time. It was applied by rubbing on with a cloth for about a half-hour at a time, and its effects were almost immediate. This is worth knowing, for if it will cure so severe a case of scratches as he describes, it would cure other sores, and an ordinary case would be cured by a single bathing.

"LET 'EM!"

That's all he's got to say about it. If his stallions abuse themselves, let 'em do it.

Exactly. Let 'em waste away with the practice, ruin themselves, shorten their term of service, and get poor, miserable colts—if they get any at all, which isn't likely. Let 'em be castrated, if necessary, or let 'em suffer and be broken up with some of these metal contrivances of tacks and torture.

No use showing him how a Perfection Stallion Guard will save his horse and his money. He doesn't care for either. But if you do, then you want the Perfection.

July 4th—Scottish Pleiste Club amateur games, under the auspices of the P. A. A. A. U.

Sept.—State Fair games, under the auspices of the P. A. A. A. U., at Sacramento, Cal.

SUMMARY.

Last Sunday the cricket season opened and two games were played across the bay. The Olympic Club will hold its first field day of the season on next Saturday afternoon, and several athletes are in training for the different events. The cricket boat race at Long Bridge last Sunday attracted several hundred people to the scene of the contest, and considerable interest was manifested in the match.

THE ATHLETES, WHEELMEN, OARSMEN, CRICKETERS, ETC.

The Robert Emmet Hurling and Football Club played a very good game of football at the Golden Gate Park athletic grounds last Sunday. The teams were made up of forty men each and were captained respectively by Thomas Walsh and Thomas Hughes, and J. W. Flynn and J. P. Moriarty. The game, which resulted in a tie, was umpired by President R. P. O'Connor.

A tennis tournament will be held in San Rafael on July 4th, and will last three days. The best talent will be on hand to decide the championships of the coast.

The cricket season was formally opened last Sunday, when two match games were played at the grounds across the bay. At the cricket grounds the Oakland and Cal. Cricket clubs contested. The latter team won with a score of 256 runs. The Alameda and Pacific clubs played at the Alameda grounds and the former team came out victorious with a score of 61 to 88. To-morrow a very exciting game will be played at the Alameda grounds between two teams made up of men from the association clubs.

Henry Peterson will probably travel to New Westminster, B. C., next month to row Alexander McLane another race.

In order to witness the sights that take place in this city several times a month, it is not at all necessary for a person to be a member of any of the clubs before he can gain admission to the contests. Tickets at low prices are sold at various cigar stands etc. for each contest, and it would seem that the people who run these "knock out" entertainments do not care much about the law that applies to prize fights. It would be much better and cheaper for these "cubs" to give up their rooms and charge a private ball once a month where the fights could be held. It is only a matter of time until these kind of exhibitions will be driven out to the corners like the dramas of the daily and weekly papers and the rates of admission fixed on the theatre plan. The so-called "athletic clubs" are dying a slow death and if the local authorities do not soon take a hand in the matter the Harry Maynard style of athletic entertainments will shortly be inaugurated again.

President J. J. Kennedy of the Golden Gate Bicycle Club, recently met with a painful accident while out riding on his wheel. The accident was brought about by his taking a "header," with the result that he badly sprained his ankle and received numerous other bruises all over his body.

George H. Bell, of the Bay City Wheelmen, has opened up a bicycle depot at 330 Fine street, and he is agent for the new American wheel.

The entries for the field day of the Olympic Club, which will take place at the out-door grounds next Saturday afternoon, will close at the club rooms this evening. Several athletes from across the bay have promised to enter the sports, and it is likely that a good list will be secured.

A meeting of the committees of the Bay City Wheelmen and Capital City Wheelmen will be held at Sacramento on the 18th inst., for the purpose of beginning preparations for the coming league meet to be held on July 4th.

The Alameda Wheelmen will hold a five-mile road race to-morrow afternoon over the triangle course at San Leandro. All wheelmen are cordially invited to witness the contest.

The Ariel crew won the amateur barge race at Long Bridge last Sunday afternoon by five lengths. Owing to the strong wind which was blowing while the race was going on, the time was not as good as might be expected. Several hundred people watched the contest and seemed to be deeply interested in the result. The crews were made up as follows:

Ariels—Wiltcap, stroke; Dunphy, after waist; Tetard, forward waist; Larwie, bow; Andy Carroll, coxswain.

South End—Wilhelm Smay, stroke; George Dahmke, after waist; Fred Dahmke, forward waist; William Parker, bow; John Healy, coxswain.

Smythe, Pickard and Tarik of the Acorn Club of Oakland will represent their club in the coming field day of the O. A. C.

Horace Coffin was not in the least alarmed when he heard of the record made by H. R. Trem in the mile walk at the Y. M. C. A. games which were recently held in San Jose, Cal. If Coffin walks a good, square race at the championship games he will not be compelled to do better than 7:15 to win easily.

The Olympic Club will give an "Ladies' Night" entertainment this month. A new opera by the author of Bull King Hal will be sung on this occasion.

Answers to Correspondents.

Answers for this department must be accompanied by the name and address of the sender, not necessarily for publication, but as proof of good faith. Write the questions distinctly, and on one side of the paper only. Positively no questions will be answered by mail or telegraph.

B. P. H. Lakeside, Cal.—Please state the date of Lexington's death (or either disputed point). Answer—July 1, 1875, aged twenty-five years.

W. C., Madison, Yolo County.—Kindly give breeding of John Nelson 187 in your next issue and oblige. Answer—By imp. Trustee (son of Catton), dam the Redmond mare, by Abdallah.

W. H. T., San Luis Obispo, Cal.—Is a mare by Prisms 255, first dam by Prisms 2:0, eligible to registration in the trotting register under Rule 7? Answer—She is eligible to registration.

M. E. M., Grayson, Cal.—Whose fault is it that the race Lizzie E. won at Napa, August 22, 1891, is not reported in this year's Wallace's Year book? Answer—If the Secretary at Napa reported this race to Mr. Steiner, the latter is at fault; otherwise the Secretary at Napa is to blame.

W. F. S., Hanford.—Have you any record of the horse they call Grand Duke Alexis? The horse was brought from Boston and sold to C. H. Malter. Answer—Grand Duke Alexis got no record. He was neither trained nor raced on this coast. His pedigree appears in the advertisement of Marks L. in this journal.

R. J. V., San Bernardino, Cal.—1. Please give breeding of Herr's Kentucky Clay and number on register. 2. Give breeding of Strader's Cassius M. Clay Jr. and register number. Answer—1. By Cassius M. Clay Jr. 22, dam the Rhodes Mare (dam of Lady Thorn, 2:18), and Mambrino Patchen 58, by Gano, son of American Eclipse. Register number 404. 2. By Cassius M. Clay 18, dam by Abdallah 1; second dam by Lawrence's or American Eclipse. Register number 22.

Inquirer, Woodland.—Please state the breeding of Connemara. Is he standard bred, and what is his record? He now stands at Woodland. 2. Is Bullion by Specie, standard-bred? Answer—1. Although not "standard-bred" he is made standard by his record (2:30), he being by a standard horse (Volunteer 183) and out of a mare by Don Juan, who was not standard. His dam would have to be registered first. 2. Bullion is not standard-bred.

E. L. W., Lompoc, Cal.—Give the registered number of one Blues Ralph. I am anxious to find out his number on the Register. I will give the pedigree as I got it from Messrs. L. H. Boggs and Judge R. C. Hutchison, of Lakeport, Lake county, where the horse was formerly owned by George Ellis. Black Ralph, son of McCracken's David Hill, first dam by Edgar Everett. Answer—Wallace gives his breeding as follows: By David Hill 857, dam not traced. His register number is 10,867, and he is the sire of three in the list and the dam of one.

P. W. D., University P. O., Los Angeles—1. I Want the pedigree of Bell Alta, a trotting horse. It is said that he stood in Plumas County, Cal., and at Petaluma, Cal. 2. Has Royal George, Jr., a record or has he produced any thing that has? Answer—1. By Williamson's Belmont, dam said to be by Illinois Medoc, though the authorities put the Mendenhall mare down as "untraced." 2. There are two Royal George horses, one with a record of 2:15, another with a record of 2:00. Neither has anything in the list. The first-named made his record at Palmyra, N. Y., the latter at Toronto, Ont.

WORD has been received that J. B. Ferguson, the famous starter, will not be here until Tuesday next, and Henry Walsh or George Van Gordan will be asked to officiate until the gentleman from the South arrives.

JAMES DUSTIN has gotten the fences at Bay District track in nice shape; had them whitewashed, put tan bark around the betting stands and done a world of good work all around.

ANNIE LEWIS is said to be a hard one to beat over a distance of ground. Wildwood, in the same stable, looks a mighty good colt.

BAY DISTRICT TRACK is faster than the proverbial bullet, and miles in 1:42 should be common.

CHARLEY BOOTS did not bring Sir Walter down to the races, we are sorry to state.

MUNSTER is the largest horse at the track, and Esperanza the smallest.

On account of departure of owner, W. F., one of the best young stallions ever bred in this State, three years old, standard-bred, 15.2 hands high, as fine a youngster as a man could wish to see, can show speed enough to go in first class company, is offered for sale. He is by CARTOON 2308, son of Wilsahickon, he by William Welch 40, he by Rysdyk's Hambletonian. Cartoon's first dam was the Hamilton mare, by Norfolk; second dam by John Nelson 187; third dam McCormick mare, the dam of May Howard, 2:24). W. F.'s first dam, Nerea, has a record of 2:23½, and was sired by John Nelson, a son of Trustee, imported thoroughbred. Among his relatives is Sallie Taylor, by General Taylor, son of the Morse horse. I will only mention a few of his relations to show that he is of a trotting family that breeds on:

LORD BYRON, 2:18	PEANUTS
NEREA, 2:23 1-2	FRED
AURORA, 2:27	SISTER
GOV. STANFORD	NETTIE LAMBERT
NEMO	BIDLER

In addition to the above named, his sire, the handsome mahogany bay horse

WHEN YOUR BLACK SMITH TELLS YOU

That he doesn't need a SOUTHER FARM RASP, that he can level a horse's hoof for the shoe with the common rasp, he is glori ously mistaken. However, don't point ou the error of his ways too suddenly, but merely tell him to go ahead with his old rasp.

When he pronounces the foot level, use the file side of the SOUTHER FARM RASP as shown in adjoining cut, and all hands will be astonished to see how uneven a bearing surface is made by the common rasp, even when handled by a first-class workman. When used by any sensible man, the SOUTHER FARM RASP does perfect work, and leaves the bearing surface absolutely level; and it is the only tool on earth that will give a perfect bearing o both heels and the entire wearing surface.

DIRECTOR JR.

WILL MAKE THE SEASON OF 1892 AT THE ASYLUM RANCH, SAN RAFAEL.

DESCRIPTION.

DIRECTOR JR. is a grandly formed stallion, a handsome black in color; stands 15.3 hands; weighs 1,175 pounds. In appearance and disposition he is more like Director than any other son of that famous sire. He has never been trained for speed, but can easily show a 2:20 gait on the road, and will surely get a mark much below that this fall, as he will be put in training for this season's campaign. Up to the present time he has been in the stud in Oregon and never given an opportunity to show his speed. His colts, like himself, are all grand lookers, show great trotting action, intelligence and gameness. A three-year-old now in training has shown a mile in 2:21, and Directwood, a two-year-old son, won every race in which he was entered last year, and could have gone in the thirty list had his owner so desired. At the Oregon State Fair last year Director Jr. and five of his get were awarded first premiums.

PEDIGREE.

It will be seen that Director Jr. is bred on blood lines almost identically the same as Direct, 2:06, the Greatest Harness Horse in the World.

DIRECTOR JR.

Director, 2:17 — Sire of Direct 2:06; Margaret S. 2:12½; Evangeline 2:19; Guide 2:16¼; Emma 2:24¼; and 7 others in the 2:30 list.
- DICTATOR — Sire of Jay-Eye-See 2:10; Director 2:17; Phallas 2:13¼; Code 2:22¼; D. C 2:23; Dictator Chief 2:21½ and 22 others in the list.
- DOLLY — Dam of Onward 2:25½; Thorndale 2:24½
  - HAMBLETONIAN 10 — Sire of Dexter 2:17¼; Nettie 2:18 and 38 others in the list.
    - Abdallah 1
    - Chas. Kent Mare

MELROSE

DESCRIPTION.

MELROSE is a handsome bay stallion, foaled in 1889; stands 15.3 hands high and weighs 1100 pounds. In conformation he is symmetrical throughout, splendid bone and muscle, stylish and a grand individual in every respect. At twenty months old, with very little work, Tom Murphy drove him a mile in 2:35. As he was growing fast it was decided better to cease working him until this Fall, when he will be prepared for the track and put in the list, barring accidents.

His splendid individuality and fashionable breeding makes him one of the most desirable young stallions on the Coast.

TERMS: $40 FOR THE SEASON.

Gannon's Electioneer

GROVER CLAY.

Fifteen hands three inches high; weighs 1,050; is as fine a horse as there is in California.

Bay stallion, foaled 1884, by Senator Stanford's Electioneer 125; bred by Hon. W. W. Traylor, San Francisco. First dam Maggie Norfolk, by Norfolk; second dam Tilda Quil, by Billy Cheatham; third dam by Dorsey's Golddust, sire of Lucille Golddust, record 2:16¼, Rolla Golddust, 2:20, Fleety Golddust, 2:20; Indicator, 2:23, and many others in the 2:30 list; also grandsire of Rosalind Wilkes, 2:14½, and Johnston, 2:06¼.

GROVER CLAY will make the season of 1892 at the San Clemente Stock Farm, Marin County, half way between Tiburon and San Rafael. Mares may be sent by the Donohue Broad Gauge, via Tiburon, there being a depot on the farm, or driven via Sausalito, five miles to the farm.

TERMS—$100 for the season, from March 1st to July 1st, payable at time of service or before the removal of the mares. Excellent pasturage at $4 per month. The best of care taken of mares, but no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. Having the best half mile track in the State on the farm, I will take a few colts to train. *Balkan.

Record 2:15.

Will make the season at Oakland Race Track beginning February 1st. But a limited number of mares will be accepted, in order that he may be prepared for the great contests of the year. He reduced his record, 14¾ seconds, in nineteen days last fall, and as he is perfectly sound there is every assurance that he will be able to compete with the fastest, especially at two-mile heats.

DESCRIPTION.

Seal brown (no white) with black points, 16 hands 1¼ inches in height, beautifully proportioned and elegantly finished. Balkan is the one horse whose limbs are so correctly formed that a plumb-line from the shoulder drops through the center of the arm, the knee, the cannon-bone, pastern and hoof; consequently his action is straight forward without the slightest side swing, making a pure, frictionless gait. His style and carriage are so lofty that it is universally admitted that in these respects he has no superior on the turf. In a race he is as steady and level-headed as possible, and trots his last quarter the fastest.

PEDIGREE.

By Mambrino Wilkes, son of George Wilkes, sire of Harry Wilkes, 2:13½, and 74 others in the 2:30 list, grandsire of Allerton, 2:09¼; Axtell, 2:12 (three years), and hosts of other noted race horses, dam Fanny Fern by Jack Hawkins, son of Boston, sire of second dam of Maud S., 2:08¾, and Jay-Eye-See, 2:10, and grandsire of second dam of Sunol, 2:08¼. The dam of Jack Hawkins was the famous Keenon mare, the great grandam of Sunol, 2:08¼. Jack Hawkins sired the second dam of Direct, 2:06, so that Balkan, while by a son of George Wilkes, is closely related on the dam's side to the fastest horses of the times. His sire, Mambrino Wilkes, by George Wilkes, dam Lady Chrisman, by Todhunter's Mambrino, son of Mambrino Chief 11, grandam by Pilot Jr., has produced Gus Wilkes, 2:22, Bay Wilkes, 2:25, Alpheus, 2:27, Clara P., 2:29½, Balkan, 2:15, and numbers in the thirties. His dam, Fanny Fern, produced Mollie Drew, 2:27, Balkan, 2:15, Fred Arnold, trial, 2:27, and several in 2:40 and better. If there is anything in the science of breeding, Balkan, coming from a producing sire and a producing dam, should be unexcelled as a producer. He is just seven years old.

RESUME.

Considering the size, style, beauty, gait, speed, endurance and unexceptionably fashionable breeding of Balkan it is respectfully submitted that he offers as great attractions to breeders as any of the horses that get a service fee of $500 and $1,000,

AND HIS SERVICE IS OFFERED AT $100 FOR THE SEASON.

The services of no other young horse of his conformation, breeding and quality, with such a record, is offered at so low a figure.

Bear in mind that colt stakes will soon be given for the get of stallions with records of 2:15 or better. If you want to raise colts which will be eligible to enter in all stakes, BREED TO BALKAN, as he is the only horse in this region with a record of 2:15 whose services are offered to the public.

Good pasture and excellent care guaranteed for mares sent to him.
This horse can be seen at The Oakland Track, in charge of A. L. HINDS.

Australian Thoroughbred Blood

Loyalist and Chesterfield

Two Sons (from Grandly-Bred Mares) of THE MARQUIS, one of Australia's Greatest Sire,

Will make the season of 1892 at the SOUTHER FARM, San Leandro, Cal.

These horses can hardly fail to produce speed and staying qualities from the strains of thoroughbred blood in this State.

Mares that prove not to be with foal may be returned without service fee in 1893, provided the horse bred to is alive and at the Souther Farm.

LOYALIST - - - - - $100, INCLUDING KEEP OF MARE TILL JULY 1st, 1892.

Bay horse, foaled 1884. Winner of the Brunswick Stakes, worth about $7,000, one and one-quarter mile in 2:08¼.

LOYALIST'S mile and a quarter in 2:08¼ was the best on record in Australia when made, and has only been surpassed by Abercorn and the great Carbine. His sire was a race-horse and a sire of race-horses; his dam was a winner and has produced winners. Loyalist has proven himself a race-horse, and he will produce race-horses.

CHESTERFIELD - $75, INCLUDING FREE KEEP OF MARES UNTIL JULY 1st, 1892.

Bay horse, no white, foaled 1876. Bred by Mr. C. B. Fisher, Victoria. (See Australian Stud Book, Vol. 2, page 201)

CHESTERFIELD was a good race-horse and a first-class weight packer. In ten important stakes he was first in four, second in four and third in two. He will produce great two-year-olds from our California mares; in his own two-year-old form he took up 128 pounds and won the Flying Handicap at Wollongong.

Dam LADY BUNKER (Dam of Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼; Joe Bunker, 2:19; William L., sire of Axtell, 2:12.)

HOCK WILKES' First Dam, EDA (Thoroughbred, sister to St. David.)

Second Dam, EVA COOMBS (Dam of St. David, Wildidler, Maid of the Mist, and second dam of Beaconsfield, Batchelder, Arthur H and Four Aces.)

By GEORGE WILKES, 2:22. (Son of Rysdyk's Hambletonian and sire of Harry Wilkes, 2:13½; Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼; Wilson, 2:16¼; Richardson J. B., 2:16¾; Baron Wilkes, 2:18, and 71 others in 2:30 or better.)

By MAMBRINO PATCHEN. (Son of Mambrino Chief and sire of 18 in 2:30 list, and of the dams of Houri, 2:17; Astral 2:18; Baron Wilkes, 2:18, and 60 others in 2:30 list.)

By HOCK-HOCKING. (Having one cross each of Boston, imp. Trustee, imp. Glencoe, eight crosses of imp. Diomed, and being the sire of Beaconsfield, St. David, Batchelder, Arthur H. and Four Aces.)

By BILLY CHEATHAM. (Having one cross of Boston, five of imp. Messenger, seven of imp. Diomed, and two of American Eclipse.)

Third Dam, RUBY, by Winnebago, son of imp. Glencoe and imp. Delight.
Fourth Dam, ELLEN JOURDAN, by Blacknose, by Medoc, son of Duroc by imp. Diomed, and Miller's Damsel, by imp. Messenger.
Fifth Dam, EMILY JOURDAN, by imp. Jourdan.

DESCRIPTION—HOCK WILKES, foaled 1888, is a handsome bay with black points, 15.3 hands high, of speedy conformation, good bone and powerful muscular development. He is pure in trotting action, very speedy, and, but for difficulty with one fore pastern, he would now have a low record. He is one of the handsomest sons of Guy Wilkes, with the Wilkes substance and trotting instinct and the thoroughbred quality and type of conformation. The sire of Hock Wilkes, Guy Wilkes, stands at a service fee of $1,000, and he is conceded to be the best representative of the great Wilkes and Hambletonian family. The dam of Hock Wilkes is a large mare, 16¾ hands, of powerful build, a daughter of Hock-Hocking, who produced the speedy and long-distance performers St. David, Beaconsfield, Batchelder, Arthur H., Four Aces, etc., and whose dam was the third dam of Anteeo, 2:16¼, Antevolo, 2:19½, and Coral, 2:25.

TERMS, $40 FOR THE SEASON of 1892, from February 1st to July 1st, with return privilege for the season of 1893 on any mare not proving with foal, provided either the mare or stallion does not change ownership. The season of 1892 will be made at 2536 Market Street, San Francisco.

Address JOS. MICHL, 2536 Market Street.

DESCRIPTION AND TERMS.

Not only is Memo full brother to Frou-Frou, the champion yearling trotter in the world, but he is also one of the very best-bred young stallions in service, having three crosses of Rysdyk's Hambletonian, one of Harry Clay, sire of Green Mountain Maid (dam of Electioneer, etc.), and Long Island Black Hawk. Through Flaxtail he traces to Canadian Pilot (sire of Pilot Jr. 12), through Bull Pup, sire of Rowdy Boy, 2:13¾, and two others. Sidney, Memo's sire, is universally known and recognized as the best young sire in the world, as a producer of extreme speed at an early age. The average speed of his progeny is lower than that of any of the get of the twelve leading stallions of America.

Memo trotted in public in his two-year-old form, obtaining a record of 2:49, though he was close to Grandee in a race on the Bay District Track, the second heat of which was made in 2:31½, the first in 2:32. He exhibited phenomenal speed when three years old, for on the Oakland track he was timed a mile in 2:20¼, and frequently trotted quarters in from 32½ to 34 seconds.

He is sixteen hands high, and of powerful build throughout. His color is a glossy black, with both forefeet white. His disposition is all that could be desired, and his action superb. He is a sure foal getter, only one mare being reported not in foal during his last season.

Terms—$100, with usual return privileges, for a limited number of mares. Season to close JUNE 15th, when he will be prepared for track purposes.

Good pasturage at reasonable rates. No responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, address

THE BEST-BRED AND FINEST-LOOKING WILKES STALLION IN THE STATE.

No. 8707. BILLY THORNHILL Rec. 2:24 1-2

By BEVERLY WILKES, Brother of

PROSPECT MAID, 2:23½, WALSINGHAM, 2166 (sire of LATITUDE, 2:19¾ at 4 years).
GEORGIA WILKES, sire of VALENTINE, 2:18½, BAS BLEN WILKES, 2:24½, BILLY WILKES, 2:29½, BESSIE WILKES, 2:31½.

Dam EMILY, Dam of

FORTUNA, 2:22, BILLY THORNHILL, 2:24½
COL. YOUNG, 2:30.

Second dam SUE STOUT,

Third dam LEAR MARE, Dam of

JIM IRVING, 2:23, and YOUNG JIM, sire of BUTTERFLY, 2:19¾, GARNETT, 2:19, and twelve other performers.

By GEORGE WILKES, Sire of

GUY WILKES, 2:15¼, HARRY WILKES, 2:13½, and seventy-four others in the 2:30 list, and seventy-five sires of 249 trotters.

By GEORGE WILKES, 2:22, Sire of

Seventy-five producing sons and forty-six producing daughters.

By ASHLAND 47, Son of

MAMBRINO CHIEF 11 and sire of HIGHLAND WIN 1226, and others in list and the dams of EDWIN THORNE, 2:16¼, and others.

By LEAR'S SIR WILLIAM, Son of

HOWARD'S SIR CHARLES.

BEVERLY WILKES (who died when but three years of age) was out of Neilson, by Mambrino Pilot 2:27½ (sire of Hannis, 2:17¾, and others), out of Juliett, by Pilot Jr. 12; second dam by Webster, son of Medoc; third dam by Blackburn's Whip. Ashland was out of Utilla, by imp. Margrave; second dam Too Soon, by Sir Leslie, etc.

The above extended pedigree needs no further comment. That it is bristling with the names of some of the greatest trotters, as well as most prepotent sires, none will deny, but a description of the representative that has such a royal lineage is much more difficult to give. In color he is a deep mahogany bay, no white markings; he stands 15.2½ hands, and weighs 1,080 pounds. He represents the highest type of a trotting horse. He has a faultless head and neck, well-sloped shoulders, magnificent back and loins, remarkably well-built across the coupling, well-rounded barrel, muscular arms and thighs, well-shaped hocks and good joints, fetlocks strong and elastic, the best of feet, and he stands with them well placed under him. He is a perfect line trotter, and can trot in 2:40 without boots of any kind. His first colt showed trials last fall in 2:20 in his 3-year-old form, and all of his 2-year-olds that have been handled any show lots of speed and a nice way of going. He is a sure foal-getter, and all of his progeny are bays or browns, without white, and they inherit his excellent disposition and intelligence to a remarkable degree.

He will make the season of 1892, commencing February 1st, at Milpitas, Santa Clara Co., Cal.

TERMS, $75 WITH USUAL RETURN PRIVILEGE.

I have a good pasture to turn mares in at $5 each per month. The best of care taken of mares, but no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes.

For further particulars, address JAMES BOYD, Milpitas.

HAPPY MEDIUM, MAMBRINO PATCHEN, ALMONT AND EDWIN FORREST BLOOD!

ALMONT MEDIUM IS BY HAPPY MEDIUM, SIRE OF NANCY HANKS, 2:09; MAXEY COBB 2:13 1-4, AND SEVENTY-ONE OTHERS IN 2:30 LIST.

First Dam, LADY CHILES by ALMONT 33. (Sire of Fanny Witherspoon, 2:16¼, Piedmont, 2:17¼, Aldine, 2:19¾, and 35 others in 2:30 or better).

Second Dam, LADY ROTHSCHILD by MAMBRINO PATCHEN 58. (Dam of King Philip, 2:26¼, he sire of Lexington, 2:24½). (Sire of London, 2:20, and 17 others, and 17 dams of 64 2:30 performers, and 19 sires from daughters with 141 in the list).

Third Dam by ALEXANDER'S EDWIN FORREST 49. (Dam of Rothschild, grandsire of Ready Boy, 2:23, etc.). (Sire of Billie Hoskins, 2:26½, etc.).

Fourth Dam by BLACK HIGHLANDER; Fifth Dam by LANCE, son of American Eclipse.

ALMONT MEDIUM is a dark bay with black points, 16.1 hands high, weighs about 1100 pounds, was bred by General William T. Withers, Lexington, Ky., is a model of perfect symmetry, remarkably level-headed, speedy, and game as a pebble, and will undoubtedly, get a record of 2.15 or 2:16, barring accidents. He is bred in almost the identical lines of Nancy Hanks, 2.09, her second dam being by Edwin Forrest and Almont Medium's third dam by Edwin Forrest; Nancy Hanks' fifth dam by Lance, son of American Eclipse, and Almont Medium's fifth dam is by the same great horse. The only son of Almont Medium ever trained for speed (Mark Medium) gained a record of 2:25¼ during 1891 as a four-year-old, and all of this horse's progeny show speed at an early age.

Almont Medium will make the season of 1892, from February 1 to July 1, at the Race Track, Petaluma, Cal.

TERMS, $100 THE SEASON,

With the usual return privilege, providing Almont Medium is in the State.

    - REBEL DAUGHTER, by Williamson's Belmont.

NUTWOOD WILKES is a handsome chestnut in color, stands 15½ hands high, is level-headed, kind and intelligent.

RAPID TRANSIT,

Limited to Fifteen approved Outside Mares at $75 for the Season.

RAPID TRANSIT is a fine-looking bay horse, stands 15½ hands high. He is by DIRECTOR 1989, 2:17; dam Lida W., record 2:18¼, dam of Nutwood Wilkes, 2:20½ at 3 years. (See above tabulated pedigree.) He is a horse of splendid individuality and excellent blood lines.

LONG BRANCH.

Limited to Fifteen Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

LONG BRANCH is a magnificent bay horse, 15¾ hands high, sired by Antevolo, 4-year-old record 2:19½ (brother to Anteeo, 2:16¼, sire of seven with records from 2:17½ to 2:30), by ELECTIONEER 125 (sire of 100 trotters with records from 2:08¾ to 2:30, 22 of which have records better than 2:20), dam Zola (dam of Maud C., 2:19), by Steinway, 3-year-old record 2:25¼ (sire of seven with records from 2:10 to 2:28¼, including the dam of Maud C., 2:19, and Bourbon Russell, 2:30), second dam Fanny Malone (grandam of Charles Derby, record 2:20, and Maud C., record 2:19).

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD.

Limited to Fifty Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD is a handsome chestnut horse, stands sixteen hands one and one-half inches high, and is the sire of Maud C., 2:19; Annie C., 2:25; Albert H., 2:27¾, and several others with trials from 2:37 to 2:50. He is by the greatest living sire, Nutwood 600, record 2:18¾ (sire of 77 with records from 2:11½ to 2:30; 17 from 2:11½ to 2:20, and half-brother to Maud S., 2:08¾, the fastest trotter in the world on a regulation track); dam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31, record 2:27 (sire of ten with records from 2:18 to 2:30; the best son of Geo. M. Patchen, record 2:23½, made in 1860; the fastest and gamest representative of the Clay family). This pedigree demonstrates that California Nutwood represents the best strains of Hambletonian and Clay blood, a combination that cannot fail to produce fast and game race horses as well as great broodmares. He is a horse of splendid conformation, stylish, level-headed, pure-gaited, speedy, game and intelligent, qualities that he transmits to all of his get. He gets bays and chestnuts from all kinds of mares. He is just the kind of a horse that a poor man can make no mistake in breeding a good mare to, as he will get a horse large enough for work on the ranch or road, besides a chance of producing a very fast and valuable race horse.

NOTICE.

The great blood lines represented in the four above stallions, GUY WILKES, NUTWOOD, ELECTIONEER and DIRECTOR, are, as all horsemen will agree, the best race horse strains—the greatest producers of extreme speed and gameness to be found in the trotting families. NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT are the two greatest representatives of developed race-horse speed there are to be found in the stud to date. This is a broad assertion, but it can be demonstrated by anyone who will take the trouble to look it up. Their sires, Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼, and Director, 2:17, were two of the fastest and most consistent race horses on the turf in their day, and about as safe horses as a man ever placed his money on, for they would gamely fight a race out to the bitter end, almost invariably scoring a victory. The dam of NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT is Lida W., record 2:18¼, made after raising five colts, the last one last spring, her record being made on the 20th of October last. She is one of the fastest daughters of the great Nutwood 600, 2:18¾, who, besides being a great and game race horse himself, is the greatest living sire. Among the produce of his daughters are to be found Arion, the phenomenon, two-year-old record 2:10¾, and nineteen others from 2:18¼ to 2:30.

Mares not proving in foal may be returned the following season free of service fee. Parties desiring the services of any of the above horses must send the mare or ten per cent of the service money with the engagement. Excellent pasturage at $5 per month, and when the condition of the animal requires it, hay or grain or both will be fed at $10 per month. The best of care will be taken of mares, but no liability will be assumed for accidents or escapes. Mares may be shipped direct to me at Irvington, Alameda Co., Cal., via Broad Gauge Railroad.

All bills are due at time of service, but must be paid by August 1st. No stock will be allowed to leave the place until all bills are settled. Season from February 1st to August 1st, 1892.

Delwin 14,681, record 2:26 1-2, will, if he has no setbacks, pace in 2:15 or better, and beat 2:30 trotting over the fast Stockton kite track this fall. Delwin is one of the handsomest grandsons of the great Moor; in color, he is a dark dapple bay, sound as a dollar, outside of his broken hind leg, and the best of feet and legs; 15.1½ hands high, and weighs 1,000 pounds; he is one of the finest-formed horses for great speed in the land; has the same level head and intelligence that his half-brother, Guide, 2:16¼, has; in color and form he resembles Harry Clay 45 (sire of the dam of Electioneer and George Wilkes, 2:22), more than any horse that we ever saw. Delwin has the same blood lines as the handsome grandson of The Moor, Stamboul, 2:11; he has two crosses of American Star 14, also of Clay, one of Hambletonian 10, sire of the dam of Stamboul, 2:11; one to Mambrino Chief, sire of the dam of Director, 2:17, and two of the great Pilot Jr., sire of the dam of Nutwood, 2:18¾, combining altogether the same blood lines that lay in the grandest stallions, living or dead—Arion, 2:10¾, Stamboul, 2:11; also the first yearling to beat 2:30, and who trotted the fastest last quarter in that mile that was ever trotted by any yearling, 31 seconds—Freedom, 2:29¾.

Del Sur, 2:24, sire of Don Tomas, 2:20, and Cousin Joe, 2:20¼, being a full brother to the dam of Sable Wilkes, 2:18, sire of Freedom, 2:29¾, and two others better than 2:28. Delwin's colts all show the trot out of any kind of mares.

Terms $40, with usual return privilege.

Good water and pasturage at $5 per month, but will not be responsible for accidents or escapes. Mares can be shipped to the farm and home of Delwin, the Meese Stock Farm, Danville, Contra Costa County, Cal., per S. P. R. R., via Martinez. For further particulars, address,

TERMS AND DESCRIPTION.

SILVER BOW is a handsome bay, no white; stands 15.3; weighs 1,150 pounds; was foaled June 26, 1887. A glance at his pedigree will show that he is bred in the purple and inbred to Hambletonian 10. He will make the season of 1892 at our farm, one and a half miles from Milpitas, on the Oakland road. Season from February 1st to June 1st, at which time all bills are due and payable in United States gold coin. Limited to fifteen outside mares.

SERVICE FEE, $150 for the season. Last season we did not give him a fair show; he served thirty-nine mares and did service up to June, and was compelled to start in races in July against the best horses in Montana, being very short of fast work. At Butte, Montana, he won the $2,500 purse, Free-For-All, defeating Faust, 2:18½, Steve Whipple, 2:23, Ida D., 2:25, and Frank M., 2:18, Faust winning the first heat in 2:20, Silver Bow the second in 2:22¼, Frank M. the third in 2:22, and Silver Bow the fourth and fifth in 2:21¾ and 2:21¾. He won nine races in all last season, and had it not been that he was troubled badly with a tender mouth, he would not have lost a single race.

With his speed he will make a wonderful record the first time he starts on a good track and in perfect condition. His oldest colts are yearlings, and are very promising animals. We have one of his colts foaled May 23, 1891, which is a wonder, showing a burst of speed and perfect trotting action surpassing anything I have ever seen except in a carefully trained colt. I have also three others by SILVER BOW which are marvels of beauty and speed. We have reserved one hundred and fifty acres for pasturage for mares, and give the best of feed at $5 per month and the most careful attention, but no responsibility for accidents or escapes. ABDOL 17,716.

RECORD, 2:28.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

Abdol was foaled in 1883, bred by John Watson, Oakland, and is one of the finest sons of the Grand Moor. He is a handsome black in color, stands 16 hands high, and weighs 1,200 pounds. He is a horse of splendid proportions, exquisite style and perfect trotting action. He is remarkably level-headed, intelligent and of kind disposition, and possesses the qualities of speed and gameness to a remarkable degree. His record is no mark of his speed. When it was made it was the intention to keep him in the 2:30 class. He has shown in his work last quarters in 34 seconds—a 2:16 gait—and can get away equally fast.

George Washington

11,628.

2-year-old Record, 2:44;

3-year-old Record, 2:30;

4-year-old Record, 2:20.

GEORGE WASHINGTON is a handsome bay horse, hind feet white, foaled 1886, bred by Thomas Smith of Vallejo, stands 16 hands high, and weighs 1200 pounds.

PEDIGREE:

GEORGE WASHINGTON, by Mambrino Chief Jr. 11,622, record 2:34. George Washington's dam was Fanny Rose (full sister to Prince Allen, 2:27) by Ethan Allen Jr. 2903 (sire of the dams of George Washington 2:20 and Bessie S., 2:29¼, also of Lynwood, sire of Lynette etc, three-year-old record 2:25½; also sire of Prince Allen 2:27) second dam, Jenny Lind, thoroughbred, dam of Prince Allen 2:27.

GEORGE WASHINGTON has proven himself a great race horse, and would have been given a much lower mark last season had it not been for an accident. As an individual, he is all that can be asked, being perfect in form, intelligent and of kind disposition, and represents the highest type of a trotting sire. As he will be put in training for the campaign of 1892, he will be allowed to serve only a limited number of approved mares.

TERMS: $100 FOR THE SEASON.

Mambrino Chief Jr.

Wilkes-Electioneer Stallion.

COMBINED BLOOD

— Of the Greatest Son of

GEO. WILKES

— And the Greatest Son of

ELECTIONEER,

ANTEEO WILKES.

Black horse, foaled May, 1889; sired by GUY WILKES, race-record fourth heat, 2:15¼.

First dam Amy Fay, by ANTEEO, race record 2:16¼, sire of Myrtle, three-year-old record 2:19½, Alfred G., four-year-old record 2:19¾, James Madison, record 2:17¾; second dam by Alexander, record 2:31¼, son of George M. Patchen Jr., record 2:27, and grandsire of Yolo Maid 2:12; third dam by Naubuc, son of Toronto Chief, record 2:24½ and Gypsy Queen, ten-mile record 28:30, and full brother to the famous trotter, Thomas Jefferson, record 2:23; fourth dam Sacramento Belle, ten-mile record 31.07, one-mile record 2.38.

Anteeo Wilkes as an individual is worthy of his great blood lines; he is 15.3 hands high and of perfect form. Although handled but little and never driven once by a professional driver he has trotted a mile in 2:52 quarters in forty seconds without shoes, as a two-year-old, with the marked purity of gait, for which the Guy Wilkes trotters are noted. At close of season will be trained for a great record.

Anteeo Wilkes will make the season of 1892, at the stables of his owner, cor. 45th and Watts street, near Oakland race track; look for sign board on Park Ave., leading from San Pablo Avenue to race track.

DESCRIPTION.

BAY ROSE is a dark bay or brown, with black points, 16½ hands high, and weighs 1,150 pounds. He is remarkably intelligent, of good dispotition, and a pure-gaited trotter. He was foaled in 1881. His colts are large, stylish, rangy animals, and inherit his qualities of speed and endurance. He is the only horse that won a heat from Palo Alto in 1889.

TERMS, $200 FOR THE SEASON.

Return privileges 1893, provided neither the mare nor stallion change ownership. Good pasturage $3 per month. First-class care taken of mares in any manner that owners may desire, but no responsibility assumed for escapes or accidents.

By THORNDALE, 2:22¼, Sire of
EDWIN THORNE, 2:16¼, DAISYDALE, 2:19¾, and five others in 2:30 list, by ALEXANDER'S ABDALLAH, sire of GOLDSMITH MAID, 2:14, ALMONT, etc., out of DOLLY, dam of DIRECTOR, 2:17, ONWARD, 2:25¼. THORNDALE, 2:24¼, and CZARINA, 2:21, by MAMBRINO CHIEF.

By RYSDYK'S HAMBLETONIAN, Sire of
ELECTIONEER, GEORGE WILKES, and forty-one trotters in the 2:30 list.

WILKESDALE is a seal brown, sixteen hands high; bred at Highlawn Farm, Mass. He very closely resembles his sire, Alcantara, four year old record 2:23 (trial 2:17), and a study of his pedigree will convince anyone that if there be anything in inheritance, we may expect extreme speed from his produce. His sire, Alcantara, at fifteen years old has forty-seven in the 2:30 list, and has five praducing sons, two of whom have sired two-year-olds that entered the 2:30 list this year. His full brother, Alcyone, died when only ten years old, yet he is the sire of twenty-five in the 2:30 list, among them being McKinney 2:12½, fastest record for a four-year-old stallion. Another half-brother, out of Alma Mater, is the sire of Strong Boy 2:12, fastest four-year-old record for a pacing stallion. Wilkesdale's dam is herself a trotter, record 2:30, and is in the list of great broodmares, being the dam of Miss Alice 2:17¼ (who was shown trials the past season in 2:14); Thornton, 2:26¼, and Wilkesdale 2:29, all sired by Alcantara. Thorndale 2:22¼, the sire of his dam, is also the sire of Sue, the dam of Egthorne 2:12½, one of the sensational trotting stallions of the past season.

ALMA MATER, his grandam on his sire's side and Dolly, (the dam of Director 2:17, etc.) on his dam's side, are among the few of the great producing dams, Wilkesdale was taken out of the paddock the 1st of October last, soft and in no condition for trotting, yet in less than two months he gained a record of 2:29 in third heat, trotting the second heat in 2:29½. After his stud season closes he will again be placed in training, and under favorable circumstances will no doubt trot under 2:20.

TERMS—He will make the season of 1892 at Wolf's stable in Stockton, Cal., at $75, for the season, from February 1st to July 1st, with usual return privileges for mares that fail to get in foal this season.

The Best Son of Nutwood in California!

Dawn 6407

(Sire of Silky 2:26, Anna Belle 2:27½, Oaknut 2:24¼, Dot 2:29½.)

Will Make the Season of 1892 at the

Agnew Stock Farm,

HILLSDALE, SANTA CLARA COUNTY.

SERVICE FEE $150. LIMITED TO 20 MARES.

DAWN has a record of 2:18¾, and three heats of a race in 2:20 or better. His sire, Nutwood has record of 2:18¾ in a third heat, and is now regarded as the greatest of living sires, having put seventy-seven into the list altogether, of which twenty-six entered the list in 1892. At his present fee Dawn really is the CHEAPEST OF AMERICAN STALLIONS, and, as a recent writer has said, "his form baffles description." Being by the great Nutwood 600, now standing at $1,000, out of Countess (dam of Strathway, 2:20, Placida and Morna, driven as a double team a trial mile in 2:26), Dawn shows that his family is a trotting one on each side of the house. Countess was by Whipple's Hambletonian, sire of Graves, 2:19, and fourteen others in the 2:20 list. The chestnut stallion

BOSWELL, JR.

Will stand at the same place at the low price of $50 the season.

BOSWELL JR., sired by Boswell (a son of Almont 33), dam Nellie B., by Kirtley's Patchen; grandam Sophie (grandam of Nancy Hanks, 2:09), by Alexander's Edwin Forrest; great grandam by Parker's Brown Pilot. This stallion Boswell was purchased by King Kalakaua from Gen. W. T. Withers, Fairlawn Stock Farm, Lexington, Kentucky. Boswell Jr.'s dam, Maude, 2:20, by Bertrand 3262, sire of Frank Fisk, 2:29; second dam by Hamilton Chief, son of Royal George 9; third dam the Dooley Mare, MAUDE started in twenty-one races and won eighteen first moneys, and is well known to all horsemen. BOSWELL JR. showed miles in 2:26 and quarters in 35 seconds on two weeks' work.

Mares stabled or pastured (as owners may desire) on reasonable terms. All bills payable before the animal is removed. No liability for accidents. Best fences in the country. Address,

HARRY J. AGNEW, Hillsdale, Santa Clara County.

The Standard Stallion

WILKES PASHA 2618

Will make the Season of 1891 at the undersigned, at the Trancas Bridge, two miles north of Napa, on the Soda Springs Road.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

WILKES PASHA 2618 is a dark bay with white hind feet; 16½ hands high; bred by R. P. Pepper, of South Elkhorn Farm, Frankfort, Kentucky; sired by Onward 1411, record 2:25¼, trial 2:17; sire of 48 in the list. He is proving one of the greatest sires in America and his sons are proving to be sires of extreme and early speed also. Onward is by George Wilkes, 2:22, sire of seventy-five horses in the 2:30 list, ten with records below 2:20; first dam Fisher (dam of Clara Wilkes, 2:18¾, trial 2:25), by American Clay 34, sire of Maggie Briggs, 2:27, Ella Clay, 2:27½, and the dams of Executor, 2:24½, Ranchero, 2:21½, Judge Hawes, 2:24, Ambassador, 2:22¼, Sir Walter, 2:18½, and nine others in 2:30; second dam by Wilson's Snow Storm, sire of Jim Irving, 2:23; third dam by Paddie Burns, thoroughbred.

WILKES PASHA is the only son of Onward in this part of California. He combines the much-prized Clay cross, his dam being a producing daughter of American Clay 34, who traces to the very best of thoroughbred foundations. As an individual, Wilkes Pasha is as handsome a horse as one could wish to see. He has been bred to ordinary mares. Every one of his progeny shows perfect trotting action and fine size; in color they are all deep bays or browns, and in disposition they cannot be excelled.

TERMS—$30 for the season. Pasturage $4 per month. Every attention and care will be given to mares, but no liabilities assumed for accidents or escapes.

Postoffice address, CHARLES SCOTT, Napa City.

ALCONA JR. 2,755.

Record 2:24, last half in 1:10½ and last quarter in 34½ seconds.

PEDIGREE.—Alcona Jr., 2:24, was sired by Alcona 730, out of Madonna, by Cassius M. Clay 22; second dam by Joe Downing, by Alexander's Edwin Forrest. Alcona 730 (sire of Alcona Jr., 2:24; Flora Belle, 2:24; Clay Duke, 2:29, etc.) is by Almont 33, out of Queen Mary, by Mambrino Chief 11, etc.

DESCRIPTION.—Alcona Jr. is a handsome dark mahogany bay stallion, 16.1 hands high and weighs 1,250 pounds. He represents the highest type of the large trotting horse. His symmetrical conformation from the fine-finished head to the fetlocks, his stylish way of moving, perfect trotting action, magnificent limbs and great muscular development commend him at once to all lovers of the trotting horse. He was not given any training until late in the year, and on a heavy track in a race at Santa Rosa he earned his record of 2:24.

TERMS—$75 for the season, ending July 1st, as this horse will be put in training.

The best of care taken of mares, but no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. Pasturage, $2.50 per month.

The Fast Trotting Stallion
SILAS SKINNER.

RECORD 2:17. STANDARD, 10,681.

Will make the season of 1891, commencing February 1st and ending July 1st, at De Turk's Breeding Stables on Donahue Street, opposite De Turk's Wine Cellars, Santa Rosa, Cal.

SILAS SKINKER, sired by Alcona Jr., 2:24; first dam Fontana (dam of Flora Belle, 2:24½, by Almont 33, sire of thirty-eight in the 2:30 list; second dam Fannie Williams, dam of Ray Chieftain, 2:28¼, by Alexander's Abdallah 15, sire of Goldsmith Maid, 2:14; Rosalind, 2:21¼; Thorndale, 2:22¼, etc.; third dam by Gaine's Denmark; fourth dam by Robert Bruce; fifth dam by Virginia Whip.

ALCONA JR. was sired by Alcona 730 (sire of Flora Belle, 2:24, etc.; Clay Duke, 2:30; Prince Warwick, trial 2:18, etc.) by Almont 33. First dam Madonna by Cassius M. Clay Jr., sire of Durango, 2:23¼; Harry Clay 2:23¼; Clay Davis, 2:26½, etc.; Cora, 2:30, etc.

The above is a condensed pedigree of Silas Skinner, but enough is given to show him to be as richly bred in the best trotting lines as any horse living, besides being a great individual with remarkable speed and staying qualities, which was shown by his performance on the California Circuit the last two seasons. In 1890 Silas Skinner started in six races, trotting in all twenty-three heats. Of these six races Skinner won four and was second in two, and closed the season of 1890 with a record of 2:19.

The performance of Silas Skinner during the season of 1891 has also been very meritorious, having started in seven races, three of which he won, being second twice and twice third. In his race at Sacramento, September 19, 1891, Silas Skinner trotted so horsemen said one of the gamest races ever trotted in California. His competitors were Frank M. and Wanda, whom he defeated, winning the first, third and fourth heats, the second heat falling to Frank M. Time of each heat 2:17, 2:17½, 2:17¼, 2:19.

SILAS SKINNER is a black horse, sixteen hands high, and weighs in stud season about 1,100 pounds. In color, breeding and conformation he approaches very near the ideal stallion, and he descends on both his sire's and dam's side from ancestors who have few equals in the history of the American trotting horse.

TERMS: $100 FOR THE SEASON.

Mares not proving with foal may be returned next season free of charge, provided SILAS SKINNER remains the property of the present owners. Pasturage $3 per month. Every attention and care given to mares, but no liability assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, apply to

DE TURK & McGRAW,
Santa Rosa, Cal.

The Antevolo Stallion
SIROCCO

Will make the season of 1892 at Egbert Rancho, near Rio Vista, from February 1st to June 15th at $50 for the season.

PEDIGREE AND DESCRIPTION.

SIROCCO, by Antevolo 7648, 2:18¼, by Electioneer 125, sire of 100 in the 2:30 list, dam by Rifleman (thoroughbred), sire of Col. Lewis, 2:18¾.

SIROCCO is a handsome bay with black points stands 16-1 hands high, 16.2¼ over the hip; weigh about 1,150; five years old, and one of the best and speediest sons of Antevolo. He is remarkably intelligent, kind, and a splendid individual. Trial, quarter at three years old .37 to 150-pound cart without regular work. Good pasturage and the best of care taken of mares at $2 per month, but no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, address

ALVIN EGBERT,
or, P. W. BELLINGALL, Rio Vista.
508 Battery Street, San Francisco.

DON MARVIN

Five-Year-Old Record 2:28.

DON MARVIN is a beautiful seal brown, foaled 1884; bred by Senator Leland Stanford, Palo Alto, Cal; is 16 hands high and weighs 1200 pounds; sired by Fallis, 2:23 (sire of four in 2:30 list), he by Electioneer. Dam, CORA (dam of Don Marvin, 2:28, and Elected (trial) 2:26) by Don Victor, (sire of the dams of five in the 2:30 list) by Belmont. Second dam, CLARABEL (dam of Clifton Bell, 2:24½, and Rebecca, dam of four in 2:30 list) by Abdallah Star. Third dam, FAIRY (dam of Stoner Boy, 2:29½, and sweepstakes, sire of 22 in the 2:30 list, and three other producing sires and dams) by Rysdyk's Hambletonian. Fourth dam, EMMA MILLS (dam of four horses that have sired 2:30 performers) by Seely's American Star.

DON MARVIN is a horse of great natural speed. His record was made with scarcely any preparation, after making a large season in the stud, and is no measure of his speed. His oldest colts (only five in number) are three years old this spring. One of them with very little work trotted quarters last fall in 36 seconds, and could have easily entered the 2:30 list in his two-year-old form had he been given an opportunity.

DON MARVIN will make the season of 1892 at $40, with usual return privilege, which makes him the cheapest horse in the State, record and breeding considered, having what no other public stallion has on the Coast—Four producing dams.

SONS OF ELECTIONEER ✣1892✣

✣1892✣ AT THE SOUTHER FARM

All mares bred to the Souther Farm Stallions in the season of 1892 will be kept free of charge from March 1st to July 1st. Mares may be sent to the farm at any time, and will be kept at reasonable rates until March 1st, when the free care begins. Best of attention given to mares at foaling time.

The Reputation of the Southor Farm is a guarantee of fair treatment for all animals sent there.

EL BENTON

(Three-quarter brother to SUNOL, 2:08¼; NORVAL, 2:17½.)

- ELECTIONEER 125 — 99 in 2:30.
  - HAMBLETONIAN 10 — 41 in 2:30 list.
    - ABDALLAH 1
    - CHAS. KENT MARE
  - GREEN MOUNTAIN MAID — 8 in 2:30.
    - HARRY CLAY 45
    - SHANGHAI MARY
- NELLIE BENTON — Trial for Charles Marvin, 2:18.
  - GENERAL BENTON 1755 — 17 in 2:30 list and dam of Sunol, 2:08¼.
    - JIM SCOTT 836
    - LADY BENTON
  - NORMA, 2:33¼ — Dam of Norval, 2:17½; Norris, 2:22¼; also Lucy Cuyler, trial for Robert Bonner, 2:15½; Nellie Benton, trial for Chas. Marvin, 2:18.
    - ALEXANDER'S NORMAN — Lula, 2:15; May Queen, 2:20.
    - BY TODHUNTER'S SIR WALLACE

$200 for 1892, usual return privilege and free keep and care from March 1st to July 1st, 1892.

Fourth dam Eagletta by Grey Eagle, sire of grandam of Ansel, 2:20.
Fifth dam Mary Howe, by Tiger.
Sixth dam Lady Robin, by Robin Gray, sire of third dam of the great Lexington.
Seventh dam by Quicksilver, son of imp. Medley.
Eighth dam by Meades' Celer.

El. Benton's breeding is of the best. The Electioneer-Benton and Electioneer-Norman crosses are deservedly famous, and El Benton combines them all through grand individuals. His dam, Nellie Benton, trotted a trial in 2:18 and went East with the Palo Alto string, but broke down before starting (Marvin's "Training the Trotting Horse," page 102). She is now in foal to Palo Alto, 2:08¾; El Benton is her only living produce foaled before 1891. He is a born race horse and a most worthy member of the greatest trotting family the world has seen.

GLEN FORTUNE

(25 per cent. of the blood of Shanghai Mary; the exact amount carried by Electioneer himself.)

- ELECTIONEER 125 — Sunol, 2:08¼; Palo Alto, 2:08¾.
  - HAMBLETONIAN 10 — His sons have produced nearly 1,000 in 2:30
    - ABDALLAH 1
    - CHAS. KENT MARE
  - GREEN MOUNTAIN MAID — 8 in 2:30.
    - HARRY CLAY 45
    - SHANGHAI MARY
- GLENNE — Out of a half-sister to Green Mountain Maid.
  - MESSENGER DUROC 106 — 20 in 2:30; dams of 19 in 2:30.
    - HAMBLETONIAN 10
    - BY ROE'S ABDALLAH CHIEF
  - GLENELLA — Out of the dam of Green Mountain Maid.
    - WOODWARD STAR — Son of Seely's American Star.
    - SHANGHAI MARY — Grandam of Electioneer.

$100 for 1892, usual return privilege and free keep and care from March 1st to July 1st, 1892.

As the dam of Green Mountain Maid and grandam of Electioneer, Shanghai Mary may be called the foundation stone of the Electioneer family, which now holds practically every best on record. Glen Fortune is inbred to this great old mare once through his sire, Electioneer, and again through his dam, a granddaughter of Shanghai Mary.

Glen Fortune's oldest colts were foaled in 1891, and show up splendidly in the kindergarten, where they may be seen any week day.

Twenty in 2:30, seventeen producing daughters.
Second dam Nelly McDonald (thoroughbred)....by Colossus thoroughbred son of imp. Sovereign.
Colossus sired Colossus Mambrino, who produced St. Louis, 2:25.
Third dam Maid of Monmouth.....by Traveller an old-time New Jersey celebrity. grandam of Prætor, 2:29½.
Fourth to fourteenth dams thoroughbred.

By The Grand Moor.

MOORLAND, $40.

First dam Lady Budd, dam of Capri, sire of Clara Z., 2:26¾.
Moorland's colts show speed. His dam, Lady Budd, was a wonderful road mare; nothing ever beat her in an all-day tussle on the Cliff House road.

The training department is very complete, and curing faults in gait is a specialty. The Souther Farm system of balancing was used most successfully during the past season on several well known horses, of which one took a record of 2:16 1-2, another 2:22 3-4 with several other creditable records and trials.

The Souther Farm Swimming Tank is in regular operation and horses are given swimming work every week day in good weather. Swimming gives Exercise Without Concussion, and is an invaluable aid in training trotters or runners. Visitors welcome any day except Sunday.

Training The Trotting Horse

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm." Mailed postpaid for $3.50.

ANTI-STIFF

To Strengthen the Muscles.

To Strengthen the Muscles.

It is a marvelous preparation for Strengthening the Muscular System. With Anti Stiff there is no faith required; it goes straight for the muscles, and you can feel it at work. It has a peculiarly warming, comforting and stimulating effect on all weak or stiff muscles and sinews. Quick in its action, cleanly and pleasant in use.

Rub it into the muscles every night for a fortnight, and you will be pleased at its supporting and strengthening properties. There is not, nor has been, anything like it till now. It differs from all Oils, Embrocations and Liniments, both in substance and effect. Some Athletes are so fond of it that they rub it all over them.

Price 20c. and 35c. per box.

Trainers size, $1,00.

THE - PERKINS - ALWAYS - LEADS!

Responding to the frequent requests of many of the leading horseshoers of the country we now offer as the latest production in the line of improvement

THE NEW

PERKINS STEEL TOE-WEIGHT AND SIDE-WEIGHT HORSE SHOES.

No. 2 FRONT
TOE-WEIGHT SHOE.

Made in Two Weights.

LIGHT

Front Nos. 1, 2 and 3

MEDIUM

Front Nos. 1, 2 and 3

We claim that in this form of Horse Shoe are combined more real merit and a greater variety of points of excellence than any machine shoe ever before made.

The weight of material is where it should be, at the toe.

The width of the web follows the formation of the shell of the hoof, wide at toe and narrow at heel. When put on plain it will wear practically level all around.

It will average 25 per cent. lighter than the corresponding sizes of the regular brands of flat shoes, and it will wear longer.

It is the true Frog Pressure Shoe.

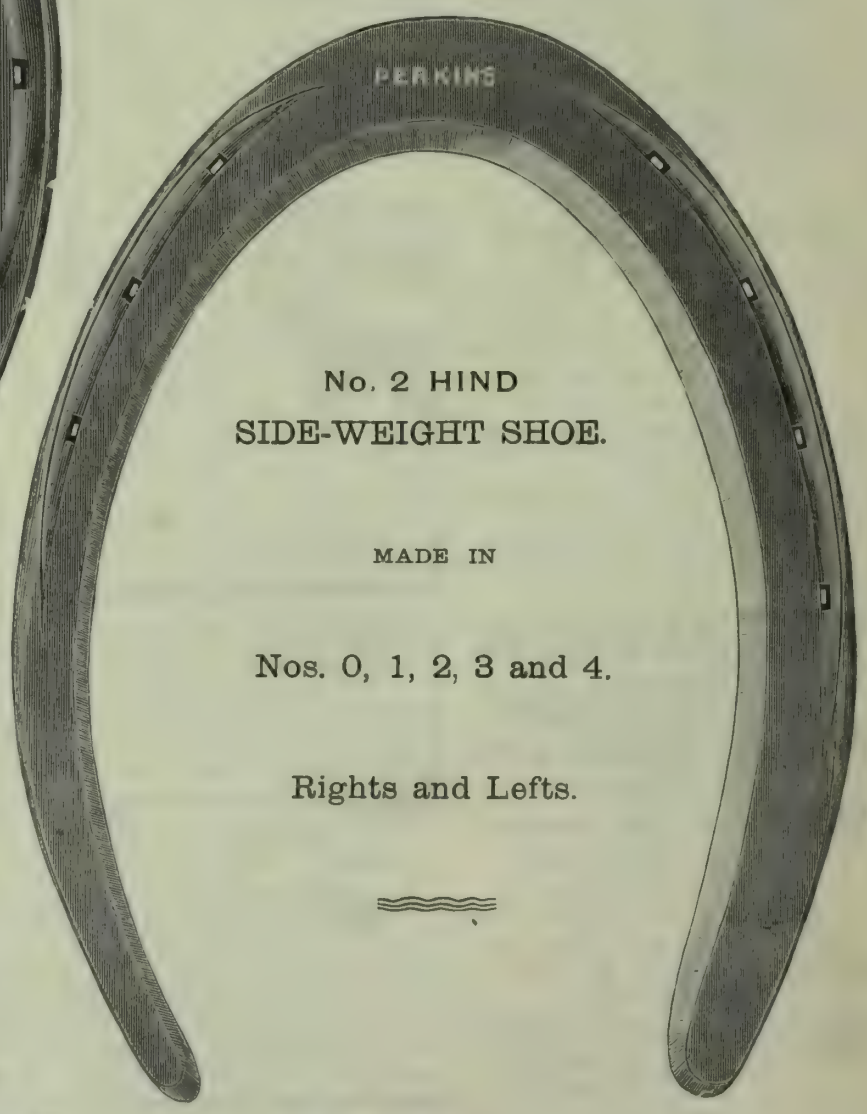
It is perfect for speeding and trotters, for driving horses, and is better than the flat shoe for any purpose.

Its shape and form is such that it is equally as good when used either as a trotting shoe, a snow or mud shoe, for plain shoeing or when calked.

It will not pick up stones, snow or mud. It will not throw sand or gravel, and clay suction cannot pull it off.

With its general all-round good qualities, combined with its light weight, it is the cheapest shoe in the market. It is sold for about one-half the price of the hand-made Toe-Weight Shoe, and at a price per set but a trifle above that of the first-class flat shoes.



There is no occasion for us to give any long explanation of the merits of the Shoe shown below, as every intelligent horseshoer well knows its superior advantages.

The expense of turning this style of Shoe by hand is large, and for that reason its use has been, to a certain extent, limited, although it is a well-known fact to the horseshoers that a large proportion of the horses wear the outside of the Hind Shoe much faster than the inside.

They are made concaved, in order to avoid throwing mud, stones or snow, and it is almost impossible to pick up a stone with them.

The price we put upon them is about one-half that of the cost of the hand-turned, and now within the reach of all. They are put up in all cases with Rights and Lefts in the keg.

PRICE (No Extra Charge for Assorted Kegs) $7.50 per keg

THE BLOOD HORSE RACES.

Four Favorites Finish First on the Opening Day.

DON FULANO'S CREDITABLE VICTORY.

Fairy and Zaldivar in Fine Form—Revolver's Rattling Rush in the Homestretch—A Good-Sized Crowd to Witness the Contests.

Starter Ferguson's Splendid Work—By Far the Best Starting Ever Seen on the Coast—Revolver, Bernardo, Fanny F. and Princess Successful on the Second Day—Only One of Them Reigned Favorite—Excellent Sport and Fast Time, but the Bookmakers Reaped a Golden Harvest.

BLUE SKY, a biting wind and a fog that followed fast were the weather conditions under which the Blood Horse Association set the racing ball of the season in motion to-day. Just when the fog god was frowning his darkest the troops of Old Sol rode up and dispersed the gray-clad enemy of good spirits. Femininity, with a wealth of new spring bonnets and maze of bright dresses, was not represented to any great extent, due to the ungallant actions of a majority of the Board of Directors in not providing the necessary bits of pasteboard for the fair sex. The crowd present was variously estimated at from 3,000 to 3,200, but as the day's programme offered was not calculated to create a sensation and the chill wind cast something of a damper on matters, the management have no grounds for anything but self-congratulation. There were a number of handsome carriages within the inclosure, but the audience was essentially a masculine one, and confined itself mostly to the ground surrounding the betting stands. The course was fast enough for the most fastidious. It was not a very good day for the pencilers, of whom there were the unlucky number of thirteen ready to "bet agin' any o' 'em"—at prohibitive odds in two out of the four events.

Fairy was considered a steel-bound certainty in the initial event, consequently the dollars of the dear public did not fly in on her two competitors—Captain Al and imp. San Pedro—at a alarming rate. The mare won without a particle of urging by a length and a half. What money was wagered on the event was for place, for which honor Captain Al was a decided choice. He secured second money after just a little shaking up at the end.

Considerable coin went in on the second race, half a mile dash, for two-year-olds, Sir Roy being the favorite until he ran away with Dick Ward, when the odds jumped from 2½ to 1 to 6 and 8 to 1. Then Bridal Veil and Don Fulano were made equal favorites at 3 to 1 against the chances of each. The rule about walking the horses up and dropping the flag at the end of half an hour's wait was not followed by Starter Van Gordan, and 58 minutes were spent in effecting a send-off, and a poor send-off it was after all. Don Fulano showed himself to be a good colt by picking up 118 pounds this early in the racing season and running the half-mile in 0:49 3-5—this after thirty-five or forty false starts. Bridal Veil quit badly in the run down the homestretch, or she could not, with the best of the send-off, have lost. Sir Roy was coming like a whirlwind at the end, and many are of the opinion that he was about the best youngster in the bunch, and that if he had not run off five-eighths of a mile at top speed with Ward he would have landed the winner's end of the purse.

Revolver, favorite in the third race, showed up in better form than he ever did here, and would have won his race in straight heats had it not been for the "pocket" in the second. The burst of speed he showed down the homestretch in the first heat was calculated to bring forth applause from an iceberg.

Zaldivar's win of the last race was nothing more than an exercise gallop for the Joe Hooker gelding, and the ease with which he went the distance inspires his admirers with the belief that the Californian's chances in the American Derby are of the rosiest.

FIRST DAY, SATURDAY, APRIL 9.

Following is a detailed description of the day's races:

Presiding Judge—Thomas H. Williams.
Associate Judges—Col. H. I. Thornton and P. B. Quinlan.
Timers—Jos. Cairn Simpson, Chas. Boots.
Starters—Henry Walsh, first, third and fourth races; George Van Gordan, second race.
Clerk of the Course—N. Brough.

Three composed the field for the opening event—Fairy, Captain Al and imp. San Pedro. Fairy was at 1 to 10 and 1 to 12 in a couple of books, while the quoted odds were 10 to 1 Captain Al, 50 to 1 San Pedro, 9 to 1 the field against Fairy, with few takers on the proposition that the fielders might beat the rangy Argyle mare. Most of the play was on place—1 to 3 Captain Al, 2 to 1 San Pedro. Fairy has lengthened and filled out until she is a mammoth race mare. Captain Al looked as handsome as usual, but of course it was hardly expected that he could make the Los Angeles queen stretch her long neck. To a poor start, Fairy in front of San Pedro a length, Captain Al half a length behind the Australian, the trio inaugurated the season of racing. In the run to the quarter Fairy opened up a little more daylight, San Pedro a length in front of Captain Al. The last named now commenced to move up, and while Fairy continued on a little over a length in front, Captain Al and San Pedro passed the half head-and-head. Captain Al opened up a little, and was leading Appleby's little brown Antipodean a neck at the three-quarters. Fairy spread her wings and won without the use of whip, spur or any sort of urging by a length and a half. Captain Al and San Pedro had a good race down the final straight, the Captain securing the honor by half a length with a little urging in the last sixteenth. Time, 1:43—not fast, considering the excellent condition of the track.

SUMMARY.

BAY DISTRICT TRACK, SATURDAY, APRIL 9, 1892.—First race, introduction purse, three-year-olds and upwards; beaten maidens allowed five pounds; four-year-olds or over, ten pounds. One mile,

Owens Bros.' blk h Captain Al, five years, by Kingston—Black Maria, 125 pounds.....Jenkins	2
W. L. Appleby's br h imp. San Pedro, five years, 115 pounds...Nicols	3

Time, 1:43.

Won by a length and a half, one-half length between second and third.

No auctions.

Book-betting—Fairy, 1 to 12; Captain Al, 10 to 1; San Pedro, 50 to 1.

What is more uncertain than a big field of untried, "green" two-year-olds on a windy afternoon? Echo answers, "Nothing." Eleven youngsters cantered up to the half-pole and faced George Van Gordan in the second race of the day. Money flew into the bank-rolls of the liberal gentlemen with the slate, strong-box and leather lungs like hail in Norway. Dan McCarty, arrayed in a brand-new white bonnet of the ancient, frizzy description, made the bookmakers cut his filly Bridal Veil, down from 5 to 1 to 3 to 1. Sir Roy was played as if the money wagered was of the bogus order, while a staunch play was made on the Maltese Villa Stable candidate, Don Fulano. Grandee, Aerolite and the others were backed a little in the books, while the auction pools wore sold with neatness and dispatch. Van Gordan seemed unable to control the boys, and Joe Narvaez, on Bridal Veil, ought to have got a good-sized fine for trying to get two or three lengths the best of things, as he did repeatedly. He delayed the start until every man was inwardly swearing a blue streak. Grandee acted well at the post, but Sir Roy didn't. After cavorting around and kicking worse than any opera singer, Sir Roy, the strapping bay favorite, thought he'd run a little race by himself, and notwithstanding the efforts of Mr. Richard Ward, went five-eighths at breakneck speed before he could be got under control. This ruined all the colt's chances for the race, and the kind bookmakers immediately chalked up 6 and 8 to 1 against Sir Roy, with few takers. At length, fifty-eight minutes after the youngsters cantered to the post, the bunting cleft the air to a very poor start, Bridal Veil and Don Fulano getting the best of it to the tune of nearly two lengths, Grandee and a couple of others being left about eight lengths. Bridal Veil darted away as if she wanted to get to the wedding right away, and opened up a gap of two lengths before the three-quarter pole was reached, Don Fulabeing second, Monowai third, Sir Roy fourth, the rest strung out far in the rear and completely out of it. Don Fulano came like a minnie-ball around the final turn and into the homestretch, where Bridal Veil shut up badly and gave way to Don Fulano half-way down the straight. Sir Roy came fast in the last eighth, but could not get up in such a short dash. An eighth from home it was apparent that Don Fulano could only lose by falling down, which he did not do, and the stake was landed for Porter Ashe by a length margin, Bridal Veil one and one-half lengths before Sir Roy, who was, in turn, a head before Monowai. Then came Grandee a length behind the Palo Alto filly, the rest straggling in. Time, 0:49 3-5.

Time, 0:49 3-5.

Won by a length, one and a half lengths between second and third.

Auction pools—Sir Roy, $9; Bridal Veil, $7; the field, $20.

Book-betting—Don Fulano, 3 to 1; Bridal Veil, 3 to 1; Sir Roy, 2½ to 1 and 6 to 1; Aerolite, 6 to 1; Grandee, 8 to 1; Monowai, Estrella and Alliance, each 10 to 1; Orrin, 12 to 1; Martinet and Castanet, each 20 to 1.

May D., Regal and Hercules being scratched out of the third race, one of five-eighths heats, seven were left in as competitors. Revolver was a substantial sort of first choice at $25 against $35 for the field in the auctions, at 2 to 1 in the books, while the pencilers put down Jim R. as the most dangerous, next to Revolver, at 3 to 1. Revolver was well-backed in all the books to win, while considerable went in on Jim R., Inkerman and old Applause for the place. A good start was made, with Revolver and Monte Carlo first to show, Jim R. next. Monte Carlo was the leader going by the half-mile mark, Jim R. three parts of a length behind him, then Revolver and Applause, lapped. Monte Carlo shut up on the last turn like the proverbial jackiknife, and Revolver and Applause moved up like a couple of cyclones on a lone Kansas shanty. Revolver was third when the straight track was struck, and the spectators were treated to one of the most phenomenal bursts of speed ever seen on the ancient Bay District track. Revolver, apparently beaten at the turn, came so fast that the audience was for a moment thunderstruck. In fact, the horses themselves appeared to be appalled by the flight of Holly's horse. An eighth from the wire Revolver had shot well to the fore, and then old Applause made one of those grand finishes for which he is noted when on edge. Although Revolver slacked up a trifle, he came again and won from Applause with a length and a half to spare. Two and a half lengths behind Applause came Midnight, who crawled up well in the final quarter. Time, 1:02. Hearty cheers greeted Revolver for his cyclonic rush in the homestretch.

Second heat—No money was now wagered by the bookmakers against Revolver's chances, but in the auctions some few put up $8 for the field against $30 for Revolver. Inkerman got nearly two lengths the best of his fellow-sprinters at the start, Jim R. next, Revolver third to get away. This was the order passing the half. Applause moved up past Revolver, Inkerman still being first and Jim R. second. Revolver tried to get through, but with Inkerman directly in front of him, Jim R. on one side and Applause on the other he could not do it. Seeing the trap he had stepped in, Ward pulled Revolver to the rear, and the way he ran around everything except Inkerman in the last quarter will not be forgotten very soon. However, there was too much ground for any horse to make up, and Inkerman landed first by three parts of a length, Revolver second, Applause a little over a length behind, Jim R. fourth, Midnight next, Monte Carlo sixth and Ed. McGinty last. Time, 1:02¼.

Third heat—Revolver was still a red-hot favorite at $25 to $15, the bookies not quoting odds against the favorite at all. Against Inkerman it was 2 to 1. Revolver got away a neck in advance. At the half his lead was a little over a length. Between the half and three-quarter poles Inkerman came up fast, and at the head of the homestretch Revolver was not showing any daylight between himself and Sanborn's horse. However, Narvaez seemed unable to keep Inkerman from zigzagging the whole of the last eighth, and Revolver won easily by two lengths. Time, 1:02 4-5.

Time, 1:02, 1:02¼, 1:02 4-5.

First heat won by a length and a half, two and one-half between second and third; second heat won by three-quarters of a length, about one and a half lengths between second and third; third heat won by two lengths.

Auction pools.—First heat—The field, $25; Revolver, $24; Applause, $10. Second heat Revolver, $30; field, $8. Third heat—Revolver, $25; Inkerman, $15.

Book betting.—First heat—Revolver, 2 to 1; Inkerman, 4 to 1; Applause, 6 to 1; Midnight, 10 to 1; Jim R., 3 to 1; Monte Carlo, 30 to 1; Ed McGinty, 20 to 1. Second heat—Revolver, little or nothing done; Inkerman, Applause and Jim R., each 8 to 1; Midnight, 3 to 1; Ed McGinty, 100 to 1; Monte Carlo, 250 to 1. Third heat—Inkerman, 2 to 1.

The concluding race of the day was a mile and a quarter dash, and Zaldivar was considered a fall-down-get-up-and-win sure thing. The principal play was on the place. Esperanza and Queen Alta were well-backed for the honor. Esperanza was first away at the flag-flop, attended by Zaldivar and Montana. The order was unchanged passing the stand for the first time, the little filly leading the crack favorite nearly a length, he in turn half a length from Montana. Zaldivar walked up and took the baton from the hands of little Miss Esperanza before the next quarter had been traversed, and from there on there was never any doubt about who was going to win. Queen Alta moved up fast between the quarter and half poles, and from the rear of the procession was in third place at the half and still a-coming. She was second by about a length when the final turn was accomplished. Esperanza had suddenly fallen back to fourth place on the last turn, but she passed Montana in the run down the straight. Zaldivar went on and won with several links to spare in his chain of speed, passing the wire at an easy lope half a length in front of Queen Alta, who ran very fast from the half-pole home. She was gaining fast at the end on Zaldivar, but it must be taken into consideration that the gelding had not been urged in the least. Esperanza was third, nearly two lengths behind the Queen. Time, 2:11 1-5. A claim of foul by Spence, rider of Esperanza, was disallowed.

Book betting—Zaldivar, 35 to 100. Queen Alta, 6 to 1; Esperanza, 10 to 1; Montana, 15 to 1; Mero, 30 to 1.

As will be seen by the above descriptions, there was only one sensational feature about the day's racing—the finish of Revolver in the first heat. The time made in the heat race was extremely good, in the two-year-old race fair, but in the other events only ordinary.

SECOND DAY—TUESDAY, APRIL 12TH.

About two thousand persons saw to-day's races run off with quickness and dispatch. Starter J. B. Ferguson made his initial bow to the San Francisco public, and was at once pronounced an unqualified success. In fact, the general verdict was that we had never had a sure-enough starter on the coast until the advent of this Kentucky gentleman. He carries a small platform (the height of the inside fence) around with him, and the way he reads the "riot act" from that platform strikes terror to the hearts of the sauciest knight of the pigskin within hearing. While the flagging in the first three events was quick and good, the last race, in which there were eleven skittish youngsters, was the one in which Ferguson distinguished himself and stamped his work "nonpareil."

Only one warm favorite won (Revolver). The bookmakers went home with gold-laden pockets and smiles, the public walked home with pocket-books that looked as if one of the park elephants had stepped on them. Notwithstanding the non-success of the "talent," the day's sport was first-class in every respect. Dan McCarty is said to have won a ton or two of silver on Bernardo, who finished away off in front with ease. Revolver is a hard nut for anybody to crack just now. Montana ought to have won the heat race captured by Fanny F., but it is said he has bad feet. Even at that, he never should have suffered defeat in any such time as was made in that last heat. Princess ran the fastest half-mile ever credited to a California filly with like weight up—0:48 4-5.

Following is a complete description of the day's racing:

In the opening race of the day, one mile, there were ten starters, and Revolver, at 2 to 1, was the favorite. Almost everything in the race was backed, and as it was a selling affair, and many supposed Mr. Holly would not want to pay a large sum over the entered selling price, the bookmakers got off rather easily. It was Starter J. B. Ferguson's California debut, and, mounted on a rude little portable platform about the height of the low inside fence, he yelled at the boys: "Come up into line now! I'll warn you just once. The next time it will cost you $50, and if I have to speak to you the third time, it means you'll stay on the ground for the balance of the meeting." "Steady there, boys! I didn't come out over two thousand miles for my health, and you've got to mind me!" "Swish!" went the bunting, "Now you're off!" yelled Ferguson. "Come on! come on, boys!" Away went the field of ten to a rather straggling start, but all in motion. King Hooker and Regal were fighting for the lead in front, Applause next, and then Revolver. At the quarter it was Regal first by a head, King Hooker second, nearly two lengths away from Revolver. At the half the order was King Hooker first by a head, Regal second. Revolver had moved up on the leading pair, and was now forging forward faster than anything in the hunt. King Hooker fell back between the half and three-quarters, and Regal assumed command—only for a moment, however, for Revolver went right to the fore soon after striking the homestretch, and easily stayed there to the end, winning by a trifle over a length, Regal nearly two lengths from Applause, third.

SUMMARY.

Bay District Track, Tuesday, April 12, 1892.—First race, selling purse, $500. Horses entered to be sold for $1,200 to carry scale weights; three lbs. allowed for each $100 down to $900; then two lbs. for each $100 down to $800. One mile.

Time, 1:43.

Won by a little over a length easily, nearly two lengths between second and third.

Auction pools—The field, $35; Revolver, $20; Applause, $8.

Book-betting—Revolver, 2 to 1; Regal, 8 to 1; Applause, 8 to 1; King Hooker, 8 to 1; Hello, 30 to 1; St. Patrick, 15 to 1; Mero, 6 to 1; Reverie and The Flood, each 30 to 1; Tom Stacey, 5 to 1.

The second race, three-quarter mile dash, brought out a round dozen of sprinters, and the compact Rose filly, Motto, was at once installed a warm first choice, going first at 8 to 5 in the books, and finally at 6 to 5, owing to force of money. Royal Flush opened at 3 to 1, and although backed stiffly, receded in the betting until, at the post, 5 to 1 were offered against his chances. Dan McCarty and a few of his friends played Bernardo as if the money they were betting was of a spurious kind, and a small play was made on Blondinette. The others were not thought well of. There was considerable bad acting at the post, but the start was not long delayed, and when the flag fell they were all under way and in a neat bunch. Motto was leading, closely attended by Bernardo and Royal Flush. Motto drew out nearly a length, but Bernardo came up like a flash after her, and the Rose filly was leading but a head at the half, Royal Flush but a length away, third, Lottie Mills next, then Blondinette and the others straggling. Bernardo soon collared and passed the favorite, and swung into the stretch over a length to the good of Motto, Royal Flush, half a length behind her, head-and-head with Lottie Mills. Once a straightened out Bernardo opened out like an unthrottled locomotive, Motto shut up like a cold-blooded "crittur," as did Royal Flush, and Lottie Mills took second place. At every jump Bernardo came away from his field, and the interest centered in the fight for place. One hundred feet from the wire Early was brought up with a rush under the guidance of the veteran, George Howson, and he nipped second honors at the wire by a head from Lottie Mills. Bernardo, untouched by whip or steel, won the race by three lengths. Time, 1:15.

Time, 1:15.

Won by three lengths, head between second and third.

Auctions—The field, $20; Motto, $20; Royal Flush, $18.

Book-betting—Bernardo, 5 to 1; Early, 8 to 1; Lottie Mills, 20 to 1; Motto, 6 to 5; Royal Flush, 5 to 1; Folly and Blondinette, each 8 to 1; Sienna, 15 to 1; Bert Hart, May Pritchard and Santa Fe, each 20 to 1; Echo, 40 to 1.

Now came a six-furlong heat race, for which Fanny F. opened up favorite at 7 to 5. El Rayo was well backed in books and auctions, probably harder than any horse in the race. Montana had many admirers and Lady Gwen very few. To a quick start, Montana jumped off with the lead and was never headed, winning all the way and passing the wire with his mouth wide open a length in front of El Rayo, who, whipped and spurred out to the end, got the place by three lengths, Lady Gwen third, Fanny F. last and pulled up in the final sixteenth. Time, 1:14 2-5.

Second heat—Montana was at 1 to 3 in the books, on account of his easy win, 3 to 1 being offered against Fanny F., 4 against El Rayo and 30 Lady Gwen. Fanny F. shot to the front at the flag's flop, attended by El Rayo, till between the half and three-quarter marks, when Montana moved up on even terms with Fanny F. and El Rayo fell back fast. Montana entered the stretch for home a head in advance of Fanny, but Lady Gwen, coming like a whirlwind at this point, passed Montana, and a ding-dong struggle ensued between Fanny F. and Lady Gwen for about the last eighth, George Evans riding the latter in a masterly manner. However, it was not in his mount to win, and Fanny F. captured the heat in the last jump by a nose amid excitement and no little surprise at the great finish made by the outsider. Montana was three lengths back, pulled up, while El Rayo was a bad last. Time, 1:16 1-5.

Third heat—Fanny F. was now a prohibitive first choice, as good as 2½ to 1 being offered in the books against the chances of Montana. When the flag fell Montana was half a length ahead, but Fanny moved up like a good one, and the pair passed the half head-and-head. It was ding-dong from this point till within about forty yards of the winning post, Montana leading up to this point by a scant head. Fanny F. managed to get her head in front about 100 feet from the wire, and came away, winning by a neck in 1:17 3-5.

Time, 1:14 2-5, 1:16 1-5, 1:17 3-5.

First heat won by a length, three lengths between second and third; second heat won by a nose, three lengths between second and third; third heat won by a neck.

Auction pools—First heat: The field, $20; El Rayo, $16. Second heat: Montana, $60; the field, $22. No pools on third heat.

Book-betting—First heat: Fanny F., 7 to 5; Montana, 2½ to 1; Lady Gwen, 10 to 1; El Rayo, 2 to 1. Second heat: Fanny F., 3 to 1; Montana, 1 to 3; Lady Gwen, 30 to 1; El Rayo, 4 to 1. Third heat: Fanny F., 1 to 3; Montana, 2½ to 1.

The concluding race of the day brought out eleven youngsters, and out of the crowd only three (Don Fulano, Dick O'Malley and Hiogo) had ever started. On the strength of his previous good win, Don Fulano was installed a hot first choice, 6 to 5 being his price in the books, Princess second choice at 3 to 1. Don Fulano and Orta were sold out of the field in the auctions. Starter Ferguson massed the youthful gallopers splendidly without delay, and to the surprise of everyone sent the large field off in a compact bunch at the very first attempt. Adolphus was the first to show, and a merry pace he set. Orta was his nearest attendant at the three-quarters and around the turn, Princess third at this point. Don Fulano here commenced to gain rapidly, and the crowd shouted: "Here comes the favorite!" But the shouts soon changed to the query: "What is that coming up on the inside?" It was Princess, and the filly was gaining at every stride. In a twinkling, once well in the straight, she assured command, and the further she went the better she seemed to like it. The result was never in doubt, and she passed under the wire first by a length. A desperate struggle ensued for place honors between Don Fulano and Adolphus, but notwithstanding Hennessy rode like a tartar, Adolphus came again at the wind-up in a way that was not to be denied, and got the place by a head. Thus it was that Cheviots finished first and second. The time, 0:48 4-5, is the best ever made by a filly with the weight up in California.

THIRD DAY—THURSDAY, APRIL 14, 1892.

Two of the five races run to-day were on a dry track with a strong wind blowing, the other events came off on a slippery course that resembled a creek more than anything else, and Boreas had concluded it was high time to take a nap. The attendance was close on to 2,000, threatening skies and disagreeable blasts notwithstanding. The starting was not as good as on Tuesday, but still an improvement on former flag-wielding. In the second event, especially, Mr. Ferguson did not do himself proud, Acclaim getting off in front and Captain Al far in the rear. The win of Monowai in the first race of the day was a profound shock to the talent, and it is just possible that Billy Donathan, the colt's owner, was not a little surprised himself. Acclaim, many believe, might have tasted the bitterness of defeat had Captain Al got a good send-off, but we are inclined to think the little mare would have pulled off the race just the same. Initiation knocked out the "good thing," Little Mills, in fine shape, and with 119 pounds up in the bargain. The favorite quit badly in the last eighth. Sheridan showed that he was a grand mudlark by taking up 125 pounds and beating a good field, while McCarty's Castanet proved herself rather above the selling plater class by winning the last race, nine-sixteenths of a mile, in 0:58 4-5, over a track that was the slowest of the slow. It will be seen that just two favorites got home first in the five races, and the pencilers doubtless had a few shades the best of the day's dealings.

Following is a detailed description of the various events:

Sir Roy was a well-backed first choice in the first race, half a mile, with ten starters, but Bridal Veil and Sir Reel lacked not for supporters with coin that talked. Sir Reel ran off several times, Sir Roy nearly broke Dick Ward's arms off in his attempts to get away, while Orrin was as cantankerous as the average circus mule, Coda, his jockey, seemed unable to control his mount, and got a fine of $50 set opposite his name for disobeying Starter Ferguson, and a setting down for five days in the bargain. After buck-jumping and breaking away for about twenty minutes, the flag swished with Orrin in the lead, Bridal Veil close up, Sir Roy next. The McCarty filly went to the front without delay and piloted her nearest attendants, Orrin and Sir Roy, around into the homestretch, where Monowai, who had been laying back fourth, came up like a flash, and collaring the tiring Bridal Veil at the drawgate, to the great surprise of the assemblage landed the money for Donathan by three parts of a length, Bridal Veil second, a length and a half from Orrin, third. Bridal Veil struck the home-stretch a good two lengths in front of her nearest competitor, and seemed to go all to pieces in a second. The time was 0:50 2-5. Young Donathan rode a very creditable race on Monowai.

The second race, owners' handicap, one mile, brought out the crack mare, Acclaim, the famous Geraldine, the handsome Captain Al and the rejuvenated May D. Acclaim was an odds-on favorite, the principal play in the boooks being on place. Considerable trouble was experienced in getting the small field away, and when the flag fell Acclaim and May D. were off in front, Geraldine next, a length behind them, and Captain Al over a length behind her. Acclaim and May D. ran locked to the quarter and nearing the half, where Captain Al commenced to gain. Between the half and three-quarters the black horse came up at a wonderful rate, passed Geraldine and made it very warm for Acclaim, who won a well-contested race by three parts of a length, Captain Al two lengths from Geraldine, third. Time, 1:43 2-5. Captain Al made a phenomenal run, and many believe the first money would have gone to the Owens Brothers had their horse got off well.

The third race was considered a good thing for Lottie Mills, and most of the money went in on her. Her competitors were Initiation, Braw Scot and Motto. The flag fell to a good start, Braw Scot a trifle in front, Initiation next, Lottie Mills and Motto lapped. Lottie Mills and Braw Scot ran as a team to the quarter and half, when the former drew away, reaching the homestretch two lengths in advance of Initiation, who had made a fast move in the last eighth. It looked all over but the shouting, but the favorite tired alarmingly, and Initiation, coming on swiftly at the finish, won the race from the whipped-out Lottie Mills by a good length, Lottie half a length only from Braw Scot, who showed himself to be quite a canny chunk of a "green" gelding. Motto was never in it, and sulked badly almost all the way. Time, 1:39.

SUMMARY.

The fourth race was a mile and a quarter, and rain was coming down in torrents. The track was a perfect quagmire. Oscar became a red-hot favorite, lots of coin going on him, while Queen Alta was next in public favor. Sheridan was despised, with his 125 pounds up. The flag flopped with Sheridan in front, Santa Fe next, Folly third. Sheridan was never headed. Queen Alta was in a pocket going around the first turn, Sheridan being in front, Santa Fe on one side and Folly on the other. At the half-mile pole, three-quarters having been run, Santa Fe was still second to Sheridan, Queen Alta now third and moving well, Oscar close up and also coming. Sheridan continued on unmolested, and won easily by a length. Oscar came up like a whirlwind at the end and beat Queen Alta for the place by a head right under the wire. Time, 2:15 2-5.

The closing event of the day was a two-year-old selling race, distance four and one-half furlongs. McCarty's Castanet was a full-blooded favorite at the post, Steadfast opening up favorite in the books. Castanet was heavily played, and got off in the lead. She held her position to the end, and won strong by a length and a half. Martinet came like a shot at the drawgate and beat Steadfast out for the place by about a length. Time, 0:58 4-5. The jockeys after this race looked as if they had been rolled in a barrel full of thin mud.

Wonderful Robert McGregor.

Robert McGregor (2:17½) is one of the grandest specimens of our trotters or trotting-bred horses, whether looked at as an individual or as a race horse, and every horsemen who has ever seen him, either at rest or in one of his grand finishes, has acknowledged him truly a "monarch." He has fought his own battles and has proven that he possesses precisely the qualities all are now so anxious to breed. Had he never been harnessed there is in his general appearance and also in his breeding something which would convince any keen observer that he must possess the very highest degree of courage and endurance, and this his campaigning thoroughly proved.

In summing up inheritance many look too superficially, measuring almost wholly by the 2:30 list of his sire and the dam, without taking into account opportunity, or whether the desirable qualities have been intensified by coming from each ancestor in the generations farther removed. The American trotter is so far to a great extent a combination of almost every breed or strain, generally including some close crosses that are soft and undesirable, and where such qualities are covered by but a generation or two they are sure to be frequently reproduced. In the pedigree of McGregor, however, as the tabulation will show, there is not a solitary soft spot to be pointed out, while each known ancestor has proven superior as a performer or reproducer, and generally as both, hence it is fair to presume that the unknown crosses, judged by that which traces to them, must have been of the same superior quality.

ROBERT McGREGOR, 2:17½.

- Major Edsall, 2:29, 3 in 2:30
  - Abdallah, 2:42, 5 in 2:30
    - Hambletonian, 40 in 2:30
    - Katy Darling
  - Nodine Mare, dam of Major Edsall, 2:29
    - Harris' Hambletonian, 4 in 2:30
    - Vermont Mare
- Nancy Whitman, dam of Madeline, 2:23¼, etc.
  - American Star 14, 4 in 2:30
    - American Star
    - Sally Slouch
  - Nance, dam of Lady Whitman, 2:30
    - Young Messenger Duroc
    - Thompson Mare

Major Edsall, the sire of Robert McGregor was a game race horse, winning 15 of his races, beating several famous trotters, and there is no doubt that if he had been carefully fitted and campaigned he would have proven one of the greatest trotters of his day, still in spite of his disadvantages he obtained a record of 2:29.

He is the sire of three with records of 2:17½, 2:22¾ and 2:30, and including the sire of the pacer, Major Wonder (2:13½), has four producing sons besides McGregor.

Nancy Whitman, the dam of Robert McGregor, is also the dam of the famous Madeline (2:23¼), and of McLeod, the sire of Jim Sneaks (2:23½). While we have since had greater sires than Alexander's Abdallah, there was no greater at the time he lived, and the same is true of his sire, Rysdyk's Hambletonian, Old Abdallah, Harris' Hambletonian and American Star.

Alexander's Abdallah, though his record is only 2:42, trotted in 2:30¼, and it is claimed on one occasion a mile below 2:30. He was generally considered the fastest trotting stallion then in Orange County. His daughter, Goldsmith Maid, was far the greatest trotter of her day, and in several respects, particularly as to number of heats in 2.30, still surpasses all others. His sons, Almont and Belmont, were, and rank still, among the greatest of sires, while his two most famous grandsons, Nutwood and Robert McGregor, are far greater. It would seem as though one peculiarity of the Alexander's Abdallah branch of the Hambletonian is that there is an improvement generally with each successive generation.

American Star has seldom, if ever, been given the credit he really deserves. Registered, he was nearly thoroughbred, and his general appearance and characteristics were still stronger evidences that such was the case. Few are aware, as he appears to have left no technical record, of the remarkable speed he possessed and transmitted. Not only at the age of twenty-one and to wagon did he beat the famous Alexander's Abdallah, mentioned above, then known as Edsall's Hambletonian, who was in his prime, and trotted on that occasion one of his very best races, but he also proved more than a match for Harry Clay (2:29), which makes it very certain that he must have possessed considerable speed.

From the time of Dexter to the close of 1891, a very large proportion of the record-breakers, including Nancy Hanks, who last season reduced the race record to 2:12, Jay-Eye-See, the fastest gelding, 2:10; Direct, the fastest pacer, 2:06; Clingstone, the trotting demon, with a race record of 2:14; Great Eastern, which still holds the fastest saddle record of 2:15¾; Sable Wilkes, sire of the first yearling to beat 2:30; Axtell, three years, 2:12, and numerous others which might be named, have one or more close crosses to American Star, unquestionably a prominent source of speed in each of those named above.

Harris' Hambletonian was one of the very greatest, if not the greatest sire of his day. His daughter, Green Mountain Maid (2:28½), was a very remarkable trotter and much faster than her record. Sontag's wagon record of 2:31 was for years one of the very fastest, and the pacer Hero (2:20½) had scarcely a rival. The dam of Harris' Hambletonian was a mare famous for speed and endurance, and his sire was unquestionably the fastest and perhaps the best son of imported Messenger.

It was from the recognized resemblance and belief that Bishop's Hambletonian was the most prominent source of the superiority which induced Mr. Rysdyk to name his now famous horse "Hambletonian." The granddam of McGregor was sired by Young Messenger Duroc, a son of the stout old thoroughbred, which had different characteristice from the Orange County trotting sire of the same name.

There is also a reasonable certainty that McGregor has a cross, through Katy Darling, the dam of Alexander's Abdallah, to Andrew Jackson, son of the thoroughbred Young Bashaw. Andrew Jackson was the fastest trotting stallion of his day, a stout and game race horse, and if some of his descendants are not the stoutest, it is due to the softest crosses with which his blood was combined.

Superior as all the ancestors of McGregor have been for speed, and particularly endurance, a question naturally arises to which he is probably most indebted and of which he possesses the characteristics in the most marked degree. We would say unquestionably it is to American Star. He has the same bright, beautiful shade of golden chestnut, and, though larger, has much the same conformation and general characteristics. From all accounts there is also a similarity in gait and in numerous other particulars.

Robert McGregor is of exactly the right height for either track or road, being 15½ hands forward, and an inch higher over the loins. He has everywhere plenty of substance, will weigh fully 1,200 pounds, and there is generally a substantial yet well-finished appearance. We first saw him several years ago at Lexington, immediately after carefully inspecting his son Bonnie McGregor (2:13½), which we then regarded as one of the most beautiful stallions we had ever seen, but on seeing his sire it was difficult to decide which was really the handsomer.

Perhaps there is a more noble, majestic carriage to Robert McGregor, though his son would probably be considered fully as handsome. We learned a few years ago the particulars as to the dam of Bonnie McGregor, and it is safe to say she was not by Reconstruction, as is generally given, nor has she had any close crosses to any strain which would be considered of value. Certainly no other horse has ever sired so fast and game a performer from a mare of as little breeding.

An excellent characteristic of the McGregors is that they are nearly all very pure-gaited. I have never seen a pacer or mixed-gaited one in the family, while all but one of those which have yet beaten 2:30 are trotters. Furthermore, it has been my observation that they are of very pleasant dispositions, though Robert himself, since he was campaigned, has been rather irritable and difficult to handle, particularly by those not acquainted with him.

As a sire Robert McGregor has proven a great success. He has thirty with records of from 2:13¾ to 2:30, and sixteen of these are colt records. He is the sire of the two-year-olds Miss McGregor (2:26½) and Burns McGregor (2:29), of the three-year-olds McGregor Wilkes (2:22½), Byron McGregor 2:28½), Count McGregor (2:29½) and Hixie McGregor (2:28½).

There are also some twenty-five in the next generation with records below 2:30, besides a yearling with a record of 2:36¾, which is certainly remarkable for so young a sire, particularly considering his meagre opportunity, and that there has been no interested owner to push them forward, as it was long a question who was his owner. That his speed is natural is evident from his having been given an exhibition quarter last fall, barefooted, and the first time for years, yet he trotted it in 33 seconds. We judged him at the Washington County Fair last fall, and will in another article give his score. He is certainly a great horse.

The Dawns are in Demand.

We understand that Harry Agnew has recently sold one of the daughters of Dawn, 2:18¾ for $3,000, and as she was one of his coming campaigners, he must take up some other one to prepare for the circuit. They are all very fast, if the rumors we hear are true, and we have no reason to doubt them judging by all the colts and fillies that the interior papers boast of every week. Jas. McNabb, has one called Early Bird at Petaluma that is a fast one. Orrin Hickok has Peep-o'-Day at Pleasanton, and he considers him an A No. 1 horse. Capt. B. Harris has a suckling filly named Rival that he will match against any colt or filly dropped in 1892—he bars none—to trot as a three-year-old. The terms are, $100 to be put up each month for thirty-six months, play or pay in fall of 1895. Nearly all of the trainers have colts by Dawn engaged for the fall meetings, and if a number do not go in the list, every horseman who remembers the "Dandy of the Turf," and sees any of his progeny, will be disappointed.

Dawn was worked hard as a yearling, two-year-old and three-year-old, and campaigned up to within a few years ago. He is but eleven years of age and has four in the list—all got in last year—two of them three-year-olds. His sire was fourteen years old before he got any representatives and to-day is known as the greatest living sire. Dawn never had an opportunity to get first-class broodmares until he was placed at the head of the Agnew Stock farm, and the colts and fillies that have made their appearance this spring will receive every opportunity to prove that their owner was correct in his judgment regarding their breeding. Dawn is acknowledged to be the best gaited and speediest campaigner that Nutwood sired while on this coast; these youngsters should become as great, if not greater, than he, and will be sought for by breeders and trainers everywhere. In the Eastern states the Nutwoods, Electioneers and Wilkes families are considered the most fashionable, and they deserve to be so considered. In this State the Nutwood blood is in the ascendancy; if one is to judge by the demand.

Grand Stallion Stake.

A rich plum is the 2:15 stallion stake to be trotted for at Sacramento this fall. The State Agricultural Association adds $1,000 for seven or more entries, $800 for six, $600 for three to five starters. Stakes and added money will be divided 50, 25, 15 and 10 per cent. and entries close to-day. The entrance fee is $150, of which $50 must accompany entry. It is sure to be a rich stake, and every owner of a really fast stallion should come in and try to carry off the honors and the coin. See the advertisement in another column of this paper.

All horsemen who have used the celebrated packing for horse's hoofs called Spelterine, praise it very highly. It has taken the place of blue clay, manure, flaxseed and all other poultices, and in the Eastern States the demand for it is increasing every day. It is easy of application, never dries completely, and retains its plastic qualities for many hours. For cooling feet and taking out soreness, it surpasses all other applications.

THE attention of all horsemen is called to the advertisement of the Napa Agricultural Society. Entries will close May 2d.

THE GUN.

The Lincoln Gun Club Tournament.

The tournament held by the Lincoln Gun Club on Sunday last was an eminently successful event. There was a large attendance and from morning until night the sportsmen kept splitting the air with sound and filling it with miniature clouds of dust as the Blue Rocks turned to an impalpable state after being struck with a shower of leaden pellets. There was some excellent shooting: some good shooting and then there was just shooting! Cate carried off the honors of the day and more money than any other one man. In the main match of the day he came in winner with only one demerit. "Roi" came next, but one bird below him, 18 out of a possible 20. Potter third with a credit of 17 out of a possible 20. The following is the score in the main match:

Cate	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	0	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	19

The shooting continued all day and at a late hour the sport was brought to a close with the best of feeling to all participants.

The Alameda Gun Club.

On Saturday last the Alamedas met at the trap to participate in the second monthly shoot of this organization at live birds for this season.

This club always turns out in goodly numbers, and, as a rule, the scores made are fully up to the average, if indeed not a shade better than that presented by the execution presented by the other organizations of this city and vicinity. On this occasion, however, the goddess of fortune favored the birds by a very respectable percentage over the average events held by this club. Strabismus is known to effect individuals frequently, but never before have we known such strong evidences of its infectious character as shown by the scores made by this club on this occasion. The poor shooting cannot be laid at the door of the weather clerk, for seldom has that gentleman presented a more perfect demonstration of his good judgement in ordering than on the character of the day presented on this occasion. It cannot be laid to the birds for they were a mixed lot, "duffers," "drivers" and indifferent ones, alternating throughout the match. This club has introduced a very pleasing feature in that they present, at each match, a number of prizes, which are distributed at the close of the day's shoot to the several successful members in their respective classes. The prizes on this occasion consisted of silver cups, a silver match-box, a beautiful rosewood cane and a unique clock. The club's prize for the best average shot of the season is an elegant gold-lined "love cup," on which appears a very accurate etching of this organization's club house on their preserve at the Sonoma marsh. The contest for this trophy will be spirited, as the scores so far made leave all the better shots of the club in a fair position to win it.

SUMMARY.

Oakland Shooting Park, Oakland, Cal., April 9, 1892.—The second monthly contest of the Alameda Gun Club for this organization's monthly and annual prizes and trophies. Mr. C. T. Morrison, President; Mr. H. B. Houghton, Secretary; C. W. Kyle, Referee. The score:

Norton	1	1	0	1	2	2	1	1	0	2	0	2—9
A. F. Adams	2	2	1	*	1	1	1	1	0	1	1	0—9
Lichtenberg	2	1	0	2	0	1	2	1	1	2	1	0—9

"Slade"	0	0	0	1	0	1	1	0	1	1	1	1—7
T. J. Knowles	1	1	2	*	0	2	2	1	2	0	0	0—7
Cowell	1	0	0	1	1	1	1	0	0	2	0	2—7
Bliss	0	1	0	2	0	2	1	1	0	0	1	1—7
Osborn	1	0	0	0	1	1	0	0	0	1	2	1—6
Lainer	0	*	1	0	0	2	2	1	1	0	1	0—6
Hamilton	1	0	0	0	1	0	1	0	0	1	2	1—6
Houghton	2	0	0	2	0	0	1	0	1	2	0	2—6
Schroeder	0	0	0	*	1	0	0	2	0	2	1	0—4
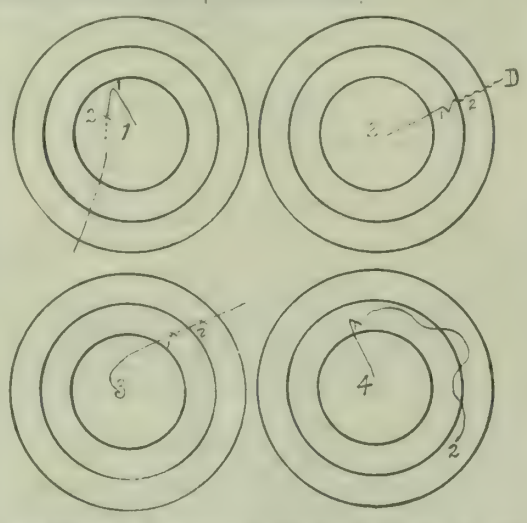
H. H. Adams	0	0	0	0	0	0	2	0	0	0	1	0—2

In a six-bird match following, Messrs. Schroeder and Osborn divided. In another, Schroeder, Lainer and Osborn tied; on the "shoot off" the first-named of the trio won on one bird.



Three dozen and ten birds remaining were shot off on roubles by Messrs. Lainer and Schroeder, which was chiefly demarkable for the many excellent kills made by a third party on the escaping birds. This event was greatly enjoyed by the onlookers. This wound up the day's sport.

Some Thoughts on Scoring.

The close competition of many of the best shots of the day at the trap requires that the most minute system of scoring be adopted in order to present the exact amount of skill shown by each party in order that the record be faithful to a farther extent than that which shows only the number of birds grassed by each party within bounds. The constant readers of the Breeder and Sportsman will remember the plan as here presented as being the one prepared and presented by us during the past season and used with satisfactory results. The grounds should be perfectly smooth, and rings dividing them, as shown in the accompanying illustration, into three parts equi-distant, marked by a solution of lime, would render the idea complete. The sportsman who would drop his birds dead within the first or inner circle, with first barrel, all other conditions being equal, should receive a greater credit than one who would be compelled to use his second barrel to accomplish the same result. Credits should be given, all things being equal, to the man who drops his birds nearest the traps whence they would be released with first barrel. We are aware also, that when a swift erratic bird is liberated from the trap that the judgment of the sportsman, in allowing the bird to settle in flight before firing, should be taken into consideration. Dropping such a bird, even but within the boundary, is evidence of skill and good judgment combined, which should not go unrewarded.

Frequently have we witnessed matches in which the man scoring a less number of birds than his opponent showed higher and more commendable skill than the man who won, judging only by the number of birds grassed. A referee and two judges could carry out this system in a manner which would conduce to the elevation of the sport of trap shooting and, we doubt not, to the entire satisfaction of the parties contesting.

If the discovery of the superior skill of the contestants be the aim of these contests at the trap, and this, and this only, should be the object of every match, then certainly the quality of the birds fired at by each contestant; the quickness in which they are grassed and the degree of skill shown at each shot are elements which cannot be reasonably ignored in making up the decision of the contest on its merits. The following illustration presents our plan on which is recorded four shots as made at the trap at this city last year:

The score book, of which we have still a number on hand, any one may secure a copy or as many as they may desire for use by sending stamps for postage on same, are presented with twelve combination rings on each page, each separate combination being for the record of one shot only as above shown. When the bird is released from trap the number of the trap is placed in the center of the circles from which the direction of the flight of the bird is traced with the effect of the shot or shots fired at it.

In the first instance, as shown by the illustration, the bird was released from trap 1; taking a left out quartering flight, the first shot, as shown by figure 1 over the line, caused the bird to drop to the ground, indicated by x; the second barrel, was fired at the bird while it was on the ground, overshooting it as shown by Figure 2. The shooter then attempted to retrieve the bird when it walked toward the score line, indicated by the dots and arose an incomer, and passed out of boundary, indicated by the line reaching out of circles. In the second shot presented, the bird was a right out going quarter, the first shot struck it severely and it wavered in flight, second shot falling below line of flight and the bird fell dead out of bounds, as indicated by letter D at end of line beyond circle. The third shot presents a swift right quartering bird, the shots represented by figures 1 and 2 show that they passed below and behind the bird, the position of which when fired at is represented by the crosses on line.

The fourth shot represents the bird, a "driver" from trap 4, at first shot it circles and coming back toward score and to right, falls to second shot, in outer division of grounds, but within the boundary.

This system will be found admirable in recording the results of skillful and closely contested matches.

The State Sportsmen's Association.

The State Sportsmen's Association is moving actively in the good work for which it was formed, and in which for so many years it was the one prominent factor. If the sentiment of the sportsmen of the State can be brought to bear as a unit on any proposition on which so large a body of men could agree, there can be no doubt but that success will crown any effort which they might so make. The Southern California Wing Shooting Club of Riverside has signified its intention to join the association as a body, and we doubt not but that numerous other clubs outside of this city will do the same. On the 7th inst. the California Wing Shooting Club of this city joined the association. Several other clubs have also determined to join and action is only defered until the next meeting of these organizations. It is safe to say that not for years, at least, has the sentiment pertaining to the enforcement of the game and fish laws been so active as now, and it is to the end that this sentiment may be aroused and crystalized into effective form that the State Sportsmen's Association is working. Let every one who is interested in this subject send in their name and $1 and become a member of this association. The money will be carefully and judiciously expended to forward the above named interest. Let a grand effort now be made and the results, we predict, will be surprising for good. It has ever been the experience of men that a little well-directed effort in a good cause, a cause where justice forms the foundation and permeates the law, or, in other words, where the law is clearly but the promptings of justice, is productive of splendid results in proportion to the amount of effort put forth. In this matter all good citizens are a unit for the enforcement of the laws already upon our statutes, and no inconsiderable portion of them would gladly work for and support heartily further enactment looking to more stringent measures in this direction, and especially to the more rigorous enforcement of the law as it now stands. No law can be rendered efficacious save by a deep-rooted conviction on the part of the majority of the people that it is just and equitable, and that its enforcement will result in the greatest good for the greatest number of the inhabitants of the State or district for which it was made to apply. Every sentiment of equity and good intention are pillars, strong and firm as right itself, and they underlie this entire proposition. Let every sportsman work to this end that the law upon this subject may become to represent a living active principle. Will not all do so who may? If so, in no other way can you accomplish this object better than by joining this association.

The Salinas Rod and Gun Club.

The first meeting of the Salinas Rod and Gun Club took place on Sunday last at Sherwood Park. Owing to the fact that the membership of this club are lovers of the rod as well as the gun but a small number appeared at the trap on this occasion, many of the membership being engaged in whipping the waters of that vicinity for trout. The first honors on this occasion were carried off by Mr. L. J. Hazen.

In pool shooting Mr. J. B. Brazleton came in for first; W. O. Harlan, second, and J. A. Horton third.

The next regular event of this club at the trap will take place on Sunday afternoon, the 24th inst.

Portland, Or., April 7, 1892.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—I have received letters of inquiry regarding the Mongolian pheasant from almost every State in the Union, but strange as it may seem, I have had but few letters from California. As nearly every sportsman is aware, these beautiful, prolific, and game birds have within the last few years become very beautiful throughout the Williamette Valley. True they have been protected by law but despite this fact great numbers have been slain by "pot" hunters and expressed to California points. I understand that some of these birds have been introduced into California. I see no reason why the Mongolian pheasant should not do well and greatly multiply in your state. I am not a breeder of there birds nor do I have anything to do with their rearing, but I have the address of several parties residing in the Willamette Valley who can furnish both live birds or their eggs. If any individual or club wishes to introduce these magnificent birds into their locality, I will upon receiving a stamped and self addressed envelop, furnish them with the desired names. Now is the time to procure eggs as the birds are just beginning to nest.

Thos. G. Farrell.

Mr. J. S. Thompson, of the Westminister Gun Club of New York, left for his home on Monday last. He was a guest of the San Franaisco Gun Club at its shoot last month, and gave the sportsmen there asssmbled a splendid example of quick shooting at the trap, dropping easily all of his birds with first barrel, but invariably using his second and that usually very quickly. Mr. Thompson was the immediate guest of Mr. John K. Orr, the genial and courteous secretary of this organization. Mr. Thompson was warm in his praise of the courteous treatment that he received from the hands of the sportsmen of San Francisco and extended a cordial invitation to those he met personally to come East and bring along their guns. Sportsmanship represents the inheritance of the old-timed chivalry, and right worthy it is to bear that pleasing and distinguished honor. All lovers of outdoor sports are notable for that genial courtesy of disposition which, if made still more general so as to permeate other circles, would go a long way in smoothing the rough places in life.

The E. T. Allen Company have just received one of the largest importations of Greener hammerless shot guns ever consigned to the Pacific Coast. The way in which they were taken by sportsmen here indicates the popularity of this high class gun. More Greeners are being used at the trap in this vicinity, this season, than ever before. In excellence of shooting qualities and style of finish there is no gun on the market that surpasses them.

The California Wing Shooting Club will hold its third monthly meeting for this season at the traps to-morrow, Sunday. All participants should take the the 9 o'clock boat from this city in order to be in time for the opening match. After the regular Club match pool shooting will be open for all who may desire to enter. An elegant lunch will be served on the grounds.

Messrs. Colville and Tucker, two as genial and courteous representatives of the gun manufacturies of the country as one could care to meet, has been in the city for the week. The former represents the New Baker and the latter, the Parker gun. They each left for the East and intermediate points this morning. We are sorry that they did not have the opportunity of attending some pigeon matches while here.

The next Selby Medal Contest will take place at Oakland Track on Sunday April 24th. Shooting commences at 10 o'clock a. m. Sportsmen from this city should take 9 o'clock boat.

The San Francisco Gun Club holds its regular monthly meet at the trap to-day. The first squad will take the 12 m. ferry so as to hasten the shooting of the day.

NAPA SODA sold in all saloons, restaurants and drug stores on Pacific Coast.

ROD.

A Mackerel Sky.

By Charles Hallock.

The filmy nimbus dallies with the Sun,
Puts on light airs, and frolics just for fun;
Flirts its gauze veil athwart his ruddy face,
Sways and coquettes with all-bewitching grace.
Peek and bopeep across the azure field,
Sun and grey mist alternate places yield!
Kiss and caress the coyish sprite bestows,
Fierce and more fierce his kindly fervor glows!
'Til wrapt at last within the ardent flame,
Impassioned Folly justifies her name:
Melts and dissolves in plentitude of tears,
And leaves her lesson for the mortal years.

Salmon and Trout of the Pacific Coast.

BY DR. DAVID STARR JORDAN.

(Concluded.)

Of the American Trout, the one which most nearly approaches the European Salmo fario, is the Rainbow Trout of California, Salmo irideus, as it was named some forty years ago by Dr. W. P. Gibbons, of Alameda. The name Rainbow Trout is simply a translation of the Latin name iridens given by Dr. Gibbons, and in default of any better common name this name is likely to last. The distinctive characters of this trout lie mainly in the large scales (about one-hundred and thirty-five) in a lengthwise series, in the comparatively small mouth and plump body. The color is bluish, the sides silvery, usually with a red lateral band, and marked with reddish and dusky blotches. The young, as in all trout, are crossed by dark bands, which are, in every case, a mark of immaturity. In the Rainbow Trout the head, back and upper fins are sprinkled with round black spots, which are very variable in number. In specimens taken in the sea, this speeies, like most other trout in similar conditions, is bright silvery, and sometimes immaculate. This species is especially characteristic of the waters of California. It abounds in every clear brook from the Mexican line northward to Mount Shasta, and perhaps farther. No specimens have been anywhere obtained. to the eastward of the Cascade Range or of the Sierra Nevada. It varies much in size, specimens from Northern California often reaching a weight of six pounds, while in the Rio San Luis Rey, the southern-most locality from which I have obtained trout, they seldom exceed a length of six inches. Although not an anadromous species, the Rainbow Trout frequently moves about in the rivers, and it often enters the sea. All the small trout which I have seen from the streams of the Coast Range belong to this species, and there is no authentic record of its occurrence outside of California.

Another California trout is the so-called Steel-head, more usually known in California as Salmon Trout, a fish sufficiently like the Salmon Trout of Europe, but the name Steel-head seems to me preferable because its head and the hardness of the bones of its skull are compared with the bones of the Quinnat Salmon, is found very abundantly in the mouth of the Columbia and other rivers at the time of the salmon run. Its usual weight in the Columbia is about twelve pounds, but it occasionally reaches twenty or twenty-five pounds. The fishes seen in the river mouth at that time of the early salmon runs are evidently spent fishes. They are lean and lank, the flesh is pale and poor, and the bones are hard, for all of which reasons it is, or ought to be, rejected by the canners, although there is no doubt that the Steel-head, when taken at its best, may be one of the finest of all trout. It certainly reaches a larger average size than any other real trout in any country. Its scientific name Salmo gairdneri, named for Dr. Gairdner, of Astoria, who first discovered the species and sent it to John Richardson. The fact that these fishes are spent in the spring would indicate a spawning time later than that of the salmon —probably midwinter—and they are probably found in the rivers at this time, because they are returning toward the sea. Steel-heads are most abundant in the Columbia, but they are not infrequently taken in the Sacramento, and several young specimens have been sent to me by Mr. Ramon E. Wilson, of the State Fish Commission, from the Eel river and the Klamath river. It is not unlikely that the most of the trout in the coastwise streams of northwestern California belong to this species.

Comparing the Steel-heads with the Rainbow Trout, we find no differences, other than that the former is of much larger size and has a larger mouth, and its caudal fin is truncate instead of forked. But the tail becomes more truncate and the mouth larger with age in all species of salmon and trout. If a Rainbow Trout were to reach to reach the size of the Steel-head, it ought to acquire characters similar to those of the latter species. It is not at all unlikely that the Steel-head is simply a Rainbow Trout which has descended into the sea and which has grown larger and coarser, and acquired somewhat different form and habits on account of its food and its surroundings. If this be true, the very young Steel-heads would not be distinguishable from the young Rainbow Trout, and I do not know a single structural character of any kind by which the two may be separated. In every other case there is some mark, some difference in the number of scales or bones, by which we can tell the species of trout, the one from the other; but in the case of the Steel-head there is absolutely no such difference. The Rainbow Trout is a small, plump fish, found in the fresh-water streams, and having certain peculiarities of form and coloration. In every internal respect, in every bone and every part of its structure, the Steel-head and the Rainbow Trout agree, and so it is one of the unsettled problems connected with the fisheries of California whether the Steel-head is a distinct kind of trout, or whether any Rainbow Trout, placed in the ocean or the river mouth, and allowed to feed on the rich food which the salmon gets, would not, in time, develop into a Steel-head regardless of the form of its parents. The evidence, so far as it is in, is conflicting. There are some things which go to show that the two are distinct fishes. Other evidence would show that they are simply forms of the same thing, and a thorough study of the coastwise streams of this State is necessary before this point can be settled. If the two are the same, then the Salmo irideus must drop from our lists, because the Steel-head was first introduced to science and the name of Salmo gairdneri is the oldest.

The remaining trout of this coast is the species known as the Cut-throat trout, or Salmo mykiss. This is the longest known of the Americah trout, having been discovered first by Steller, who gave it the Russian name of mykiss, which science has preserved. It is the most widely distributed of all our trout, being found throughout Alaska, Kamtchatka, in all the streams of Washington and Oregon, in the northwestern part of this State, throughout the rivers of the Great Basin of Utah, in all the streams on both sides of the Rocky Mountains until we come to the desert lands, where the washes of saud make the streams uninhabitable to any trout, and thence extending its range southward in the mountains as far as the springs in Chihauhau, the southermost point reached by any trout in any country. Throughout this vast area the Salmo mykiss is found. It is subject to very great variations according to the character of the water, according to the food which it receives, and according to various other less known circumstances. It is, however, in all this region, substantially the same fish. In some places it reaches a weight of twenty or thirty pounds. In the southermost limit of its range it never becomes more than a fingerling, but everywhere in this whole great region every specimen retains more or less distinct traces of the same mark —a deep crimson or scarlet blotch on the half-concealed membrane between the two branches of the lower jaw—the mark which has suggested the name of Cut-throat Trout. It has much smaller scales than the Rainbow Trout or Steel-head. In fact it has smaller scales than any other of the known species of trout although much larger than the scales of any of the charrs. In a longitudinal series along the side the usual number is about one hundred and seventy. Excepting the red blotch and the presence of black spots somewhere, all other details of coloration are extremely variable. As we go eastward the spots tend to bunch themselves more and more on the tail, so that in eastern Colo ado, on the Rio Grande and the Platte, most specimens that are taken are spotted almost entirely on the tail. In Washington and Oregon the spots are usually evenly divided over the back, and in the trout of Lake Tahoe they commonly cover the belly also. In California it has been positively found only in Lake Tahoe, in the Feather River, and in some streams of the northwestern part of the State. It will probably be found to be the common trout of Lassen and Modoc Counties, and perhaps along the east slope of the entire Sierra Nevada. The largest known specimens have been taken in Lake Tahoe and in the salt water about Puget Sound. Here it is a very common fish. As in the case of all trout entering salt water, these sea-run individuals are more silvery and less spotted than those found in the mountain streams and lakes. The presence of salt water in all fishes destroys the black spots and markings which are found in fresh water, replacing them by a uniform silvery hue. The same effect is noticeable when trout enter alkaline lakes. Thus, the trout of Utah Lake are more silvery than those which inhabit any of the surrounding streams, the waters of Utah Lake, in the summer at least, being milky with alkali.

The remaining fish of the family, to which I need refer, is the Dolly Varden Trout, or charr, which is the finest of the trout-like fishes on this coast. It is found in the upper Sacramento, and thence along the line of the Cascade Range as far as Kamtschatka. It often enters the sea, where it loses its spots and becomes plain silvery gray. I have myself obtained a specimen, weighing eleven pounds, near Seattle, in Puget Sound, but in the mountain streams specimens weighing even a single pound are comparatively rare. It is true of all the trout that their size depends upon the conditions. They all grow large in the sea, and in the little mountain brooks their size corresponds to their advantages; every trout, large or small, is perfect so far as he goes. The Dolly Varden Trout is scarcely different from the Eastern Brook Trout, the slight difference being, on the whole, to his advantage. It is rather plumper in body than the Brook Trout of the East. The red spots are found on the back as well as on the sides, and the back and upper fins do not show the dark green marblings which are characteristic of Salvelinus fontinalis. In food, in body and in gaminess, the Dolly Varden, or Salvelinus malma (this, too, a Russian name, first given it by Steller), is not inferior to its Eastern cousin.

Everywhere on the Pacific Coast, in the clear streams of the Cascade, the Sierra Nevadas, and even the Coast Range of mountains, some species of trout abounds. This region should be the paradise of anglers. In the East, according to the words of the veteran angler, Rev. Myron W. Reed, the day of the trout is passed:

"This is the last generation of trout fishers. The children will not be able to find any. Already there are well-trodden paths by every stream in Maine, in New York and in Michigan. I know of but one river in North Americn by the side of which you will find no paper collar or other evidence of civilization. It is the Nameless River. Not that the trout will cease to be. They will be hatched by machinery, and raised in ponds and fattened on chopped liver, and grow flabby and lose their spots. The trout of the restaurant will not cease to be. He is no more like the trout of the wild river than the fat and songless reed-bird is like the bobolink. Gross feeding and easy pond life enervate and deprave him. The trout that the children will know only by legend is the gold-sprinkled living arrow of the white water; able to zigzag up the cataract; able to loiter in the rapids; whose dainty meat is the glancing butterfly."

Depletion and Temporary Absence of Fish.

"It not infrequently happens," says an English writer, "that, owing to meteorological and other causes, trout quit their haunts for new ones, returning when influenced to do so. In consequence of this fact anglers sometimes attribute their disappearance from a certain locale to quit another cause, viz., depopulation at the hands of their brother piscators, or to pollution. But we must be careful not to ascribe depletion to the temporary absence of fish, for the state of our rivers and streams is quite bad enough without doing this. It does not follow that because an angler fails to take his quota of fish that there are none in the water he whips. I fear the depleted state of some of our rivers is sometimes made the excuse for empty baskets, whereas, if the truth were known, the cause is to be traced to themselves. But anglers of experience at the present day understand, as a rule, what conditions are favorable or the reverse to fishing, whilst those who are well versed on the subject tell at a glance what they may expect. Such anglers do not go away and seek fresh spots, but come again a few hours or days later, and then, to the surprise of their friends, they produce an enviable lot of fish from the very spot that had, in the judgment of the less experienced, been depopulated. Anglers who really love their art can never be said to waste time nor patience in its pursuit, because the time is expended in the rapturous feeling of hope, no matter how long a period it may be deferred, while patience is not wasted, but cultivated. Nevertheless, every angler has neither the time to devote to the delights of hoping, nor the patience to cultivate, but he is to be commended for making short cuts by the exercise of judgment, skill and scientific knowledge, thereby furnishing a ready answer to the question so often raised: 'Where are the fish?' Still, no amount of knowledge will bring life back to some of our waters, and there is nothing for it but to restock them and commence afresh. This must be done if it is desired to use them for angling purposes again."

The Country Club's Trout.

Success, in full measure, has attended the efforts of the Country Club in stocking one of the many beautiful lakes on the preserve of this club in Marin County.

Last year 14,000 fry of the New Hampshire trout were secured and placed in one of the lakes which is a beautiful sheet of water lying but a short distance back from the ocean, in the lovely hills which abound over the face of the preserved territory, owned by this sportsmen's organization. The lake has been christened "Trout Lake" and from the present flattering evidences adduced it well deserves this appellation. The trout have done marvelously well and to-day weigh, on the average about three-quarters of a pound, and this is shading them lightly as to actual weight. The opening of this lake to the membership of the club was deferred until the fore part of the present week when a delegation from the club paid the lake a visit for the purpose of investigating as to how their last years work had progressed.

The party consisted of Mr. F. R. Webster, President of the club; Mr. Wm. C. Murdock, Mr. R. B. Woodward, Mr. Wm. Kittle and Mr. J. M. Adams, all of whom are ardent anglers.

Many favorable reports had been circulated as to the successful growth of the trout in those waters but these rumors lacked practical demonstration and it is not to be wondered that the outgoing party were almost a unit, as to faith, with the doubting Thomas of ancient times, but if so they all, like him, where convinced by actual demonstration before their return, for every basket was well filled with beautiful trout, in the taking of which these gentlemen experienced an amount of pleasure seldom equaled by a day's experience in the waters of this country which is the angler's paradise.

The lake covers about fifteen acres and is nestled among a cluster of beautiful hills which are clothed with tangled copse and the heavier verdure of oak and pine. The trees reach down, here and there, to the water's edge, and in other places the overhanging cliffs and gentler sloping banks are covered with a wealth of fern and vine, now beautiful beyond description with the richness of their spring-time lovliness. The trout proved eager and fought with a vim which is only surpassed in the rushing mountain streams where the force of the foaming waters lend a further apparent strength to that of the fishes.

The gentlemen are all highly elated over the outcome of the Club's successful efforts in stocking the lake, and expect unbounded sport for all future time as the result. The fish are beauties; highly colored and as firm and as finely-flavored as any trout ever taken, even in the coldest waters of the mountain streams. They possess the dark spots of the usual varities of trout on the back, while their sides are bespangled with small spots of the brighter red. The cost of the 14,000 fry and placing them in the lake all told amounted to only about $300, and it is the unanimous opinion of the membership of the Club that this is one of the best expenditures of the Club's funds that has ever been made.

The Club intends furnishing the State with every facility for securing eggs for the purpose of propagation to the end that the waters of the State may be thoroughly stocked with these beautiful and toothsome fish. Mr. Wm. C. Murdock presented us with several fine trout taken from the lake on this occasion, and of their quality as a food fish we speak advisedly. They could not be better; they are firm of flesh and of as fine flavor as any trout we have ever sampled. The Club is to be congratulated on the success of its venture, and the State is also to be congratulated on the generous offer of the Club to furnish it with eggs in unlimited quantities for propagation, in all of its favorable waters. This is only one of the many courtesies which the State will receive from this organization, which goes to prove its generous and public-spirited policy.

Habitat of the Dolly Varden.

"I am quite right as to the Dolly Varden now," says W. H. DeWitt in American Angler. "I used your description in the 'Trouts of America,' and compared several specimens. You will have to revise the habitat as you have it. They are quite plentiful in the Clark's Fork, and many of them get as far East as the St. Regis and Fish Creek. I have found them occasionally in Rock Creek, one hundred miles west of Helena. They do not run far up the tributaries, but are found at the mouth.

Anglers, as a class, although gentlemen of wealth and leisure, are, according to the average tackle salesman, hard to please, says Fred A. Leland in American Angler. This is because they know what they want as a rule, and are intelligent enough to demand it. That they are able and willing to pay for it is proved by the disposal of large quantities of high grade tackle every year. Incidentally, with good goods, the average angler looks for courteous treatment, even though the salesman's ideas may not be as his are. Too many salesmen jump at conclusions in serving intending purchasers; they show too much disposition to look surprised and incredulous if a customer, who says he is going trout fly fishing, asks for a heavy-bait rod. Take our advice and, on such occasions, politely show him the article he asks for. Ten chances to one he will then ask if you would advise the use of such a rod for fly fishing, and thus give you the opportunity you want, to advise him differently, and sell him a proper outfit. On the other hand, if you tell him at first, when asking for a rod which is totally useless to him as an implement of sport, that he does not want such and such, you are liable to antagonize him instantly. Should it happen that he still insists on the heavy rod, even after asking your advice, sell it to him. He may want to use it for athletic purposes, to get his muscle up.

In 1887 Rainbow trout fry were placed in the Willow River, Wisconsin, by the Fish Commissioners of that State. In 1890 one of this variety was taken from the same waters weighing over eight pounds and last year another was taken which weighed over ten pounds.

THE KENNEL.

Dog owners are requested to send for publication the earliest possible notices of whelps, sales, names claimed, presentations and deaths, in their kennels, in all instances writing plainly names of sire and dam and of grandparents, colors, dates and breed.

FIXTURES.

Bench Shows.

The Southern California Kennel Club's bench show, April 20, 21, 22 and 23, 1892. C. A. Sumner, Secretary, Los Angeles, Cal.

The California Kennel Club's bench show, May 4, 5, 6 and 7, at San Francisco. Frank J. Silvey, Secretary, 436 Montgomery street, San Francisco.

Chicago, Ill., June 12—World's Fair Dog Show at the Columbian Exhibition Stock Building. Entries will close on May 20th.

Are you going to the Los Angeles bench show? The trip and outing would be enjoyable.

Entries close for the coming bench show on April 30th. Do not fail to attend to your entries before that time.

Judge Mortimer will arrive some time during the early days of the week, or perchance to-day, and will rest a bit before going to Los Angeles.

The Southern California Kennel's bench show at Los Angeles will be held next week from 20 to 23 inclusive. A large entry and attendance is assured.

Money talked loud and long in the recent Barzoi vs. Deerhound Wolf killing (?) match, but, as usual, this evidence of over-confident assumption turned out to be in error.

May 4th to 7th inclusive, are the dates for the California Kennel Club's bench show which will be held in the New Republican Wigwam, corner Eddy and Jones streets. Do not fail to attend.

Mr. C. J. McDonald, of this city, has placed with Mr. George T. Allender an Irish setter puppy (Dan II.—Bell C.) which he recently purchased from Mr. L. L. Campbell, for training for next year's Derby.

Mr. L. L. Campbell is going to the Los Angeles bench show with a string of dogs from this city. He expects to take down some prize winners and from the list mentioned we should not be surprized if his expectations should be realized.

There seems to be more of an interest taken in the coming bench show outside of this city than usual. The entries from the country are even now said to be in excess of those heretofore known in any of the previous shows held by this club.

The canvass for specials for the coming bench show is being pushed day and most of many nights by a number of the workers of the California Kennel Club. We understand that they have now secured a splendid list of specials, all of which are well worth competing for.

Mr. A. B. Truman's pointer bitch ch Patti Croxteth threw a remarkable litter of puppies some time since to Kent of Blumo (King of Kent—Lass of Blumo). Instead of a litter of eight or ten, as has been her wont, there were but two, but these seem to make up in quality and character for the lack of greater numbers.

The Denver Bench Show bids fair to be the best ever held in that city. The Continental Kennel Club has been eminently successful in the conduct of its shows ever since its formation. The interest in greyhounds at that point has grown and developed more of recent years than, perhaps, at any other point in the whole country.

Mr. Harry L. Goodman, of Chicago, has recently purchased Prince Lee (Ben Hill—Bettie Lee), a Llewellyn of the first quality. The dog is now but eighteen months old but gives great promise for future excellence. Mr. Goodman may decide to be present at the coming bench show in this city, and if so will bring a good string of dogs with him.

On Sunday, the 24th inst., at Newark Park, under the direction and management of the Occidental Coursing Club, will be held the last regular event of the coursing season. The sport will, no doubt, be well worth the trip to the park to witness. Being the last opportunity for this season, the event will doubtless call out a good attendance. Some fine sport may be expected.

The Barzoi and Deerhounds may be wolf killers, but that fact, as far as the screaming farce lately played before the public near Denver, Col., by Messrs. Hacke and MacDougall is concerned, is left in doubt. When will men learn to keep silence on subjects upon which they absolutely know nothing? The lesson, to those immediately concerned in this farce, is severe, and we in charity draw down the curtain.

The effort to form a Foxterrier Club during the coming bench show is a hopeful sign for the kennel interests of this city. Specialty clubs are essential to the best work in the interests of any special breed. There is a large interest taken in this breed in San Francisco, and the interest cannot but be enhanced by this action. We trust that this will not be the only specialty club formed during the show.

Golcher Bros., of the well known firm of Clabrough, Golcher & Co., have just received a pair of fine Irish setters which they purchased in Chicago. They are out of Nellie by Harry. Harry is out of Lena by Champion Echo; Nellie is out of Irish Girl by Dennis, and they are guaranteed to be of the very best quality known to this admirable breed of sporting dogs. Mr. L. L. Campbell has them in charge.

During the coming bench show of the California Kennel Club, it is the intention of a number of owners and admirers of fox-terriers to organize a club devoted entirely to the improvement of this breed, also to give special prizes at the dog shows on this coast, to be competed for by dogs owned by members of the club only. The meeting will be held at the new Republican Wigwam upon May 6, 1892, at eight o'clock P. M. To those whose names are known, invitations to be present will be sent, others desiring to join the club will address George Debenham, No. 1620 Valencia street, San Francisco, or be present at the meeting.

Howls.

The readers of this column will, no doubt remember that I have always stated that I would not, under any circumstance, resort to personalities and "slush" in an argument with those who might differ with me as to doggy matters, and when I referred to that sweet-scented individual who every week delights to nauseate the readers of an Eastern paper with his disgusting filth, under the pen name of "Can-Can," as Clam-Clam, I fully expected an onslaught of filth, and I am not disappointed. No one could expect anything else from such an imbecilic brain; no "gray matter" there, no sir, nothing but filth. The very nom de plume is suggestive of the personality of the man. Would a clean person select such a name? Mr. "Can-Can" can only harp on the subject, which seems to permeate his weak and fanatical brain in all his statements. He can only refute or reply to statements by claiming age and experience as a doggy person. He fondly fancies that time, in any one business, is all that is required, irrespective of "gray matter." Are you not aware that certain people might follow a certain avocation for years and yet be incompetent? Have you not learned that your Lord-high-I-am qualities will not go down with the American people? Are you not aware that the bray of a jackass will not constitute it a horse? or the color of the skunk disguise its odor? Yes, Mr. Mason, alias "Can-Can," you are a very fine fellow to cry "blackguardism" and "slush." It is the old saw over again. "When Balaam could not speak his ass spoke for him." Do you understand, Can-Can?"

* * *

Dr. Grimes claims that the reason the Borzoi made such miserable showing on the wolf in the recent contest, was that the wolf's coat had been "fixed" or "doctored" for the occasion. Now this is all bosh, and would have been detected almost instantly by any person with common sense. The fault was this, and this only; the dogs were in no condition. They were not acclimated. Mr. Washington scoffed at the very idea of the climate exerting any influence on the dogs. Mr. Washington is very smart in some things, but an experience of twenty years in this respect, should teach me something in this regard, granting that I am possessed of just a "wee bit" of brains. Neither Washington nor Grimes ever saw a gray wolf chase before they came on the scene as competitors, or they would have had better sense than to slip two dogs on a gray wolf. Again, the Barzoi are not trained to work in pairs only, never less than fours or sixes. Mr. Grimes and Mr. Washington to the contrary, notwithstanding. The Barzoi can and will kill wolves when they are handled with reason and judgment, and not before. Common sense as to number is always expected. Mr. Mac Dougall lives in a wolf country and should have known what his dogs could and would do, before he accepted Mr. Hacke's challenge and Mr. Hacke erred in not sending his dogs to Colorado or the West long ago, and with the assistance of some experienced man, have tested his dogs thoroughly, then, when satisfied, have issued his challenge in accordance with the experience gained and then we would have had a contest, and not fiasco.

* * *

Mr. Mason says he has demanded the removal of the Kennel Editor of this Journal! Now is this not characteristic of this egotist? No doubt but the demand will be complied with instanter, for he is such an influential person, "doncher know," this same Mr. Mason—Silence, his Lordship speaketh!

* * *

Nine hundred dollars cash was the price asked to judge three shows. Divide this by three and I am sure each show could, were, and are able to pay this amount should they have or now so desire. Three hundred dollars each, would not bankrupt either of them, Mr. Mason. No sir. Can't you understand by this time that there were other reasons why you were not chosen even if the various secretaries, did try to let you down easy by pleading the poverty act, in their replies to you. The secretaries don't run the bench committees by a jug full, and you know this as well as I. So come now, what does your deadly parallel column prove as to the question at issue? Nothing. Can you not realize that you were not wanted some place in the tripod?

The Coming Bench Show.

Interest in the coming bench show is increasing daily. The premium list and rules have been before the public for several days and is, doubtless, now in the hands of all known fanciers. The cash prizes are commendable and, while small, will do much to impress the public with the spirit of fairness and liberality shown by the club. All entries close on April 30th, and every one who may desire to exhibit their dogs should make entries before that time by calling on or inclosing their entry and fee of $3 to the secretary of the club, Mr. Frank Silvey, at 436 Montgomery street. This entitles each exhibitor to a season ticket, care and feeding of dog and service of the club's veterinary during the show.

Mr. John Heffernan doubtless holds a prize winner in his new acquisition, Grand Chancelor, while Mr. Frank Allen, with his splendid California Alton, will have but little to fear from competitors.

Mr. McNabb's mastiff, Ingleside Crown Prince, has grown and developed into one of the grandest specimens of this breed to be found in the country.

Mr. Henry Huber will doubtless again lead the pointer class with the celebrated Duke of Vernon and Sally Brass II.

The entries for this event already indicate that the show, in point of numbers, will be very successful.

Mr. James Mortimer's coming is looked forward to with interest, as he brings with him a reputation for honesty and that practical thoroughness in kennel matters which assures that good will come of his visit.

Newark Coursing Postponed.

As Easter Sunday falls on the 17th, the coursing meeting advertised for that date by the Occidental Club has been postponed until Sunday, the 24th of April.

A grand open meeting will be held at Newark Park on that date under the auspices of the Occidental Coursing Club. Entrance fee $5 each.

The draw will take place Friday evening, April 22d, at 21 Kearney street. There will also be a Puppy Stake for Club members only.

J. R. Dickson, Secretary.

Wanted—Wolf Killers.

We note the following in the Denver Republican in speaking of the recent "wolf killing" attempt near that city. From this extract the importance of good wolf killing dogs can be estimated. It says:

Conrad Shafer, a prominent rancher and stock owner of the neighborhood, attended every meet. A year ago he brought ten half-Barzoi half-deerhound puppies from Hacke's Pittsburg kennels, with the purpose of training them to kill wolves. "It is a matter of money for us to encourage breeding and training dogs to kill wolves," he said in a general talk. "I got these dogs on account of the reputation of their father, and am satisfied that if they will not kill wolves they will kill coyotes. I believe I can train them to kill wolves, and I further believe that if the two Barzoi which failed so dismally to day had been trained properly they also would kill wolves."

S. Sanford, another rancher, agreed with Mr. Shafter. "You can safely calculate," he said, "that every wolf killed means $500 saved to neighboring stock owners. In a country like this, where stock is plentiful and the wolves can always find food, a wolf never eats more than the entrails, heart, liver, lungs, etc., after killing a calf, leaving the carcass for coyotes, which clean it to the bones. Nearly every wolf is good for two calves a week. That is why the ranchers took such great interest in this hunt and why they are so disappointed over the result. Hacke could have sold every one of them a litter of pups if this trial had been successful. Last Monday the wolves attacked a valuable Norman-bred colt of mine and in an effort to hamstring it completely cut all the large muscles of the hind leg, leaving in one place a hole big enough to put your fist in. Something must have frightened them off, for they did not sever the tendon, but the horse is ruined."

From the remarks of Mr. Shafer and Mr. Sanford it may be judged that there is a great deal more in a trial of this character than to gratify a desire for sport. In a country like Colorado the wolf is more dreaded by cattle owners than the drought, and it had never been claimed that any breed of dogs living could kill wolves until the assertion was made on behalf of the Barzoi. The wolf-killing record of these dogs in Russia and Siberia is said to be unassailable, and this match was the first in which they had ever been pitted against an American gray wolf."

General Washington s Dog.

The laborers who are digging up the foundations of the old street-car stable made an interesting discovery yesterday afternoon, says the Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle. The fact just brought to light is nothing less than that Cornwallis, the faithful and famous dog of George Washington, is buried in Augusta, and, like his noted predecessor at Newstead, has a memorial slab and an epitaph. The slab measures 5x2, and seems to cover a brick enclosure. The upper right-hand corner is broken.

The fate of "Cornwallis" was never known, and perhaps never thought of, until the slab beneath which he lies was discovered in Augusta yesterday. The rear end of the old stable is still standing. It was at the eastern end, somewhat toward the rear, that Isham Sneed, colored, was digging shortly before 5 o'clock when his pick struck a hard substance beneath the surface. This was several inches beneath the old foundations and was evidently covered with dust and debris long before the stable was constructed. The negro sank his pick into the ground again and then began shovelling away the hard pipe clay which covered the stone. In a few moments he was able to see that it was a tombstone, and that the inscription on it was quite legible. He called to his companions and the marble was soon in full view.

The inscription is dated October 23, 1798.

Washington's visit to Governor Telfair is but one of the many interesting historic events of which Augusta can boast.

In the Augusta Herald of January 15, 1800, which is on file in the Chronicle office, appears an account of a meeting held "in the church" the day before, just one month after the death of the great General, and in one of the speeches made on that occasion is found the following reference:

"And yet his heart was as tender as a woman's, as those of us can testify who saw how the loss of a favorite pet could work upon his responsive feelings."

This alone should be sufficient to establish the genuineness of the claim that the marble slab was placed over his favorite "Cornwallis."

This relic of a century ago, intimately associated as it is with the most illustrious man whom America has ever produced, although the monument to a dog is one of which Augusta may well be proud.

Immediate steps should be taken to erect a suitable enclosure around the tombstone, so that it may be preserved and handed down to posterity intact.

Names Claimed.

Mr. H. C. Golcher claims the name of Romp G. for his bitch puppy, Duke of Vernon-Vera, whelped August 28, 1891.

Are you not going to exhibit your dog at the coming bench show? If not, why not? The interests of the kennel in this part of the world demand that you should. There will be a grand congregation of splendid dogs at the show. Do not be behind the procession, but come in and show your dog; if beaten, it will be because of the good quality there shown. Do not let the opportunity to place your animals on exhibition pass by unaccepted. The outlook for the show is good and entries are rolling into the office of the club in good numbers. The show will be a success, both in a popular sense and in the matter of raising the interest in first-class dogs. Do what you can to assist in the effort to bring all of the better dogs of this State into competition on this occasion.

Messrs. Clabrough, Golcher & Co., have just issued their illustrated catalogue for 1892. It is a very neat and timely presentation of the various articles carried in stock by this sportsmen's emporium. Fishing tackle and all classes of the finest and latest goods for outdoor sports form the subjects of a multiplicity of illustrations which will aid the purchaser in determining just what to purchase. Send for a copy.

Mr. H. T. Harris, of San Jose, offers for sale in this issue a Red Irish setter puppy, whelped June 13, 1891. Mr. George H. Covert, of Chicago, is the breeder, and the puppy is by Champion Elcho Jr., 3881 A. out of imported Kate IX 11504, winner of first at Denver and at Rockford in 1889. The pedigree extends back ad libitum and represents some of the finest strains known to this variety of excellent sporting dogs.

SPECIAL DEPARTMENT

EDITED BY

JOSEPH CAIRN SIMPSON.

A Brief Southern Trip.—Last Thursday morning I took the 8:30 train for Menlo Park, where Frank Covey was in waiting with a pair of horses to complete the journey to Santa Clara and San Jose. I had oftentimes admired the Santa Clara valley, but heretofore the view was restricted to that part of it which could be seen from the windows of the railway car, or from the top seats of the grand stand on the San Jose Fair Grounds—a magnificent view from there, and after the races were over there was a temptation too strong to be resisted to linger long after the sun had sunk below the crests of the Coast Range of mountains. Never lovelier autumnal weather than that valley is favored with, and in the balmy air of an October evening, with such beautiful views to entrance the eye, mere existence was a pleasure. "The sweet habit of existence" was not a mere poetical trope but a full realization, and one who could not enjoy it under such circumstances, have some kind of a canker gnawing at his heart-strings or be poorly endowed with susceptibility.

But previous to the drive from Menlo Park I had little conception of the extent of that part of the valley, neither was I aware of the richness and magnitude of vineyards and orchards which cover the greater part of the land. Now and then a grain field waving, in luxuriant growth, under the gentle breeze, a mass of verdure, but the far larger portion in fruit trees and vines. Handsome residences, well-kept roads, no long stretches without habitations as are so frequently met in the grain-growing sections of California, and for nearly the whole twenty miles fine villas and snug cottages are numerous. Our objective point was the Santa Clara County Hospital, the superintendent of which, C. Van Buren, had information we were anxious to obtain. He had been superintendent of the Matadero Rancho before it was sold to Governor Stanford, afterward in the employ of the Governor, both at Palo Alto and Vina, and was familiar with all the horse ventures of Mr. Coutts. That he is the "right man" for his present charge was evident on all sides. The hospital is admirably located, a beautiful situation, everything in capital order, and the patients with as many comforts as the best private hospitals provide. Hereafter I shall make a good deal of use of the information secured from Mr. Van Buren, and here is a little episode in the history of Manette, which is worthy of being placed on record.

Early History of Manette.—Everything pertaining to the history of Arion is of interest to students of trotting horse lore and Mr. Van Buren's description of the early days of his dam is not an inappropriate point to consider. She was not a year old when brought with her dam, Addie, and her sister, Manon, to Matadero Rancho. A poor, lousy, under-sized foal, and one of the first operations was to get rid of the vermin. She was placed on some large sheets of paper, and powdered thoroughly with buhach, the insect powder then coming into use as a destroyer of minute pests. Powder and insects were brushed from among the hairs and Mr. Van Buren said it was a revelation to see what quantities of them were removed. Lice banished, and the filly under liberal feeding and good care improved rapidly.

She was doing finely when there was another episode which came very nearly closing her career. Mr. Coutts had a son, at that time a lad of ten or twelve years. His father presented him with a rifle and the boy, as boys have been and always will be, was somewhat prone to test its power on every occasion. Whether by accident or design a bullet from it lodged in the shoulder of the filly. The boy was a favorite of the men employed on the farm, and they reported to Mr. Coutts and Mr. Van Buren that the wound was caused by a snag when Manette was running in the field. Men were detailed, quite a large force of them, with instructions to examine every board in the fences, every tree in the pasture fields, and remove projecting slivers and branches. The bullet of course remained and that may have been the cause of cramping the shoulder-action which interfered with her trotting. She always went "stiff-legged" and was somewhat "mean" withal so she was used as a teaser to her sister Manon and others of the trotters, and when the sale of all the Matadero horses was made to Governor Stanford, Mr. Van Buren advised Mr. Marvin to use her for that purpose. She was a very resolute galloper and ready to go as many heats as were necessary, and when the Palo Alto teaser was disabled she took his place. The rifle ball must be in her shoulder still and will, in all probability, remain there, until her death.

An Evening and Morning at Palo Alto—Five P. M. when we started from the hospital. Twenty minutes before seven we reached the stable; one hour and forty minutes for the twenty miles, and that done with so much ease that it was play for the horses. In less than twelve hours, a rail and ferry journey, cable and horse cars, rail again, a drive of forty miles, an intermediate drive, a couple of hours in San Jose, lunch with Mr. Van Buren, etc.—all between "sun and sun."

Not long ago I had a tussle with the Palo Alto catalogues at home endeavoring to obtain the information necessary to make a "close approximation" to the number of mares which had foals by Electioneer and the breeding of the dams. The catalogues would only show, of course, those owned at Palo Alto, and not all of these, as some had died before my catalogues were published. I had them from 1884, and back and forwards was the order over and over again, correcting one table, forming a new one, figuring and refiguring, "stumped" in one place, straightened out in another. After working many weary hours, a couple of days' labor, the conclusion was reached that it would be impossible to arrive at anything like a just estimate without referring to the Palo Alto books. And then apprehensive that there might be difficulty in finding the records of the first years of Electioneer's services in a shape that would afford exact proof. But after supper "Frank" unlocked doors and drawers and there was far more data than I expected to build upon. With time to collate and arrange little will be lacking to enable one to arrange and present facts which will show just what Electioneer has done. The only conjectural part being the breeding of some of the "outside mares" which were bred to Electioneer, and whether they had foals or not. This will be restricted to a small proportion, as in a majority of cases both are known. From 1877 to 1891 quite a number of outsiders were bred; in 1882 not one, in 1883 only one. Frank thinks that nearly all the resulting foals can be obtained, and one thing is certain, that the celebrities among the outsiders can be traced so that an idea of their maternal bloodlines can be got which will be materially correct.

It cannot be successfully controverted that Palo Alto has given the best elucidation of the question: How shall fast trotters be bred, reared and educated? of any establishment in the country. Furthermore, that Electioneer, through his offspring, has demonstrated the relative value of maternal lines, so far as that can be proved by one horse, in a clearer light than any other stallion. He was awarded better opportunities. His owner was not swayed by favoritisms or prejudices which came in the way of his judgment, and there is no one who has a clearer insight or a better appreciation of practical results. Fortunately his theories were established on a good foundation. For instance, Occident was the first great trotting celebrity reared in California. He shared with Goldsmith Maid the world's record. He was a grandson of St. Clair; two daughters of St. Clair had records of 2:30½, 2:30¼—at that day a great performance. There were other things in their favor, and mares of that blood were mated with Electioneer. Results: Fred Crocker, Bonita, Wildflower, Manzanita and others. The great families of the East were not overlooked—Almonts, Normans, George Wilkes, Pilot Jr.'s, Messenger Durocs, Hambletonians—not a strain of celebrity not represented in the earlier importations; later on, Nutwoods, Arion, Advertiser, Norval, Electricity, a whole lot of good ones. The "summing up:"—half-bred mares were showing well as the dams of fast trotters. Maud S. in 1877 had shown a four-year-old rate which was far below what had been witnessed before, and then Jay-Eye-See came to the front. In place of buying half-bred mares, thoroughbreds were chosen. Waxy was bred to Gen. Benton in 1887, and from that union came Waxana, and then through Electioneer the phenomenon which swept "world's records" away with a clean broom. Two-year-old at the time, three-year-old, four-year-old, five-year-old, all ages, "best of all," testifying to the wisdom of the choice. In the effort to obtain fillies for the breeding stud, males inevitably must come. In many cases the surgeon desexed them and they were sold, while the more fortunate fillies were relegated to the stud when age justified the removal. "Too much hot blood," was the cry of the trainers, and a poor show for the "half and half" fellows in the absence of their owner. But they forced their way to recognition. In the hands of the breaker, Palo Alto could beat every two-year-old on the place; Ansel was "handling himself" in a way that compelled attention, and others "were coming." No Sunday horses. Palo Alto's Eastern campaign when a four-year-old, his career since in the face of "a sea of troubles," crowned, heralded and acknowledged the champion stallion of the world, the "running bred foolishness," "the pernicious influence of the thoroughbred," the jibes, jeers and scornful attacks buried so deeply that only the most bitterly prejudiced seek to uncover the bones.

Instructive lessons are presented by the history of Palo Alto. Success beyond precedent; successes despite confident predictions; failures where there should have been success (according to the predictors) on the blackboard for the benefit of students who are determined to form their conclusions upon the evidence before them and who are not under the thraldom of preconceived opinions.

And now, by the way, I will put on record that in my opinion the system which has been lately adopted at Palo Alto will prove a decided improvement over former methods. Under the old plan there was one chief trainer, the others subordinates. The chief could allot and transfer the horses at his pleasure, and, consequently, if an animal showed very well he was put in his own division, the inferior turned over to subordinates. This, of course, was a bar to exertion and little interest was taken in the business. We are all aware of the strong affection a majority of men who are engaged in taking care of horses entertain for the promising colts which are under their charge, "rubbers" being fully as much enamored as the man who drives them. Should members of the string advance rapidly there was a dread that capacity shown would be the means of losing their pets, and their connection with them be ended. Gloomily and dissatisfied, their work was a drag, and there was a feeling that so far as they were concerned they served the same purpose as a harness or sulky. Their heart was not in it and even the horses which were not occupied in work were embittered with thoughts of the inferior position they were made to fill.

The man who broke Palo Alto and Sunol and who first demonstrated that they were destined to a brilliant future is never heard of in connection with their celebrity, the whole of the honor being awarded to the successful pilot. I would not take away an iota of the fame which Mr. Marvin has won and which he so well deserves, for what he has done with the Palo Alto horses, but it is manifestly just that their early tutors should also receive credit.

As it now stands Mr. Lathrop selects the horses which each trainer has to drive, and to him alone they are responsible. They are assured of keeping them so long as there is improvement. In lieu of success being followed by a transfer it is sure guarantee that they will be continued in charge of the animals, and to this is added an extra recompense in case of extra well-doing. Emulation and confidence take the place of carelessness and distrust and all are striving for the best results. While there is no one of the present training at Palo Alto that has had a great deal of experience in driving races, some of them have been engaged in training for a long time. The man who broke and trained Palo Alto, Sunol and a large number of the cracks which have gained such high distinction has been at Palo Alto for at least twelve years and it is superogatory to say that so far as educating young trotters is concerned he is at the very top of the ladder. Quiet and retiring in disposition he never forces himself into prominence, and one must have watched closely to realize that he has been a part and an important part of the Palo Alto curriculum. No one could be better posted in the methods which have been the main foundation of the success which has followed these teachings and no more trustworthy in carrying them out. As is well known Governor Stanford inaugurated a system of training which has met with violent opposition, and even after it had been clearly demonstrated that it was a good method of developing speed there were plenty to cavil and object. Tersely stated, that system is to develop speed by short and rapid brushes, never carried so far as to tire and consequently weaken the muscles, or lessen the nerve force. Until the period draws near for a lengthened trial, eighths of a mile and quarters of a mile are the limits, and at the end of each brush the colt is stopped, permitted to rest for a sufficient time to regain his wind, turned around and started again. Never exhausted, the work is play, and there is a zest, a snap, an evident relish for the exercise. The older drivers, or rather, those who have been long in the employ of Governor Stanford, can be depended upon to carry out the instructions, but to guard against any infringements of the rule or a deviation from the orders, one of Frank Covey's duties is to see that the laws are obeyed, and it is safe to say that he will strictly enforce the mandates.

So far, then, as getting the horses "ready for the races," Palo Alto is in good shape, and I have a good deal of confidence that some of the trainers will be found to possess the qualities which are required to make successful race-drivers. Should it prove that I am mistaken in this estimate, there is no one who will make the discovery sooner than Mr. Lathrop. There are few people in California who are aware that Mr. Lathrop has been intimately connected with trotters for fully thirty years. Though actively engaged in managing business affairs of great magnitude, he had an inborn love for horses, especially trotters, and his main recreation was in trotting affairs. He owned some of the fastest trotters and pacers, knew all of the prominent drivers of the old and new schools, and there is not a single phase of the whole business that has escaped his close scrutiny. Thoroughly informed, there will be little danger of merit being overlooked, and should any of the present force display aptitude they need not fear being supplanted. There have been many wise predictions regarding the future of the trotting department of Palo Alto. I have not the least hesitancy in recording my vaticination that it will not lose prestige. A far more difficult task to lower the marks which, with one exception, stand to its credit than it was, and the young Electioneers are becoming scarce. But other stars will rise and shine with great brilliancy, and just so surely their light will not be placed under a bushel.

* * *

The Eastern Starter.—The Blood Horse Association made a good move when Mr. Ferguson was employed as starter for the meeting which is now in progress. There are several reasons for regarding the appointment in a favorable light. In the first place, there were no doubts of Mr. Ferguson's capacity. Recognized as one of the ablest of the Eastern handlers of the flag, he would be a good exponent of the best methods which prevail on the other side; and this, the most difficult of all the racing positions, he filled satisfactorily That would be an "object lesson" for California aspirants, and it would be a dull scholar who did not benefit thereby. It may be premature to review the starting with only one day's experience to guide, but there are points which can be commented upon with accuracy after four trials have been witnessed, as well as though the whole meeting had been reviewed. To get a fair start with as little delay as possible, appears to be one of the fundamental principles acted upon. This may appear a trite assertion when the reply is: "Who does not act on the same rule?" I readily admit the force of that query, but though the governing motives are the same, the manner of execution is entirely different. As the first race was a mile the start had to be made at the most trying point, viz., directly in front of the spectators. One of less confidence would have delayed hoping to set them off so evenly that no one could find fault, and in the effort, consumed a lot of time and with no better results. Many people are prone to overlook an interest which is of vital importance to the club, and which is really paramount, that being the gratification of a majority of the spectators. Delays disgust, to put it in a strong light, and to watch for the better part of an hour a lot of horses cavorting and breaking away tries the patience of the most enthusiastic race-goer.

Owners have interests, bettors have interests, but when these interests can be subserved and the assemblage, by far the largest proportion of which are neither owners or bettors, also pleased, all interests are guarded. Few will dispute the claim that, as a rule, the worst starts are those which have been the longest delayed, and I will add that the most successful starter will be the self-confident man, a man who has that trait to give effectiveness to a quick eye and a resolute spirit.

The next starts were from the quarter-pole and all of them were very fair. In the run-off between Revolver and Fanny F., the horse had, perhaps, a half a length the advantage, but both were in motion, and better by far to start when in that position, than to waste valuable minutes in getting them close together.

The last race of the day, however, was the best exemplification of Mr. Ferguson's ability. Eleven two-year-olds to start from the half-mile, the narrowest part of the track, and when the procession reached the backstretch they were nearly a furlong apart. They were gradually brought together by Mr. Ferguson's assistant, and by the time they were nearing his stand, they were "bunched" and all moving about the same rate of speed.

Down went the flag and no one could find fault or claim that the start gave an undue advantage. Now a less confident man would have failed to take advantage of the critical moment. The least waver of judgment the opportunity would have passed, the fear that it was not as good as could be obtained thereafter come in the way, and then an excited throng of unruly animals and stubborn jockeys retarded the start no telling how long.

Mr. Ferguson's assistant appears to be efficient in his position, and plays his part well. There was a new wrinkle to California turf goers, or, at least, a new one to us which is worthy of "high commendation." That was a pedestal for the starter to stand upon, a truncated pyramid, rather rude of construction, as I suppose it was made in the hurry of preparation after Mr. Fergusson's arrival at the course.

This gave him an elevation from which he could overlook the field, just the right height to see clearly every horse and every jockey, and also brought him into a position where the jockeys could watch every motion and hear every word he uttered and made.

The structure was light and readily carried on the track to the various starting points. Stationed on the inner side of the inside fence it was not in the way, and is such a decided improvement over a ground position, that it will surely be adopted by all our associations. Still it may not be satisfactory to some of our starters. That official is placed in a conspicuous position, and there are few men whom nature has done more for in the way of "shape" than she has for Mr. Ferguson. Tall and straight, and yet with muscular development which indicates strength and activity, in fitting habiliments for the occasion, in appearance, at least, he is the beau ideal of a starter. And this is no small point in his favor. Of all outdoor sports racing is the best adapted for display, and harmonious conjunction of the parts adds greatly to the attractions of the spectacle. That Mr. Ferguson has the useful, as well as the ornamental, qualities to fit him for the position I am as well convinced as any one can be from the observations of one afternoon, and again congratulate the Directors of the Association on securing his services.

Joseph Cairn Simpson.

TURF AND TRACK.

ARE you going to the races?

THERE are three Gretchens in the Great Brood Mare list.

DO NOT forget that there will be some grand racing to-day at Bay District track.

VOLUME X, of the American Trotting Register, is out. Volume XI is due May 1st.

STRATHMORE has 117 descendants, with an average record of 2:24½, yet he was from a non-standard mare.

THE sale at the Souther farm takes place next Wednesday. It is expected that a large attendance will be present.

MOLLY MCCARTY'S Last, by Rutherford, out of the famous race mare Molly McCarty, died last week at the Santa Anita Stock Farm.

REVOLVER'S finish in the first heat of the third race last Saturday will not be forgotten for many a day by those who witnessed it.

PETER SMITH'S colt Sheriff, by Advocate 6544, is doing remarkably well at the Napa track under James Corcoran's careful handling.

WILL there be thirteen bookmakers laying odds at Bay District next Tuesday is a question that nearly everyone has a negative answer for.

GRANDEE made up lots of ground in the first race, after getting such a bad send-off. We are still of the opinion that he is a mighty good colt.

WE UNDERSTAND that Zaldivar was far from being on edge in last Saturday's race, and if that is a fact what a good colt he must be when right!

ELECTIONEER'S 2:30 trotters have five hundred and seventy-five heats in 2:30 or better to their credit, Lot Slocum having the most to his honor, sixty-five.

WILLIAM GRAVES has sold to Palo Alto a Nutwood mare and two fillies out of her, by Dexter Prince. One is a two-year-old and the other a four-year-old.

IMP. KNOWSLEY is said to have covered in five successive seasons, from 1805 to 1809 inclusive, 940 mares—220 in 1806. He died in 1815 at twenty years of age.

HOLLY CRABB, the youngest son of H. W. Crabb, the well-known horseman and viticulturist of Oakville, Napa county, was accidentally drowned while fishing last Sunday.

LOVERS of thoroughbred racing should bear in mind that there will be racing at Bay District track on Tuesdays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays of every week until May 7th.

E. B. JENNINGS, of Napa, has his fine stallion, Blonde Wilkes, loooking splendidly. Although this is a "green" horse this year, it would not surprise us if he trots close to 2:20 this fall.

MONBARS, (2) 2:16½, has to his credit ten winning heats better than 2:30. Arion, 2:10½, at the same age has six, and Ralph Wilkes trotted in five winning contests inside of the standard time.

FRED W. LOEBER, of Vineland, Napa County, is getting quite a string of trotters for his stable, and when the judges' bell rings this fall, he will be seen piloting some good ones inside the list.

THE Soudan colts and fillies at D. J. Murphy's stock farm, near Milpitas, are all doing well. Soudan will be seen in the races this fall, the mark he will make will be much lower than it is at present.

MR. GEORGE D. OTIS, who bred and raised May Day (2:30), says he is positive that she is only eighteen years old instead of twenty-two. The stud book of Ballard's Cassius M. Clay will settle the question of her age.

THE poor breeder has no reason to get discouraged. Allerton, Axtell, Ralph Wilkes and Alcantara were bred, with one exception, by poor men, two of whom were doctors, yet they represent a value to-day of not far from $300,000.

J. NAGLE, of San Francisco, has bought of the Palo Alto Stock Farm the two-year-old bay colt Ben Hur, by imp. Cyrus, out of Frolic, together with his engagements. He is entered in the Grant Stakes for 1893 at Garfield Park.

ALL the horsemen at the Bay District track are talking about the liberal offer made by the owner of Menlo Stock Farm to encourage breeders to send their mares to Suwarrow, the "finest-formed stallion that ever came from Australia."

A TWO-YEAR-OLD filly by Verano out of Miss Ford, one of the greatest race mares of her era, died of lockjaw at the Santa Rita Stock Farm last week. She was one of the handsomest, as well as the most promising youngsters on the place.

DICK WARD carried off the jockey honors of the opening day of the Blood Horse meeting by riding two winners and third in another race out of three mounts. Many believe that if Sir Roy had not ran away Ward would have had three wins to his credit.

MRS. W. S. HOBART, wife of the owner of the Hobart stock farm, died in this city last Saturday. Mr. Hobart has been an invalid for some time and the news of her death completely prostrated him; it is earnestly hoped by every one that he may recover.

WILLIAM VIOGET, the well-known horseman, is kept pretty busy at the track at San Jose handling a string of twenty-five youngsters. As nearly all are by Eros, 2:29½, he need have no fears of getting any pacers or single-footers amongst them. From all we can learn regarding their progress Messrs. Vioget and Burke have a right to feel sanguine.

J. C. SIBLEY says that the fastest track on earth is the one that is dryest and hardest on the immediate surface and the wettest beneath. If you can have an inside and outside ditch surrounding your track, each kept full of water so it will stand within eighteen inches of the surface, you can always depend upon having a record-breaking track if the surface is kept in proper shape.

THE finish of the first heat on the opening day was calculated to make one believe that Revolver and Applause were the only two horses in the fight, but the flagman gave Inkerman such a kind send-off that he could hardly help capturing the second heat.

IT IS said Jockey Garrison has been offered $1,000 by J. B. Collins to ride the latter's colt, Longford, the full brother to Longstreet, in the Suburban Handicap. Collins has backed his horse heavily and wants a first-class rider in order to bring him first under the wire.

THE number of good-looking Napa Wilkes colts and fillies that are elevating the hopes of their owners by coming into the world solid in color, perfectly formed and perfect pictures of the sire, makes the Salinas people happy. Napa Wilkes' book will be filled this year.

SUNRISE, 2:25½, by Abbottsford, out of a mare by Signal, is one of the most promising young horses in Oakland. Mr. Brown, his owner, has reason to be proud of him. If it ever comes to split heats in a race, Sunrise will be a formidable horse, for he can trot all day.

J. H. OUTHWAITE, of Sierra Madre, has leased Luella (dam of Myrtle, 2:19½), by Nutwood 600; second dam Ruth Ann, by Bell Alta, for a year. He will breed her with four other select mares to his young Stamboul—Alta Belle colt that he purchased from W. S. Hobart last year.

LEO WILKES is the sire of a number of beautiful. large colts and fillies this year. Everyone of them are solid in color, strong in conformation, and seem to love to trot. All who bred mares last year to him have been so well pleased that they booked them back this season.

A FRIENDLY match is being talked of between Faustino, 2 14¼ and H. D. McKinney's Nutwood Wilkes, three-year-old pacing record, 2:25½. If arranged, it will be for a good stake, and will be decided over the new grounds of the Wisconsin State Agricultural Society, at Janesville.

THE columns of this journal are free to all who desire to send in their lists of foals. It will be well for owners of broodmares to send in the dates, sex, markings and sire's name, as well as their own, in forwarding us the information. If they want to claim any names, we will gladly publish them.

EVERY person interested in a trotting horse should have a Year Book. It is one of the most useful volumes ever published We have a large stock of these books on hand and for sale at $2.50 per volume—exceedingly cheap, considering that it contains nearly 1,000 pages of useful information.

SILAS SKINNER, 2:17, is getting his daily exercise at the Santa Rosa race track. Mr. McGraw has good reasons for hoping to lower the Black Cyclone's record in the free-for-all races this year. The youngsters by Silas Skinner bear a very striking resemblance to him, and all of them are "gifted with speed."

THE Antevolo stallion, Marks L., is the only trotting horse at the Bay District track. Peter Brandow, his driver and trainer, says the horse knows what is wanted of him whenever it comes to speeding in the park, and thinks he could beat anyone's horse there if the police were not so much opposed to this pastime.

PERHAPS it is not known who it was that first thought of booting weanlings to lead by the side of horses for exercising. To G. Valensin belongs the credit of introducing this idea. This breeder is also much opposed to driving his youngsters to a heavy cart, and has the lightest of sulkies attached to them during their training.

THIS is the most critical period in the lives of many of the broodmares on our farms. Owners should be very careful and see that matrons are stabled carefully in large, roomy box stalls and watched night and day. After the period of parturition is over and the foal comes, the mare should not be turned out if the weather is disagreeable or cold.

LADY LIVINGSTONE (the famous broodmare) was brought across the plains by Wm. Graves, who purchased her of General Singleton. He claimed that she was by Gray Eagle. This is something unheard of by the adherents of General Taylor who always claimed she was by him. We would like to have Mr. Graves give us his side of the story.

CHARLES MARVIN'S position at the Palo Alto stables—its responsibilities, work and duties—is now divided between O. N. Reynolds, Frank Covey and J. S. Phippen. Mr. Reynolds is general superintendent. Covey is superintemdent of the training department and Mr. Phippen is trainer of the crack trotters such as Palo Alto, Advertiser and Bell Bird.

THE swimming tank at the Souther Farm is doing wonders for the stallions—Figaro and Jester D. The former is a perfect duck in the water, and all the swellings and bunches on his ankles seem to have disappeared. He will get inside the charmed circle this year. Jester D. is an Almont all over, and the way he moves through the water shows that that quality called "vim" is very strong within him.

ZALDIVAR is suffering from an injury to the frontal bone which, if it is not attended to, is likely to so weaken the great California gelding that he may not be able to stay the route in the American Derby, for which he is at present the favorite. A veterinarian tells us that the bones need scraping, and that if a good job is done Zaldivar should come around all right in time for the great racing event at Chicago,

THE Arcata Driving Park Association was organized in Arcata last Saturday evening with the following officers: President, John C. Bull Jr.; Secretary, C. L. Pardee; Treasurer, W. W. Stone. The Board of Trustees for the ensuing year consist of J. C. Bull Jr., R. Roberts, P. A. Gaynor and S. McCurdy Jr. The President was directed to procure a lease and have the track surveyed. We will soon have a very respectable circuit for racing purposes in this county.

ED. R. SMITH, of Los Angeles, has leased the breeding qualities of Freckles for this season from Edgemont Park, and will bring the symmetrical son of Wilton to Los Angeles. Freckles is the only son of Wilton in California. Wilton was one of the greatest racehorses that George Wilkes ever sired. The dam of Freckles is Gray Diana, by Administrator and the grandam Bashaw Belle, dam of Secure, 2:30, Strong Boy, 2:12, and Carrie, 2:19¾. The latter is the dam of the sensational pacer Manager, 2:11½.

SOME people have thought that Governor Stanford went into the trotting horse business for pleasure but it has proved a more profitable business than the S. P. R. R. He has sold about $400,000 worth of trotting stock since the first of January. He has now three horses that would bring as much more and could sell another $400,000 worth and scarcely miss them off the ranch and then have a million dollars worth left.

J. H. MCCORD'S fine stallion Tom Benton, is highly esteemed (as he deserves to be) by the horsemen around Sacramento, if one is to judge by the number of promising "Tom Bentons" that are making their owners feel as if "they ought to be trained." Tom Benton is one of the very best sons of Gen. Benton and time will prove that our prophecy is correct, for he will demonstrate through his progeny his value.

THOS. KEHOE, of Bridges, Idaho, left this city for his home yesterday. He purchased Wheatley, the celebrated thoroughbred, when he was here some years ago, and says that the fillies and colts left by the old horse are all handsome, sensible, and very useful. Many of them were crossed with mustangs and their produce bear an excellent reputation among the cowboys for speed, strength, perfect limbs and good sense.

DAVID YOUNG, of Stockton, brought three mares to Napa, one is by John Nelson, dam by Napa Rattler; another is by Gen. McClellan 144, out of a daughter of Alexander, and the third is by Gen. Reno, out of a daughter of Kentucky Whip. These are all in foal to Pilot Prince and will be bred to this horse again. Pilot Prince is a full brother to Lottery Ticket 2:25 as a three-year-old and belongs to Prof. E. P. Heald, of this city.

BUDD DOBLE'S stable of trotters has been transferred from W. P. Ijams' Warren Park Farm to the Terre Haute track, where they will be prepared for the season's campaign. If nothing happens him, he will have a better stable out than ever before. He has Nancy Hanks, 2:09; Axtell, 2:12; Jack, 2:12½; McDoel, 2:15½; Drextell and others. Nancy Hanks is in superb condition, and she will play with the record if she continues so.

W. M. HOUSER is handling Senator Stanford's horses at the Vina Ranch, in Tehama county. In a letter to us Mr. Houser says he has taken up thirty head from two to four years old, besides about eighty head of yearlings. Some of the latter are being broken and worked, the rest are in the kindergarten. In the words of Mr. H., "I find some very promising colts, and I think you will hear of some trotters from Vina in the near future."

THE sum of $500 is offered to the breeder of the first one of Mount Hood's get to enter the 2:30 list. This, in itself, is quite an inducement to owners of good mares, and as Mount Hood's oldest colts are only yearlings, there is a grand opportunity for some one who owns a good producing mare to win this prize. Mount Hood is considered one of the handsomest, gamest and most perfect-built grandsons of Electioneer on the coast, besides he is a dead-game trotter.

THE latest man to come off the fence on the high service fee question is the owner of the stallion Onward, a son of George Wilkes that has more of his get in the 2:30 list than any other horse in the world ever had at a like age. Onward was advertised to stand at $500, but seeing that the current of public opinion was in the other direction his owner has knocked a hundred dollars off the service price, and says that stud fees are climbing a little too fast.

MERRY MONARCH is all quality, though the quantity is not so great. He is of the right sort, and is likely to prove a hard nut for the three-year-olds to crack this year. Martin Bergen always insisted that Merry Monarch could beat His Highness, and Count Gideon had the same opinion until McLaughlin piloted His Highness to victory in the Futurity. McCormick, Ha'penny and Schuylkill are in the moderate class, and the latter is the especial pet of Baron Kelly, who puts down what he calls a "blummer" on his chances, but fails to pick it up.

LAST Monday, at Memphis, Tenn., on a track deep in mud, Tom Elliott, by Luke Blackburn—Tidy, won the Tennessee Derby, one and one-eighth miles. Little Billy, his stable companion, was second, one length behind, while Lew Weir, the much-touted Corrigan colt, was third, a length behind Little Billy. Time, 2:03½. The latter set the pace, and Elliott came up like a house afire at the finish. Corrigan's pair (Lew Weir and Phil Dwyer) were favorites in the betting, as a stable, at 7 to 10; the winners, J. M. Brown's colts, at 3 to 2. It was a heavy betting race.

UNCLE CHARLEY COCHRAN, the groom of Electricity, an old man of seventy-seven, who took care of Goldsmith Maid all through her brilliant career, and a man of sound judgment would not be surprised if Electricity, 2:17½, would make a record of 2:12 before the season closes. "We have yearlings and two-year-olds that are showing faster time than any did a year ago at this time. About forty foals have been dropped to date of 100 expected. At Vida about as many more are expected. Ninty per cent of all of these will be descendants of old Electioneer, either from sons or daughters."

VAN B. DE LASHMUTT, of Portland, Or., Witch Hazel Farm sold to J. W. Tilden, Goldendale, Wash., Indigo, br c, foaled June 20, 1891, by Hambletonian Mambrino 5241, dam Tecora (dam of Venita, three-year-old record, 2:42½, and Coquette, record, 2:30) by Cassius M. Clay Jr. 22; $500. Same to L. B. Lindsey, Spokane, Wash., Abbie W., b f, foaled May 3, 1890, by Hambletonian Mambrino 5241, dam Nautilla J., record 2.30, by Altamont 3300. Also, b f, three years old, full sister to Lute L., by Hambletonian Mambrino 5241, dam by Eph Maynard; $400. Same to R. Morton, Portland, Kyrene, ch f, foaled May 19, 1891, by Planter 2518, dam Myrtle, by Alwood 972; $300.

AT a meeting of the Directors of the Blood Horse Association last Monday night it was decided to change the programme that the best horses could be got together and stop the entering of cracker-jacks against fields of skates, where there could be little interest manifested by the public. As a mark of respect to the memory of the late noted turfman, David D. Withers, the Sage of Brookdale, the association decided to adopt the colors of the departed New Jersey turfman—all black. These colors will be used by any turfman who has neglected to provide himself with colors. James B. Ferguson, the well-known starter from Kentucky, arrived Monday night at 8:45, and the meeting adjourned to meet the gentleman at the Palace Hotel.

Eros ranks third among the sons of Electioneer.

Pedigree is only good to look at unless it is tacked on to a good individual.

Over 170 trotters and pacers with records better than 2:30 trace to the Pilot Jr. mare, Miss Russell.

Clara has the most standard descendants of the American Star mares. Most of them are through Dictator.

The track at Petaluma is "alive" with trotters and pacers, and from early noon till late at night the youngsters keep plodding away.

Palo Alto is improving greatly. His shoes were taken off when the campaign ended, and the long rest has made a new horse of him.

The veteran horse pilot, George Evans, showed by his finish on Lady Gwen last Tuesday that he has lost little if any of his old-time skill.

F. P. Wickersham writes us that that the track at the fair ground is in splendid condition and that a large number of horses are being worked there at present.

Starter J. B. Ferguson is a wonder. The way he handles the jockeys is marvellous. Some of our would-be local flag-wielders may profit a little by studying his methods.

The larger portion of trotting-horse breeders are unalterably opposed to dishonest methods. Chicanery in the ranks is a characteristic much more of the past than of the present.

There are those who claim that a 2:30 trotter is of but little account, yet statistics show that only about one-sixth of the trotters on the turf last year succeeded in taking a record that fast.

Thos. Keating recently purchased from Senator B. Langford a fine trotting stallion by Dexter Prince out of a daughter of Tom Vernon, and, by the way he is trotting, his new owner has every reason to be proud of him.

From the point of Sunol's hip to her toe you can draw a straight line when she leaves the ground. To any one who knows anything about pacing, this magnificent propelling power will be apparent. She is like all the Electioneers—a line trotter.

Now that we have a first-class starter the older jockeys that were in the habit of doing as they pleased with our local flag-wielders will not get off three and four lengths in the lead, winning on inferior horses. The best gallopers will come pretty close to getting the money from this out.

Campbell's Electioneer, 2:17¾, that J. J. Conley bought at Woodard's sale for $15,100, was not bought for Briar Hill Farm, but for a gentleman in Rhode Island, and has been shipped to his new owner. There were negotiations pending in Kentucky, but his owner concluded to stand him in the East.

Pleasanton race track is the objective point of a number of trotting horse pilgrims every Saturday. Starr, Hickok, Williams and Maguire are a famous quartette of drivers, and the person who thinks there are no jewels in their strings would be greatly mistaken if they saw them moving on the track.

B. C. Holly's good old mare Nevada, by Regent—Miss Ella, broke down in her work last Sunday at Bay District track. Nevada was the winner of about forty races, showing her heels to good company at Louisville, Chicago, St. Paul, Latonia, Anaconda, Helena and Butte, Mont., Reno, Nev., and this city.

The four greatest trotting sires are Electioneer with 100 in the list, George Wilkes with seventy-six, Happy Medium with seventy-one, and Blue Bull with sixty-seven. The second dams of each of these great sires, except George Wilkes and Happy Medium, are of unknown blood, and there is no thoroughbred blood in the dams of either of them.

On Tuesday a number of ladies in the grand stand handed their coin to a young man to buy some pools on Royal Flush. After the race, in which the horse was beaten, the young man informed them that they made a grave mistake, it was the "bob-tailed flush" they wanted. They have been worried ever since to know which was the bob-tailed flush; they never saw it in the race.

C. S. Crittenden, after twenty-two years' continual service in the livery business, has at length concluned to take a rest, and is going to make a visit to his old home in the East. For the past four years he has been proprietor of the Golden Gate stables on Golden Gate Avenue. Messrs. H. B. Weller and George I. Bailey have purchased this stable, and aim and have the ability to carry on the business properly and well.

According to a writer in the American Turf Register for April, 1834, the longest races that had then been run in the United States were won by a Medley and a descendant of Clockfast. One race was forty-four miles, heats twenty-two miles each; the other thirty-two miles, one heat seventeen and the next fifteen miles. They were ridden by gentlemen riders. This was rather different from half and three-quarter mile races that our thoroughbreds run to-day.

Senator Langford of Lodi has two colts at his stock farm that ought to be fast. One of them is by Hawthorne, the other is by Dexter Prince; they are out of the game trotting mare Hazel Kirke, by Brigadier 797, that got her record of 2:24 in August, 1889. This year the Senator was bound to breed her to another game trotter, so he selected the black colt Directum by Director. He says that he has about given up the idea of breeding for a 2:30 trotter, what he wants is a two-minute horse.

C. F. Sampson, of Denver, Colo., one of the best-known and most popular gentlemen we know of, gave us a pleasant call last Wednesday. Mr. Sampson is taking in the Blood Horse meeting, and is an enthusiastic turfman. Prince Warwick, owned by Mr. S., is likely to trot at Denver this season, and, in the hands of Orrin Hickok, is moving in a manner that pleases his owner greatly. Mr. Sampson gave us a piece of news that will be a pleasant surprise to trotting horsemen, and that is that DuBois Bros.' Superior, 2:17¼, who was supposed to have broken down, is working good and strong at Denver, and will yet win many a dollar and bracket for his enterprising owners.

Jay-Eye-See 2:10 has won more heats inside of 2:30 than any other trotter that has entered the 2:10 list. He is credited with fifty-eight heats from 2:30 to 2:10; Palo Alto 2:08¾ stands second with fifty-four; Allerton 2:09½ third with forty-five; Maud S. 2:08¾ fourth with forty-three; Nancy Hanks 2:09 fifth with forty; Nelson 2:10 sixth with thirty-two, and Sunol 2:08½ (the fastest of the lot) has twenty-six.—Horse Review.

It is not generally known that Aberdeen ranks high as a sire of extreme speed; still the facts are that out of more than one hundred sons of Hambletonian, which have performers in the 2:30 list, but two, Electioneer and George Wilkes, outrank him as the sire of 2:20 speed, and that only one other, Volunteer, ties him for this honor. As George Wilkes, Eiectioneer and Volunteer have all passed away, this leaves Aberdeen the living champion of the Hambletonian family as the sire of 2:20 speed. It is also worthy of comment that in his 2:20 list, which includes two performers with marks below 2:16, all of them made their best records in races on regulation tracks.

Word reaches here from Santa Ana of a whirlwind pacer that has come to light. Recently a young man brought a horse from San Bernardino to Santa Ana. He offered to sell the animal for $100. The stranger drove the pacer a quarter in 38 seconds. Jack Felton got up behind the San Bernardino horse and drove him a quarter in 36 seconds. Felton then offered to buy him for $100. While Felton went after the money the stranger raised his price to $250. Jack Felton purchased the pacer at this figure, and a report reached the Herald office yesterday that the green pacer has since shown a quarter in 30½ seconds, which is a 2:02 gait.—Los Angeles Herald.

John E. Thayer, one of the oldest jockeys on the turf, died at his home, 219 South Fifth street, Camden, at 2 o'clock Thursday morning of pneumonia. Mr. Thayer has been sick for several weeks but the news of his death was very unexpected. Johnny Thayer has made his headquarters at the Gloucester track ever since it opened, and was well known there as Starter Pettingill. He was popular and was a good rider, but he accepted very few mounts at this meeting. Mr. Thayer owned P. J. H., John Arkins and Colonel Harwood. John Arkins was his bread-winner, and the only horse which he won with at this meeting. Mr. Thayer was born at Rochester, N. Y., and was about 36 years of age. His funeral took place on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, from 427 Market street, Camden.

One of our great drivers once said that the best stimulant to aid in driving a hard race was a good night's sleep. Another, noted for his skill in conditioning, once said: "Never allow a sickly or diseased man to rub or handle a horse between heats." Both had noted an effect of the same cause. A high-bred racehorse, trotter or runner, has a nervous organization as sympathetic as a woman's. Lack of sleep makes most men savage, lack of good health weakens nervous energy, and cross men and weak men are the bane of good horses. The man who habitually keeps late hours, regardless of what the allurement may be—courtship, revival or poker—is unfitted for work about horses, and employers had better discharge such men at once. He may be strong and willing, naturally good-tempered, determined not to he mastered by any vexatious incident, but the strained nervous system is betrayed unwittingly by some hasty movement to the keen intelligence of the horse.

When a horse trots a dead heat with another horse the time made constitutes a record; but, according to a recent decision of Secretary Steiner, when a horse trots a dead heat with time, that is, when he equals the time he started to beat, it is not a record. This does not seem right, and steps should be taken to secure a decision from the executive boards of the American and National Associations that will specify whether or not a record shall be obtained by a performer against time under the same conditions as when the contestant is another horse. Mr. Steiner, in his dual capacity of Secretary of the American Trotting Association and Registrar of the Registrar Association, has made some decisions that invite considerable criticism, and that, to some people at least, appear tyrannical and indefensible. It would seem to be a more satisfactory course if the Register Association would make and clearly define their rules and then let the Registrar carry them out instead of having that person every now and then announce that some new condition must be complied with before his stock can be registered.

Iowa has swung into line by placing upon her statute books a law against entering or attempting to enter in a race a horse under an assumed name or out of its class. Under the new Iowa statute any person or persons found guilty of a violation of the law shall, upon conviction thereof, be imprisoned in the penitentiary for a period of not more than three years or imprisoned in the county jail of the county in which he is convicted for any period of not more than one year, and shall be fined in any sum not exceeding $1,000. And any person or persons knowingly misrepresenting or fraudulently concealing the public performance in any former contest or trial of speed of any horse which he or they propose to enter for competition in any such contest shall, upon conviction thereof, be liable to the same punishment, whether they succeed in making the same entry or not. And thus another stone is cast into the highway of the dishonest owner and drivers' already rocky road. Some day one of those tricky drivers will come up against this stone with a swift sulky and get thrown clear over the fence into the jail yard.

"Iconclast," in the Stock Farm, says: "A suggestion was made by a correspondent in last week's Stock Farm that meets my approbation. There never was any sense in dating the age of horses from January 1. Over by far the greater part of the United States, no one, or at least but very few, care to breed their mares before April or May or to have foals come before the first of April. The spring is the natural time for horse-breeding. Mares "come in" better at that season and "stand" better, and when the foal comes, mares then bred have plenty of grass to enable them to afford the proper nourishment. In addition to this many breeders think that the practice of very early breeding tends to produce abortions. Whether this be true or not it would be much better to have the age of horses date from the 15th of March or 1st of April. The present rule operates to the advantage of California only, where breeding can be done the year round. Every other portion of the country is handicapped by this rule, and it is time that there should be a change in this matter conforming to the necessities of the breeders in by far the greater portion of the breeding districts."

Ed. Phelps, the foreman of James G. Fair's big ranch ... Vallejo and Sonoma townships, was in town recently. From him we learn that Mr. Fair intends to build right away a private track on the part of his ranch in Sonoma Valley just below the Champlin ranch. A dwelling house for hands employed about the track has just been constructed and a barn 80x150 feet will be built as soon as labor and money can do it. Mr Fair, we learn, intends to make his ranch one of the best breeding farms for fine stock on the coast. He has ample means and the land, and if he desires to do so can accomplish it. The Imprint wishes Mr. Fair unbounded success. It may not be generally known, but it is a fact that James G. Fair was, in the early fifties, and before he turned his attention to mining, a resident of Vallejo township in this county, in which his main ranch house is now located, and served for awhile as constable of that township, and many old friends who knew him in those days welcome his return to the scenes of his early life in California.—Petaluma Imprint.

For a second time in its history Monmouth Park has undergone an almost entire change of ownership. New hands took it from John Chamberlain, and now owners have taken it from A. J. Cassatt, John Peabody, W. A. Moore, Mrs. George Lorillard (Countess d'Agreda) and the estate of D. D. Withers and W. L. Scott. The announcement that there would be racing at Monmouth Park this year was the result of a meeting at which the controlling interest was turned over to A. F. Wolcott, a well-known racing man and partner of Jas. R. Keene six years ago in the unfortunate Fairfax Stable, and more recently a partner of "Johnny" Campbell, a dealer in gas stocks and other securities in Wall street and Chicago. Wolcott is now virtually the owner of Monmouth, as he has gained control of three-fifths of the original stock. Of course he represents not only himself, but other men. James R. Keene is one of his backers. Another backer of Wolcott is Jacob Ruppert. There are two or three other backers, but only in a small way. The directorate has been changed entirely, with the exception of John A. Morris and James Galway. Morris holds $25,000 in stock and Galway $5,000. James Gordon Bennett's interest is not on the market, but Wolcott has asked him by cable if he will sell.

Dr. K. D. Wise, of Los Angeles, is out again after his serious accident. "Glendine is as sound as a new silver dollar," said Dr. Wise. "His feet are now all right, and he is moving in grand style. I shall expect great things from Glendine this year." The doctor made a judicious move when he secured Ed Connolly to train for him. Connolly is a brainy young reinsman, and he has mapped out a long campaign for the Wiseburn trotters. He will leave Los Angeles next month for Salt Lake City, where the horses are all engaged. After the Salt Lake meeting he will take in the Northwestern circuit. The Wiseburn string this year will be the best, on the whole, that ever left that county. It is as follows: Glendine, ch h, 6, by Judge Salisbury, dam Tempest, by Sultan; Emin Bey, b h, 4, by Guy Wilkes, dam Tempest, by Sultan; Adelaide McGregor, b m, 3, by Bonnie McGregor, dam Adelaide, by Milwaukee; Bonnie June, b m, 3, by Simmons, dam Mollie Wilkes, by George Wilkes; Adelaide Simmons, b f, 2, by Simmons, dam Adelaide, by Milwaukee. George Hinds' pacer Rory O'More will also go along with the Wiseburn string. Emin Bey promises to develop into a very speedy trotter. He has no mark, being held back until the present season. He is entered in a number of four-year-old stakes. The other day Emin Bey trotted a mile in his work in 2:31. Adelaide McGregor is getting along famously. Last year she could have taken a record of 2:26 as a two-year-old, but she was not rushed. Barring accidents, this royally-bred filly should secure a three-year-old record close to 2:20.

A dispatch from Little Rock, Ark., dated April 7th, says: "To-day's running of the Arkansas Derby settles the question as to the permanency of that race as one of the great sporting events of the year. It is a mile affair. Never was a more hotly-contested struggle from post to finish witnessed by most enthusiastic spectators. When the event was decided and the favorite was known to have been defeated, even those who had lost their wealth felt that they were more than repaid by having witnessed a good contest. Of the four starters, Pescador, the great California colt, was the favorite at odds of 9 to 10, which were soon cut down to 3 to 5 on. Brown's entry, Little Billy and Tom Elliott coupled, found backers at 3 to 2, while Critic was almost neglected at 5 to 1. At the first attempt they were sent away on even terms, Tom Elliott soon drawing away a head to the good and setting the pace, with Pescador, Little Billy and Critic well up. In this order they reached the homestretch. Then whips flashed out and the final struggle began. The game Californian tried in vain to overtake the blood of the Bluegrass State, but had to surrender his place to Little Billy, who, with a tremendous burst of speed, passed under the wire a winner by a short head from his stable companion, Tom Elliott, the latter beating Pescador a length for the place, while Critic was about the same distance in the rear. Time, 1:44¾. Fully 5,000 people witnessed to-day's running." Since this race was run Tom Elliott won the Tennessee Derby, at Memphis, with his stable companion, Little Billy, second.

Joseph Heideger, an American horseman, now in Russia, writes entertainingly to the Pittsburg Dispatch: "I am now in Moscow, and it is a great place. Trotting has taken a great hold here, and there is plenty of money in the business when a man has anything like a good horse. I am trotting horses on the ice among the Russians, and it is cold, awfully and terribly cold. One of my horses was badly frozen, and it will take months before the horse is well enough to trot again. Our American horses cannot stand the cold here half as well as the Russian horses. The latter can stand the weather, no matter how freezing it is, and they will trot in great style. They can go heats of two and three miles without any blankets. They have no boots on, nor are any check-reins used, and they have on only common road shoes. But despite all this, they can go the mile in from 2:25 to 2:35, and never make a skip. These horses really surprise me, and Americans who have never seen them will hardly believe that they are such useful animals. I have some Russian horses now in my stable, and I have had many a good laugh at them. A driver behind them has to sit with a slack line, and baste away at them with the whip from wire to wire. No judgment is required to drive them, as they are all pure-gaited trotters, and you cannot drive them to a break. They are more natural trotters than our American horses, but they are very roughly built. One of these Russian horses would be just the thing for Watson Taylor to go round the pumpkin fairs with. With one of them Watson could give the boys the laugh. I have just won three races and been twice second, so that I cannot complain."

Swimming Exhibition.

Novelty, novelty all is novelty in the horse business in California. The ideas that have emanated from the brainy men of the Pacific have been put immediately into use and are now adopted by all the leading horsemen in the United States who seek to be in the very front rank of progressiveness. Our kindergartens, baby trotters and pacers; champion trotters that are "built on thoroughbred lines," from thoroughbred dams; our immense stock farms, with their various modes of training horses and runners have excited the admiration of the world, and now comes the greatest and latest surprise of all, the swimming tank at the Souther Farm, which is claiming the attention of horsemen everywhere who are anxiously watching its effects.

Last Saturday was advertised as the first public exhibition day. A large number of visitors were met at the station at San Leandro by teams that Mr. Gilbert Tompkins had in readiness to convey them to the farm. Through the quiet town of San Leandro the coach with its load of precious freight was quickly dashing, the four horses prancing and dancing while the laughter of the happy folks on pleasure bent aroused the quiet people of this beautiful suburb. Across the bridge that spans the slowly-flowing San Leandro creek and thence to the famous county road that seems to have been cut through orchards, wheat fields and fruit gardens, until finally Stanley road is reached. A large signboard indicates that this is the road to the "Souther Farm." The four-in hand and large wagonettes, followed by lighter vehicles, made quite a procession as they turned into this driveway. Fields of growing grain and meadows with their wealth of eschscholtzias, daisies, lillies, interspersed with patches of blue sage blossoms, afforded a striking contrast to the well-kept almond orchards in full bloom on the other side of the grass-bordered highways. At length, a turn in the road revealed to the expectant throng a perfect little village of barns and sheds, apparently built quite lately. The half-mile track, upon which the teams were driven, was as smooth as a billiard table, the turns being "thrown up" according to the regulation rule. When the "covered" swimming tank was seen every one was anxious to "get out and see it," and many of the fair young maidens and their proud gallants hardly waited for the drivers to fasten their horses ere they were out and walking within the enclosure surrounding "the tank."

The reader can imagine a cement pit some ninety feet long, twenty feet wide and eight feet deep, with corrugated inclines at each end, down which the horses walk into the water; some distance from the tank a ten-horse-power boiler is built which furnishes steam for heating the tank. The steam is forced into the water through a two-inch pipe, by which the temperature of the water is kept at a blood heat. Directly in the center of the tank, suspended from the roof, is a platform about fifty feet long and wide enough for a man to walk upon. The water is heavily impregnated with sea-salt; it takes about 3,000 pounds to bring it to the right state. This is done to prevent the horses from catching cold; so far it has proved most successful.

The audience stood at both ends of the buildings, watching intently for the first horse to "take a swim;" they did not have to wait long, however, for two attendants led a fine bay filly down to the incline; each of them held long ropes attached to the halter, and the animal boldly walked in and started to swim; the attendant on the left side of the tank threw his guy-rope to the attendant on the platform, who was in waiting; the filly swam like a fish and when the edge of the platform was reached the attendant on the right bank threw his rope to the attendant who was in waiting on the left bank, the man in the center guiding the horse around the "turn" quite easily, the filly going down the left, and at the end of the platform the rope in the attendant's hand was thrown back to the one on the right side of the tank, the man on the platform retaining his halter-rope and guiding the smooth-gliding equine beauty around as before; thus the process was kept up for a few "laps," and the animal was led up the incline. Attendants quickly surrounded her with scrapers, and the water came off in streams. She was warm as if she had been given a stiff "pipe-opener" for a mile. Heavy blankets and hoods were thrown on her, and then she was walked for about ten minutes in a sheltered corral, where the sun shone warmly. She was then taken into a large stall, the coverings removed, and the scrapers were again put to work. The perspiration rolled off under their application. When thoroughly scraped out she was again blanketed and taken into the walking yard. This started another "scrape." That was rubbed off, and when, thoroughly wiped dry she went to her stall and started into feed immediately.

While she was undergoing the drying-out process Figaro, the large, fine-looking son of Hambletonian 725, was led into the water and given "his exercise;" he enjoyed the sport as much as his attendants. An observer remarked when this horse came out of the water, "that horse's legs never looked better; in fact, he had improved more than any horse he had ever seen." Figaro's legs were in a bad condition; he had speed enough, but his legs seemed to have been unable to stand the weight of his body, for he took on flesh when in training and weighed some 1,200 pounds. He is rapidly approaching racing condition, and will undoubtedly prove that this method of training will work a success in his case if he hears the word "go" from a judges' stand this fall.

Jester D. and a number of others followed, and the exhibition was pronounced by every one a decided success. For a horse that had been campaigned through a hard season and is to return to winter quarters we believe that this swimming tank will prove invaluable, or for a well-gaited horse with weak ankles or tender feet the advantages it has over the ordinary way of training horses must be at once apparent. The way the animals labor or work, the immense lung power they seem to excrt, and the rapid disappearance of all soreness should at once commend it to all progressive horsemen.

At two o'clock Mr. Tompkins led the way toward the little grand stand overlooking the race track. He provided each of the guests with a catalogue of the horses that are to be so'd on the 20th of the month at this farm. The various colts and fillies shown will prove a treat to all who attend the sale. The exclamations of those present as trotter after trotter appeared were strong testimonials of their appreciation. The filly Vera is a beautiful mare, and is in every way a credit to her royal breeding. Missie Medium is another good one; Miss Sidney is fit to grace any race track or royal harem in the land. The Dexter Prince filly Diana is a fast one and will well repay her owner for training. Ruffle, by Sterling, is a pure, frictionless pacer, that will prove valuable anywhere she is placed. Raspberry is the name of a roan gelding by Figaro that is pure-gaited and a perfect trotter. Some one will get a gem at this sale when this one is offered. There were so many good ones, and, as the catalogue gives the pedigree and description of each one so comprehensively, it is hardly necessary to single out any of them, as they are all excellent as individuals. Whoever attends the sale next Wednesday to purchase will not regret it, for a man can make no mistake in selecting what he wants when he sees them shown as they will be on that day. We can vouch far a cordial reception to all, and know that those who go will return to their respective homes much gratified at their visit.

A Beautiful Catalogue.

The good example set by Mr. Corbitt of the San Mateo Stock Farm some years ago in publishing a handsome catalogue—one worthy of his stock—seems to have been followed by some of our younger breeders, if we are to judge by the one issued from the La Siesta Stock Farm by F. H. Burke and the last we received that is issued by Wilfred Page & Bro., of Rancho Cotati, Penn's Grove, Sonoma county, Cal. It contains some fifty-two pages of reading matter, pedigrees, descriptions, etc., within a beautifully-embossed cover. The "reading matter" on each page is enclosed with a neat, dark red border. The introduction notice is worthy of being read by all and is as follows:

"In Eclectic 11321, my premier stallion, I am offering for public service precisely the same blood that courses through the veins of the incomparable two-year old Arion, 2:09¼; they are both by the quasi-developed but recordless Electioneer, out of Manette, a mare that would not trot 'a little bit,' although a full sister to Woodnut, 2.16½, and Nanon, 2.22, and to Maple, dam of Hattie D., three-year old, 2.26¼, all of them being by Nutwood, 2:18¼, half brother to Maud S., 2.08¼, and Lord Russell 1677, sire at ten years of age of eight in 2:30.

"In Mortimer 4336, four-year-old record 2:27, are combined the blood strains of the sire of Stitoll, 2:08¼, and Palo Alto, 2:08¼, queen and king, respectively, of the trotting turf) with that (opportunity considered) of one of the greatest of Hambletonian 10's grandsons, Whipple's Hambletonian 725, sire of Mortimer's dam, was got by Guy Miller, whose son, Delmonico 110, besides siring Darby, 2:16½, supplied the Hambletonian heaven to The Moor blood and produced Sultan, 2.24, the sire of Stamboul, 2:11.

"What Electioneer has done as regards siring speed it is needless to recapitulate. Several writers, however, have said that Electioneer was so far behind Geo. Wilkes as a sire of producing sons and daughters, that there could be no comparison drawn between them. I don't agree with these writers and will here draw a parallel that it will be well for them to thoroughly digest.

"Geo. Wilkes was foaled in 1856, Electioneer in 1868.

"Geo. Wilkes came to Kentucky in 1875, Electioneer to California in 1877.

"Geo. Wilkes' oldest producing son was foaled in 1861, Electioneer's in 1878.

"Geo. Wilkes had not less than four entire sons for they have become producers in the field ten years before Electioneer's oldest unaltered son was born.

"Geo. Wilkes' producing sons* sired prior to and in four years after his arrival in Kentucky number nineteen head, Electioneer's producing sons sired in the first four years after his arrival in California number nine head.

"Geo. Wilkes' nineteen producing sons in fourteen years after his arrival in Kentucky and twenty-six years after his oldest son was foaled, sired forty-six trotters. Electioneer's nine sons in fourteen years after their sire's arrival in California, and only those fourteen years after that sire's oldest producing son was foaled, sired thirty-one trotters.

"Geo. Wilkes' non-producing sons foaled up to four years after his arrival in Kentucky. I have no means of ascertaining; Electioneer's non-producing sons foaled up to a corresponding period do not exceed six head.

"Geo. Wilkes' producing sons, therefore, foaled up to 1877 (fourteen years after that sire's arrival in Kentucky) showed an average production in the 2:30 list of 2.42 trotters, against Electioneer's fourteen years after his arrival in California average production of 3.44 trotters in the 2:30 list.

"Geo. Wilkes' producing sons all told up to and including 1887 numbered twenty-three sires with fifty trotters to their credit, Electioneer's up to and including 1891, numbered fourteen sires with thirty eight to their credit, not less than four of same being two-year-olds.

"This comparison is drawn, not with a view to belittle the Wilkes strain, for a glance at my catalogue soon proves I am as much interested in that as I am in Electioneer's family: it is, however, to show that even so great a family as that of Geo. Wilkes could make no such showing as Electioneer has done in a similar (in fact, a far less) period in producing sires of trotters.

"As regards the producing dams, Geo. Wilkes at the end of 1887 could show only four such with six trotters, against Electioneer's thirteen trotters to their credit at the close of 1891."

* I have taken into consideration only the sires of trotters.

A picture of Eclectic is seen and his pedigree; then follows Mortimer's pedigree (this horse by the way is doing remarkably well in Kentucky), and then the stallion Sableham. His yearling colts, Holdfast, Bracken and Ecce, follow and then comes the yearlings and two-year-olds and brood mares.

Among others we find in this catalogue producing blood represented on the dam's side through the descendants of Maude, dam of King Jim, 2:20½, and Attorney, sire of Atto Rex, 2:21¾, etc., granddam of Woodburn, 2:25½; Fanny Fern, dam of Balkan, 2:15, and Molly Drew, 2:27, granddam of Allanah, 2:18, and dam of Freedom (one year), 2:29¾; Jenny Sheppard, dam of Nellie Patchen, 2:27½, and Flora Sheppard, 2:30; Old Peanuts (Grey Liz), dam of Billy Haywards, sire of three in 2:30 and granddam of Sweetbriar, 2:26½; Belle, dam of Overman, 2:19½; Metamora, dam of Clay Duke, 2:29 (sire of Del Rey, 2:20); Lorena, dam of Valiant, 2:28½; Victress, dam of Monarch, 2:28½, and granddam of Lohengrin, 2:27½; Eve, granddam of Sabina (two years) 2:27½; Pacific Maid, granddam of Kebir (two years) 2:26½ (May Queen, dam of Directress, 2:28¾)?; Outlaw, dam of Alert, 2:24; Harma mare, granddam of Maggie McDowell, 2:21½.

Surprised at the limited number of foals by his own stallions, we asked Mr. Page his reason for it, and from him learned that as his horses were young and he proposed to stay in the business, and that it was almost impossible until very lately to pick up mares of such breeding as he wished to cross his stallions with, he has been and is still breeding considerably to outside stallions with a view to breeding up and thereby giving his stallions a better show in the near future. We find, therefore, mares bred to or colts out of those mares by Guy Wilkes 2:15½; Le Grand 2868; Dexter Prince 11,363; Hawthorne (son of Nutwood); Whips, 2:27½; Mambrino Wilkes 6083, Dawn, 2:18¾; Sidney, 2:19½; Robin (granddam of Director, 2:17), etc. It is a good plan for a patient breeder to follow, except, as Mr. Page says, one so frequently gets horse colts when only fillies are desired by and of value to the breeder; or if fillies do come, they are occasionally so frightfully marked as to spoil the looks of the whole band.

St. Louis' Great Fair.

Every person possessed of a good trotter or pacer should not fail to read the advertisement of the St. Louis A. & M. Association in another column of this paper. Nothing is offered in the shape of a purse or stake that is not calculated to please horsemen, and the conditions are so liberal that they should all fill exceedingly well. California horses walk away with the best of the stakes every year, and we suppose this year will be no exception to the rule. It will be observed that entries to these stakes close May 2d, to the purses September 1st, and that the meeting lasts from October 3d to 8th. Do not fail to read their advertisement.

Santa Rosa Scintillations.

Editor Breeder and Sportsman:—Sporting matters in the horse line are looking up here. Before the first of next month all of the fast horses to go in training here this summer will have been taken to Pierce Bros.' track for regular work.

We made our regular visit to the track this week and found things unusually quiet. Mr. Bonner and three of his men were in San Francisco getting ready for Pierce Bros.' big sale, and with them were a large troop of their fine horses.

Andrew Compton, who was with DeTurk & McGraw last year, is working for Mr. Bonner this season, and with his family lives at the track. He is a good, careful, reliable man, and keeps everything about the grounds clean and as neat as a pin.

"Andy," as everybody calls him, led out Madonna, the grand old mare recently brought from Napa, for our inspection. The dam of Alcona Jr. and Del Rey is in fine condition, and as frisky as a two-year-old. She has never had a harness on, and probably never will have, though she is as sound as a berry and only fourteen years old. Her career as a producer will not be interrupted by such menial tasks as riding or driving.

"Jerry" Broderick is handling Alcona Jr. this season, and the general opinion is that that magnificent stallion has fallen into first-class hands. If he does not cut his record down a few seconds this year, it will be a disappointment to many of his admirers in Sonoma county. Alcona Jr. is unquestionably one of the best individuals in this section.

Mart Rollins has another new horse in his string. It is a two-year-old filly by Mountain Boy, and out of Lou Milton, dam of Redwood. This is one of the best-gaited animals at the track, and seems to be destined to make a crack trotter.

Pierce Bros.' premier stallion, Bay Rose, is as handsome and gentle as ever. Gentle spring chooses him as one of its first subjects, as his glossy new coat shows, and every man about the place is proud of Bay Rose. It is little wonder, for, all points considered, he is an exceptional stallion.

A three-year-old filly by Mambrino Wilkes, dam Lady Allen, is among the new additions made by Pierce Bros. She has not been in training regularly, but can reel off a quarter in forty seconds. The yearling filly by Roy Wilkes is coming out nicely, and the little Sidney youngster is as lively as a cricket and very speedy.

Red Rose, full sister to Bay Rose, is enjoying the liberty of the pasture. She is a tall, rangy, roomy individual, and should be valuable, if bred judiciously. Another good one shown us by the accommodating "Andy" was the two-year-old Woodnut filly, dam Trix, by Hambletonian.

Dr. Long's three-year-old gelding Hindoo is rounding to nicely. Hindoo is three years old, sired by Montana Wilkes, dam by Del Gamo, second dam by Lexington Golddust. This horse, as the boys say, "is no Apollo for beauty, but is coming very fast." The black stallion Jerome, owned by the same man, is doing well. Jerome is one of the few horses we see these days that needs no boots and trappings. Jerome's breeding is good. He was sired by Montana Wilkes, son of Red Wilkes, dam Alberta by Del Gamo, Del Gamo, by Dictator. Alberta is the dam of Florida, four-year-old record, 2:21¼.

Our friend "Dave" Colross, who has been handling Rufus Murphy's "string" this spring, and who we feel certain will make them heard from during the racing season, has not begun to work his horses for business yet. In copying from an Eastern paper the story of how "Dave" cared for that great campaigner, Johnston, our California papers made a very curious mistake in calling him John, thus having it appear that he is a brother of the man spoken of.

There is nothing of the dazzling, blinding brilliancy about "Dave" that made his predecessor prominent here a year ago. We do not hear any loud talk about fast quarters, half-miles and phenomenal bursts of speed made by any of the horses under his care. Nor has he blown his bugle with the list of horses he put in the "thirty" list. He is satisfied to let his horses be judged by their performance in the speed ring, later on, being one who does not believe in the whoop and hurrah method.

Last season there were a great many fast heats driven at the Santa Rosa track. Many were in "work outs." In fact some of our horses did more races in training than at any other time. As a very natural and perfectly logical consequence, some of them did not do much legitimate racing. But we believe better results will be obtained this year, for there will not be so much of this foolish early racing or fast mile business.

W. P. Fine and J. H. Lawrence will take their trotters out to the track in a few days. Three or four will go there from the Rosedale breeding farm, and DeTurk and McGraw's horses will follow two weeks later. Penders' horses have been taken to Petaluma for training, but new ones arrive every week, thus keeping the number up to its old time standard. We will predict that two of the sensational horses of the year 1892 on the Pacific Coast will go out from Santa Rosa, but will not name them now.

Santa Rosa sportsmen have been enjoying the excellent trout fishing since the law went out of effect. Charley Farmer, one of our well-known horsemen, and brother, Henry, were among the number that angled Friday. They secured 243 brook beauties, which they were generous enough to divide among their friends. Sunday nearly every young man in the city hied himself away, and if the Sunday-schools suffered for lack of attendance the teachers knew that many of their lambs were

[WRITTEN FOR THE BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.]

THE TWO-MINUTE TROTTER.

Seeing so much in the horse papers about the two-minute trotter (and I am sorry to say that most of it is written by would-be horse critics who never bred a horse that could trot in 2:30), I feel constrained to answer them in point.

I know they will answer me that twenty years ago if I had said a horse would trot in 2:10 or 2:08 that I would have been regarded as a crank, just as I now regard the two-minute man, but let us stop to reason a little over this problem.

We have the word of such men as Doble, Solan, Hickok, Marvin and others that there were horses twenty years ago that could trot quarters in 31 to 32 seconds. May I ask how many have we now that can trot quarters in 30 seconds or go one-quarter of a mile at a two-minute gait? Not over six or eight at the outside. No horse ever lived that could trot a mile when fully extended all the way and cover every eighth and every quarter in exactly the same notch. Of course Sunol, Nancy Hanks, Allerton, Palo Alto, Nelson, Stamboul or any other 2:10 horse can trot a mile in 2:16 or 2:18, and go every eighth and every quarter at the same rate of speed, because they are trotting well within themselves all the time and have a reserve; but extend them out, try to trot them a mile in 2:10 and go the first eighth in 16¼ seconds, the first quarter in 32½, the first half in 1:05 and try to keep this speed rated exactly the same for the full mile, and see where you will land with any of them. Away outside of 2:10, I will guarantee you. But let any of them go a mile in 2:10, and you will find some quarters better than a 2:10 clip and other quarters correspondingly slower. Therefore a logical conclusion is that a horse to trot a mile in two minutes flat would have to trot some quarters in less than a two-minute clip, or better than thirty seconds. We only know of one horse that it is even claimed has done this—Sunol.

We may see a pacer go a mile in two minutes or very close to it, and a trotter go a mile in 2.05 or 2:06, but don't any of my readers ever think that they will live to see a horse trot a mile in two minutes, for if we can believe the words of such men as those above mentioned, we had horses twenty years ago that could trot quarters very near, if not fully, as fast then as now, and we have not improved so very much within this time for a high rate of speed. I look to see every record that stands on the books to-day (with one exception, the 2:10¼ of Arion, two-year-old) beaten this coming season, and still don't ever expect to hearing of a horse trotting a full mile in two minutes.

SUNOL'S FUTURE.

By the way, I see in Wallace's Monthly, March number, pages 3 and 4, under the heading of "The Future of Sunol," Mr. Bonner says: "She was not in condition to do herself justice during the past season, having been lame during the great part of the summer;" and further on, "Senator Stanford, in a letter to me in December last, stated that if it had not been for this lameness, he would have sent her to me with a record of 2:06 or better."

This is certainly refreshing, when we were assured last summer time and again through the press that she was not lame. I well remember last fall that if anyone attempted to say that Sunol was lame he had a fight on his hands right away. Everybody who saw Sunol at Stockton knows that she was lame; that is, if he was any judge of a horse at all.

DIRECT'S WORK.

Direct during his trotting career trotted forty-nine heats in races. He trotted twenty-nine winning heats of 2:30 or better (average time, 2:20½), two dead heats—both 2:24¼—three outside of 2:30, and fifteen losing heats. In his four-year-old form he trotted the three fastest consecutive heats ever trotted up to that time by a four-year-old (2:18½, 2:19½, 2:19½), and he trotted a public quarter at Grand Rapids in his five-year-old form in 31¾ seconds. At six years old, his first season as a pacer, he paced thirty-seven winning heats in 2:30 or better (average time, 2:14), paced twelve heats in 2:12 or better (which count as losing heats, as he went against time and lost), nine losing heats in races, and paced a quarter of a mile at Cambridge City, Ind., on September 26th, timed by hundreds of watches and publicly announced out of the judges' stand as 27 seconds—both eighths in 13½ seconds. In his last race with Hal Pointer, the last eighth of each mile was 13½, 13¾, 14¼—kind of stepping a little—and Hal was there or thereabouts each time, too.

Direct was never known to make a break or skip or to swerve even under the whip at either way of going, and races in a six-pound harness attached to a thirty-eight-pound Caffrey sulky, something that a horse that swerved any would break down very quickly. It is remarkable that at four years old he trotted the three fastest consecutive heats ever trotted by a four-year-old up to that time, and at six paced the three fastest consecutive heats ever covered by a horse. Another singular fact is that his dam, Echora, 2:23½, is the only mare that ever beat his sire, Director, a race. We are informed that his book is already nearly full in Kentucky.

Sacramento Horse Talk.

Quite a group of horsemen assemble at Agricultural Park each morning to see the runners and trotters "worked out." There are several very promising colts there now in each division, among them being Buckman & Carragher's two-year-old stallion by Dexter Prince—Nellie C.

This youngster has been handled only three months, but he already shows great speed for a two-year-old. The track was very heavy yesterday morning, from a two free use of water by the sprinklers, but the colt covered a quarter of a mile in less than 42 seconds, and without a skip. He is entered in the two-year-old stake at the spring meeting, and the two-year-old that beats him will have to be a "corker." Dexter Prince, the sire, is by Kentucky Prince, and the sire of the colt's dam was Kilrush, a full-brother to the fleet-footed Lady Blanchard.

The same gentlemen have a two-year-old filly at the park which is receiving her preliminary training. This filly is by Cornelius—Firefly, Cornelius being by Nutwood and the dam by Jim Munroe. She is also showing fine speed.

They also have a ten-months-old filly, of which they expect great things. This equine "kid" is being daily put through its kindergarten work, and already gives evidence of having inherited first-class trotting qualities. She is by Don Marvin—Nelson Maid. The former is by Fallis, one of Electioneer's best sons, and the latter is by Fleetwood, a son of Nutwood. If the filly doesn't make a trotter, it will not be from lack of the right blood.

Among the colts now in training is John Cavanaugh's three-year-old by Fallis. This promising youngster was driven a quarter yesterday in thirty-nine seconds, and did it so handily as to warrant the belief that in a few weeks he will be able to maintain that rate of speed from "end to end."

Maud Patchen is about the fleetest thing in the shape of horseflesh now at the park, however. While not yet in racing condition, she goes at a clipping gait, and should this summer lower her record below the 2:20 mark.

Matt Storn has a very stylish two-year-old Noonday stallion that can go his quarter, it is said, in about forty seconds. Storn, however, is an admirer and handler of runners, and the probability is that some day this youngster will grace the paddock of some trotting breeder.—Record-Union.

A Great Field for Horsemen.

Everyone will admit that $100,000 is a big sum for horsemen to win, yet that amount is offered in stakes and purses on the Montana circuit. There is room for all—trotters, pacers and thoroughbred gallopers—and all this racing will be done within a radius of 373 miles, commencing at Deer Lodge on July 4th and lasting until the 7th; Dillon, July 9th to 13th; Anaconda, July 15th to 27th; Butte, July 29th to August 10th; Helena, August 13th to 20th; Great Falls, August 22d to 27th, thus ending in ample time for the fall meetings. The climate is unsurpassed, and horsemen will find the best of accommodations. Read the advertisement on another page and enter liberally.

Performances Against Time.

At the meeting of the Register Association at Chicago the following rules submitted by the Executive Committee were discussed and approved:

Performances against time must be conducted in accordance with the following rules and regulations in order to be accepted for the purpose of registration by the American Trotting Register Association:

Must be made at a regular meeting of a society in membership with the National Trotting Association or American Trotting Association, said performances to be conducted by the regular appointed judges and timers for the day, strictly in accordance with the rules of said National or American Trotting Association adopted by the member.

No animal shall be permitted to start against time pending a heat or trial by another animal, nor until the result of such heat or trial shall have been duly announced.

Time shall be taken by not less than two nor more than three timers engaged in the stand at the same time.

There shall be not less than three judges during such performances, who shall not act as official timers.

No performance against time will be accepted if made before the regularly announced time for the commencement of the performances of the day, which shall not be earlier than 10 o'clock A. M.

No performance against time will be accepted if made at a postponed or continued meeting, unless such postponement or continuance is made in accordance with the rules of the National or American Trotting Association, to which the member belongs.

No performance against time will be accepted unless the animal starts to equal or beat a specified time and accomplishes the feat.

A regular meeting is hereby construed to mean a meeting advertised in at least one newspaper not less than one week before the commencement of said meeting, and at which meeting no less than two regular events (purse or stake) take place on each day, to which entrance fee is paid or subscription made.

Entries to "performances against time" must be made with the Secretary not later than 7 P. M. the day before the performance.

Time made in match races between two or more horses will not be accepted unless made over grounds of members of the National or American Trotting Association, said races to be conducted by the regularly elected or duly appointed officers of said member strictly in accordance with the rules of said National or American Trotting Association.

Time made in "matches against time" will not be accepted for purposes of registration, except as hereinbefore provided.

The above rules, although not entirely doing away with the "tin cup" records, are far nearer the goal of perfection than any heretofore made. There is one thing more that perhaps might have been thought of in framing the above, and that is the timing of the second horse; for instance: There is a race for the 2:22 class in which there are four starters. The first heat is won by a "skiver" in 2:20, the second horse trotted fairly and squarely without making a skip, and is only beaten by a head. In the second heat the same positions are held, only that the "skiver, or hop-skip-and-jump horse" gets a mark of 2:18¾, while the faithful trotter, with a record of 2:24, is at his shoulder. In the third heat the skiver wins, while the steady-going trotter pulls up lame, and even then is only a length behind in 2:20¼. The poor animal has two brothers inside of the famous twenty list, while he must be relegated to the stud a confirmed cripple with a mark of 2:24 to his credit that will go down into turf history as the lowest record he could make, when everyone witnessed his gallant struggle against the "half-way runnin' and bobbin' trotter" knows that his mark should have been 2:19 at least. There should be some classification for such a horse, for he trotted faithfully and well, and was proving that his many months of preparation to get inside the twenty list were not thrown away.

There should be a law compelling the timers to show their time-pieces to the judges before the bell is rung, and if the watches are not perfect they should be authorized to procure good ones from those who would kindly loan them. How often have we noticed the greatest difference in time-pieces; but one out of three of them being considered reliable.

There are many excellent features in the new rules, however, and we congratulate the association on their adoption, for we believe that every fair-minded person in the land sees the advantages of abolishing the old way of trotting youngsters into the charmed circle, not by platoons, but by battalions every afternoon during the prevalence of the epidemic.

A Decided Hit.

The Blood Horse Association made a master move on the financial chess-board when it secured James B. Ferguson, of Lexington, Ky., to start the horses at the meeting now under way at Bay District track. The universal opinion expressed is that Mr. Ferguson is an unqualified success, and that the people of the Pacific Coast had never seen any starting until the advent of the Kentucky gentleman. In the first race of Tuesday last the flag was dropped to a straggling start, but all were under way, and the horses were not at the post over two minutes in all.

After the races were over Mr. Ferguson came up into the press stand and was introduced to the assembled newspaper men. He stated that he sent them off as he did in the opening event so that the boys would be alert thereafter and anxious to get off in a bunch. He declared that it was his policy to make friends with the newspaper folks, and to try and retain their friendship. Any man that antagonized the press was not many removes from an idiot.

The start in the heat race was good, but the audience was treated to a sight in the last event, where there was a field of eleven two-year-olds, that it never dreamed of seeing—a send-off with all in a compact bunch and under way at the first attempt. This was pronounced the finest bit of work ever performed anywhere, and so it was.

On the cars going home one could hear people all around commenting on the excellent work of the gentleman from Kentucky, and not a few declared their intention of coming out every day during the meeting simply because the association had at last got some one who knew how to start race horses. That the attendance was largely increased on account of the good work of Mr. Ferguson goes without saying, and all such good moves will receive the support of the public at all times. One of the bad features of former meetings here has been the tedious waits at the post and bad send-offs, and now, with that feature eliminated, the public is responding nobly.

Developing the Youngsters.

Lack of opportunities has kept many a stallion in the background, and this "lack" can be attributed, in the first place, to the lack of trotters he has in the 2:30 list. Let him have a number of good performers to his credit, and his road to public favor becomes quite easy. But how is the horse to get a number of fast trotters within the charmed circle unless his owner uses every means in his power to help him? The stallion may be royally bred and may be standing in a section of country where the farmers are progressive and have been educated to believe in the efficacy of good blood lines, and have therefore purchased good fillies and mated them with this well-bred horse. The owner of the horse believes that all that is necessary for him to do is to get these mares every season, but finds to his sorrow a few years after that he is not as progressive as he thought, for the owners of the mares became disgusted with him because of his disregard for the value of the produce. He should train his stallion for speed and show this much regard for those who patronized him. If the horse is disabled and cannot be trained he should endeavor to have some of his progeny trained.

Owners of broodmares are very quick to realize the benefits to be derived from breeding to a well-bred stallion whose owner is willing to spend some money to have his horse's progeny developed for speed. They feel that there is some chance for the value of their colts being enhanced, and are apt to pay a little more attention to the development of their own. Some stallion owners offer a sum of money to the breeder of the first colt that enters the list. This is a step in the right direction, and should be encouraged.

Owners of small stock farms (on which are well-bred stallions and mares) are in the business, not for love alone, but to make money, and, although there is no other calling which has so many charms as this, yet it is not all sunshine when they cannot get interest on their investments. These men should follow the example of some of our large stock-farm owners and endeavor to get every promising trotter in the list. The first and about the most essential requisite for this purpose is a good race track, and the next a careful trainer who will take an interest in the work and strive to learn what is absolutely necessary to bring the youngsters to the front. After a horse gets a few in the list the lack of opportunities that first barred his progress disappears, for applications for that horse's services will come from owners of royally-bred mares all over the State, and great will be his success in bringing wealth to his owner.

The stock farm that does not develop its colts and fillies will disappear from public gaze, no matter how well-bred the stock may be, if the owners are not alive to the demands of the times. The stock farm owner who has all the colts and fillies developed, and learns how to weed out the "scrubs," and studies the rules of breeding while casting all jealousies aside, will sooner or later be classed among the richest breeders in the land. The industry is in its infancy and everything should be done by the deep-thinking, liberal-minded gentlemen engaged in it to encourage its growth.

Gross Exaggeration Regarding Glanders.

Many times within the past few days have leading breeders, liverymen, veterinarians and others interested in horses called our attention to the grossly exaggerated article that appeared in a local daily recently regarding the prevalence of glanders in this city. The article in question was both untrue and utterly uncalled for, but at the same time might do incalculable injury to the horse-breeding interests of this great stock-raising center if not branded as incorrect at once. We have interviewed, since the publication of the foolish but sensational glanders article in the city newspaper, a number of prominent veterinarians, including Drs. William F. Egan, H. E. Carpenter, C. Masoero and Stimpson, also several owners and managers of great stock farms, viz., William Corbitt, of San Mateo Stock Farm; George A. Wiley, of Oakwood Park Stock Farm; Gilbert Tompkins, of Souther Farm, and the veteran horseman and writer, Joseph Cairn Simpson, and all have the same opinion, based upon research and what they have heard from reputable men. The opinion is that, instead of glanders being epidemic as the writer of the injurious and sensational article claimed, not one of these gentlemen know of a single case of glanders in this city. In fact, the truth is that this city is and has been singularly free from the dread disease, more so than any large city in America.

Souther Farm Sale.

Next Wednesday the second Souther Farm sale of trotting stock, consisting of broodmares, colts and fillies, takes place at the farm. As everything offered will be sold without limit or reserve, and as the collection embraces a large number of royally-bred individuals, horsemen cannot do better than to attend and secure bargains, for in a sale like this many good ones will be sold very reasonable. All who attended the last sale will surely endeavor to be present at this.

Raising Colts by Hand.

"Subscriber" asks how to raise a colt by hand. The writer lost a mare last year when her colt was only three weeks old, and found it necessary to raise the latter by hand, says the Breeders' Gazette. Fresh cow's milk was fed, at first diluted about one-fourth with water, and sweetened at the rate of one tablespoonful of sugar to the quart of milk. It was difficult get the little fellow started to drinking, or rather it was started to sucking, for the finger was used during the first month. In two or three days, however, he took the milk with a relish, and for the first couple of weeks was fed at 4:30, 7:30 and 10:00 A. M., 12:30, 3:00, 6:00 and 9:00 P. M., a pint or less being given at the start.

This amount was gradually increased, and the number of meals cut down in proportion, until at the end of a month only three meals a day were given. The little fellow soon began to eat oats and was given all he wanted trom the start with a little oil meal added. The milk was not diluted or sweetened after the first month. After it got used to its new diet, this colt grew right along, and is as good a colt as any of the others of the same age that suckled. I believe Stewart recommends a flaxseed ration in a case like this. The seed is boiled into a jelly before feeding. This would likely be beneficial, especially in keeping the bowels in healthy condition. My colt did nicely and seemed healthy all the time, the oil-meal fed having the same effect as the flaxseed. There is one thing that must be watched. If the colt is kept in a stall by itself most of the time, like a boy with nothing to do, it is likely to contract bad habits. Mine almost got into the disgusting habit of sucking wind before I noticed it. It was immediately turned with the other colts in the pasture, and having company to play with and something to eat always before it, stopped the wind-sucking before the habit became fixed. Keep a close watch on the bowels, and have colic medicine handy.

The Pierce Sale.

The attendance at the Pierce sale last Wednesday was very slim. The bidding was not spirited. Dan McCarty purchased twenty of the animals offered for $3,555. The old mare Lady Blanchard brought $55; quite a reduction from $22,000, the sum she brought just nineteen years ago at the Whipple sale. The pacer Brino Tricks brought $700 and Lee Shaner was the highest bidder for the fine Sidney colt Discovery, paying $510 for him. The total amount received at the sale was $8,217.50.

Facts From the Year Book.

In the Year Book for 1891 are to be found 5,908 trotters with records from 2:30 to 2:08¼, and 894 pacers with records from 2:25 to 2:06.

According to the 2:30 list of trotters under records, the New Year Book credits 506 performers, and fifty of the mare in the 2:15 list. However, there should be fifty-one, as they omitted Mary Marshall, 2:12¾, and they have Vic H. 2:13¾ instead of 2:13¼.

The 2:15 table of pacers under their records shows 68 performers, which is another proof that the pace is a faster gait than the trot.

Hambletonian 10 has been credited with forty-one 2:30 trotters for years, but as the wagon record of 2:25 is not now counted as equal to a 2:30 harness record, Nutwood, 2:33½ to wagon in 1863, has been taken from his list, leaving his total number of standard performers forty instead of forty-one.

Hambletonian 10 still leads as a sire of dams of standard performers. His daughters have produced seventy-three trotters and one pacer which makes a total of seventy-four.

Mambrino Patchen 58 is in second place as a sire of dams, his daughters have produced 56 trotters and 6 pacers, total 62.

Almont 33 comes third, his daughters have produced 43 trotters and 3 pacers, total 46.

American Star 14 is fourth, his daughters have produced 45, the daughters of George Wilkes have produced 42 and Blue Bull has sired the dams of 41 standard performers.

Taking pacers between 2:25 and 2:30 from their sires changes the order of many of the great producers. As they now stand according to the Year Book, Electioneer has 101 trotters to his credit (Whips' record that Wallace rejected is now credited). George Wilkes is second, having sired 75 standard performers (68 trotters and 7 pacers). Happy Medium 400 is third, credited with 69 (66 trotters and 3 pacers). Red Wilkes is in fifth position with 59 (49 trotters and 10 pacers). Blue Bull 75 is sixth down the list, with 58 (54 trotters and 4 pacers).

There are 19 different Hambletonians that have sired standard performers and 20 other sires that commence with Hambletonian, such as Hambletonian Bashaw, Hambletonian Chief, etc.

Nutwood is the heaviest loser by not crediting the pacer from 2:25 to 2:30, as nine of his performers are thereby lost. We credited Cedarwood to his new performers last year, but the Year Book does not; according to its index the only Cedarwood that started during the season was by Blackwood, and did not secure a record.

There are 831 great brood mares, notwithstanding many have been cut out of the list on account of the change in the pacer from 2:30 to a 2:25 basis.

Sons of Hambletonian 10 have sired more than twice as many standard performers than have the sons of any other horse. One hundred and twenty-six of his sons have sired 955 trotters with records of 2:30 or better, and forty-eight pacers in 2:25 or better. Total, 1,003.

George Wilkes is second to Hambletonian 10 as a sire of speed-producing stallions. Seventy-four of his sons have 405 trotters and eighty-two pacers with standard records. Total, 487.

Almont 33 is third on the list as a sire of sires. Sixty-four of his sons have sired 174 trotters and twenty-two pacers, making a total of 195 standard performers that he is the grandsire of through his sons.

Belmont 64 is fourth. Thirty-seven of his sons have sired 169 trotters and thirteen pacers that have secured standard records, making a total of 182.

Mambrino Patchen 58 has the same number of producing sons as Belmont 64, but they have only sired 76 trotters and seven pacers. Total, eighty-three.

Prospective Record-Breakers

April 1st was the date for nominations for the yearling and two-year-old colt stakes at the Ninth District Fair. The appended list of entries is a most remarkable showing, and the unanimous opinion last Friday was that this year two-year-olds would mean a horse race.

Salem's Spring Meeting.

The capital city of Oregon is keeping up with the procession in the matter of offering liberal purses for trotters, pacers and runners, as a perusal of the advertisement of the Oregon Breeding and Speed Association, in another column of this paper, shows. The conditions are as liberal as the purses, and our horsemen will do well to enter their horses at the Salem meeting, which claims the dates June 2, 3 and 4. Entries close May 15, 1892, and the programme is an attractive one and worthy the attention of all who do not intend to cross the Rockies this year. A chance is offered to our horsemen to take in all the California meetings and then proceed to Salem.

C. W. Welby, of this city, purchased the yearling Eclectic colt Ecce from Wilfred Page and brother last week. The description and pedigree of this colt was published in this journal two weeks ago. Mr. Welby is to be congratulated on his purchase, for fewer better-bred colts have been purchased in this State this year.

A Dead Game Plunger.

"'Pittsburg Phil,' who graduated from Riley's old pool-room in the alley, was quite a bettor in his day, and is now for that matter," remarked a well-known sporting man the other night, "but he is not 'in it' with Chris Smith, who owns the Kendall stables, and who is well known in Chicago, where he made several big winnings last summer," says the Chicago Mail.

"Smith, who is perhaps better known as 'Smithy, the Plunger,' now has a stable of horses worth $75,000 and a bank account of $50,000, all of which he has made from a $20 bill. That may sound like a big story, but it's true for all that. He is only thirty-two years old and was born in Painesville, O., but he has been rich and been 'broke' more than a score of times already, and, strange to say, though it was always on the race track that he made his money, yet it was always a race track that 'broke' him again. He plays neither tips nor information, but relies wholly on his own judgment, and he knows as much about horses as any man in the country. He never had a great deal of money till 1885. He dropped into a pool-room in New York one day with $32 and when he quit betting at the end of two weeks he had $12,000. He was then induced to back a dramatic company, which was known as Smith & Alden's Dramatic Company, producing the "Two Orphans,' 'Sea of Ice' and 'Under the Gaslight.'

"When the season closed he was 'broke' but he had had bushels of fun. Back to the runners he went, and after a season of winning and losing he finally struck Detroit in the winter of '90 and '91, where he soon lost every dollar he had in Barnes' pool-room. Making that place his headquarters, he soon induced a young fellow to play his selections, and the first day he picked eight winners. After that they were partners, until the young fellow got drunk one day and played his own tips, refusing to take Smith's advice. As a result he lost, and all that Smith had coming to him was $20. Taking this he began betting and soon ran it up to $40,000, $25,000 of which he won in Donovan's St. Louis pool-room. He then visited Cincinnati and won about $10,000 in the Covington room. Arriving at Guttenburg in March, 1891, he was induced to buy Van Buren, and the first time the horse ran he won $5,000.

"Visiting Washington hs 'went broke' playing Lafe Black's horses, Coldstream and Boodler, and Van Buren, Asben and Hypatica, which he had purchased. He didn't have a cent then, but he had three horses. Borrowing $300, he shipped his horses on here to Washington Park, and here he again 'went broke' backing them. Borrowing $200 from Bob Race here, he played his horses again, and this time luck came his way. After Van Buren had won three races and Hypatica one he paid his debts and had $20,000 left. He then moved his horses over to Garfield Park, where he again 'went broke' backing them. With $30 left he played a combination and won $180, and striking another lucky streak, he won $19,000 in five days. Four days afterwards he was 'broke again.' A friend 'staked' him to $300, and in three weeks he was the possessor of $40,000. He then bought the Winters horses, Yo Tambien, Callie Ferguson, Noretta and Dollie McCone.

"Taking a trip to Cincinnati, he won $30,000 more off Enright and others. Reaching Guttenburg last December he won $27,000 in three weeks' time. Then he quit betting for a time, being $80,000 ahead of the game. Resuming business recently, he has lost in the last few weeks about $55,000 and now probably will take a rest until the regular season begins. He won $7,500 of Sid McHie's money at Garfield last fall with $2,500, backing his own filly Patti Rosa in a race at Nashville. He looks more like a bank clerk than a sport, being small in stature and a neat dresser, but when he has his betting clothes on he is a terror, and for him to wager $10,000 a day is a common occurrence. He loses or wins without changing a muscle, and is a living example of a 'dead game sport,' being very much of a gentleman under under any and all circumstances."

Fresno to the Front!

A splendid programme has been arranged for the fair to be held at Fresno this year, and owners of horses of all ages will have a chance to win several good stakes at that time. There is the Expositor Stakes, for trotting yearlings: the Straube Stakes, for two-year-old trotters (Athadon barred), the Pollasky Stakes, for three-year olds, the Athadon Stakes, open to all two-year-old trotters, the Fresno Progressive Stakes, for three-year-old trotters, and the Fresno Running Stakes, for two-year-old thoroughbreds. Read the Fresno Fair Grounds Association advertisement in this paper and send in your entries before May 15, 1892. Fresno Fair follows Stookton this season.

A Little Reminder.

The second Souther Farm sale will begin precisely at noon on Wednesday, April 20th. When horses are sold in the Souther Farm way—unlimited and dead square auction—there are almost always great bargains to be had in the first horses sold. This is almost sure to happen at this sale, as the bidding will not drag; horses will be knocked down promptly to the highest bidder. Lunch at 11, and don't stay away unless you wish to lose opportunities such as do not often come. Feed is going to be abundant and cheap, and good horses are bound to increase in value.

Foals Reported.

Property of W. W. Collins, San Jose:
March 24th, the gray mare Alice B., by Treewood (by Nutwood), dam Gray Nell, by General Taylor, dropped a brown filly by Boodle.

FIXTURES FOR THE FUTURE.

April 16th—Olympic Club outdoor handicap meeting at the club grounds.

April 21st—Olympic Club "Ladies Night" exhibition in the gymnasium.

April 17th—Cricket match, Alameda vs. Oakland, at the Alameda grounds.

April 17th—Cricket match, Pacific vs. California, at the Klinknerville grounds.

SUMMARY.

This afternoon, commencing at 2:30 o'clock, the Olympic Club will hold its first field day of the year, and, judging from the large entry list the sport will be highly exciting. The wheelmen are getting into fine trim for their coming tournaments and on Decoration Day some fast time will probably be made at the Schutzen Park Grounds, Alameda. Two games of cricket will be played across the bay to-morrow.

THE ATHLETES, WHEELMEN, OARSMEN, CRICKETERS, ETC.

A general meeting of the Acme Athletic Club of Oakland was held last Thursday evening, when it was decided to raise the initiation fee to $10, the increase to take effect on July 1st next. The drawing for the Columbia pneumatic wheel, presented to the members by Osborne & Alexander, took place, and the winner proved to be William Broderick. A large number of the Acme Wheelmen took a run last Sunday to Haywards to witness the road race of the Alameda Wheelmen. The decision of the Racing Board of L. A. W. was recently made known, and Grant Bell of the Acme Club was awarded the first medal. The protest was based on the grounds that Bell was not a member of the L. A. W. Olsen, of the San Jose Wheelmen, was second in the race, which took place last Thanksgiving Day, and the kick was made by the members of his club.

A rather exciting, as well as interesting, game was played at the Alameda Cricket grounds last Sunday afternoon. The day was all that could be desired and the attendance was unusually large and enthusiastic. The match was between two teams of men picked from clubs representing the Alameda and Klinknerville grounds, and although the scores were not very even at the finish, still the playing by all hands was very good and worthy of the applause bestowed by the spectators. The Klinknerville combination won with a score of 130 to 54 made by their opponents. Johnson, of the Alameda team, earned 22, while Reynolds, Webster and Robertson, of the Klinknerville crowd were credited respectively with 40, 25 and 22.

To-morrow two games will be played as follows: at the Klinknerville grounds between the Pacifics and the Californias; at the Alameda grounds: the Alamedas vs. the Oaklands. As both games will be credited on the championship score it is expected that the tally will be more even than it was last Sunday.

The Olympic Club will give another "Ladies' Night" entertainment on Thursday evening, April 26th, on which occasion the programme will include both musical and athletic exercises. The musical portion will be under the direction of H. J. Stewart, the famous composer of Bluff King Hal.

The Gaelic Football and Hurling Club held a meeting on Monday evening last when an executive committee of five was appointed, with the captains of the two departments of the club as ex-officio members. The committee consists of ex Assessor J. C. Nealon, David Russell, P. J. Palmer, Frank Curran, M. McCarthy, with J. P. Moriarty and Thomas Hughes, captains of the football teams, and J. W. Flynn and Jeremiah Walsh, captains of the hurling teams. White and green were adopted as the colors of the club. A long discussion followed as to what uniform should be adopted. The matter was finally left to the executive committee.

The Bay City Wheelmen have decided not to hold their proposed tournament on Decoration Day. Two causes are put forward as an excuse for this change in their plans. The first is that it will require all the time of the members to prepare for the great meet at Sacramento on the Fourth of July; and the second is that the horse races at the Bay District track will prevent them from putting their new track at the Bay District into proper shape before May 30th. The Bay City Wheelmen have turned over the championship events to the Alameda Bicycle and Athletic Club, and this organization will hold a monster meeting at their new grounds in Schutzen Park, Alameda, on Decoration Day. The programme of races will be long and varied and as several cross-country events will be included in the list it is expected that the entries from the other clubs will be very numerous. The Bay City Wheelmen are thinking about moving from their present quarters on Van Ness Avenue to more spacious ones on the same Boulevard.

A great tug-of-war tournament will begin in the Mechanics Pavillion on April 23rd. Several teams representing all nations will compete and the sum of $21,000 will be given as prizes. D. R. McNeill will be manager of the affair.

On Sunday, May 1st, a four-mile road race under the auspices of the P. A. A. A. C. will take place at San Leandro. The race will be started at 2 P. M. Five handsome medals, donated by the champion runner, Peter D. Skilman, will be awarded the five men finishing first. There will be no entrance fee and the race will be a handicap one. Bob McArthur and Peter Skilman will start and it is thought that more than seventy other club men will also toe the mark. The course will be a half mile out from the Temple and will be over a very fine stretch of road. The friends of Harry Cassidy will eagerly watch his performance and if the athlete should succeed in getting home first the town of San Leandro will be illuminated at night. The entries will close with Bob McArthur at the Olympic Club on April 24th at 8 P. M.

Answers to Correspondents.

Answers for this department must be accompanied by the name and address of the sender, not necessarily for publication, as proof of good faith. Write the question distinctly, and on one side of the paper only. Positively no questions will be answered by mail or telegraph.

W. W. C., San Jose.—Is a filly by Boodle, dam Alice B., by Treewood, second dam Gray Nell, by General Taylor standard and eligible to registration. Answer—Treewood can be registered under Rule 1 of the latest revised rules, and when that is done your filly will be eligible to registration.

W. H. J., Sacramento.—Will you oblige me by giving me, through your valuable paper, the pedigree of the blue mare Dot, that was bred to James Madison last June and is owned by E. F. Pfund, of Sacramento? Answer—Write to William Thornton, Rancho Resaca, Contra Costa county, Cal. He probably has the books containing the information you desire.

L. M. L., Martinez, Cal.—Give the registered number of General Taylor, son of the Morse horse; Guy Miller, the sire of Whipple's Hambletonian 729, Morse Horse, son of Easton's Dave Hill, Easton's Dave Hill, son of Dave Hill, old Dave of Vermont. Answer—General Taylor and Guy Miller, not being standard by breeding and not having produced the required number of 2:30 trotters, have no numbers in the Register. Morse Horse's number is 6, and he was by European (McNiit horse), dam Beck, by Hambletonian 2. Easton's Dave Hill has no number in the Register.

C. R. F., Monterey, Cal.—A friend of mine wants to get some information about two stallions that stood for service in Sonoma county, and I think you might put me in communication with some one who could give me the information sought. 1. A stallion named Bayswater, said to be a thoroughbred. This animal stood for service in Sonoma County about twelve or thirteen years ago. 2. A stallion known as Governor Booth or General Booth, or at least he was spoken as a Booth of some kind. He was supposed to be trotting bred, and must have stood in that county about eighteen or twenty years since. My friend owns a mare that was sired, or said to have been, by Bayswater and out of a Booth mare, and as she has produced some very fine, speedy foals, he is anxious to learn something about her breeding. Answer—1. Bayswater was a thoroughbred, foaled in 1863, by Lexington, dam Bay Leaf, by imp. Yorkshire. He was a superior racehorse, and previous to his coming to Sonoma county won the New Jersey St. Leger and many other races. His family was one of the most noted in the country, Bayswater being full brother to Bay Flower, Baywood, Bayonet, Bingaman and Preakness, all famous in their day. The latter still has the record at two and a quarter miles, and died in England. 2. We find a Governor Booth, pacer, that was beaten as Chico, Cal., in 1871, by Ben Butler. His pedigree is not given, but you might get the desired information by writing to the Secretary of Fair Association, Chico.

THREE YEARS OLD.

Just broken; shows speed and is a fine individual.

Address P. O. BOX 387, Oakland.

FOR SALE.

On account of departure of owner, W. F., one of the best young stallions ever bred in this State, three years old, standard-bred, 15.2 hands high, as fine a youngster as a man could wish to see can show speed enough to go in first-class company is offered for sale. He is by CARTOON 2308, son of Wilsabuckon, he by William Welch 341, he by Rysdyk's Hambletonian. Cartoon's first dam was the Hamilton mare, by Norfolk; second dam by John Nelson 187; third dam McCormick mare the dam of May Howard, 2:24. W. F.'s first dam, Nerea, has a record of 2:23¾, and was sired by John Nelson, a son of Traster, imported thoroughbred. Among his relatives is Sallie Taylor, by General Taylor, son of the Morse horse. I will only mention a few of his relations to show that he is of a trotting family that breeds on:

LORD BYRON, 2:18	PEANUTS
NEREA, 2:23 1-2	FRED
AURORA, 2:27	SISTER
GOV. STANFORD	NETTIE LAMBERT
NEMO	BIDLER

In addition to the above named, his sire, the handsome mahogany bay horse

WHEN YOUR BLACK SMITH TELLS YOU

That he doesn't need a SOUTHER FARM RASP, that he can level a horse's hoof for the shoe with the common rasp, he is gloriously mistaken. However, don't point out the error of his ways too suddenly, but merely tell him to go ahead with his old rasp.

When he pronounces the foot level, use the file side of the SOUTHER FARM RASP as shown in adjoining cut, and all hands will be astonished to see how uneven a bearing surface is made by the common rasp, even when handled by a first-class workman. When used by any sensible man, the SOUTHER FARM RASP does perfect work, and leaves the bearing surface absolutely level; and it is the only tool on earth that will give a perfect bearing of both heels and the entire wearing surface.

George Washington
11,623.

2-year-old Record, 2:44;
3-year-old Record, 2:30;
4-year-old Record, 2:20.

GEORGE WASHINGTON is a handsome bay horse, hind feet white, foaled 1886, bred by Thomas Smith of Vallejo, stands 16 hands high, and weighs 1200 pounds.

PEDIGREE:

GEORGE WASHINGTON, by Mambrino Chief Jr. 11,622, record 2:34. George Washington's dam was Fanny Rose (full sister to Prince Allen, 2:27) by Ethan Allen Jr. 2903 (sire of the dams of George Washington 2:20 and Bessie S., 2:29¼, also of Lynwood, sire of Lynette etc, three-year-old record 2:25½; also sire of Prince Allen 2:27) second dam, Jenny Lind, thoroughbred, dam of Prince Allen 2:27.

GEORGE WASHINGTON has proven himself a great race horse, and would have been given a much lower mark last season had it not been for an accident. As an individual, he is all that can be asked, being perfect in form, intelligent and of kind disposition, and represents the highest type of a trotting sire. As he will be put in training for the campaign of 1892, he will be allowed to serve only a limited number of approved mares.

TERMS: $100 FOR THE SEASON.

Mambrino Chief Jr.
11,622.

Record 2:34. Sire of George Washington, record 2:20 at four years Blood bay horse, hind feet white, 15.3 hands high, weighs 1100 pounds. By McDonald Chief 3583, Mambrino Chief's first dam Venus by Mambrino Patchen 58, second dam by Wardloes' Shakespeare, third dam by Love Gold, fourth dam by Silver Heels.

WILL MAKE THE SEASON OF 1892 AT $50.

McDONALD CHIEF, 3,583.

Seal brown horse, 16 hands high, and weighs 1175 pounds, foaled June 24th, 1868, got by Clark Chief 89, first dam by Berthune, son of Sidi Hamet grandam by McDonald's Copperbottom. Bred by Thos. Van Meter, Clarke Co. Ky., passed through the hands of Isaac Smith of Lexington, Ky., to Rufus Ingalls of Chicago, Ill., to Thomas Smith of Vallejo, Cal. Trial to wagon, 2:32, has wonderful bone and muscle and very pure-gaited. He sired Catherine, 2:28½, Mambrino Chief Jr., 2:34, trial 2:26, sire of George Washington, 2:20, Maud, 2:29¼, Highland Chief, 2:30, Daisy S., 2:42 at three years old, trial one-half mile 1:12, Peat Treat 2:23 and a number of others with the ability to beat 2:30 with proper handling.

WILL MAKE THE SEASON OF 1892 AT $40.

Mares not proving in foal may be returned next season Free of Charge. Season commences February 1st. Good pasturage at $3.00 per month, and excellent care taken of Mares in any manner that owners may desire, but no responsibility for accidents or escapes. Mares received by cars or boat on due notification. All bills payable at time of service, but must be paid by July 1st, 1892.

Second dam Ruth Ann (dam of Luella, the dam of Myrtle, 3-year-old record 2:19½, by Anteeo; Don Lot, 2-year-old record 2:38, by Anteeo), by Bell Alta, he by Williamson's Belmont. Daisy and Luella are full sisters by Nutwood 600, out of Ruth Ann. Daisy, dam of Anteenut, also dam of Eva G., 4-year-old trial 2:35, and Ella H., 3-year-old trial 2:30.

Third dam by Boston Boy, son of David Hill's Black Hawk, out of Boston Girl.

ANTEENUT stands 16 hands high; blood bay; best disposition; square trotter; quite speedy; had no track work; never worked for speed. Considering the breeding of Anteenut on sire and dam's sides he should certainly reproduce speed, being bred in the height of fashion. Will make the season of 1892 at Santa Rosa.

Wilkes-Electioneer Stallion.

COMBINED BLOOD

— Of the Greatest Son of

GEO. WILKES

— And the Greatest Son of

ELECTIONEER,

ANTEEO WILKES.

Black horse, foaled May, 1889; sired by GUY WILKES, race-record fourth heat, 2:15¼.

First dam Amy Fay, by ANTEEO, race record 2:16¼, sire of Myrtle, three-year-old record 2:19½, Alfred G., four-year-old record 2:19¾, James Madison, record 2:17¾; second dam by Alexander, record 2:31¼, son of George M. Patchen Jr., record 2:27, and grandsire of Yolo Maid 2:12; third dam by Naubuc, son of Toronto Chief, record 2:24½ and Gypsy Queen, ten-mile record 28:30, and full brother to the famous trotter, Thomas Jefferson, record 2:23; fourth dam Sacramento Belle, ten-mile record 31.07, one-mile record 2:38.

Anteeo Wilkes as an individual is worthy of his great blood lines; he is 15.3 hands high and of perfect form. Although handled but little and never driven once by a professional driver he has trotted a mile in 2:52 quarters in forty seconds without shoes, as a two-year-old, with the marked purity of gait, for which the Guy Wilkes trotters are noted. At close of season will be trained for a great record.

Anteeo Wilkes will make the season of 1892, at the stables of his owner, cor. 45th and Watts street, near Oakland race track; look for sign board on Park Ave., leading from San Pablo Avenue to race track.

DESCRIPTION.

BAY ROSE is a dark bay or brown, with black points, 16½ hands high, and weighs 1,150 pounds. He is remarkably intelligent, of good dispotition, and a pure-gaited trotter. He was foaled in 1881. His colts are large, stylish, rangy animals, and inherit his qualities of speed and endurance. He is the only horse that won a heat from Palo Alto in 1889.

TERMS, $200 FOR THE SEASON.

Return privileges 1893, provided neither the mare nor stallion change ownership. Good pasturage $3 per month. First-class care taken of mares in any manner that owners may desire, but no responsibility assumed for escapes or accidents.

By THORNDALE, 2:22¼, Sire of
EDWIN THORNE, 2:16¼, DAISYDALE, 2:19¾, and five others in 2:30 list, by ALEXANDER'S ABDALLAH, sire of GOLDSMITH MAID, 2:14, ALMONT, etc., out of DOLLY, dam of DIRECTOR, 2:17, ONWARD, 2:25¼, THORNDALE, 2:24¼, and CZARINA, 2:21, by MAMBRINO CHIEF.

By RYSDYK'S HAMBLETONIAN, Sire of
ELECTIONEER, GEORGE WILKES, and forty-one trotters in the 2:30 list.

WILKESDALE is a seal brown, sixteen hands high; bred at Highlawn Farm, Mass. He very closely resembles his sire, Alcantara, four year old record 2:23 (trial 2:17), and a study of his pedigree will convince anyone that if there be anything in inheritance, we may expect extreme speed from his produce. His sire, Alcantara, at fifteen years old has forty-seven in the 2:30 list, and has five producing sons, two of whom have sired two-year-olds that entered the 2:30 list this year. His full brother, Alcyone, died when only ten years old, yet he is the sire of twenty-five in the 2:30 list, among them being McKinney 2:12½, fastest record for a four-year-old stallion. Another half-brother, out of Alma Mater, is the sire of Strong Boy 2:12, fastest four-year-old record for a pacing stallion. Wilkesdale's dam is herself a trotter, record 2:30, and is in the list of great broodmares, being the dam of Miss Alice 2:17¼ (who was shown trials the past season in 2:14); Thornton, 2:26¼, and Wilkesdale 2:29, all sired by Alcantara. Thorndale 2:22¼, the sire of his dam, is also the sire of Sue, the dam of Egthorne 2:12½, one of the sensational trotting stallions of the past season.

ALMA MATER, his grandam on his sire's side and Dolly, (the dam of Director 2:17, etc.) on his dam's side, are among the few of the great producing dams, Wilkesdale was taken out of the paddock the 1st of October last, soft and in no condition for trotting, yet in less than two months he gained a record of 2:29 in third heat, trotting the second heat in 2:29½. After his stud season closes he will again be placed in training, and under favorable circumstances will no doubt trot under 2:20.

TERMS—He will make the season of 1892 at Wolf's stable in Stockton, Cal., at $75, for the season, from February 1st to July 1st, with usual return privileges for mares that fail to get in foal this season.

The Best Son of Nutwood in California!

Dawn 6407

(Sire of Silky 2:26, Anna Belle 2:27½, Oaknut 2:24¼, Dot 2:29½.)

Will Make the Season of 1892 at the

Agnew Stock Farm,

HILLSDALE, SANTA CLARA COUNTY.

SERVICE FEE $150. LIMITED TO 20 MARES.

DAWN has a record of 2:18¾, and three heats of a race in 2:20 or better. His sire, Nutwood has record of 2:18½, in a third heat, and is now regarded as the greatest of living sires, having put seventy-seven into the list altogether, of which twenty-six entered the list in 1892. At his present fee Dawn really is the CHEAPEST OF AMERICAN STALLIONS, and, as a recent writer has said, "his form baffles description." Being by the great Nutwood 600, now standing at $1,000, out of Countess (dam of Strathway, 2:20, Placida and Morna, driven as a double team a trial mile in 2:26), Dawn shows that his family is a trotting one on each side of the house. Countess was by Whipple's Hambletonian, sire of Graves, 2:19, and fourteen others in the 2:20 list. The chestnut stallion

BOSWELL, JR.

Will stand at the same place at the low price of $50 the season.

BOSWELL JR., sired by Boswell (a son of Almont 33), dam Nellie B., by Kirtley's Patchen; grandam Sophie (grandam of Nancy Hanks, 2:09), by Alexander's Edwin Forrest; great grandam by Parker's Brown Pilot. This stallion Boswell was purchased by King Kalakaua from Gen. W. T. Withers, Fairlawn Stock Farm, Lexington, Kentucky. Boswell Jr.'s dam, Maude, 2:20, by Bertrand 3262, sire of Frank Fisk, 2:29; second dam by Hamilton Chief, son of Royal George 9; third dam the Dooley Mare, MAUDE started in twenty-one races and won eighteen first moneys, and is well known to all horsemen. BOSWELL JR. showed miles in 2:26 and quarters in 35 seconds on two weeks' work.

Mares stabled or pastured (as owners may desire) on reasonable terms. All bills payable before the animal is removed. No liability for accidents. Best fences in the country. Address,

HARRY J. AGNEW, Hillsdale, Santa Clara County.

The Standard Stallion

WILKES PASHA 2618

Will make the Season of 1891 at the Stables of the undersigned, at the Trancas Bridge, two miles north of Napa, on the Soda Springs Road.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

WILKES PASHA 2618 is a dark bay with white hind feet; 16½ hands high; bred by R. P. Pepper, of South Elkhorn Farm, Frankfort, Kentucky; sired by Onward 1411, record 2:25¼, trial 2:17; sire of 48 in the list. He is proving one of the greatest sires in America and his sons are proving to be sires of extreme and early speed also. Onward is by George Wilkes, 2:22, sire of seventy-five horses in the 2:30 list, ten with records below 2:20; first dam Fisher (dam of Clara Wilkes, 2:18¼, trial 2:25), by American Clay 34, sire of Maggie Briggs, 2:27, Ella Clay, 2:27½, and the dams of Executor, 2:24½, Ranchero, 2:21½, Judge Hawes, 2:24, Ambassador, 2:22¼, Sir Walter, 2:18¼, and nine others in 2:30; second dam by Wilson's Snow Storm, sire of Jim Irving, 2:23; third dam by Paddie Burns, thoroughbred.

WILKES PASHA is the only son of Onward in this part of California. He combines the much-prized Clay cross, his dam being a producing daughter of American Clay 34, who traces to the very best of thoroughbred foundations. As an individual, Wilkes Pasha is as handsome a horse as one could wish to see. He has been bred to ordinary mares. Every one of his progeny shows perfect trotting action and fine size; in color they are all deep bays or browns, and in disposition they cannot be excelled.

TERMS—$30 for the season. Pasturage $4 per month. Every attention and care will be given to mares, but no liabilities assumed for accidents or escapes.

Postoffice address, CHARLES SCOTT, Napa City.

ALCONA JR. 2,755.

Record 2:24, last half in 1:10½ and last quarter in 34½ seconds.

PEDIGREE.—Alcona Jr., 2:24, was sired by Alcona 730, out of Madonna, by Cassius M. Clay 22; second dam by Joe Downing, by Alexander's Edwin Forrest. Alcona 730 (sire of Alcona Jr., 2:24; Flora Belle, 2:24; Clay Duke, 2:29, etc.) is by Almont 33, out of Queen Mary, by Mambrino Chief 11, etc.

DESCRIPTION.—Alcona Jr. is a handsome dark mahogany bay stallion, 16.1 hands high and weighs 1,250 pounds. He represents the highest type of the large trotting horse. His symmetrical conformation from the fine-finished head to the fetlocks, his stylish way of moving, perfect trotting action, magnificent limbs and great muscular development commend him at once to all lovers of the trotting horse. He was not given any training until late in the year, and on a heavy track in a race at Santa Rosa he earned his record of 2:24.

TERMS—$75 for the season, ending July 1st, as this horse will be put in training.

The best of care taken of mares, but no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. Pasturage, $2.50 per month.

MARKS L.

Will make the Season of 1892, ending July 1st,

AT THE BAY DISTRICT TRACK.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

MARKS L. was foaled 1888; he is a handsome bay in color; stands 16.2 hands; weighs 1,150. He is a remarkably well-muscled, heavy-boned, clean-limbed horse, and a more perfect-formed or a more promising one is not standing for public service. In action he is a perfect line trotter, and although never having been handled for speed, there is little doubt but that he will trot close to 2:20 this fall.

MARKS L. was sired by Antevolo, 2:19½, out of Maggie L., by Grand Duke Alexis; second dam Vashti, by Chieftain 721; third dam by Nena Sahib (thoroughbred). Antevolo, by Electioneer 125. LANCELOT.

The Only Son of ELECTIONEER Standing for Public Service in San Francisco.

DESCRIPTION—LANCELOT is a seal-brown stallion, 15.1 hands high, foaled April 15, 1881. Bred by C. C Bemis, San Francisco. He has a beautiful head and neck, fine loins, well shaped body, deep through the heart, sloping shoulders, fine arms, large stifles and the very best of feet and legs In action he is pure-gaited. As a three-year-old he trotted quarters in 32 seconds, but was injured and placed in the stud. His colts are all blood-like, large and fast trotters. Several of them are eligible and will enter the 2:30 list this Fall. Lancelot is one of the surest of foal-getters.

PEDIGREE—LANCELOT was sired by the immortal Electioneer (sire of 100 in the list), dam Lizzie Harris by Comus, second dam by Arnold Harris. Comus, the sire of Lizzie Harris, was a full brother to Iowa Chief 528 (sire of Corisande 2:24½, and others). His sire was Bashaw 50, sire of 17 in the 2:30 list, he by Vernol's Black Hawk, dam Belle by Webber's Tom Thumb; second dam Chas. Kent mare, the dam of Hambletonian 10. Vernol's Black Hawk by Long Island Black Hawk, dam by Webber's Kentucky Whip, son of Blackburn's Whip. Long Island Black Hawk, by Andrew Jackson, dam Sallie Miller by Tippo Saib; Andrew Jackson by Young Bashaw, son of Grand Bashaw. Arnold Harris by Whalebone, dam Sportsmistress; she was out of Cub by Medoc; second dam Ann Merry by Sumpter; third dam Grecian Princess by Blackburn's Whip, and so on to the 15th dam

SALADIN.

The Only Son of NUTWOOD Standing for Public Service in San Francisco.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE—Chestnut stallion, 16.1 hands high, foaled April 9th, 1880. By Nutwood 600, the greatest living sire, bred by C. C. Bemis, San Francisco, First dam, Lady Utley Jr. by Speculation, son of Rydsyk's Hambletonian; second dam Lady Utley, grandam of Western Girl, record 2:27½. Saladin has now a number of yearling and two-year-old colts, all showing great uniformity in size, style and color. All of them are fast trotters, and several will trot in 2:30 this year. Nutwood 600, 2:18¾, by Belmont 64, dam Miss Russell (dam of Maud S., 2:08¾), by Pilot Jr.; second dam Sally Russell, by Boston. Nutwood is the sire of 77 in the 2:30 list. Belmont is the sire of 32 trotters in the 2:30 list and of 29 sires of 120 trotters. Lady Utley Jr. is by Speculation, dam Lady Utley, 2:38½, grandam of Western Girl, 2:27½. Speculation (sire of Crown Point 2:24, Gracie S., 2:22, Oakland Maid, 2:22, and the dams of Alfred G., 2:19¾, and Waterford, 2:27), by Hambletonian 10, dam Martha Washington (dam of Hambletonian 725), by Burr's Washington; he by Burr's Napoleon, by Young Mambrino, dam Willis mare, by Mambrino. TERMS, $50 FOR THE SEASON, for service of each of these stallions. TERMS AND DESCRIPTION.

SILVER BOW is a handsome bay, no white; stands 15.3; weighs 1,150 pounds; was foaled June 26, 1887. A glance at his pedigree will show that he is bred in the purple and inbred to Hambletonian 10. He will make the season of 1892 at our farm, one and a half miles from Milpitas, on the Oakland road. Season from February 1st to June 1st, at which time all bills are due and payable in United States gold coin. Limited to fifteen outside mares.

SERVICE FEE, $150 for the season. Last season we did not give him a fair show; he served thirty-nine mares and did service up to June, and was compelled to start in races in July against the best horses in Montana, being very short of fast work. At Butte, Montana, he won the $2,500 purse, Free-For-All, defeating Faust, 2:18½, Steve Whipple, 2:23, Ida D., 2:25, and Frank M., 2:18, Faust winning the first heat in 2:20, Silver Bow the second in 2:22¼, Frank M. the third in 2:22, and Silver Bow the fourth and fifth in 2:24½ and 2:24¼. He won nine races in all last season, and had it not been that he was troubled badly with a tender mouth, he would not have lost a single race.

With his speed he will make a wonderful record the first time he starts on a good track and in perfect condition. His oldest colts are yearlings, and are very promising animals. We have one of his colts foaled May 23, 1891, which is a wonder, showing a burst of speed and perfect trotting action surpassing anything I have ever seen except in a carefully trained colt. I have also three others by SILVER BOW which are marvels of beauty and speed. We have reserved one hundred and fifty acres for pasturage for mares, and give the best of feed at $6 per month and the most careful attention, but no responsibility for accidents or escapes. DESCRIPTION AND TERMS.

Not only is Memo full brother to Frou-Frou, the champion yearling trotter in the world, but he is also one of the very best-bred young stallions in service, having three crosses of Rysdyk's Hambletonian, one of Harry Clay, sire of Green Mountain Maid (dam of Electioneer, etc.), and Long Island Black Hawk. Through Flaxtail he traces to Canadian Pilot (sire of Pilot Jr. 12), through Bull Pup, sire of Rowdy Boy, 2:13¾, and two others. Sidney, Memo's sire, is universally known and recognized as the best young sire in the world, as a producer of extreme speed at an early age. The average speed of his progeny is lower than that of any of the get of the twelve leading stallions of America.

Memo trotted in public in his two-year-old form, obtaining a record of 2:49, though he was close to Grandee in a race on the Bay District Track, the second heat of which was made in 2:31½, the first in 2:32. He exhibited phenomenal speed when three years old, for on the Oakland track he was timed a mile in 2:20¼, and frequently trotted quarters in from 32½ to 34 seconds.

He is sixteen hands high, and of powerful build throughout. His color is a glossy black, with both forefeet white. His disposition is all that could be desired, and his action superb. He is a sure foal getter, only one mare being reported not in foal during his last season.

Terms—$100, with usual return privileges, for a limited number of mares. Season to close JUNE 15th, when he will be prepared for track purposes.

Good pasturage at reasonable rates. No responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, address

By BEVERLY WILKES, Brother of
PROSPECT MAID, 2:23½, WALSINGHAM, 2166 (sire of LATITUDE, 2;19¾ at 4 years).
GEORGIA WILKES, sire of VALENTINE, 2:18½, BASBLEN WILKES, 2:24½, BILLY WILKES, 2:29½, BESSIE WILKES, 2:31½.

Dam EMILY, Dam of
FORTUNA, 2:22, BILLY THORNHILL, 2:24½
COL. YOUNG, 2:30.

Second dam SUE STOUT,

Third dam LEAR MARE, Dam of
JIM IRVING, 2:23, and YOUNG JIM, sire of BUTTERFLY, 2:19¾, GARNETT, 2:19, and twelve other performers.

By GEORGE WILKES, Sire of
GUY WILKES, 2:15¼, HARRY WILKES, 2:13½, and seventy-four others in the 2:30 list, and seventy-five sires of 249 trotters.

By GEORGE WILKES, 2:22, Sire of
Seventy-five producing sons and forty-six producing daughters.

By ASHLAND 47, Son of
MAMBRINO CHIEF 11 and sire of HIGHLAND WIN 1226, and others in list and the dams of EDWIN THORNE, 2:16¼, and others.

By LEAR'S SIR WILLIAM, Son of
HOWARD'S SIR CHARLES.

BEVERLY WILKES (who died when but three years of age) was out of Neilson, by Mambrino Pilot 2:27½ (sire of Hannis, 2:17¾, and others), out of Juliett, by Pilot Jr. 12; second dam by Webster, son of Medoc; third dam by Blackburn's Whip. Ashland was out of Utilla, by imp. Margrave; second dam Too Soon, by Sir Leslie, etc.

The above extended pedigree needs no further comment. That it is bristling with the names of some of the greatest trotters, as well as most prepotent sires, none will deny, but a description of the representative that has such a royal lineage is much more difficult to give. In color he is a deep mahogany bay, no white markings; he stands 15.2½ hands, and weighs 1,080 pounds. He represents the highest type of a trotting horse. He has a faultless head and neck, well-sloped shoulders, magnificent back and loins, remarkably well-built across the coupling, well-rounded barrel, muscular arms and thighs, well-shaped hocks and good joints, fetlocks strong and elastic, the best of feet, and he stands with them well placed under him. He is a perfect line trotter, and can trot in 2:40 without boots of any kind. His first colt showed trials last fall in 2:20 in his 3-year-old form, and all of his 2-year-olds that have been handled any show lots of speed and a nice way of going. He is a sure foal-getter, and all of his progeny are bays or browns, without white, and they inherit his excellent disposition and intelligence to a remarkable degree.

He will make the season of 1892, commencing February 1st, at Milpitas, Santa Clara Co., Cal.

TERMS, $75 WITH USUAL RETURN PRIVILEGE.

I have a good pasture to turn mares in at $5 each per month. The best of care taken of mares, but no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes.

ALMONT MEDIUM 2133.

HAPPY MEDIUM, MAMBRINO PATCHEN, ALMONT AND EDWIN FORREST BLOOD!

ALMONT MEDIUM IS BY HAPPY MEDIUM, SIRE OF NANCY HANKS, 2:09; MAXEY COBB 2:13 1-4, AND SEVENTY-ONE OTHERS IN 2:30 LIST.

First Dam, LADY CHILES by ALMONT 33. (Sire of Fanny Witherspoon, 2:16¼, Piedmont, 2:17½, Aldine, 2:19½, and 35 others in 2:30 or better).

Second Dam, LADY ROTHSCHILD by MAMBRINO PATCHEN 58. (Dam of King Philip, 2:26¼, he sire of Lexington, 2:24½). (Sire of London, 2:20, and 17 others, and 17 dams of 64 2:30 performers, and 19 sires from daughters with 141 in the list).

Third Dam by ALEXANDER'S EDWIN FORREST 49. (Dam of Rothschild, grandsire of Ready Boy, 2:23, etc.). (Sire of Billie Hoskins, 2:26½, etc.).

Fourth Dam by BLACK HIGHLANDER; Fifth Dam by LANCE, son of American Eclipse.

ALMONT MEDIUM is a dark bay with black points, 16.1 hands high, weighs about 1100 pounds, was bred by General William T. Withers, Lexington, Ky., is a model of perfect symmetry, remarkably level-headed, speedy, and game as a pebble, and will undoubtedly get a record of 2:15 or 2:16, barring accidents. He is bred in almost the identical lines of Nancy Hanks, 2:09, her second dam being by Edwin Forrest and Almont Medium's third dam by Edwin Forrest; Nancy Hanks' fifth dam by Lance, son of American Eclipse, and Almont Medium's fifth dam is by the same great horse. The only son of Almont Medium ever trained for speed (Mark Medium) gained a record of 2:25¼ during 1891 as a four-year-old, and all of this horse's progeny show speed at an early age.

Almont Medium will make the season of 1892, from February 1 to July 1, at the Race Track, Petaluma, Cal.

TERMS, $100 THE SEASON,

With the usual return privilege, providing Almont Medium is in the State.

NUTWOOD WILKES is a handsome chestnut in color, stands 15½ hands high, is level-headed, kind and intelligent.

RAPID TRANSIT,

Limited to Fifteen approved Outside Mares at $75 for the Season.

RAPID TRANSIT is a fine-looking bay horse, stands 15½ hands high. He is by DIRECTOR 1989, 2:17; dam Lida W., record 2:18¼, dam of Nutwood Wilkes, 2:20½ at 3 years. (See above tabulated pedigree.) He is a horse of splendid individuality and excellent blood lines.

LONG BRANCH.

Limited to Fifteen Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

LONG BRANCH is a magnificent bay horse, 15¾ hands high, sired by Antevolo, 4-year-old record 2:19½ (brother to Anteeo, 2:16¼, sire of seven with records from 2:17¾ to 2:30), by ELECTIONEER 125 (sire of 100 trotters with records from 2:08¼ to 2:30, 22 of which have records better than 2:20), dam Zola (dam of Maud C., 2:19), by Steinway, 3-year-old record 2:25¾ (sire of seven with records from 2:10 to 2:28¼, including the dam of Maud C., 2:19, and Bourbon Russell, 2:30), second dam Fanny Malone (grandam of Charles Derby, record 2:20, and Maud C., record 2:19).

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD.

Limited to Fifty Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD is a handsome chestnut horse, stands sixteen hands one and one-half inches high, and is the sire of Maud C., 2:19; Annie C., 2:25; Albert H., 2:27¾, and several others with trials from 2:37 to 2:50. He is by the greatest living sire, Nutwood 600, record 2:18¾ (sire of 77 with records from 2:11½ to 2:30; 17 from 2:11½ to 2:20, and half-brother to Maud S., 2:08¾, the fastest trotter in the world on a regulation track); dam by 2:11½ to 2:20, and half-brother to Maud S., 2:08¾, the fastest trotter in the world on a regulation track); dam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31, record 2:27 (sire of ten with records from 2:18 to 2:30; the best son of Geo. M. Patchen, record 2:23½, made in 1560; the fastest and gamest representative of the Clay family). This pedigree demonstrates that California Nutwood represents the best strains of Hambletonian and Clay blood, a combination that cannot fail to produce fast and game race horses as well as great broodmares. He is a horse of splendid conformation, stylish, level-headed, pure-gaited, speedy, game and intelligent, qualities that he transmits to all of his get. He gets bays and chestnuts from all kinds of mares. He is just the kind of a horse that a poor man can make no mistake in breeding a good mare to, as he will get a horse large enough for work on the ranch or road, besides a chance of producing a very fast and valuable race horse.

NOTICE.

The great blood lines represented in the four above stallions, GUY WILKES, NUTWOOD, ELECTIONEER and DIRECTOR, are, as all horsemen will agree, the best race horse strains—the greatest producers of extreme speed and gameness to be found in the trotting families. NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT are the two greatest representatives of developed race-horse speed there are to be found in the stud to date. This is a broad assertion, but it can be demonstrated by anyone who will take the trouble to look it up. Their sires, Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼, and Director, 2:17, were two of the fastest and most consistent race horses on the turf in their day, and about as safe horses as a man ever placed his money on, for they would gamely fight a race out to the bitter end, almost invariably scoring a victory. The dam of NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT is Lida W., record 2:18¼, made after raising five colts, the last one last spring, her record being made on the 20th of October last. She is one of the fastest daughters of the great Nutwood 600, 2:18¾, who, besides being a great and game race horse himself, is the greatest living sire. Among the produce of his daughters are to be found Arion, the phenomenon, two-year-old record 2:10¾, and nineteen others from 2:18¼ to 2:30.

Mares not proving in foal may be returned the following season free of service fee. Parties desiring the services of any of the above horses must send the mare or ten per cent of the service money with the engagement. Excellent pasturage at $5 per month, and when the condition of the animal requires it, hay or grain or both will be fed at $10 per month. The best of care will be taken of mares, but no liability will be assumed for accidents or escapes. Mares may be shipped direct to me at Irvington, Alameda Co., Cal., via Broad Gauge Railroad.

All bills are due at time of service, but must be paid by August 1st. No stock will be allowed to leave the place until all bills are settled. Season from February 1st to August 1st, 1892.

    - Harry Clay 45, Sire of dams of Electioneer and St. Julien, 2:11.

Delwin 14,681, record 2:26 1-2, will, if he has no setbacks, pace in 2:15 or better, and beat 2:30 trotting over the fast Stockton kite track this fall. Delwin is one of the handsomest grandsons of the great Moor; in color, he is a dark dapple bay, sound as a dollar, outside of his broken hind leg, and the best of feet and legs; 15.1½ hands high, and weighs 1,000 pounds; he is one of the finest-formed horses for great speed in the land; has the same level head and intelligence that his half-brother, Guide, 2:16¼, has; in color and form he resembles Harry Clay 45 (sire of the dam of Electioneer and George Wilkes, 2:22), more than any horse that we ever saw. Delwin has the same blood lines as the handsome grandson of The Moor, Stamboul, 2:11; he has two crosses of American Star 14, also of Clay, one of Hambletonian 10, sire of the dam of Stamboul, 2:11; one to Mambrino Chief, sire of the dam of Director, 2:17, and two of the great Pilot Jr., sire of the dam of Nutwood, 2:18¾, combining altogether the same blood lines that lay in the grandest stallions, living or dead—Arion, 2:10¾, Stamboul, 2:11; also the first yearling to beat 2:30, and who trotted the fastest last quarter in that mile that was ever trotted by any yearling, 34 seconds—Freedom, 2:29¾.

Del Sur, 2:24, sire of Don Tomas, 2:20, and Cousin Joe, 2:20¼, being a full brother to the dam of Sable Wilkes, 2:18, sire of Freedom, 2:29¾, and two others better than 2:28. Delwin's colts all show the trot out of any kind of mares.

Terms $40, with usual return privilege.

Good water and pasturage at $5 per month, but will not be responsible for accidents or escapes. Mares can be shipped to the farm and home of Delwin, the Meese Stock Farm, Danville, Contra Costa County, Cal., per S. P R. R., via Martinez. For further particulars, address,

The Fast Trotting Stallion SILAS SKINNER.

RECORD 2:17. STANDARD, 10,681.

Will make the season of 1891, commencing February 1st and ending July 1st, at De Turk's Breeding Stables on Donahue Street, opposite De Turk's Wine Cellars, Santa Rosa, Cal.

SILAS SKINKER, sired by Alcona Jr., 2:24; first dam Fontana (dam of Flora Belle, 2:24½) by Almont 33, sire of thirty-eight in the 2:30 list; second dam Fannie Williams, dam of Bay Chieftain, 2:28¼, by Alexander's Abdallah 15, sire of Goldsmith Maid, 2:14; Rosalind, 2:21¾; Thorndale, 2:22¼, etc.; third dam by Gaine's Denmark; fourth dam by Robert Bruce; fifth dam by Virginia Whip.

ALCONA JR. was sired by Alcona 730 (sire of Flora Belle, 2:24½; Clay Duke, 2:30; Prince Warwick, trial 2:18, etc. by Almont 33. First dam Madonna by Cassius M. Clay Jr., sire of Durango, 2:23¾; Harry Clay 2:23¾; Clay Davis, 2:26½; Cora, 2:30, etc.

The above is a condensed pedigree of Silas Skinner, but enough is given to show him to be as richly bred in the best trotting lines as any horse living, besides being a great individual with remarkable speed and staying qualities, which was shown by his performance on the California Circuit the last two seasons. In 1890 Silas Skinner started in six races, trotting in all twenty-three heats. Of these six races Skinner won four and was second in two, and closed the season of 1890 with a record of 2:19.

The performance of Silas Skinner during the season of 1891 has also been very meritorious, having started in seven races, three of which he won, being second twice and twice third. In his race at Sacramento, September 19, 1891, Silas Skinner trotted so horsemen said—one of the gamest races ever trotted in California. His competitors were Frank M and Wanda, whom he defeated, winning the first, third and fourth heats, the second heat falling to Frank M. Time of each heat 2.17, 2:17½, 2:17, 2:19.

SILAS SKINNER is a black horse, sixteen hands high, and weighs in stud season about 1,100 pounds. In color, breeding and conformation he approaches very near the ideal stallion, and he descends on both his sire's and dam's side from ancestors who have few equals in the history of the American trotting horse.

TERMS: $100 FOR THE SEASON.

Mares not proving with foal may be returned next season free of charge, provided SILAS SKINNER remains the property of the present owners. Pasturage $3 per month. Every attention and care given to mares, but no liability assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, apply to

The Antevolo Stallion SIROCCO

Will make the season of 1892 at Egbert Rancho, near Rio Vista, from February 1st to June 15th at $50 for the season.

PEDIGREE AND DESCRIPTION.

SIROCCO, by Antevolo 7448, 2:18¼, by Electioneer 125, sire of 100 in the 2:30 list, dam by Rifleman (thoroughbred), sire of Col. Lewis, 2:18¾.

SIROCCO is a handsome bay with black points stands 16-1 hands high, 16.2½ over the hip; weigh about 1,150; five years old, and one of the best and speediest sons of Antevolo. He is remarkably intelligent, kind, and a splendid individual. Trial, quarter at three years old .37 to 150-pound cart without regular work. Good pasturage and the best of care taken of mares at $2 per month, but no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, address or, P. W. BELLINGALL, 508 Battery Street, San Francisco.

ALVIN EGBERT, Rio Vista.

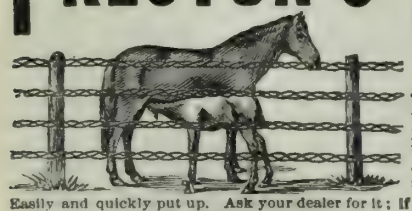
DON MARVIN

Five-Year-Old Record 2:28.

DON MARVIN is a beautiful seal brown, foaled 1884; bred by Senator Leland Stanford, Palo Alto, Cal; is 16 hands high and weighs 1200 pounds; sired by Fallis, 2:23 (sire of four in 2:30 list), he by Electioneer. Dam, CORA (dam of Don Marvin, 2:28, and Elected [trial] 2:26) by Don Victor, (sire of the dams of five in the 2:30 list) by Belmont. Second dam, CLARABEL (dam of Clifton Bell, 2:24½, and Rebecca, dam of four in 2:30 list) by Abdallah Star. Third dam, FAIRY (dam of Stoner Boy, 2:29½, and Sweepstakes, sire of 22 in the 2:30 list, and three other producing sires and dams) by Rydsyk's Hambletonian. Fourth dam, EMMA MILLS (dam of four horses that have sired 2:30 performers) by Seely's American Star.



DON MARVIN is a horse of great natural speed. His record was made with scarcely any preparation, after making a large season in the stud, and is no measure of his speed. His oldest colts (only five in number) are three years old this spring. One of them with very little work trotted quarters last fall in 36 seconds, and could have easily entered the 2:30 list in his two-year-old form had he been given an opportunity.

DON MARVIN will make the season of 1892 at $40, with usual return privilege, which makes him the cheapest horse in the State, record and breeding considered, having what no other public stallion has on the Coast—Four producing dams.

SONS OF ELECTIONEER ✣1892✣

✣1892✣ AT THE SOUTHER FARM

All mares bred to the Souther Farm Stallions in the season of 1892 will be kept free of charge from March 1st to July 1st. Mares may be sent to the farm at any time, and will be kept at reasonable rates until March 1st, when the free care begins. Best of attention given to mares at foaling time.

The Reputation of the Souther Farm is a guarantee of fair treatment for all animals sent there.

EL BENTON

(Three-quarter brother to SUNOL, 2:08¼; NORVAL, 2:17½.)

- ELECTIONEER 125 — 99 in 2:30.
  - HAMBLETONIAN 10 — 41 in 2:30 list.
    - ABDALLAH 1
    - CHAS. KENT MARE
  - GREEN MOUNTAIN MAID — 8 in 2:30.
    - HARRY CLAY 45
    - SHANGHAI MARY
- NELLIE BENTON — Trial for Charles Marvin, 2:18.
  - GENERAL BENTON 1755 — 17 in 2:30 list and dam of Sunol, 2:08¼.
    - JIM SCOTT 836
    - LADY BENTON
  - NORMA, 2:33¾ — Dam of Norval, 2:17½; Norris, 2:22¼; also Lucy Cuyler, trial for Robert Bonner, 2:15½; Nellie Benton, trial for Chas. Marvin, 2:18.
    - ALEXANDER'S NORMAN — Lula, 2:15; May Queen, 2:20.
    - BY TODHUNTER'S SIR WALLACE

$200 for 1892, usual return privilege and free keep and care from March 1st to July 1st, 1892.

Fourth dam Eagletta by Grey Eagle, sire of grandam of Ansel, 2:20.
Fifth dam Mary Howe, by Tiger.
Sixth dam Lady Robin, by Robin Gray, sire of third dam of the great Lexington.
Seventh dam by Quicksilver, son of imp. Medley.
Eighth dam by Meades' Celer.

El. Benton's breeding is of the best. The Electioneer-Benton and Electioneer-Norman crosses are deservedly famous, and El Benton combines them all through grand individuals. His dam, Nellie Benton, trotted a trial in 2:18 and went East with the Palo Alto string, but broke down before starting (Marvin's "Training the Trotting Horse," page 102). She is now in foal to Palo Alto, 2:08¾; El Benton is her only living produce foaled before 1891. He is a born race horse and a most worthy member of the greatest trotting family the world has seen.

GLEN FORTUNE

(25 per cent. of the blood of Shanghai Mary; the exact amount carried by Electioneer himself.)

- ELECTIONEER 125 — Sunol, 2:08¾; Palo Alto, 2:08¾.
  - HAMBLETONIAN 10 — His sons have produced nearly 1,000 in 2:30
    - ABDALLAH 1
    - CHAS. KENT MARE
  - GREEN MOUNTAIN MAID — 8 in 2:30.
    - HARRY CLAY 45
    - SHANGHAI MARY
- GLENNE — Out of a half-sister to Green Mountain Maid.
  - MESSENGER DUROC 106 — 20 in 2:30; dams of 19 in 2:30.
    - HAMBLETONIAN 10
    - BY ROE'S ABDALLAH CHIEF
  - GLENELLA — Out of the dam of Green Mountain Maid.
    - WOODWARD STAR — Son of Seely's American Star.
    - SHANGHAI MARY — Grandam of Electioneer.

$100 for 1892, usual return privilege and free keep and care from March 1st to July 1st, 1892.

As the dam of Green Mountain Maid and grandam of Electioneer, Shanghai Mary may be called the foundation stone of the Electioneer family, which now holds practically every best on record. Glen Fortune is inbred to this great old mare once through his sire, Electioneer, and again through his dam, a granddaughter of Shanghai Mary.

Glen Fortune's oldest colts were foaled in 1891, and show up splendidly in the kindergarten, where they may be seen any week day.

Fourth to fourteenth dams thoroughbred.

By The Grand Moor.

MOORLAND, $40.

First dam Lady Budd, dam of Capri, sire of Clara Z., 2:26¾.

Moorland's colts show speed. His dam, Lady Budd, was a wonderful road mare; nothing ever beat her in an all-day tussle on the Cliff House road.

The training department is very complete, and curing faults in gait is a specialty. The Souther Farm system of balancing was used most successfully during the past season on several well known horses, of which one took a record of 2:16 1-2, another 2:22 3-4 with several other creditable records and trials.

The Souther Farm Swimming Tank is in regular operation and horses are given swimming work every week day in good weather. Swimming gives EXERCISE WITHOUT CONCUSSION, and is an invaluable aid in training trotters or runners. Visitors welcome any day except Sunday.

DIRECTOR JR.

WILL MAKE THE SEASON OF 1892 AT THE ASYLUM RANCH, SAN RAFAEL.

DESCRIPTION.

DIRECTOR JR. is a grandly-formed stallion, a handsome black in color; stands 15.3 hands; weighs 1,175 pounds. In appearance and disposition he is more like Director than any other son of that famous sire. He has never been trained for speed, but can easily show a 2:20 gait on the road, and will surely get a mark much below that this fall, as he will be put in training for this season's campaign. Up to the present time he has been in the stud in Oregon and never given an opportunity to show his speed. His colts, like himself, are all grand lookers, show great trotting action, intelligence and gameness. A three-year-old now in training has shown a mile in 2:21, and Directwood, a two-year-old son, won every race in which he was entered last year, and could have gone in the thirty list had his owner so desired. At the Oregon State Fair last year Director Jr. and five of his get were awarded first premiums.

PEDIGREE.

It will be seen that Director Jr. is bred on blood lines almost identically the same as Direct, 2:06, the Greatest Harness Horse in the World.

DIRECTOR JR.

- Director, 2:17 — Sire of Direct, 2:06; Margaret S., 2:12½; Evangeline, 2:19; Guide, 2:16¼; Emma, 2:24¼; and 7 others in the 2:30 list.

MELROSE

DESCRIPTION.

MELROSE is a handsome bay stallion, foaled in 1889; stands 15.3 hands high and weighs 1100 pounds. In conformation he is symmetrical throughout, splendid bone and muscle, stylish and a grand individual in every respect. At twenty months old, with very little work, Tom Murphy drove him a mile in 2:35. As he was growing fast it was decided better to cease working him until this Fall, when he will be prepared for the track and put in the list, barring accidents.

His splendid individuality and fashionable breeding makes him one of the most desirable young stallions on the Coast.

TERMS: $40 FOR THE SEASON.

LIMITED TO FIFTEEN APPROVED MARES.

Gannon's Electioneer

GROVER CLAY.

Fifteen hands three inches high; weighs 1,050; is as fine a horse as there is in California.

Bay stallion, foaled 1884, by Senator Stanford's Electioneer 125; bred by Hon. W. W. Traylor, San Francisco. First dam Maggie Norfolk, by Norfolk; second dam Tilda Quil, by Billy Cheatham; third dam by Dorsey's Golddust, sire of Lucille Golddust, record 2:16¼; Rolla Golddust, 2:20; Fleety Golddust, 2:20; Indicator, 2:23, and many others in the 2:30 list; also grandsire of Rosalind Wilkes, 2:14½, and Johnston, 2:06¼.

GROVER CLAY will make the season of 1892 at the San Clemente Stock Farm, Marin County, half way between Tiburon and San Rafael. Mares may be sent by the Donohue Broad Gauge, via Tiburon, there being a depot on the farm, or driven via Sausalito, five miles to the farm.

TERMS—$100 for the season, from March 1st to July 1st, payable at time of service or before the removal of the mares. Excellent pasturage at $5 per month. The best of care taken of mares, but no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. Having the best half-mile track in the State on the farm, I will take a few colts to train. *Balkan.

Record 2:15.

Will make the season at Oakland Race Track beginning February 1st. But a limited number of mares will be accepted, in order that he may be prepared for the great contests of the year. He reduced his record, 14¼ seconds, in nineteen days last fall, and as he is perfectly sound there is every assurance that he will be able to compete with the fastest, especially at two-mile heats.

DESCRIPTION.

Seal brown (no white) with black points, 16 hands 1¼ inches in height, beautifully proportioned and elegantly finished. Balkan is the one horse whose limbs are so correctly formed that a plumb-line from the shoulder drops through the center of the arm, the knee, the cannon-bone, pastern and hoof; consequently his action is straight forward without the slightest side swing, making a pure, frictionless gait. His style and carriage are so lofty that it is universally admitted that in these respects he has no superior on the turf. In a race he is as steady and level-headed as possible, and trots his last quarter the fastest.

PEDIGREE.

By Mambrino Wilkes, son of George Wilkes, sire of Harry Wilkes, 2:13½, and 74 others in the 2:30 list, grandsire of Allerton, 2:09¼; Axtell, 2:12 (three years), and hosts of other noted race horses, dam Fanny Fern by Jack Hawkins, son of Boston, sire of second dam of Maud S., 2:08¾, and Jay-Eye-See, 2:10, and grandsire of second dam of Sunol, 2:08¼. The dam of Jack Hawkins was the famous Keenon mare, the great grandam of Sunol, 2:08¼. Jack Hawkins sired the second dam of Direct, 2:06, so that Balkan, while by a son of George Wilkes, is closely related on the dam's side to the fastest horses of the times. His sire, Mambrino Wilkes, by George Wilkes, dam Lady Chrisman, by Todhunter's Mambrino, son of Mambrino Chief 11, grandam by Pilot Jr., has produced Gus Wilkes, 2:22, Bay Wilkes, 2:25, Alpheus, 2:27, Clara P., 2:29½, Balkan, 2:15, and numbers in the thirties. His dam, Fanny Fern, produced Mollie Drew, 2:27, Balkan, 2:15, Fred Arnold, trial, 2:27, and several in 2:40 and better. If there is anything in the science of breeding, Balkan, coming from a producing sire and a producing dam, should be unexcelled as a producer. He is just seven years old.

RESUME.

Considering the size, style, beauty, gait, speed, endurance and unexceptionably fashionable breeding of Balkan it is respectfully submitted that he offers as great attractions to breeders as any of the horses that get a service fee of $500 and $1,000.

AND HIS SERVICE IS OFFERED AT $100 FOR THE SEASON.

The services of no other young horse of his conformation, breeding and quality, with such a record, is offered at so low a figure.

Bear in mind that colt stakes will soon be given for the get of stallions with records of 2:15 or better. If you want to raise colts which will be eligible to enter in all stakes, BREED TO BALKAN, as he is the only horse in this region with a record of 2:15 whose services are offered to the public.

Good pasture and excellent care guaranteed for mares sent to him.
This horse can be seen at The Oakland Track, in charge of A. L. HINDS.

Australian Thoroughbred Blood

Loyalist and Chesterfield

Two Sons (from Grandly-Bred Mares) of THE MARQUIS, one of Australia's Greatest Sire,

Will make the season of 1892 at the SOUTHER FARM, San Leandro, Cal.

These horses can hardly fail to produce speed and staying qualities from the strains of thoroughbred blood in this State.

Mares that prove not to be with foal may be returned without service fee in 1893, provided the horse bred to is alive and at the Souther Farm.

LOYALIST - - - - $100, INCLUDING KEEP OF MARE TILL JULY 1st, 1892.

Bay horse, foaled 1884. Winner of the Brunswick Stakes, worth about $7,000, one and one-quarter mile in 2:08¼.

LOYALIST'S mile and a quarter in 2:08¼ was the best on record in Australia when made, and has only been surpassed by Abercorn and the great Carbine. His sire was a race-horse and a sire of race-horses; his dam was a winner and has produced winners. Loyalist has proven himself a race-horse, and he will produce race-horses.

CHESTERFIELD - $75, INCLUDING FREE KEEP OF MARES UNTIL JULY 1st, 1892.

Bay horse, no white, foaled 1876. Bred by Mr. C. B. Fisher, Victoria. (See Australian Stud Book, Vol. 2, page 201)

CHESTERFIELD was a good race-horse and a first-class weight packer. In ten important stakes he was first in four, second in four and third in two. He will produce great two-year-olds from our California mares; in his own two-year-old form he took up 128 pounds and won the Flying Handicap at Wollongong.

THE GUY WILKES STALLION

HOCK WILKES.

Sired by GUY WILKES, Record 2:15¼ — (Sire of Regal Wilkes, 2:17½; Lillian Wilkes, 2:17¼; Sable Wilkes, 2:18; Vida Wilkes, 2:18¼; Hazel Wilkes, 2:20; Una Wilkes, 2:19¼; Allanna, 2:18; Rupee, 2:14¾, etc.) By GEORGE WILKES, 2:22. (Son of Rysdyk's Hambletonian and sire of Harry Wilkes, 2:13½; Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼; Wilson, 2:16¼; Richardson J. B., 2:16¾; Baron Wilkes, 2:18, and 71 others in 2:30 or better.)

Dam LADY BUNKER — (Dam of Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼; Joe Bunker, 2:19, and William L., sire of Axtell, 2:12.) By MAMBRINO PATCHEN. (Son of Mambrino Chief and sire of 18 in 2:30 list, and of the dams of Houri, 2:17; Astral 2:18; Baron Wilkes, 2:18, and 60 others in 2:30 list.)

HOCK WILKES' First Dam, EDA — (Thoroughbred, sister to St. David.) By HOCK-HOCKING. (Having one cross each of Boston, imp. Trustee, imp. Glencoe, eight crosses of imp. Diomed, and being the sire of Beaconsfield, St. David, Batchelder, Arthur H. and Four Aces.)

Second Dam, EVA COOMBS — (Dam of St. David, Wildidler, Maid of the Mist, and second dam of Beaconsfield, Batchelder, Arthur H. and Four Aces.) By BILLY CHEATHAM. (Having one cross of Boston, five of imp. Messenger, seven of imp. Diomed, and two of American Eclipse.)

Third Dam, RUBY, by Winnebago, son of imp. Glencoe and imp. Delight.

Fourth Dam, ELLEN JOURDAN, by Blacknose, by Medoc, son of Duroc by imp. Diomed, and Miller's Damsel, by imp. Messenger.

Fifth Dam, EMILY JOURDAN, by imp. Jourdan.

Sixth Dam, ELLEN TREE, by Henry, son of Sir Archy by imp. Diomed and of a daughter of imp. Diomed.

Seventh dam, Betsy Ransome by Virginian, son of Sir Archy by imp. Diomed; Eighth dam, Favorite, by imp. Bellair; Ninth dam, Fairy by imp. Bedford; Tenth dam, by imp. Pantaloon; Eleventh dam, by imp. Master Stephen; Twelfth dam, by imp. Juniper; Thirteenth dam, imp. Duchess, by Cullen Arabian, etc.

DESCRIPTION—HOCK WILKES, foaled 1888, is a handsome bay with black points, 15½ hands high, of speedy conformation, good bone and powerful muscular development. He is pure in trotting action, very speedy, and, but for difficulty with one fore pastern, he would now have a low record. He is one of the handsomest sons of Guy Wilkes, with the Wilkes substance and trotting instinct and the thoroughbred quality and type of conformation. The sire of Hock Wilkes, Guy Wilkes, stands at a service fee of $1,000, and he is conceded to be the best representative of the great Wilkes and Hambletonian family. The dam of Hock Wilkes is a large mare, 16¾ hands, of powerful build, a daughter of Hock-Hocking, who produced the speedy and long-distance performers St. David, Beaconsfield, Batchelder, Arthur H., Four Aces, etc., and whose dam was the third dam of Anteeo, 2:16¼, Antevolo, 2:19¼, and Coral, 2:25.

TERMS, $40 FOR THE SEASON of 1892, from February 1st to July 1st, with return privilege for the season of 1893 on any mare not proving with foal, provided either the mare or stallion does not change ownership. The season of 1892 will be made at 2536 Market Street, San Francisco.

Address JOS. MICHL, 2536 Market Street.

Training The Trotting Horse

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm." Mailed postpaid for $3,50.

It has a peculiarly warming, comforting and stimulating effect on all weak or stiff muscles and sinews. Quick in its action, cleanly and pleasant in use.

Rub it into the muscles every night for a fortnight, and you will be pleased at its supporting and strengthening properties. There is not, nor has been, anything like it till now. It differs from all Oils, Embrocations and Liniments, both in substance and effect. Some Athletes are so fond of it that they rub it all over them.

Price 20c. and 35c. per box.

Trainers size, $1,00.

THE BLOOD HORSE RACES.

Zaldivar Walks Away From a Fair Field Without Any Urging.

LOTTIE MILLS ROMPS IN A WINNER.

Jim R. Wins a Half-Mile Heat Race in the Mud. Cartridge Proves to be a Grand "Green" One—Fairy's Capture of an Easy Race.

Adolph Gives Lumps of Weight Away and a Beating to a Splendid Field of Youngsters—Captain Al Downs Revolver—Esperanza and San Pedro Have a Hard Finish—Bernardo Makes a Show of His Opponents—Ghost Dance Wins a Match Race—The Events in Detail.

THREE favorites and two second choices captured the coin in to-day's races. Notwithstanding that the people knew the races would come off over a muddy track, there was a merry crowd of 1,500 or 1,600 persons in attendance. The sport in three of the events was exciting and creditable in the extreme, in the other two races the top-heavy favorites, Fairy and Zaldivar, won under a pull in hollow style. A strong tip was out on Early to beat Zaldivar, but the much-touted colt had to be content with mud from the hoofs of Zaldivar and Elmwood and third position at the finish. Nabeau, the Elmwood Stable's old bay gelding by Nathan Coombs—Beauty, broke down in the first race, and will never face the starter again. Zaldivar showed himself to be a really good colt by taking up 124 pounds and defeating what was considered a pretty good field, to all of whom he was conceding weight. It was apparent after this race that nothing in the shape of a three-year-old as yet produced in California this season is capable of keeping Zaldivar warm in any kind of a race.

Lottie Mills, with a good jockey up, showed that she was a fairish sort of a race mare, and won her race easily. Narvaez rode her to perfection. Jim R. won a very creditable race and beat a good field of sprinters. A ton or two of money went glimmering on Inkerman, whose hard finish in the second heat (the one he won) settled him for the final one. Fairy's race was a mere romp, as she was fighting for her head all the way down the stretch. Dan McCarty let loose a good "green" one in Cartridge, a half-sister to Dynamite and Anarchist. She proved herself a truly good filly by going out at the flag fall and never faltering once, winning all the way easily with her 115 pounds up in 0:52½ on a track that was over five seconds slow to the mile.

FOURTH DAY—FRIDAY, APRIL 15, 1892.

A field of eight faced the starter in the opening race of the day, and Lottie Mills went to the post a slight favorite over old Applause. Regal was well-backed for a place, and there must have been a strong play, for there was some tall cutting of odds on her when the horses went up to get the flag. To a splendid start, Lottie Mills went out and led the procession at once, attended by Regal. Applause was third, a length and a half away. At the half it was Lottie Mills first by three parts of a length, Regal second, Applause third. Lottie Mills let out a link and entered the stretch with daylight between herself and Regal, the rest apparently out of it. Regal made a swift dash for first position a sixteenth from home, but Narvaez had only to shake the favorite up a little, and she responded handsomely. Applause came like a shot at the end, and a majority thought he had won the place by a head, but the judges placed them Lottie Mills, Regal, Applause. Mills won by three-quarters of a length. Time, 1:19½.

SUMMARY.

BAY DISTRICT TRACK, Friday, April 15, 1892.—First race, selling purse, $500; fixed valuation, $1,000; three pounds allowed for each $100 down to $500. Three-quarters of a mile.

Time, 1:19¾.

Won by three-quarters of a length, head between second and third.
Auctions—The field, $20; Applause, $10; Lottie Mills, $8.
Book betting—Lottie Mills, 2½ to 1; Regal, 5 to 1; Applause, 3 to 1; Nabeau, 6 to 1; St. Patrick, 20 to 1; Blondinette, 10 to 1; Reverie, 20 to 1; Hello, 15 to 1

The second race was for three-year-olds, and five came to the post. Zaldivar was a red-hot favorite, notwithstanding reports that the great gelding was not in good shape and the further fact that he was conceding lumps of weight to almost everything in the race. There was a strong tip out on Early, and he was played heavily, Elmwood got away first, Royal Flush second, Zaldivar third. The order was the same passing the stand. Zaldivar here commenced to move up, and led the procession at the next quarter, where Early was second and Royal Flush third. This was the order clean into the homestretch, where Elmwood, under the vigorous riding of Narvaez, came up with a rush and took the place from Early at the drawgate. Zaldivar, without the use of whip or spur or urging of any kind, passed the wire first by four lengths, Elmwood in the place by a length and a half, Early third, Royal Flush fourth and May Pritchard last. Time, 2:03.

SUMMARY.

THURSDAY, April 15, 1892.—Second race, purse $500, three-year-olds, maidens allowed 10 pounds; winners at this meeting to carry five pounds extra. One and an eighth miles.

Time, 2:03.

Won by four lengths, one and a half between second and third.
Auctions—Zaldivar, $25; field, $20.
Book-betting—Zaldivar, 3 to 5; Royal Flush, 8 to 1; Early, 3 to 1; May Pritchard, 30 to 1; Elmwood, 8 to 1.

Now came a half-mile heat race, and seven were left in to start out of nine original entries. Inkerman was a slight favorite over Jim R., pools on first heat selling: The field, $20; Inkerman, $12; Jim R., $11. Hercules slipped down in one of the breakaways, skinning and spraining one of little Sullivan's ankles. The boy at first was supposed to be pretty badly hurt, and the starter's carriage started for the stable. The wee fellow, however, pluckily claimed that he was not badly hurt, and going back to the post, again mounted Hercules, and when the flag fell it was Woodbury Jr. in front, Jim R., next, Hercules third. Woodbury only led for about an eighth, when Jim R. went to the fore. Hercules was coming fast around the last turn, and joining issue with Jim R. half-way down the stretch, a hot struggle resulted in Jim R. sticking his dark head out and winning right under the wire. Sullivan was so weak from his injury that when it came to a finish he was not equal to the emergency; otherwise Hercules would have won. Time, 0:51½.

Second heat.—Jim R. was now of course the favorite, but not a very warm one, as good as 6 to 5 in one or two books being offered against his chances. Hercules' jockey in the second heat was Dick Ward, and 3 to 1 were the odds opposite the name of the Oregon horse. Joe Ellis got a trifle the best of the flag, and closely attended by Jim R., ran around the turn in the lead. Inkerman had made a good, strong move at the outset, but fell back next to last between the half and three-quarter poles. He came again, however, nearing the latter point, and Hennessy got all there was in the horse out of him coming down that homestretch. He was on the inside in the heavy going, and made one of the gamest finishes ever seen at the old track, ultimately getting the verdict by a short neck, Joe Ellis second, half a length in front of Jim R. Time, 0:51¼.

Third heat—Inkerman was made a torrid first choice, selling in the auctions at $25 against $12 for Jim R. Jim R. was first off, and was never headed, winning by three quarters of a length rather easily from the spurred-out favorite. Time, 0:52½.

Time, 0:51½, 0:51¼, 0:52½.

First heat won by a head, neck between second and third. Second heat won by a neck, half a neck between second and third. Third heat won by three-quarters of a length.

Auctions, first heat—Field, $31; Inkerman, $12; Jim R., $11. Second heat—The field, $20; Jim R., $14. Third heat—Inkerman, $25; Jim R., $12.

Book-betting—Jim R., 5 to 2; Inkerman, 2 to 1; Monte Carlo, 50 to 1 and 20 to 1; Hercules, 4 to 1; Woodbury Jr., 15 to 1; Ed. McGinty, 40 to 1. Second heat—Inkerman, 5 to 1; Jim R., evens; Monte Carlo, 50 to 1; Hercules, 3 to 1; Woodbury Jr., 20 to 1; Joe Ellis, 8 to 1.
Deciding heat—Jim R., 2 to 1; Inkerman, 1 to 4.

A mile race, owners' handicap, next occupied the attention of the onlookers, but as Fairy was considered such a "cinch," the speculation was very light and airy, 'specially on Fairy, who was at 1 to 8 in the books and $40 to $8 in the pools. Montana and El Rayo alone opposed the Los Angeles queen. Montana got off a trifle in front, Fairy next, El Rayo last. In the run to the quarter Fairy opened up a gap of daylight to the extent of two lengths, Montana over a length from El Rayo. So the procession ran clear around into the homestretch. Fairy made a wide turn coming into the straight, but as it was a mere exhibition gallop for her to win, it made no difference. She won under a strong pull with great ease by a length, Montana second, two and a half lengths from El Rayo. Time, 1.45¾.

SUMMARY.

FRIDAY, April 15, 1892.—Fourth race, purse $500, all ages, owners' handicap. One mile.

L. J. Rose's b m Fairy, 4 years, by Argyle—imp. Fairy Rose, 96½ pounds (incl. 1½ over)	Sullivan	1

F. Menchaca's ch h El Rayo, 5 years, by Grinstead—Sunlit, 93 pounds	Spence	3

Time, 1:45¾.

Won by a length, two and a half lengths between second and third.
Auctions—Fairy, $40; the field, $8.
Book-betting—Fairy, 1 to 8; Montana, 6 to 1; El Rayo, 20 to 1.

An extra race, half a mile, for two-year-olds, wound up the day's programme, and four "green" ones and the maiden, Dick O'Malley, responded to the bugle call and bell. This was a great betting race, Green Hock, Cartridge and Dick O'Malley having hosts of moneyed backers. However, the fact that Narvaez was riding Cartridge and the weight of McCarty's coin going in on the filly, forced the odds down to 8 to 5 at the post. Cartridge was first away, was never headed, and won with a link of speed or two to spare by a length and a half in 0:52½—a fast race, weight up and condition of the track considered. Dick O'Malley came like a rocket at the wind-up, and got the place by a neck from Ghost Dance.

SUMMARY.

FRIDAY, April 15, 1892.—Fifth race, purse $500—to the winner; for two-year-olds; $10 entrance—to be divided 70 per cent. to second, 30 per cent. to third; five to enter or no race, no declarations. Half a mile.

Book-betting—Cartridge, 8 to 5; Dick O'Malley, 2½ to 1; Ghost Dance 6 to 1; Green Hock, 2¾ to 1; Satanella, 6 to 1.

FIFTH DAY—SATURDAY, APRIL 16, 1892.

Considering the small number of entries in four out of the five races, the attendance to-day must have been very encouraging to the management. The number present was variously estimated at from 2,500 to 3,000. Five favorites got the money, but no bookmaker could have been hurt very seriously, for most of the favorites were at prohibitive odds. Narvaez's superb riding was a feature of the day's sport. The two-year-old Adolph showed grand form by taking up 123 pounds in the initial race of the day and winning easily from a good field in 0:50¾ for the half mile—this on a track probably three seconds slow to the mile. The finish between Esperanza and San Pedro was one of the hair-raising description, the little filly getting the verdict in the gamest fashion in the last two jumps by a scant head.

Following is a complete description of the day's racing:

Eight two-year-olds composed the field in the first race, and while Adolph was the favorite, Sir Roy and Aerolite were well backed. Dan McCarty had another entry outside of Adolph in Mezzotint, a "green" filly by imp. Cheviot, out of Daisy S., while S. G. Reed, of Portland, Or., had another emerald thoroughbred in the imp. Sir Modred—Columbine filly. Considerable money went in on this race, most of the betting being done in the books. To a splendid start (except for Sir Roy, who was all but left at the post) Adolph was first to emerge from the ruck, attended by his stable companion, Mezzotint, and Alliance. Adolph had opened up a length and a half of daylight by the time the three quarter pole was reached, and coming on, won in a gallop by a length and a half, with Narvaez looking back to see how Mezzotint was getting along. Sir Roy made a grand run from the rear, and was going like a streak of greased lightning when he passed under the wire about three parts of a length in front of Mezzotint. Time, 0:50¾.

Auctions—The field, $20; McCarty's stable (Adolph and Mezzotint), $41; Sir Roy, $7.

Book-betting—Adolph, 2 to 1; Sir Roy, 4 to 1; Mezzotint, 10 to 1; Aerolite, 25 to 1; Alliance and Grandee, each 8 to 1; Sir Modred—Columbine filly, 6 to 1; Hiogo, 80 to 1.

The Appleby family did most of the fighting for the second race, Orville having two out of the four entries in St. Patrick and Esperanza, while Billy had imp. San Pedro in. It was a mile and an eighth dash. Esperanza opened up a warm favorite in both books and auctions, but in a few minutes, owing to the arrival of a car-load or so of San Pedro coin, the odds on the brown Australian horse were forced down from 2 to 1 to even money, while, against Esperanza as good as 4 to 5 was offered for a short time. St. Patrick and San Pedro raced away together at the start, which was a grand one, but Borealis suddenly got on his running clothes and took the leading position passing the quarter, the remaining trio head-and-head. Passing the half-pole Esperanza and San Pedro were fighting for the lead, which the Australian had secured by the time the three-quarter pole was reached. In fact, there was a lenth of daylight between the Antipodean and Esperanza at that point. San Pedro led into the homestretch by over a length, and seemed to be running easy, but he wasn't, and Esperanza who had been carefully nursed by little Sullivan for a cyclonic rush in the final quarter, came fast at the end, and in one of the prettiest fighting finishes of the meeting, the tiny filly got up in the last two strides and won a beautiful race by the shortest of heads in 1:59. San Pedro was second, two lengths in front of St. Patrick.

SUMMARY.

Auctions—Encino Stable (Esperanza and St. Patrick), $50; the field, $18.

Book-betting—Esperanza, 7 to 10; San Pedro, 6 to 5; St. Patrick, 15 to 1; Borealis, 8 to 1.

Third on the programme was a race of mile heats, in which Captain Al, Revolver and Gladiator were starters. Captain Al was a big favorite, bringing $30 in the pools to $15 for the other two in the field. Captain Al went to the front in the first sixteenth of a mile and stayed there easily to the finish, winning the heat by four lengths from Revolver, who did not seem to be ridden with much spirit by Hart. Gladiator commenced to fall back at the half-pole, and was distanced. Time, 1:44 3-5.

Second Heat—It was now 2 and 3 to 1 Revolver, with few takers. In the pools Captain Al brought $50 against $12 for Revolver. Revolver got off a neck in front, but Captain Al soon slashed away in the van. At the quarter it was Captain Al first by a length and a half, at the half-pole it was Al first by two lengths and running easy. The favorite was never headed or challenged, and won strong by two lengths. Time, 1:45 2-5. Presiding Judge Williams stated that Ward was substituted for Hart simply because the latter made a very weak finish on Revolver in the first heat. He did not think Revolver could beat Captain Al to-day, but might have come closer with more vigorous riding.

Time—1:44 3-5.

First heat won by four lengths; second heat won by two lengths.

Bernardo was a torrid favorite for the fourth race, three-quarters of a mile, for three-year-olds. However, Early was played pretty strong. Bernardo went out with the lead before a sixteenth had been traversed, attended by Kyrene, and the further the son of Cheviot went the larger became the daylight space between himself and the field. At the half Bernardo's lead was four lengths, at the three-quarters eight, and, eased up in the homestretch, he won by four lengths from Early, who had come fast in the final quarter. Early was five lengths to the good of Bert Hart, who got third place. Time, 1:16¼.

Time, 1:16¼.

Won by four lengths easily, five between second and third.

Auctions—Bernardo, $60; Early, $17; the field, $12.

Book-betting—Bernardo, 2 to 5; Early, 3 to 1; Bert Hart and Zarena, each 15 to 1; Kyrene, 10 to 1.

Now came the match race, $250 a side, between W. O'B. Macdonough's br c Quarter Staff and Sidney Ashe's b c Ghost Dance, two-year-olds. In the books it was 1 to 4 Ghost Dance, 3 to 1 Quarter Staff. Ghost Dance went to the front at once, but at the half Quarter Staff drew up even. Then Ghost Dance pirouetted off in front again, never to be headed. Quarter Staff ran wide all around the turn and anything but true on the homestretch, and Ghost Dance won a slow race by two lengths in a bleedin' walk. Time, 1:08 3-5.

SIXTH DAY—TUESDAY, APRIL 19, 1892.

The sky was clear, the sun was warm, the entries and races were numerous and attractive and the track in fair condition, and, as a consequence, about the largest crowd of the racing season saw the six races run off to-day. Narvaez distinguished himself by piloting three of his mounts to victory, one of them a ten-to-one shot—Castro. Fairy captured the opening event of the day, a mile and a quarter dash with eight starters, with her head pulled around to her shoulder nearly the whole distance, and with 126 pounds in the saddle besides. Zaldivar had been scratched in the morning, and with the great gelding out the race was considered a mere romp for the Los Angeles mare. In the books 1 to 10 were the odds quoted opposite her name. The sensation of the day was the downfall of the much-lauded Cadmus and the success of the "little outsider," Castro, by Sobrante-Clytie, bred by Col. H. I. Thornton and owned by Charley Trevathan, the Examiner racing reporter. The stake Castro landed for the new-comer to the ranks of thoroughbred owners was worth about $1,230, and the proud possessor of the California Stake-winner was warmly congratulated on all sides. Tigress and Cadmus both swerved in the homestretch, but there is little doubt but that Castro would have captured the coin anyhow. The time, 0:49 3-5, was good. Bernardo walked down the homestretch and beat the famous Geraldine with great ease in the third race, three-quarters of a mile, while Hercules, with top weight up, upset a good thing in Tearless in the fourth event on the programme going the six furlongs in 1:15—a splendid performance. Mezzotint, with Narvaez up, won the fifth race because Spooner, on Orta, went to sleep in the homestretch and awakened with a dim idea that he could out-finish Joe Narvaez. Orta led into the stretch and was apparently an easy winner, when Spooner, fondly dreaming himself "Snapper" Garrison and "Demon" Fitzpatrick rolled into one, was rudely shocked when the wire had been reached to find that he had lost the race by a scant head.

Following is a detailed description of the various events:

With Zaldivar, Queen Alta, Hazel and Joe Stacey scratched, eight horses were left to start in the initial race of the day, one and a quarter miles. Fairy, even with her 126 pounds in the saddle, was considered a certainty, and the best odds offered at any time was 1 to 6. She went to the post at 1 to 10. Ulster was well supported for place, as was Janus also. Pools were sold with Fairy barred. Fairy got off in the front division, and immediately shot to the fore, fighting hard for her head past the stand, where Janus was second and Mero third. In the run to the quarter-pole Fairy still continued to lead, Ulster now second and Mero third, Janus fourth, close up. At the half-pole it was Fairy first by a length and a half, Ulster second by half a length, Janus third. Ulster fell back nearing the homestretch, and Janus passed up into second place, St. Patrick moving into third position. Janus gained a little on the favorite, who was still under a strong pull, but could never head her, and Fairy won a slow race by half a length, same distance between Janus, second, and St. Patrick, third. Time, 2:12 2-5. The quarters were: 0:12½, 0:52, 1:18 1-5, 1:46, 2:12 2-5.

Book betting—Fairy, 1 to 6; Janus, 20 to 1; Ulster, 10 to 1; St. Patrick, 100 to 1; Applause and Lucinda, each 60 to 1; Mero, 60 to 1; May Pritchard, 200 to 1.

Now came one of the great events of the meeting, the race for the California Stakes, half a mile, for two-year-olds. Seven came to the post, and Cadmus, on the strength of his private trials (which were declared to cast in deepest shade anything ever done by his opponents), was installed favorite at 3 to 5 in the books and $50 to $26 in the auctions. The weight of money on the much-touted favorite forced the odds down to 1 to 2 at the post. Sir Roy was played for a place with a vengeance, as was Castro, who had as a pilot that good jockey, Narvaez. Castro opened at 15 to 1 and went to get the flag with odds of 10-to 1 opposite his name. To a good start Castro went to the front without delay, attended by Tigress and Sir Reel, Orrin fourth. This was the order till straightened out in the homestretch, where Cadmus came like an animated sky-rocket, and looked very dangerous a little over an eighth from home. Tigress swerved from the middle of the track to the inside, jostling Orrin and knocking him off his stride, and Cadmus did a little in the same line himself. Castro, ridden with good judgment and skill, went on and won rather easily by a little over a length, Sir Reel in the place by half a length, Sir Roy third. The result was a staggerer for the talent and a pleasant surprise to the breeder and owner of Castro. The winner is one of the first of Sobrante's get to face the starter, and his time, 0:49 3-5, shows him to be a good colt. Castro is a trifle undersized, a dark bay in color, with an intelligent head and strong, clean limbs. He is deep through the heart, and has plenty of substance. Billy Appleby trained the youngster, and is entitled to great credit for his work. Castro was purchased at the Thornton sale last fall for $250. Oporto (whom Castro beat to-day) brought $950 at the same sale, Dick O'Malley $500 and Steadfast $420. Good goods goods are oft done up in small packages, truly, and the $2,000 yearling has many times not proven as good a race horse as the $200 youngster.

Auction pools—Cadmus, $50; field $15; Sir Roy, $13.

Book-betting—Castro 10 to 1; Sir Reel 4 to 1; Sir Roy, 3 to 1; Cadmus, 1 to 2; Orrin, Tigress, Oporto, each 20 to 1.

Bernardo went to the post a three-to-one favorite over his three opponents, among them the renowned ex-queen of the sprinters, Geraldine, who was wearing goggles. Henry T. went out and led Bernardo a neck at the half, where the favorite commenced to draw away, entering the homestretch two lengths to the good of Geraldine, who had passed Henry T. between the half and three-quarter poles. Bernardo won in a hand-gallop by two lengths eased up the last sixteenth, Geraldine in the place by a length and a half, Henry T. third, Edith never in it. Time, 1:15 4-5.

SUMMARY.

Tuesday, April 19, 1892.—Third race. Purse $400, of which $80 to second, $25 to third; three-year-olds and upward; winners at this meeting to carry ten pounds extra; second five pounds extra; three-quarters of a mile.

Book-betting—Bernardo, 1 to 3; Geraldine, 2½ to 1; Henry T., 15 to 1; Edith, 60 to 1.

The fourth race was one on which a ton or two of money was wagered, and Tearless was backed so hard that the odds went down from 7 to 5 to 3 to 5. Hercules and El Rayo were plunged on for the place. Hercules got off a trifle in advance, and ere a quarter had been traversed had put three lengths of daylight between himself and Tearless, the closest competitor. El Rayo was third. This was the order until half-way down the homestretch, where Tearless gave it up and fell back like a crumbling wall. El Rayo made a splendid run, and all but nipped Hercules, who gained the verdict by a head, El Rayo second by two lengths, Tearless third. Time, 1:15—a fine performance with 124 pounds up and a grand one for El Rayo, who had the same impost and did not get such a good send-off.

A five-furlong dash for two-year-olds brought out a field of eleven, and Mezzotint was at once installed favorite—because Narvaez was riding her, probably. Aerolite and Orta were played some, and especially for place. Orta got off with the lead, and Aerolite, two lengths away, was her nearest attendant around the turn, Mezzotint third. It looked all over, and the race would have gone to the credit of Senator Rose's filly in all likelihood had not Spooner been so over-confident. Under the whip Mezzotint came fast down the straight, and catching Spooner napping, beat Orta home a head amidst great excitement. It was a clean case of stealing a race, that's all there was about it. Orta was three parts of a length in front of Aerolite, third. Time, 1:03 1-5.

The concluding race on the programme was one wherein every entry had to carry 150 pounds five-eighths of a mile, and eight horses responded to the bugle call. Vinco, Joe and Elwood were strongly backed, and on the last two named especially were there strong tips. Elwood threw his jockey, Monroe Johnson, who remounted the man-killer. Elwood thereupon went to nibbling grass at the side of the track. The flag fell after a considerable wait, and Joe was in the lead, closely attended by Vinco, Elwood third, over a length away. This was the order till nearing the homestretch, where Reverie came up third. In the straight Vinco came away from Joe like 'breaking sticks, and won from the punished Nevada representative by a neck, Joe a length a front of Reverie, third. Time, 1:05 1:5.

SEVENTH DAY—THURSDAY, APRIL 21, 1892.

There is lots of sporting blood in San Francisco, for a certainty, or there would not have been such a big crowd at the races to-day. About the time people generally start for the track the sky was overcast with leaden clouds, the fog came in from the Pacific so thick that it could almost be cut, and the course was as slow as lumps of mud could make it. The clouds rolled away with the fog, and the sun came out in all its glory by the time a start was effected in the first race, pulled off in a hand-gallop by Mr. W. O'B. Macdonough's grand-looking gray colt, Grandee. By the way, this is the young gentleman's first win, and it was a most popular victory, too. Grandee was at 8 to 1 in the betting, and won with ease from the much-touted Cyrus colt, By Jove. Lottie Mills won the second race, one mile, by a nose from the outsider, Bert Hart, who made up losts of ground in the homestretch. However, Narvaez may have been trying a "Garrison finish" on his California friends.

Following is a detailed description of the day's racing:

By Jove, on the strength of fast private trials, was at once installed favorite in the first race, five-eighths of a mile, for two-year-olds. Oporto, with Narvaez up, was well thought of, while Grandee, at 8 to 1, and the rest, went begging in the books. No auction pools were sold. Oporto was first to show at the flag-fall, Grandee next, lapped by the Rose colt, By Jove. At the half Oporto led Grandee by a head, By Jove three parts of a length away. Grandee gained at every stride on Oporto, and when the homestretch was entered had put a little daylight between himself and By Jove, who had fallen back soon after passing the half-pole. Down the straight they thundered, By Jove getting plentiful doses of lash. The gray colt, Grandee, who seemed in his element, won in a romp by a trifle over a length, By Jove second, half a length from Alliance. Oporto was fourth, not appearing to relish the mud. The time was 1:05¾.

SUMMARY.

Book-betting—Grandee, 8 to 1; By Jove, 7 to 5; Alliance, 6 to 1; Oporto, 3 to 1; Conde, 8 to 1; Sidney, 20 to 1.

The second race was a mile affair, and out of field of eight that started Lottie Mills was made a favorite, Braw Scot and Early having many admirers with coin. To a good start Lottie Mills took the track and opened up a length and a half of a daylight between herself and Blondinette, second, at the quarter. Braw Scot was third. The order was unchanged until nearing the three-quarters, when Early came up into third place and Braw Scot fell back. Bert Hart had improved his position, and was coming faster than anything in the race. Lottie Mills was eased up in the homestretch, and had to be shaken up by Narvaez 100 feet from the wire to stall off Bert Hart's rush. In an exciting finish Lottie Mills won by a scant nose, Bert Hart second, three-fourths of a length in front of Blondinette, hird. Time, 1:47—good, track considered.

SUMMARY.

The talent took another hard fall in the third race, the principal play being on Sir Reel and Castanet. Monowai went begging at 4 to 1, and just before the horses went to the post the odds against him reached 5 to 1. Sir Reel got off in front, lapped by Castanet and Martinet, Dick O'Malley fourth and Monowai fifth. Monowai ran through one after another of the horses in front of him as if they were tied up, and entering the homestretch even up with the favorite, Sir Reel, drew away from the Maltese Villa representative in great style, winning from the whipped-out Merced horse by a length and a half easily. Sir Reel, in the place, was three lengths in front of Dick O'Malley, third. Time, 1:05. Monowai had the top weight in the handicap, and his win stamps him as about the best two-year-old at present in training in California.

SUMMARY.

To a magnificent send-off Initiation led passing the stand, but all were in a bunch. At the quarter-pole it was Montana, Sheridan, Initiation, at the half-pole the same. Nearing the three-quarters Sheridan collared Montana, passed him, and entered the homestretch a neck in advance. Montana was whipped out hard, but it was of no avail, for Sheridan, in his element, floundered in a length and a half to the good, Montana second, six lengths from Revolver, third. Time, 1:53½. This was a great betting race, Sheridan, Montana and Initiation being warmly supported. The bookies must have reaped a harvest on the affair, for especially strong was Initiation played for the place.

Thirteen horses composed the field in the fifth and concluding race, in which the distance was five-eighths of a mile. Tearless, notwithstanding her poor performance earlier in the week, was made favorite, with Inkerman and Joe Ellis next in public estimation. To a rather straggling start Inkerman bounded away in front, with Tearless his nearest opponent, she lapped by Joe Ellis. This was the order till nearing the three-quarter pole, where Tearless passed Inkerman and entered the the homestretch about a length to the good, Joe Ellis and King Hooker close up on Inkerman. Tearless, well-ridden by Joe Narvaez, drew away handsomely in the homestretch, but Inkerman came again, and the crowd shouted, "Inkerman wins!" Shaking up Tearless, she went right away from the Santa Rosa gelding in the final sixteenth, landing the money for Ira Ramsdell by about a length and a quarter, Inkerman second, two lengths from King Hooker. Time, 1:05.

THE SOUTHER FARM SALE.

For the past six weeks the much-advertised Souther Farm sale has been the topic of conversation among all horsemen. The work that Mr. Gilbert Tompkins, the proprietor, performed in getting up an elaborate and comprehensive catalogue was something heretofore unheard of, and many old wiseacres predicted that "he would never get his money back," but the result of the sale proved that the "end justified the means."

On Wednesday morning Old Sol appeared in all his glory, and everyone who could get away from business cares, resolved to take the 9:30 boat for Oakland and ride in the special train (chartered for the occasion) for San Leandro. The cars were well filled with horsemen and their friends. At 10.30 they arrived at the beautiful quiet town at San Leandro, where stages were in waiting to convey them to the farm. The large assemblage found plenty to interest and instruct them in witnessing the horses swimming in the tank, inspecting the stallions, El Benton, Jester D., Figaro, Glen Fortune, Memo and Moorland, and watching the numerous drivers handling the colts and fillies that were to be sold during the afternoon.

At 11 A. M. about one thousand of the visitors sat down to a splendid lunch provided by the thoughtful proprietor of the place. The tables were set beneath the spreading branches of the cherry trees in the orchard. Some sixteen waiters were in attendance upon them, and everbody enjoyed the excellent coffee, sandwiches, milk, eggs and cake set before them. As soon as this large crowd arose from the table then places were filled by another delegation just as large. The participants relished the viands, and enjoyed the picnic-like preparations as well as the politeness of the waiters employed.

At twelve o'clock Mr. Tompkins blew a small whistle, and immediately thereafter the first horse was brought out to be sold. Messrs. Killip & Co., the well-known auctioneers, officiated, and when they looked upon the vast assemblage that were seated on the long rows of benches on both sides of the track, and standing closely together in front of their stand, smiles illumined their faces, for in that crowd they recognized nearly all the representative "small breeders" on the coast, many of whom came from Visalia, Fresno, Sacramento, Milpitas, Stockton, Haywards, Alameda, San Rafael and from other places adjacent to the bay.

Fred C. Talbot, owner of the Talbot Stock Farm, set the ball rolling by giving $240 for the gray Dexter Prince gelding Guenoc; the next very exciting bid was $500 offered for the brown filly Vera; this jumped to a $1,000 in a few seconds. The bidding was between John McCord and B. C. Holly, but the latter was bound to get her if she cost him $5,000, and finally she was knocked down to him for $1,950. Lady Sidney brought $1,000, Henry Pierce being the lucky bidder. Dan McCarty, as usual, secured a number of good ones, among them being Dinorah for $750, Kate Castleton, $850; Modjeska, $425; Wilfan, $700; Namora, $230; Wilfred Page & Bro. secured the black filly Sidita, only ten months old, by Sidney, for $925. The old mare Puss brought $450, James Linforth being her purchaser. Missie Medium was secured by P. Powers for $800. All of the animals offered brought good prices; they were shown in splendid condition (except the yearlings), and when the time came for departure, every animal in the catalogue was sold, and the total price received was $17,455, an average of $268.35.

THE GUN.

Ta-ra-ra-Boom-de-ay.

[By Charles Wesley Kyle.]

I'm a sportsman light and free,
And of skill of high degree,
Out at Oakland by the sea,
I will prove this fact to thee:
There on every Saturday,
If my shots go not astray,
You may sing this roundclay:
Ta-ra-ra-ra-boom-de-ay.

Chorus.

Ta-ra-ra-boom-de-ay, [eight times].

Surely there can be no curse,
That in singing could be worse,
Though sung by the fabled Circe,
In expression strong yet terse,
When your comrades mockingly
Of your misery make play,
As they laugh and singing say
Ta-ra-ra-ra-boom-de-ay.

Chorus.

When a "driver" strong and good,
Heeds not "Schultze," "Black" or "Wood."
Then your deep and angry blood,
Though unsaid is understood;
As afar your fleeting prey,
In derision seems to say,
As it wings its flight away:
Ta-ra-ra-ra-boom-de-ay.

Chorus.

When next August you shall go
Down to the Del Monte, O,
Strike then sure a center blow
That your friends may never know,
From the skill you there display,
That the birds of Monterey,
Have as yet not learned to say:
Ta-ra-ra-ra-boom-de-ay.

Chorus.

Ta-ra-ra-boom-de-ay,
In every language and inflection 'til you're tired

The San Francisco Gun Club.

On Saturday last the San Francisco Gun Club met at the traps for the third time this season. The attendance was good and the sport was most enjoyable throughout the afternoon. Owing to peculiar combination of circumstances the birds presented were the poorest, as a whole, that have ever been presented at the trap by Murphy, the pigeon man. We are inclined to believe that greater care will be used by him in the future, so that the sport may not be interfered with, on this account, in the future. The gentlemen of this club invariably manage to enjoy themselves at the trap, and this occasion was most pronounced in this line. In shooting at a lot of birds where the flight is so variable, we are persuaded that it is very hard to make the score equal even to that of a more vigorous average flight. This fact was strikingly demonstrated on the occasion above referred to, some of the best shots of the club being unable to cope with the striking contrasts, in flight, which the birds presented. We have had occasion to compliment Mr. Edward Donohoe on his shooting heretofore, and out of justice to his well nigh perfect manner of shooting, we are constrained to repeat, the sentiment, in even more positive terms than we have before used. Mr. Donohoe holds his gun well down below the elbow and on giving the word "pull" the gun is brought to the shoulder with a regularity and quickness which is surprising and fired the instant it touches the shoulder. Most of his kills are made with the first barrel and that with a coolness which is a pleasure to witness. Mr. Donohoe was the only man out of twenty-one shooting at the trap in this match, who made a perfect score.

Mr. Charles Laing followed him closely, on this occassion, grassing eleven of his birds in fine form, his loosing bird, the seventh, a swift diver which fell dead out of bounds. Mr. Laing shoots with regularity and never makes a poor score whatever the conditions may be.

Messrs. Eddy, Sprague and Swett grassed ten each out of the twelve birds fired at in the main match. These gentlemen are all quite regular in their shooting and may always be depended upon to make good scores.

Messrs. Swett, Kittle, Golcher, Tallant and Chapin killed nine birds each while Messrs. R. B. Woodward, Hamilton, Wooster, Orr and Black were compelled to register but eight each, which was a surprise to most of these gentlemen, as well as to their friends, most of them being usually several birds to the better.

Messrs. Buttler and Leviston secured seven birds each while Messrs. A. C. Tubbs, Webster and Sanborn secured but six birds each.

Mr. "Ames" found but five kills to his credit.

Mr. Orr found the safety of his gun securely "safe" on going to the score for his third shot and the bird winged unmolested, out of bounds. On his second score a fluttering "duffer" struck the ground simultaneously with the charge, his filling bird sprang away with surprising swiftness but managed to escape the boundary before falling.

SUMMARY.

Oakland Shooting Park, Oakland, California, April 16th, 1892.—The San Francisco Gun Club's third monthly contest of the season for the Club's annual prizes and medals. Mr. F. S. Buttler, President; Mr. Jno. K. Orr, Secretary; C. W. Kyle, referee. The score:

The gentlemen tieing on five birds shot at the sixth with the same result when they divided, closing the sport of the day.

The Lincoln Gun Club.

The monthly medal shoot of the Lincoln Gun Club took place at Alameda Point on Sunday last. The day was fine, though during the afternoon the wind blew quite strong and rendered the shooting very difficult. The events of this club are second to none in the matter of inanimate target shooting. A number of the foremost shooters found themselves out of form on this occasion, though some good shooting was done and as a whole the result was quite creditable to the contestants. The first match of the day was at twenty-one blue rocks and resulted as follows:

Daniels	1	0	0	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	0	1	1	1	1	1	—18

The California Wing-Shooting Club.

Easter morning dawned with all the beauty and freshness for which California weather can present. It was charming, invigorating, inspiring. The early hours of the morning witnessed numerous sportsmen with guns neatly cased swung from the shoulder and cases of shells in hand wending their way to the ferry preparitory to taking the trip across the bay, bound for the Oakland Shooting Park. From the multitude of persons gathered there it would appear that the people of this cosmopolitan city take different methods of celebrating this occasion.

The birds were in striking contrast to those furnished on the day before, true some of them were "duffers," but they were not too frequent for some of the sportsmen and the "run of luck" of some of them in securing these slow flyers was striking.

The light was somewhat brighter than one would wish for, but yet not much to complain of. The regular match of the club was interesting through out, many new faces appearing at the score, several of which did very good work.

Mr. Crittenden Robinson won the honors of the match on ten birds, his last two birds escaping being very swift drivers.

Mr. J. S. Cracknell, of the Jersey City Heights Club was present and participated in the day's sport, he, with Messrs. Barney and Haas secured nine birds each in the main event.

Messrs. H. C. Golcher, "Slade," Hunt, Dall and Fay secured eight birds each, while Slack came in with a credit of seven. Liddle, Schroeder, Taylor and Kyle playing an even game with the birds.

The shooting of Mr. Taylor, the one-armed champion, is something novel and worth seeing. Some of the swiftest driving and out-going quartering birds fell to his marvelous skill with the gun. He shoots a 12-guage gun, resting the butt on his thigh and throwing it with surprising swiftness and accuracy to the sholder after ordering the bird released. Mr. James Vance, the splendid sportsmen's caterer, presented his usual elegant spread at the luncheon hour which was highly enjoyed by all present.

SUMMARY.

Oakland Shooting Park, Oakland, Cal., April 17, 1892.—The California Wing Shooting Club's third regular event for the season of 1892. Mr. C. B. Smith, president; Mr. Crittenden Robinson, secretary; C. W. Kyle, referee. The score:

Crittenden Robinson	2	1	1	1	1	1	2	1	2	2	0	0	—15
C. J. Haas	2	2	2	0	2	*	1	2	2	2	2	—	9

In the first pool, $2.50 entrance, the result stood as follows:

Robinson	1	1	1	1	1	1—6
Golcher	1	1	1	1	1	2—6
Barney	0	2	1	2	1	1—5
Kumli	0	2	2	2	0	2—4
Dall	1	1	0	0	2	0—3
Fay	2	0	1	1	0	0—3
Haas	0	2	2	1	0	—3
"Slade"	1	0	2	1	0	—3
Cracknell	2	2	0	0	0	—2
Kelly	0	0				—0

The second pool resulted as follows:

Cracknell	1	1	2	2	1	2—6
"Slade"	1	0	1	1	1	1—5
Barney	1	1	2	0	2	1—5
Haas	1	2	0	2	2	0—4
Golcher	1	0	2	1	0	2—4
Kelley	2	1	2	0	0	0—3
Robinson	2	2	0	1	0	—3
Dall	3	0	1	1	0	—3
Kumli	0	1	1	1	0	—3
Fay	0	0	1			—1

Another pool match closed with the following score:

Schroeder	1	0	2	1	2	2—5
Fay	2	0	2	2	2	2—5
"Slade"	1	1	1	0	2	1—5
Barney	2	1	2	1	0	2—5
Dall	1	2	0	1	1	0—4
Haas	1	2	1	0	0	1—4
Kumli	0	1	1	0		—2
Cracknell	2	0	2	0		—2
Robinson	1	0	0			—2
Golcher	0	0				—0

The pigeons were all trapped at 3 o'clock P. M. and the sportsmen returned to the city in good season, regretting only that the supply of birds fell short of their desire for sport.

Mitchell-Brewer Match.

In reporting this match, the American Field says:

"Mr. William Tell Mitchell, of Lynch's, Va., and Captain John L. Brewer, of Philadelphia, shot a match at 50 live birds per man, at Richmond, Va., on April 6th. Mr. Mitchell winning the race by one bird. Some two hundred sportsmen witnessed the match. Both men did good work, the score being 47 to 46. Brewer killed twenty-nine straight, missed his thirtieth, thirty-first, forty-fourth, and forty-fifth birds. Mitchell missed his eleventh twenty-first, and twenty-second, killing twenty-eight straight.

"Captain Brewer shot a Westley Richards 12-guage hammerless ejector, weighing 7 pounds 10 ounces. His shells were loaded with 3¼ drams of American Wood powder and 1¼ ounces of Tatnam's No. 7 chilled shot. Mitchell shot a Greener hammerless 12-guage gun, weight 7 pounds 7 ounces. His shells were loaded with 3¾ dramsof Schultze powder and 1⅛ ounces Le Roy No. 7 chilled shot. The birds, taken as a lot, were good flyers, and the scores in keeping with the reputation of the shooters.

"Brewer used his second barrel 34 times, while Mitchell's second barrel was used only 15 times, though a great many of the birds on which the second barrel was used were killed with the first. Brewer and Mithell each lost one bird dead out of bounds. Brewer had 19 right-quarterers, 8 left-quarterers, 13 drivers, 7 incomers and 4 towerers. Mitchell had 14 right-quarterers, 6 left-quarterers, 13 drivers, 14 incomers and 3 towerers."

We quote the above not so much for the news which it does contain, as to call attention again to the fact that the methods now in vogue for reporting close matches, like the above, fail totally in conveying the information desired, viz., the exact skill of the contestants. The information which is not contained in the above is all important. Brewer used his second barrel thirty-four times, while Mitchell used his second but fifteen times, but nothing is said as to whether the second barrel of either man was used from necessity; that is, when a clean or partially inefficient shot was made by first, leaving the bird in the air with probably sufficient strength to escape, and requiring the use of second barrel to bring it down. It is all important, in judging of the skill of a sportsman, to know this fact, and also to know how soon the second barrel is used, or, in other words, how near the trap, approximately, the bird was dropped.

The exceptions, in which the sportsmen exercises judgment on a swift corkscrew flyer, are not too frequent to be separately noted. In the above match Captain Brewer may have exhibited the better skill, and if so, this fact should and would be known under a proper method of reporting. Mitchell had fourteen incomers, while Brewer had only seven, which certainly was a strong percentage in Mitchell's favor. In quartering birds, nothing is said as to whether they were outgoing or incoming quarterers, a fact which is all important in determining the skill of the contestants. Were the escaping birds missed clean or were they punished more or less severely? What direction did the escaping birds take, and what their flight as to speed? How often was second barrel used from necessity or for safety by each man? Which one dropped the greater number of birds nearer the trap by use of first, and if using second barrel from necessity, by use of second barrel?

By using C. W. Kyle's new method of scoring live bird matches, all of these facts may be readily recorded, and all the above-suggested information be readily handled in a report, however short and concise it may be desired. These score books, a description of the plan embodied in them, being given again in last week's issue of the Breeder and Sportsman, may be obtained by sending postage to this office. Anyone may familiarize themselves with the method in a few moments. This system is invaluable in reporting skilled matches. Send for a copy and convince yourself of this statement.

Nebraska sportsmen are enterprising, pronouncedly so, and deserve great credit in putting up $1,000 added money in their coming tournament to be held at Grand Island. In olden times Joe Woods, Frank Parmlee and C. W. Budd led the local contingent in that district. We have no doubt but that each of the gentlemen named will be "in it" at the coming contest.

ROD.

The Music of the Reel.

By Charles Wesley Kyle.

There is music in the woodland
When the matin breezes blow
Through the forest trees that shadow
The fresh river's rippling flow,
Where the golden sunbeams softly
Through the leafy branches steal,
And the angler's ear is gladdened
By the whirring of the reel.

Do you love the mountain valleys?
Do you love afar to roam
Where, on rocks, the mountain river
Beats its wavelets into foam?
Then come with me in the morning,
With your rod and boots and creel,
And we'll angle for the artists
That make music on the reel.

Up amid the peaks that glisten
With eternal robes of snow
Which, kissed by the warm sun, furnish
Life to shrub and flower below,
Where its waters laugh and gambol,
Shouting loud, peal after peal,
We will wait and watch and listen
For the music of the reel.

There are players skilled and finished
In the art of music's school,
But none can play the instrument
Of the tribe within the pool.
Cast your flies upon the waters,
If the pleasure you would feel
Which is wakened by the music,
Flowing from the spinning reel.

Now the winds, low through the branches
With slow wingings, softly steal;
And the striking of the artist
Now within the pool, you feel.
Gently wakens now, as echoes,
The soft touches of the breeze;
And the artist in the river
Strikes upon the piercing keys.

Now the music hums and quavers,
Oh! the joyous thrill you feel
As, awakened from its slumbers,
Sings with glee the whirling reel!
Joys there may be that will equal
Those, which thus, we all may feel,
But to me there's none that's better
Than the music of the reel.

Hatching and Planting on the Pacific Coast.

Fish life is regarded by many authorities as the most uncertain of all animal life, says Miss Lillie B. Ballard in an exchange. It is for this reason that our Government, in common with that of several European nations, holds that the propagation of fish under what are known as artificial conditions is a wise plan.

At the very outset the benefits of artificial hatching are seen in the fact that, while according to Seth Green only five per cent of salmon eggs laid in the natural state are impregnated, and a far less percentage, though wholly unknown, ever become full-grown fish, by the Russian or dry process of handling ninety-eight per cent of them are impregnated, and of these ninety-seven per cent are hatched.

The Sisson salmon hatchery, which is operated by the Fish Commissioners of California, is the largest in the world. In it are hatched yearly 2,000,000 to 4,000,000 salmon, beside large numbers of trout, and the capacity of the hatchery is about ten times greater than the output. This season the hatchery has 3,000,000 eggs in the process of incubation, the work all being performed under the superintendency of J. A. Richardson, who is a very busy man just at this time, when the many pink currant globules in his troughs have to be watched with the greatest of care.

These eggs have all come from the United States Fish Hatchery at Hat Creek, where the parent fish are taken in seines or traps and the eggs are secured by the usual process, and where they are impregnated by the male fish, who deposits upon them a fluid known as milt, which causes the eggs to change from white to a light pink. It is a strange thing that Nature has provided the salmon with no muscles to eject the eggs, and that the fish must rub along a hard surface—generally a rock on the river bottom—in order to lay her eggs. By the artificial process two men take hold of the fish with gloved hands and gently squeeze the eggs into a trough. If, after being taken, the fish is found not to be "ripe" or ready to spawn, she is put into a cage in the water, and kept there until the eggs are ready to be deposited.

The average number of eggs taken from a fish this year has been 4,516. From one large salmon 8,000 eggs were taken last month.

As soon as practical after being taken the eggs are shipped by train to the State hatchery at Sisson. They are packed in frames covered in the bottom with caton flannel, and are kept at a low temperature en route. On arriving at the hatchery the frames are emptied into large asphaltum-lined troughs, each frame being washed clear of its eggs by pouring water on it from a tin dipper. The eggs are kept in little wire cages in the troughs, and lie on the bottom under three or four inches of water.

A careful inspection is made daily, and any of the eggs which show signs of being addled are removed. The inspector also aims to keep the cages clear of eggs that are not impregnated. The sign of impregnation is a little dark spot on one side of the globule. If this is absent no fish can be hatched from the egg. The business of fish hatching—and particularly that of salmon hatching—is conducive of many ills, and especially of rheumatism. This is because the fish hatcher, if he may be so called, must keep his hands in water that is never of a higher temperature than 48 degrees, and sometimes far below that figure. Gloves cannot be used to advantage, and consequently the fingers must stand the wetting and the stiffening in the cold water.

The limpid fluid that flows from snow-clad Chasta into the Sisson Hatchery looks clear and pure enough for any purpose, and yet, clear and pure as it seems, flowing through the glistening black troughs, it is found necessary to often scour the troughs out, for the eggs will not hatch unless they are perfectly clean.

When, in a few weeks, the baby fish emerge from their shells, they are put into a large trough, where they remain from two to four months, and then, being considered fit to take care of themselves, are turned into the streams and left to make their own way into the world. Where they are turned into Sacramento river, they, of course, eventually reach the ocean, and this is the disposition generally made of them, it being supposed that sea salmon will not live long in fresh water.

Some very interesting experiments have been made by the Fish Commissioners, however, in keeping salmon in freshwater ponds. In Sisson's Pond, near the town of Sisson and about half a mile from the State hatchery, there were placed, two years ago, nearly 2,000 young salmon, varying in length from one to one and one-half inches. The greater number of these fish are still in the pond, and are very lively, though they will not be tempted by any kind of bait that an angler may use. They are all small in size, weighing from one to two pounds, while, had they been permitted to go to salt water, they would have weighed by this time from eight to twelve pounds each.

Experiments have been made to salt the water artificially, but these have failed. Mr. Richardson once removed some of the fish and placed them in salt water, with the intention of trying to remove the fungus which adhers to them after remaining a long time in fresh water, and also the worms which fasten upon their gills and suck their blood, these being the chief causes of the retarding of their growth. On putting a fish into a trough of salt water it lashed about and made such will struggles that it became evident that the sudden change from the fresh water was anything but agreeable. In thirty seconds the fish turned up on its side and floated on the surface, but on being returned to the fresh water of the pond it seen revived and darted away. The same experiment was tried with many of these land-locked sea salmon, with practically the same results in each case. Those remaining a few minutes in the salt water died. It was not believed that the water was too salt, there being no more salime matter in it than in ordinary sea water, but that the change from the fresh water was too sudden. It is believed that the fish play back and forth at the river mouth until they become accustomed to the salt water before going out to sea. There is no doubt that sea salmon could be made to thrive in fresh water if a properly graded series of salt and fresh water pools were arranged in order that they could occasionally take a dip in the salt fluid and ges rid of the parasites which cling to them and retard their growth in the fresh ponds.

There is a great difference of opinion among fish-hatchers as to the length of time which young salmon should be kept before being turned loose in the streams. Some think that if the salmon are turned out at once after being hatched, they will the more readily accustom themselves to the habits of their enemies and to learn to avoid their attacks, while if they are kept until they are five or six inches long, they will fall an easy prey to their enemies, not knowing anything regarding them or how to flee and hide from them. Others claim, however, that the fish stand a much better chance of living and thriving if they are not turned loose until they are sever or eight months old.

The informatihn has recently been received by the Fish Commissioners that the foes of the salmon are on the increase.

A new source of danger to the salmon is the large number of carp that have of late made their homes in the Sacramento, McCloud and Pitt rivers. The Pitt River and Squaw Creek are reported by experts to be swarming with carp, and that they will clear the streams of the spawn and young of salmon, any one who knows anything of their habits will at once surmise. The commissioners are greatly alarmed over these reports, for if the carp remain, as there is every reason to expect they will, the work of the great salmon hatchery will be set at naught.

The existence of leather carp in our streams was reported to Marshall McDonald, the United States Fish Commissioner at Washington, recently. He sent back word that he greatly doubted the report. Competent experts here, who know a leather carp when they see one as readily as they know a fishing rod, emphatically declare that they are, indeed, that fish, and they will make such a report to Commissioner McDonald as will convince him that such is the fact.

Deputy Commissionert Thomas Tunstead, John P. Babcock and Filbert Bacigalupi have had much hard work to perform this season, and they are all of the opinion that more deputies are needed for patrol work and inspection. To watch the wily millmen and keep them from dumping sawdust into the streams, to see that no salmon are taken in the closed season, and to keep a sharp lookout for traps and seines, requires much vigilance, and the three deputies are often impressed with the fact that California is a very large State.

The deputies recently had a lively skirmish with Chinese fishermen on San Pablo Bay. The Mongols were taking small fish in their nets and were thus violating the law. A boat containing the deputies approached a fleet of junks whose owners had been carrying on this illicit business and undertook their capture. The Chinese paid no attention to the commands of the deputies to run their boats ashore and surrender themselves. Neither did they heed in the slightest degree the fusilade from the rendezvous of the deputies, who first fired above the fishermen's heads, and, finding that ineffective, then aimsd at the lower part of the hulls of the first junk encountered. While they presented a calm front to these attacks, the fishermen were, nevertheless, very anxious to prevent a capture, and when the deputies boat came near them they tried to push it off with their oars. Deputy Babcock jumped aboard the junk, however, and effected the capture with his finger on the trigger of the revolver, while the other officers went off to take the other boats of the fleet.

Such captures are sometimes made at night. For a deputy to go aboard a craft alone, among a lot of heathens, all of whom may, for all he knows, be well armed, and to be left on the boat in the darkness, the capture being wholly dependent on his nerve and grit, is not the sort of experience to make a man particularly happy. But the life of a deputy fish commissioner is very far from being a bed of roses at the best.

The new trout hatchery in Bear Valley, Marion County, is nearly completed, and will soon be supplied by the commission with 400,000 eggs.

It was expected that 200,000 eggs would be taken to L. Tahoe this season, but the number only reached 125,000, of which 88,000 have been planted as follows: In Donner Creek, 10,000; Cold Stream, 15,000; Little Truckee River, three and a half miles from Webber Lake, 25,000; Mortis Creek, 6,000; Union Mill Creek, 4,000; Little Truckee River, two miles from Webber Lake, 13,000; Webber Lake, 15,000.

A Disappointed Angler.

It was just after 5 o'clock Friday afternoon, when he reached Fulton Market. He was fagged out and disappointed, as any other trout fisherman would have been who had never a fin to show for his opening day expedition, says Forest and Stream. But he was a bit canny, and had come the long way round, not so much to see the trout display as to buy a fish or two, which, if all went well, he might palm off on a confiding wife and family as convincing evidence of the prolificness of Long Island trout streams and unquestioned trophies of his own skill. He wandered in a dazed and manifestly disappointed way amid the mossy banks on which reposed scores of giant beauties, and between the translucent tanks in which othea huge fellows were lazily disporting themselves and showing off their spots as vainly and as self-consciously as so many peacocks.

There were big fish galore; no doubt about that—magnificent specimens from Arkansas notable for their light shades of coloring; long red-bellied monarchs from Canadian pools; Cape Codders whose sides shown like a New Jersey rifle trophy, and heavy-weights from Long Island and Caledonia; but the disappointed angler was evidently hard to please, the more he looked the deeper grew the lines of chagrin on his face.

"You don't appear to stick to the legal limit of length very closely," said he, when he came to Mr. Blackford.

"I don't! The limit is six inches, is it not?"

"Yes."

"Well, do you see anything here that looks smaller than that?" asked the ex-Fish Commissioner, waving his hand comprehensively over the two and three and four and five pounders,

"Oh no, I did not mean that," said the disappointed angler. "I was only looking for two or three fish as small as possible, as near six inches as you had them, say six and an eighth."

"What do you want with such fingerlings for?"

"Well, you see, I meant to take them home, and to tell my wife I caught them myself; and I want her to believe me you know. She just couldn't do it with these big fellows. She isn't used to them. The children have been brought up on smaller trout. Can't you find me something reasonable, something nearer the limit, something my truthful family can swallow?"

"I'm sorry that I cannot fit you out," said Mr. Blackford, "but here, take this, and tell her it's the 'big one that got away,' about which you've been spinning yarns to her all these years."

"No," said the disappointed angler, "she would not believe that either, for the fish that I've told her about is as big as any four in your whole trout opening."

And he departed as he had come, to join the innumerable caravan that wends its way fishless to its abode at the close of every trout opening day.

California's Fish at the Fair.

The action of the California State World's Fair Commission at a recent meeting in reconsidering their previous action in selecting Alfred V. LaMotte to make a collection of California fish for an exhibit at the World's Fair, leaves the matter of practical work still open. We trust that on no account will the work of collecting the fish of this State be delayed, to the end that a full and complete exhibit may be made. Under whatever arrangements may be finally made by the State World's Fair Commission, the matter of securing the fish for an exhibit may be materially assisted by the anglers of the State generally, if an office for the reception of specimens be opened where the voluntary donations of all those interested may be received and cared for. A collection may be thus secured which no doubt would aid and assist the project in a very material way. In the matter of securing the exhibit, the offer of Prof. David Starr Jordon, made to the commission, that the students of ichthyology, under his tuition, are willing to make collections in this project for their expenses in so doing, is timely and most liberal, and we trust will be favorably acted upon at an early date. We know of no other authority in the State or on the Pacific Coast, whose work in the matter could be deemed, in any manner, equal to that of Prof. Jordan's, and under this proposition the work would practically be his own. Let the generous offer be acted upon favorably at once.

Fish-Catching Dogs.

Two dogs, male and female, were seen by a policeman at the foot of Third street about dark last night looking attentively over the edge of the dock, says the Cleveland Press. Suddenly one was seen to plunge into the river, while the other stood on the dock a few moments, showing every sign of delight, and then it too was seen to plunge into the water.

The policemen thinking that perhaps the dog owners had fallen overboard and that the dogs had plunged in to rescue them, hastened to the scene.

No man was there, but in the mouth of each dog a large water rat was struggling for liberty, while the dogs fiercely tried to shake the life out of them.

The policemen carried the dogs after getting them from the water and brought them to the Central Station, at which soon after the owner, who lives at Grosse Pointe, called for them. They were of a species known as fish-hounds and had been brought from the South. The resembled the Mexican in color and in having no hair save a tuft on the forehead, but in size they were as large as fox-hounds.

Their owner, a fisherman living at Grosse Point, catches his fish with a sein and the fish are afterward placed in a staked inclosure. When fish are wanted the dogs are so trained that they plunge in and bring the desired one to their master. They are held at a good stiff price, as the owner finds them a source of great profit.

Bench Shows.

The Southern California Kennel Club's [illegible] April 20, 21, 22 and 23, 1892. C. A. Sumner, Secretary, Los Angeles, Cal.

The California Kennel Club's show, May 4, 5, 6 and 7, at San Francisco. Frank J. Silvey, Secretary and Manager, 436 Montgomery street, San Francisco.

Chicago, Ill., June 12.—World's Fair bench show at the Columbian Exhibition. Show Building. Entries [illegible] May 20th.

Mr. James Mortimer and King of Kent form a very pleasing picture in current number of Forest and Stream.

Reports from Los Angeles indicate a very successful show in progress there during this week. Judge Mortimer is proving himself the right man in the right place. The exhibit is good in numbers and quality.

Mr. E. A. Manice proposes a $250 challenge cup for competition of his favorite breed, the dachshund annually at Boston and New York. The cup shall be the property of the exhibitor winning it five times.

Hope's Mark is dead. The distemper chose a shining mark in selecting this dog on which to wreak its vengeance, few dogs of the day giving equal promise to this splendid field trial and bench show winner.

Two dogs were lost out of the building at the Boston show. They were both pugs. Too great care cannot be used in guarding dogs at bench shows. Neither of these dogs had been heard of up to the close of the exhibition.

It will be encouraging to the fanciers of Irish setters in this section to learn that the Oak Grove Kennels have engaged Mr. Joe Lewis to take charge of these representative Irish setter kennels and train the red beauties for field work.

It must be quite a satifaction to Mr. Henry Huber, owner o Duke of Vernon, to know that Duke of Dexter, sired by the Duke of Vernon, won first at New York and Boston. The Forest and Stream presents a fine picture of the latter in current issue.

The United States Field Trials Club have selected Elizabethtown, Ky., as the place for holding their field trials which will begin on Monday, November 7th. The statement of the committee says that there are fields containing 300 acres which will enable "a wide-ranging dog to display his quality."

What's in a name? That's the question. Is it not better to whistle to the long-haired Russian canine, when you may want him, than to worry over Dandie Dinmonts, Pomeranians, Pekins, etc., etc.? And who will now be found so courageous as to call them wolf-hounds? Silence presseth its warning finger on the lips of those who erstwhile spake, as boasting giveth way to dazed reflection. Heap nice?"

Patti is still mourning the loss of her pet dog Ricci, who died Saturday last. "It was very sad," said Sig. Nicolini yesterday. "The madame she feel very—what you say—triste? Mon dieu, it was terrible. She love the poor dog. He was not pretty, but when you call! Oh, my! The very poor dog. He was cold always. He had hair none, only on the very tip of his poor little tail. The madame is yet sick. She adore the poor frappe dog. He catch the cold in his bandbox. He die. The very poor dog.—New York World.

Mr. E. C. O. Huhn of this city is the owner of the beautiful English setter, Jess, whelped May 18th 1890 by Cliff (Fritz—Dido out of Blanche Petroleum—Lily). In color she is black, white and tan and is a bitch of great promise. Mr. Huhn thinks her a prize winner, and is willing to abide the judgment of Mr. Mortimer on that question. Petrel [illegible] (Gladstone 7,152—Leila. Leila by Leicester 12,711 out of Kirby 415. Gladstone by Llewellin's Dan 1,336 out of Petrel 472. It will be noted that she comes of good blood. Mr. George T. Allender has her in charge.

The voice of grief should ever be respected, but there is a bit of humor to be derived from the following statement of the wailings of Mlle. Fabbri as she wept over the death of her Mexican dog Quick. She said:

"Oh, ze parvre leetle Queek. He were too good, too beautiful to live. Sapristi, nobody in zis climate can live. Mme. Patti, she haf three dogs since her leetle Riki; ze one wif no hair, he died. For me, ah nevair. I will nevair love anoder dog. Ah, Queek, mon petit chien—Pettigiani, Pettigiani, pass ze wataire; I go to faint."

Mr. A. Russell Crowell and Mr. L. L. Campbell left the city on last Monday evening for Los Angeles to attend the bench show in that city which opened on Wednesday last. The last named gentleman took with him a string of dogs including his own Irish setter bitch Lady Josie and Mr. C. J. Alborn's Irish setter Brace; Mr. John Heffernan's St. Bernard Grand Chancellor and Mr. W. H. Collin's bull terriers, Spotless Princes and Twilight and others. Mr. Crowell took Republican, Mr. Martin's well-known St. Bernard. We would not be surprised to see them return with more than one blue ribbon on their string.

Dr. A. C. Davenport, the well known fancier and breeder of Cockers, of Stockton, writes:

"Enclosed please find account of the whelping of my kennels yesterday with the freak of nature of sire and dam, both black, solid white puppy, out of the 8. I regret very much that the little white one died. I should have taken great pains in raising it for my kennel.

Please send me a few register blanks. My dogs are coming up in great shape for the bench show. Bronta 17,064 I don't think ever was in as good condition as now. Maud E. 17,065, also Bell Dot by Critter ex Wenistock Belle are training up a No. 1. I will show two of Brontas and Maud E, now two months olds, both black (dog and bitch), which will make five entries."

This is the proper spirit. If all kennel men were like Dr. Davenport, the dog would come to the front more rapidly.

The California Kennel Club Show.

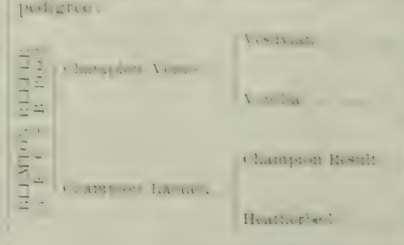
The work of the California Kennel Club is being pushed rapidly to completion. The work of pushing the preparations is telling daily in the number of entries that are being made. The entries from other places than this city are a shade higher than have ever been known before and point to a material increase in the showing to be made. The handsome banners and illustrations placed about over the city by the managing committee show that the exhibition is being well managed in that important particular. The work of preparation at the Wigwam is well in hand and it is to be hoped that the preparations will be complete for handling the dogs on the opening of the show. The Forest and Stream in speaking of the list of specials offered by the club for competition on the above-named occasion says that it is the largest they have ever seen. This is quite complimentary to the gentlemen of the club. The public may depend upon it that they will be treated to a fine exhibit on visiting this show. If you have not entered your dogs as yet, do so at once, by calling on or communicating with the secretary of the club at 436 Montgomery street, this city.

Coursing To-morrow at Newark.

A great all-aged open coursing meeting under the auspices of the Occidental Coursing Club will be held at Newark on Sunday, April 24th, entrance fee $5 each, hare free. There will also be a puppy stake for club members only. The draw took place at 21 Kearney Street last night. John Grace has assured the Club that he will judge this meeting. James Wren will act as slipper. The hares are strong and swift. The ground is in fine condition and a grand day's sport is anticipated. John Dugan of the Newark House will furnish lunch and refreshments. Boat connecting with train will leave foot of Market Street, S. F., on Sunday, April 24th, at 8.15 A. M. Fare for the round trip, $1.00, admission to the park, 25 cents. Ladies free.

Visits.

Thomas Higgs, San Francisco, Cal., has bred "Bess" Chesapeake Bay bitch by "Duke" 15,902, out of "Wave" 10,806, to owners Chesapeake Bay dog "Trout" by Drake 4674, out of "Dundee" 5441, April 21st, 1892.



J. B. Martin, San Francisco, Cal, has bred Golden Clip, foxterrier bitch by Blemton Shiner ex Vixen, to Messrs. Kobicke, and Martin's foxterrier dog Blemton Reefer by Champion Venie ex Champion Rachel, at San Francisco, March 28th.

Whelps.

At Echo Cocker kennels, Stockton, Cal., Woodstock Ada, b. k. Cocker spaniel bitch, by Ch. Obo.—Woodstock Dinah, 8, to Bronta 17,064, solid black, 4 dogs, 1 solid white, 6 solid black and tan, April 15, 1892.

A little incident relating to Champion Nestor, told by W. C. Nash at the time it happened, is very interesting, and proves in this particular case, at any rate, the celebrated old hound showed an intuitive judgment which even excelled that of Mr. Nash, says English Stock-keeper. Several very weedy-looking bloodhound whelps having been placed in a pail so that they might travel by water to the happy hunting grounds, and there perhaps start life afresh under most promising conditions, were left by Nash for dead, when he noticed the pail and its contents he missed one or two, but it did not make any impression on his mind as he thought they might have been disposed of by one of the men. Judge of his astonishment, however, when next day he heard squeals proceeding from one of the kennels of the stud dogs above all other places. Without thinking of the pups missing from the pail, it would be perfectly excusable if he had thought that nature had been playing one of her freakish tricks in the doggy world, and one does not at all wonder that he could hardly believe his eyes when on looking round among these said stud dogs, he found old Nestor carefully licking over some very small puppies in the most approved motherly fashion, and curled round them as though he had brought up small dogs all his life; it need hardly be said that these lucky little beggars did not visit the pail a second time, but to the credit of old Nestor, turned out very good specimens of their breed.

Mr. C. H. Kobicke and J. B. Martin have purchased from August Belmont, Esq., the fox-terrier dog Blemton Reefer, winner of fourth prize in the open class at the recent New York show. This was the best open class of dogs shown in America. Amongst the dogs placed after Reefer were Raby Trigger, Dobbin, Brockenhurst Tyke, Ebor Spendthrift and Painter, all of which have won prizes in England. The breeding of Reefer is certainly the best, as it combines the blood of the champion dog of England with the champion bitch of America. We herewith give a portion of Reefer's pedigree:

Saturday, April 30th, Mr. E. D. Fulford meets Mr. J. A. R. Elliott at Kansas City to contest at 50 birds each for the American Field Wing-Shot Cup. We guess Elliott, but a guess is about all we would care to risk on the match between these excellent shots.

Mr. J. C. Cracknell, of the Jersey City Heights Gun Club, is visiting in the State and occasionally trying his hand on the pigeons of California. He thinks them swift and tenacious of life.

SPECIAL DEPARTMENT

EDITED BY

JOSEPH CAIRN SIMPSON.

The Standard Again.—The debates at the Annual Meeting of the American Trotting Register Association were chiefly confined to the "standard" and "records." While the first named topic elicited the largest portion of the talk, and there were more disagreements to reconcile, in my estimation, the record imbroglio is by far the most important in its bearings on trotting interests. The standard in reality is not so great a factor as a large majority of people are inclined to believe, but "the sales" of the last few months have been an educator and will continue to present lessons which the student cannot fail to be benefited thereby if he gives some attention to the facts presented. As I have heretofore frequently stated there is a great deal of good, and a great deal of humbug in the standard. The humbug has been partially overcome, the beneficial better understood.

An editorial in Clark's Horse Review comes very nearly to the point and while I may overrate its importance in consequence of being in accordance with my views, the idea is certainly correct and the writer has voiced it in so few words that there is no chance for misunderstanding. In so very few words that it may be called an inspiration, and could worthily be taken as the motto of the Association and printed in big letters over the door of the inner sanctum, blazoned on the title page of the magazine, inscribed on the letter heads, and capitalized on certificates of registry. The question is put. "What, then, is the real office of the standard and register?" The first clause of the responding question is sufficient answer without real necessity for further amplification. "Recording the [illegible] of [illegible] and the opening word or reduce to genealogies confirmed and registered, and the job is done.

So very simple that it may appear the height of absurdity to presume that so simple an answer can be accepted as if of any weight, especially after the long arguments are read, which are given in another portion of the journal. Had the inspiration come sooner and the writer, if not a member of the Assembly, impressed the idea on some one who was, the long speeches on the points chosen for debate would have been "manifestly immaterial and irrelevant."

So far as I am acquainted with the speakers they are men of sound and logical minds and could not fail to see the meaning. Thirty-three years ago I made the acquaintance of Norman J. Coleman and from then until now have rated him one of the brighest among the many bright men who have horse-proclivities, or it may be more euphonistically said a strong fancy for and affectionate interest in the horse, especially the trotting horse. A thoroughly practical knowledge even to the extent of preparing them for and handling them in races, and had the first secretary of agriculture been compelled to "make his living" by trotting horses, there would have been another prominent professor of the art of training and driving trotters, and in that case he would have been more favorable to near crosses of the [illegible]. Messrs. M. Kinney and Broadhead I have known nearly a third of a century and those who have had the same opportunities for acquaintance and estimate will not hesitate in endorsing the high valuation I place on their knowledge and judgment. Messrs. Brown and Wilson are practical men and though my acquaintance with them does not cover so long a period as the others named it has been of sufficient length to convince me on that point. From the remarks made by Judge Oliver and the arguments he presented he is also entitled to be placed very high in the ability list. These were the main speakers on the standard, and had that main proposition, as expressed in the Review, been formulated before the debate opened there is little question that there would have been less differentiation a greater degree of harmony in their minds. Simply this the "office" of the standard is a basis on which the foundation for trotting pedigrees can be laid. Verification of pedigrees and perservation by registry the duties of the officers who have charge of the business. I think few will deny that stability demands a degree of conservatism; that there shall be no changes after it has once been fairly settled what the foundation of a trotting pedigree shall be if the progeny of animals which have been entered under the first classification have shown capacity that proves the requirements were sufficiently stringent. Twice the rules for admission have been changed and the late meeting was over the question of further changes. From first to last the jangle has arisen from a false valuation of the standard, and a confusion of ideas in regard to the cause of the falling off of prices in the standard animals.

The public at large were deceived for a time, and "Standard and Registered" accepted as a full certificate of merit. Mr. Wilson stated that he had attended a sale in Indiana when "the whole outfit through did not average a hundred dollars, while five years ago they would have averaged five hundred dollars." Standard was no longer an open sesame to plethoric pocketbooks, and this feeling was intensified from the fear (so Mr. Wilson thought) that there would be further tinkering with the standard. Governor Coleman held that excelsior should be the motto, and a very good one it is if actual merit were the marking on the higher rounds of the ladder which our old friend was climbing. But the mere substitution of 2:25 for 2:30 in the broodmare ranks, and thus discredit the progeny of the slower, when that might be the best of the two, does not "mark up" a great deal, while it is dead sure to "mark down." The fact is that the Year Book is far more potent than the Register in fixing prices, and that is the gauge which will always be accepted. Both, of course, will be studied by the careful buyer, and when there is joint support and the form is also satisfactory, the credentials will pass muster. The astute buyer will give close attention to characteristics which are not embodied in either Register or Year Book, and though these qualities have in a measure been overlooked, from now on closer attention will be given. That is form, disposition and size. The higher classification, standard, or whatever the excelsior motto may mean, does not include anything but speed and blood lines, and should it be adopted, there will be the somewhat paradoxical enigma that members of the lapis lazuli families may bring less money at auction sales than those which are decidedly of a plebian caste.

Partly in jest, partly in earnest. I made a suggestion some time ago, including an exstandard list in the Register. That was to be based on a lapse of the qualities which entitled them to registration, and should progeny fail, after due trial, to prove that "heridity" had wrought the charm it is believed to exert, the inheritance would be forfeited. But there is no necessity of throwing them out of the fold when the true value of standard and registered is understood. Buyers discriminate, and when blood is not associated with good form and great achievements, then possessing the first alone will, as Mr. Browne so forcibly and tersely stated, be relegated to "the street car, the hack, the bus." High or low standard there is where they belong, and where they must land and no amount of "booming" will save them from degradation.

Heretofore I have drawn a comparison between the Stud Book and Register and it will not be out of place to carry it further. About the only contention, I can call, in regard to admission into the American Stud Book was whether five or seven uncontaminated crosses should dominate. To accept the higher scale of eligibility meant the exclusion of some of our best race horses and most successful broodmares. Fortunately admission or rejection was in the hands of one man, and, very wisely, he adopted a schedule which would admit those which had a less number of armorial bearings, and if the bar sinister was not close at hand admission was granted.

Following the precedent established by the English compiler, Arabs, Barbs, Turkish, Persian, Spanish horses were also given a place and no harm has resulted. The racing Calendar was the "organ" which fixed prices, and actual and individual qualifications, the basis for large sums being paid. Even when the Stud Book was silent and not one pure cross on the maternal side could be claimed, a single animal bred in that may have sold for more money than a score of inferior descendants of the Royal mares with twenty generations of pure blood intervening would realize.

That would not justify lowering the standard of admission, neither does it follow that because standard horses have sold from $40 to $100 there should be a higher standard. Until Manon trotted in 2:21 her dam Addie, would not have ranked in a high standard, and it may be that she was not entitled to registry under the easiest rules, and even after Manon showed so well her brother, Woodnut, did not bring a high price. A gentleman in San Francisco was offered Manon when a two-year-old or Manette when a yearling, for a small sum, under $400, rejecting them, as he did not fancy the breeding of their dam. Woodnut got a record of 2:16½ "in a race" and proved that he was a game, resolute trotter, and he sold for $20,000, the fact of his relationship to Manon adding to his value.

Notwithstanding that sister and brother had gained distinction and that the Electioneers were taking a prominent place in trotting records, a son of Electioneer from Manette was sold without bringing a large price, and his services were not in demand at a moderate fee. But 1891 brought a boom, the like of which was never known before. Arion, foaled March 13, 1889, came out August 11, 1891 and beat two competitors in a two-year-old stake at San Jose in "straight heats" in 2:31, 2:25½. On September 10th, at Sacramento, he beat three competitors in 2:27 and 2:21, the game and speedy Kebir holding the second place. These races were on regulation tracks, and then came his struggles against time. October 6th, to beat 2:21, sequel 2:15¾; October 21st to beat 2:15¾, result 2:14½; November 10th, to beat 2:14½, another victory, the greatest of all, 2:10¾. Championship honors in every instance, three times below the fastest. Following these grand exhibitions there could only be one sequence, purchase $125,000, the largest amount ever paid for an animal, and legitimately thereafter came the sale of his yearling brother for $25,000, and such an appreciation of the elder one of the family that his book was quickly filled at about four times the amount placed on previous services. The only way the prices of this great family can be sustained will be further proof of merit, after a fair chance has been awarded, and it is well within the bounds of probability that the offspring of stallions and mares which are lightly rated now may lead in the fray. But until there is failure the present estimate will prevail, and should prevail irrespective of what the standard represents.

Mr. Broadhead's fear that unless a higher standard is adopted there will be a competing Register, and that that one will receive the support of those who have animals which are eligible, is only justified by the belief that purchasers are hoodwinked by a name, and blinded by a glamourie which obscures their vision. There would be greater danger from the opposite direction. That the "big establishments" would have the "best of it" if the Register were confined to high-class stock is beyond successful contradiction, and Mr. McKinney and others who coincided in his views had the best of the argument on this phase of the question. That is, when accrediting the Register with the power of establishing values. Place it in the true light, however, and accept the position that the "real office of the Standard and Register is the verification and preservation of pedigrees," and then as corollary, quoting from the Review, "The broader it is the more valuable the Register in its legitimate role, i. e., that of a bureau of usetul information."

As I have written before, if that position had been taken previous to the assembling of the stockholders of the A. T. R. A. and pressed upon the consideration of the members, it strikes me that men of the capacity of those who advocated a higher standard would have been forced to acquiesce in the judgment. It is somewhat singular, too, that a similar line of argument was not offered by those who participated in the debate. Had it been other than an inspiration, it seems as though the editor would have promulgated the sentiment previous to the meeting, but whether a "happy thought" of the moment or the result of a careful study of the question, he must be awarded the praise of proffering a solution of the problem so concise, so simple as to be easily understood, and so convincing to an unprejudiced mind that conviction is inevitable.

* * *

WHAT SHALL CONSTITUTE A RECORD?—Far more important than high standard or low standard is the action taken by the A. T. R. A. regarding records and establishing guards against fraud in procuring them. Far better, however, to have gone farther and decreed that for registration and acquiring standardicity trials of the description known as tin-cup performances should not avail. So long as the system prevails, just as long as added values can be obtained by "going agin' the match" it is an immoral certainty that frauds will be practiced. Far easier to twist things into a false position when opponents are lacking than when there are counter-interests to enter protests and insist that the rules shall be enforced. Then again the practice reduces the entries in genuine races and awakens a feeling which has a tendency to create the impression that all trotting events are more or less humbug sport.

That and "hippodroming" are the most serious of all drawbacks in the way of legitimate contests, and a drag, which is equal to an airbrake, in the breeding of trotters. One of these is enough to consider in one article, and inasmuch as "time records" were given the second place in the debate, the standard occupying first position, that will be given attention. After the rules presented by the executive committee had been read Mr. S. A. Browne, of Kalamazoo, Michigan, offered an amendment "that no record made in this manner shall be a record for the purpose of registration, but that it shall be called "a public trial," and there its province ends. This is all that should be conceded, and candor compels that the name given be such as will tell what it really is. And yet the amendment did not prevail, the only argument against its adoption being the following:

Mr. Powell—Mr. President, I rise to speak to Mr. Browne's motion of amendment. Browne's motion is an amendment that no record made against time, no time against time, shall be a record for registration. He also suggests that such time shall not be a bar. Now, I do not think that we have any right here to say what would be a bar, because we trot according to the rules of the National or American Association, and they make their own rules what shall constitute a bar. We cannot do it. Now, as to the time records, so-called. We all know that there is a very respectable number of breeders, and some of them are leading breeders in this country, who will not, under any circumstances, enter into regular races, and certainly we should look to the interests of those to some extent. For years I considered, from my education and rearing and so on, that horse-racing was a jumping off place, and while there are not as many people with those views as there were formerly, there are a great many of them, and some of them are the very best buyers and purchasers of trotting stock that the country has, and it occurs to me that we would make a very serious mistake to bar such breeders and such persons from making regular records.

That very claim is one of the reasons why it should be done away with. If men are so constituted that their consciences "will not, under any circumstances," permit them "to enter into a regular race," and yet so elastic as to trot in an irregular race, let them stay out altogether. They must have some monetary interest to induce them to obtain "goods under false representations," or they would acquiesce in the proposition to call it a "public trial." If they are "the very best buyers and purchasers of trotting stock that the country has," it is ten to one that they will pay more for a stallion or mare that has gained a fast record in a race, and are perfectly willing to accept the produce of the "wages of sin" earned by a less holy individual than a tin-cup performer. If "horseracing," in their opinion, "is a jumping-off place," when horse contends against horse, what barrier is there between that and where Time and a Teaser are the contestant and adjunct? Entrance money is paid, and there are chances for gambling. There is no difference in the surroundings, a far better chance to get something from fraudulent practices. To legislate for this class is equivalent to an endorsement of their views, a concurrence in their opinions that horse racing is the jumping-off place, though Mr. Powell fails to state what sort of an abyss lies below. But I will venture to say that these best buyers of trotting stock expect to be sellers, and if public trials are classed as Mr. Brown proposed, if they have material to win races, honest races, their scruples will vanish, and it is the longest kind of odds that when purses are won the dollars will not be refused. But all of that sort of talk which Mr. Powell presents, has a bad effect on trotting interests. Twaddle we may call it, and twaddle it would be if not sustained by concessions, by granting privileges which are inimical to the general good. In the course of Mr. Powell's argument, he said: "Let us make some rule for men whose conscientious scruples are against going into regular races; let us make some rule whereby he can, somehow and some way, get a record that will be accepted."

Now I say, let us make a rule that he cannot obtain records somehow and some way, but compel him to follow the straight patch, and if "it is a sin to steal a pin, and still a greater to steal a tater," a big sinner has an equal show for redemption as the little fellow, and prevent our conscientious friend from committing petty larceny by taking down the prize in the hallway, and in place of an accepted record hang public trials on the hook.

Inadvertantly, in all probability, Mr. Powell gave the true reasons for opposing the amendment. From the words and by uttering them near the close of his remarks they were likely to be enunciated with a good deal of vehemence. "Business will not permit me to go about the country through a circuit entering a horse in a class where I think he can come to the front. There might be somebody else there who had a faster horse, and so at the next meeting, and after travelling all over the country I manage to get a heat. No, I can't afford it; I won't afford it."

Exclamation points should have been inserted in place of semi-colon and period and faster horse awarded small caps. Unless some people trot horses in regular races, breeding trotters will be a thing of the past, and so long as records can be obtained without the fear of meeting a faster horse there will be a full proportion having conscientous scruples. Let the "Unco gude" be made still better, and in place of a strong temptation to secure by ease and management what should be the guerdon of labor and honesty, present a certificate headed public trial, not available for standard and registry Rule the some-how and some-way out, and remove the obloquy from those who are none too good to trot their horses in regular races, but infinitely above the hypocritical pretense that they are restricted from doing so by compunctions of conscience, when at the same time they are clamoring for the rewards which iniquity brings.

There are some reasons for retaining the rules which grant records gained by illegitimate performances, illegitimate in my opinion, but if they were ten times stronger I should reject them when it entailed a quasi-endorsement that trotting horses in regular races is disreputable. Even a half-acknowledgement that trotting horses, when pursued in the only way that will give stated values to trotters, is contrary to good morals, and the business of breeding trotters will be seriously injured thereby. Did that acknowledgement come from a body of men of little prominence in horse affairs, the injury, if any, would be slight, but when the rules of the A. T. R. A. are framed so as to lend countenance to the charge the damage is consequently great.

That frauds have prevailed in trials against time, frauds which would not be tolerated in regular races, is too patent to be denied. Apart from laxity in enforcing the rule against breaking, strictness in timing, the so-called methods have been farcical, and it will be nearer to the truth to say fraudulent. For instance, a horse which "trotted for a record" in 2:33 is matched against a yearling, and on the same day is beaten in 2:50. In another of that sort of matches a mare wins the first heat in 2:22¾, loses the second in 2:30, wins the third in 2:22¾. In another a mare wins the first heat in 2:27¾, loses the second in 2:46. It may be tiresome to quote all the instances of this kind which occurred at one meeting, but to show how generally the practice of "throwing heats" was followed the most striking examples are copied:

heat won in 2:28¼, second and third lost in 2:41
A first heat won in 2:28, second lost in 2:39½, third won 2:29. First heat won in 2:22½, second lost in 2:30, third won in 2:29½. First heat won in 2:29¾, second and third lost in 2:45–2:36½. First heat won in 2:28½, second lost in 2:36¾, third won in 2:27. First heat lost in 2:33, second and third won in 2:44–2:25¼. First heat won, 2:41, second lost, 2:27½, third won, 2:33. First heat lost, 2:35¾, second and third won, 2:26–2:24½. This is the kind of trotting that men with conscientious scruples are in favor of supporting. All of these, as the name implies, were between two horses, so that the usual excuse for laying up heats, viz.: bettering the chances to win the race by letting others struggle while the layer-up is resting, cannot prevail.

I have the greatest respect for men who are governed by principle, if even that runs counter to my views. There are many traits in the character of Robert Bonner which I admire, but if asked to select one which I thought most worthy of admiration, it would be the persistency with which he has adhered in his determination not to trot his horses for money or to take part in regular races. That avowal, made more than thirty years ago, has subjected him to endless annoyances in the way of proffered matches, made with as much safety as it would be for the big guns of the prize ring to challenge a drawf in a side-show or a crack of the turf a prize Clydesdale.

There is not space now to enter a comparison between tin cup methods and those of Mr. Bonner, but there is a small resemblance which will be hereafter shown.

The Sacramento Meeting.

The directors of the Capital Turf and Driving Club held a special meeting at the Golden Eagle Hotel last evening, says the Sacramento Record Union of the 19th.

The entries for the 2:25 trotting race, which was recently substituted for the 2:40 trot, were opened, but as there were only three of them, the Board declared the race not filled. It was resolved to substitute a running race in place of the trot. The trotting days are all well programmed, and this unfilled race can easily be spared.

It was decided to open the spring meeting on Tuesday, May 10th. The events on that day will be a three-minute trotting race, roadster race and a 2:25 trot. All three events are exceptionally well filled, and a good days' sport is promised.

After attending to some minor arrangements, the Board adjourned.

Foals That Scour.

Secretion from the digestive tract starts up in all young animals a considerable time before birth; the stomach, intestines, liver and pancreaes are the organs from which the secretion emanates and is accumulated until a short time after birth, when if the foal is in good health it is expelled in the form of hard, tenacious, irregular masses by the laxative action of the colostrum or first milk secreted by the dam; if the colostrum is healthy and abundant it serves every purpose and keeps the bowels in a proper condition, but if from various causes this milk is deficient in quality or quantity, it may fail to remove the accumulated material, then the result is constipation and surcharge of the bowels with the undigested portions and waste products of the milk, which soon decompose and impair or alter all the secretion poured into the digestive tract; this condition, as a natural result, is followed by irritation, setting up unusual activity of the intestines, excessive watery secretions and scouring, accompanied at times with fatal inflammation.

The treatment is almost entirely preventative. See that the mare has dry, comfortable quarters, pure water and wholesome food; if she is kept on grass give her a few quarts of oats morning and night, with an occasional warm bran mash several weeks before foaling. Avoid strong purges, as they are liable to produce abortion. If after birth the foal is troubled with constipation the administration of two ounces of castor oil by the mouth, with one-eighth grain morphine to prevent cramping, and the injection of a quart of warm water (rendered soft by dissolving it in an ounce of some bland soap), carefully thrown well up the gut, will be all that is required to bring about a healthy action of the bowels. Should it not have the desired effect the injection may be repeated several times, but a second administration of the oil is to be deferred for at least twenty-four hours from the time the first dose was given. Scouring or diarrhœa is usually due to the presence of an irritant in the intestinal canal, and the too-common practice of treating the trouble at the very outset with powerful astringents, like opium and tannic acid, cannot be too severely condemned, as they stop secretion, check intestinal movement, imprison the irritating substance and prolong its destructive action, defeating the very object for which they are given. The best treatment for the trouble and the one a common sense view of the disease and its causes would indicate, is the administration of laxatives to expel the irritant, whatever it may be, and thus get rid of the cause. This may be accomplished by the administration of two ounces of castor oil accompanied by one-eighth grain of morphine, to soothe its action, followed later on, after the irritant has been removed, by drugs that are healing and soothing to the mucuous membrane of the intestinal tract, coating over and protecting the inflamed portions, enabling nature to rebuild the diseased structure without interference.

These indications are met by the administration of teas made from weak solutions of gum arabic, slippery elm, starch or linseed meal thoroughly boiled, with which may be given powered chalk or charcoal in twenty or thirty grain doses.

One of the very best combinations in the treatment of this trouble is that of sub-nitrate of bismuth and pepsin ten grains of the former and thirty of the latter, administered every few hours. The action of the bismuth is mechanical, forming a protective coating on the mucous membrane lining of the bowels, while the pepsin relieves the weakened and irritated digestive apparatus of the greater part of its laborious performance, allowing the rest and quiet so badly needed to enable it to again assume its normal functions.

Another excellent remedy, highly valued in many sections of the country, is liquid rennet, to which may be added a little good brandy and given three or four times a day; the dose is a tablespoonful of the rennet with a teaspoonful of brandy.

In the young animal the liver is relatively much larger than that of a matured animal, and, as naturally follows, is more liable to functional disorders. If during the constipation or diarrhœa, which may affect the foal, the visible mucous membranes—those of the eye, nose and mouth—assume a yellow color, together with intense fœter, foul-smelling discharges, it is an indication of a deranged and morbid condition of this organ. In such a case nitro-hydrocholoric acid acts almost as a specific, benefitting and even curing cases which have resisted all other treatment. It acts by improving the digestion, increases glandular action and restores the normal digestive power. To be of service the acid should be freshly prepared and of a deep red color, as after standing for a time it assumes a lemon-yellow color and is nearly valueless; four or five drops of the strong acid should be given in a half pint of milk three times a day.—Breeder and Turfman.

CAN any of our readers inform us of the whereabouts of a trotting-horse trainer named Fleming, who at one time was employed by C. C. Clay?

WOOLSEY, the Electioneer stallion at Chino and full brother to Sunol, the queen of the turf, has been retired from stud duty, owing to a casuality.

WE understand that R. G. Head, of Napa, on Saturday sold his young stallion Stonewall, by Director, 2:17, dam Nellie Steinway, by Steinway, 2:25¾, to a San Rafael party for $3,200, says the Napa Journal.

TURF AND TRACK.

There are 894 pacers in the 2:25 list, sixty-eight better than 2:15.

Five trotters and a like number of pacers have records of 2:10 or better.

Send in your lists of colts foaled. We will publish them without charge.

Alcantara is insured for $40,000, the premium being about $3,200 a year.

Catalogues for the Whitney sale of trotters and broodmares will be issued next week.

The Cheviots have been doing wonderful work at the Blood Horse meeting now in progress.

The Blood Horse Association has declared war against heat races, and will have no more of them.

Thirty-one of the fifty-one trotters that have records of 2:15 or better are out of great broodmares.

Bermuda, the son of Bersan and Fair Lady, is the Kentucky favorite for the Brooklyn Handicap.

Ninety-five races are programmed for the Montana circuit, with purses aggregating about $40,000.

Eugene Leigh has sold the colt Whitehead, by Joe Daniels, to G. W. Poole. He owns Elcanor.

The fastest performer by Belmont is a pacer and the fastest one sired by his son Nutwood is also a pacer.

Twelve trotters have records better than 2:12, and Nancy Hanks, 2:09, is the only one that is not out of a great broodmare.

Conductor, 2:25½, by Electioneer, and Roseberry, 2:19¾ by Strathmore, have been matched to trot at the Illinois State air next fall.

A colt by Alfred G., 2:19½, and a colt by Sphinx, 2:20½, both yearlings, have been matched to trot at Grand Rapids, Mich., next fall.

Wm. Murray, of Grayson, was in this city last week, he reports the horse interests in that section of Stanislaus county very promising.

Mike Bergen, brother to Martin Bergen, has signed a contract to ride for Freddy Gebhard this year, with a retaining fee of $3,000.

On the 30th of April, the New York Sportsman and Spirit of the Times will be consolidated, and early in May the Daily Spirit will be issued.

May Day (dam of Margaret S., 2:12 and Incas, 2:14½) slipped a horse colt by Director, 2:17, last week. May Day belongs to A. S. Henry.

Word has just been received that J. B. Agnew's fine mare Kate Agnew, 2:28½, died at Kentucky. Heart disease was ascertained to be the cause.

The largest winning horse in the history of the American turf, Hanover, cost only $1,350 as a yearling, still he took into camp $121,732 in stakes and purses.

If people attending the Blood Horse races had started in to play Narvaez's mounts, both straight and place, the bookmakers would have been bankrupted.

Marion, son of Mambrino Chief 11, is the sire of Lady Narley, the dam of Empress, 2:29¾, Fawn, 2:30½, and is also the sire of Marmaduke 9082, sire of Bessie, 2:26½.

Frank Shaw, of St. Paul, Minn., has purchased the betting privileges at the Fair Grounds race track at St. Louis, Mo., for the spring meeting for $100,000.

The owners of Pat Downing, 2:13, are willing to trot that horse in a sweepstakes race with Delmarch, 2:11¼, McKinney, 2:12½, Robert Rysdyk, 2:13½, and Charleston, 2:15.

The master of the Russian Imperial stables is in America, and will visit the Palo Alto Farm soon to inspect the Electioneer mares that are to be sent to join the Czar's stables.

The man who sits around the bar-room stove and tells every body who would listen to him how fast his horse can trot never has him booted right when you overtake him on the road.

Mary Marshall, 2:12¾, by Billy Wilkes, has foaled at Cloverdale Farm a chestnut colt by Allerton, 2:09½, giving an average speed inheritance of 2:11, and breaking the record in this respect.

Chas. Kerr, of the Antrim Stock Farm, has a number of youngsters by his horse, Corbitt Wilkes (a son of Guy Wilkes, 2:15½), out of strictly thoroughbred mares that are perfectly pure-gaited trotters.

The trotting mare Viola Clay, 2:24½, by Volunteer Clay, dam by Norwood, will be campaigned this year by John Splan. Although she is but eight years old she has won 50 races out of 58 starts.

Col. H. I. Thornton has a fine filly by Double XX, out of Kate Dudley, by Tom Dudley that would make a fast trotter if trained. Perhaps the Colonel will breed her to a trotting stallion, who knows?

Veronica, by Alcona 730, out of Fontana (dam of Silas Skinner, 2:17 and Flora Belle, 2:24) is in Thos. Murphy's string at Petaluma, and that capable driver believes she will trot close to 2:20 this fall.

Samuel Sherman, of Calaveras Valley, Santa Clara County, is working a two-year-old colt by Billy Thornhill, 2:24½, and says he surpasses anything he ever saw for the time he has been handled.

One lesson of the sale rings is that fashionable blood will not carry inferior individuality through. You must have them bred right, and they must be built right to bring the money when bidding runs high.

L. E. Clawson, of this city, has two young Chas. Derbys at the track in Oakland, under the care of Robert Gunderson, which he has reason to feel proud of. Chas. Derby will have quite a list of 2:30 performers this year.

The crack trotter Dandy, 2:18½, was sold last Monday afternoon at Greenburg, Pa., to Sherrick, of Pennsylvania, for $18,000. Dandy was bought two years ago for $2,200, and last year cleared $15,000 for his owner.

Miss Russell is still living, and has 174 descendants with records from 2:08¾ to 2:30. She has more 2:30 descendants than any stallion ever had while living. She has just recently dropped another fine colt by King Wilkes.

The colt Ecce 15,993, by Eclectic, that was sold last week at Rancho Cotati, was only twelve months old and the price, $2,000, was the highest ever paid for a Sonoma-bred and raised yearling. We understand he is to go East.

"As between the standard-bred trotter that can't trot and his non-standard-bred brother that can go some, I choose the latter every time. Pedigree cuts no figure with me unless there is merit behind it." So says Monroe Salisbury.

Sir Roy has been unfortunate in getting bad send-offs. The finish he made last Saturday, after being all but left at the post, shows that the big colt is just what has been claimed for him by the Los Angeles delegation—a cracker-jack.

Keep no horse with small contracted nostrils. They are one of the best indicators of the vitality and serviceability to be found. A large, full, open nostril is sure evidence of free use of the lungs, and this means better blood and more of it.

John A. Goldsmith was in this city last Monday. He looks "more like himself" than he did on his arrival from the East. He only remained a few hours in town and then returned to San Mateo. Everyone will be glad to hear this good news.

Everybody attending the races talks of the wonderful showing made by the sons and daughters of imp. Cheviot, now standing at Charles Reed's Fairview Farm, Gallatin, Tenn. It is too bad that the horse was ever allowed to leave California.

An animal that is superior to the average lots that come into the market always attracts notice, and sells itself on sight. The successful stock breeder is one who breeds for excellence, and who endeavors to put upon the market something better than the market contains.

J. A. Cody is driving Winwood on the track in Oakland every day. The way this stallion is taking to his work encourages a hope in his trainer that he will get a mark close to 2:25 this fall. There is no reason why this pure-gaited horse should not make a fast trotter.

Before the races end at the Bay District Track would it not be a good idea to give a two mile race for a purse. By advertising it well it would draw a large crowd. Surely among 175 thoroughbreds it ought to be an easy matter to select enough to make a good field.

Rufus Murphy, of Santa Rosa, the well-known horseman, has sued the Market Street Cable Railway to recover $25,000 damages for personal injuries. Murphy tripped over a piece of cable that was left on the sidewalk on Hayes Street. He fell and broke one of his arms.

Redwood arrived at his destination in Lexington. Everyone fell in love with him, and from all sides could be heard words of praise. He will be given track work this fall by a competent trainer, and there is no doubt he will lower his present record considerably.

By the way Richard Havey is making purchases for Chas. Fair, it looks as if he is beginning as near the top as possible. This is the only way to make a success of raising thoroughbreds. The man who buys everything cheap and without merit or family is bound to fail.

The scare about the prevalence of glanders has about subsided. It is hoped that the gentleman who published the article in the daily papers will be more careful in the future, and furnish the reporter with proper photographs of animals affected with the disease he wishes to describe.

Sir Modred is the sire of a number of cracker-jacks that will make their appearance on the turf this fall. A Sacramento enthusiast believes the "Cheviots" won't be in it when they start. Australian blood is valuable and the racing people in California are just beginning to appreciate it.

Five-sixths of the foals dropped at Marcus Daly's Bitter Root Farm near Anaconda, Mont., this year have died immediately after birth. The best veterinary surgeons are unable to find the cause and the loss is a serious matter as Daly has many of the best mares in the land on his place.

That happy individual and social companion, Dr. C. W. Aby, of Lake County, was an interested spectator at the races last week. He dearly loves the bangtails, and, in fact, at his place in Lake county, the dogs and the cats, as well as the work-horses, have all their tails abbreviated like thoroughbreds.

Charles Fair has purchased the wonderfully speedy filly Princess, by imp. Cheviot, dam imp. Music, by Prince Charlie. This filly ran the fastest half-mile ever made in California with weight up—0:48 4-5, with 115 pounds in the saddle. The consideration was not made public, but $3,500 was the sum paid for her.

Zaldivar has won eleven straight races, although Goodwin's Guide gives him credit for only three wins in 1891, where he should have nine. Top Gallant won eight races, Pescador eleven, Romair five and Dr. Ross two. These were about our best two-year-olds and all are looking well in their three-year-old form.

Horsemen should breed their mares to stallions owned by men who advertise them. The owner of a stallion who does not advertise that horse, to say the least, is dead in the shell, and the horse can have little or no merit or his owner would be anxious to mention the fact through the advertising columns of the turf journals.

The Overland Jockey Club at Denver has enlarged its betting ring fifty feet, and offers good inducements to first-class book-making firms to do business there, charging them but $75 per day. Everything looks favorable for the best race meeting ever held in the Colorado metropolis, and we wish the Overland Jockey Club people all the success imaginable. Our local bookmakers will do well to bear in mind the Denver meeting.

The dispute between A. H. Moore and Monroe Salisbury in regard to the age of May Day, dam of Margaret S., is not unlikely to prove the Year Book in error. George D. Otis, who bred her, says he is positive she is but eighteen years old, instead of twenty-two.

A Smith McCann, of Ky., has sold to H. S. Henry, of Philadelphia, Anticipant, two years old, by Anteeo 2:16½, dam (full sister to Phil Thompson, 2:16½) by Red Wilkes, for $5,000. Anticipant as a yearling went a half in 1:17 in a public performance. He is a great youngster and great things may be expected from him.

The Australian bookmakers, Wall and Allen, made a killing last Tuesday, the date on which they made their initial bow to the American public. There was a frantic rush to get Cadmus at 8 to 5, and on this race alone the Antipodeans are said to have cleared $3,000.

A sale of trotters was held in the Exposition Building, Portland, Or., on the 14th inst. They belonged to Mrs. G. V. James. Fifty-two animals brought $10,885. The highest priced ones were Tualco, black horse, by Rockwood, out of a Nutwood mare, $1,000, and Nettie, black mare, by Nutwood, dam by Milliman's Bellfounder, $1,000.

When the Rancho del Paso Catalogues are made up it will be seen that R. Ledgett is entitled to the honor of owning Lady Markham, that got a record of 2:23½, by Western. The same owner has two other Rancho del Paso bred horses that he can put inside the list any time; one is Jessie P. by Western and the other is Kitty L. by Bismarck.

A. McFadyen (formerly of Santa Rosa) owner of Redwood, 2:21¾, recently returned from an extended trip through the Eastern states. He declares there is no place to equal California; and the horses in this state, so far as appearances go, are far superior to those bred in the East, and says the California bred stallions are all doing well there in the stud.

The bay mare Millie by Milton Medium, 2:25½, second dam (the dam of Overman, 2:19½) by Blackhawk 767, foaled a bay colt by Whips 2:27½ at Rancho Cotati on the 17th inst. As the owner was looking for a filly there is no doubt he will sell this youngster for a low figure considering his breeding.

Geo. W. Bleil (Toeweight), just arrived from the East, says he "showed more speed for the money on this trip than he ever did in his life." Toeweight is considered the best colt leader and handler in the United States, and his work in the show ring at sales is known to all horsemen.

Col. S. O. Gregory's colt by Eclectic receives a quarter of column of praise from the editor of the Bradley Mercury published in Monterey county. He must be deserving of it for applications for his services are already hinted at among the grangers there, in fact they can hardly wait until next spring.

Leo Lynch, of San Ramon has a colt by Richard's Elector 2,170, that he calls Wass Hail, which is said to be one of the coming trotting wonders, his dam is May Alexander by Kansas Central 569, second dam Liddie by Roodhouse St. Lawrence. He is of good size, brown in color, and although but three years old and untrained for speed, is a trotter from the ground up.

Several good-sized offers have been made recently for the great three-year-old, Zaldivar, one of them being $7,000, we understand. In view of the wonderful work of this superb son of Joe Hooker, $7,000 is hardly half enough. Zaldivar has won eleven races in succession, and as a three-year-old has shown the same good form that made him famous as a two-year-old.

Monroe Salisbury arrived from Kentucky last Saturday. There is no truth in the report that he is going to start a stock farm near Washington. California is his home and Pleasanton is the equine playground he selected long ago. Since he sold Director, 2:17, the question that is agitating his admirers now is, "What stallion will he select to take the Black Tornado's place?"

T. W. Barstow's fine Nutwood stallion Cyrus R., 2:17¾, is doing remarkably well in San Jose. He is one of those horses that at once "fills the eye" and makes the owner of a broodmare at once decide to breed to him. In color he is coal black. In conformation, style, pure trotting action and speed he is faultless. His owner, as well as all who have seen this horse move, affirm that 2:12 will not stop him this fall.

There are some colts by Parker's horse Campaign out of Shippee's Hawthorne mares that are "jim dandys," and as a few of them will be seen on the kite-track this fall it will be in order to look for a few Arions from this Electioneer and and Nutwood cross. Campaign is excellently bred and should soon enter the lists as a sire of fast ones. Hawthorne is already in the lists as a marvelous sire, considering his age.

Lottery Ticket, 2:25, is doing very well this year and is being excercised at the three-quarter mile track, near Grayson. Funk Bros., his owners, have every reason to be proud of him. There were few ganter sons of Dexter Prince than he. His colts and fillies all bear the impress of their sire and will be heard of in a year or two on the circuit. Lottery Ticket is out of Emma by Nutwood 600, a very good cross indeed.

Onowanda is the name of one of the finest-looking yearling Dawn colts north of San Francisco. He is out of a mare by Reavis' Blackbird; second dam by Alexander; third dam by General McClellan 144. He is dark bay in color, no white, with black points, and is a pure-gaited trotter and would make a name for himself on the track. He is at present at the Asylum Stock Farm and can be purchased for a very low figure.

Secretary H. Cohn, of the Eureka (Cal.) Jockey Club, gave us a pleasant call last Monday. This gentleman informs us that Eureka is sure to have a great running meeting, commencing July 4th, and lasting five days. The track was covered with a coating of blue marsh mud, as an experiment, and the result is that the course is springy, safe and as fast as any in the State. Skates run half-miles up there in 51 seconds.

Dictator suffered from a severe congestive chill two weeks since and was for a time in a critical condition, but was brought around safely by prompt veterinary attention and careful nursing. The magnificent old son of Hambletonian and Clara is now twenty-nine, and that he could successfully rally from such an attack speaks volumes for the marvellous vitality which is essentially a characteristic of the blood of American Star.

Narvaez did himself proud last Tuesday by winning three races and getting third place in another—this out of four mounts. On Mezzotint he stole the race away from Spooner, who went to sleep on Orta in the homestretch. In the California Stakes he clearly outrode all the boys when he won with cute little Castro.

There are a great many complaints against the way the Bay District track is kept for the runners. They say there is neither roller nor lump-crusher used only a track harrow. If there are not a number of crippled thoroughbreds sent home a good many of the owners will be surprised. It is hoped that the directors will see that this cause for complaint is removed.

Messrs. Miller and Sibley, the proprietors of Prospect Hill Stock Farm, sent us a beautiful morocco-bound copy of their catalogue for 1892, for which we wish to return our thanks. To say that it leads all the catalogues issued in America would not be saying too much. It is handsome, instructive and in keeping with the equine gems whose names adorn each page.

The Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association has received 928 entries for the Kentucky Futurity that closed March 15th. William Russell Allen entered 40 mares, a larger number than was named by any other breeder. William Corbitt, of the San Mateo farm comes next with 30, while Hermitage and Penn Valley farms tie for third place, each having 25. C. J. Hamlin has named 23, and the Jewett farm has named 21.

The board of directors of the American Trotting Register Association met at the close of the general stockholders' meeting and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Wm. R. Allen, president; F. S. Waters, vice-president; F. S. Gorton, treasurer; J. H. Steiner, secretary. The newly-elected board of censors consists of the following-named gentlemen: L. Brodhead, C. F. Emery and W. P. Ijams, each one of which is eminently qualified to discharge the duties to be assigned to that important board.

"Well, Joshua, you seem to be driving a likely colt." "Likely colt! Well now, you're shouting a camp-meeting song. That colt will break all the records this year. Talk about breeding! That colt is the climax and apex of breeding and speed. I have been considerate of his greatness, and have named him Eureka. He is by Windstorm, by Cyclone, by Hurricane, by Tornado, by Pick'em Up; first dam by Thunder and Lightning; second dam by The Wind That Blows Up the Back-Stretch. Talk of breeding!"

High up in the judges' stand of every racehorse's career hangs a bell. It calls him forth at intervals from the obscurity of his lowly stall and summons him to face the wire with his competitors. It may call him back when he seemingly shows a burst of speed that might augur success, but others are looking from a higher plane, and they want to give him an opportunity to rectify any mismove in starting. If he fails to profit by its kind admonition, its tones from those of gentle warning may be changed into a knell of subsequent defeat.

Speaking of Axtell and Allerton, Monroe Salisbury recently said: "The owners of Axtell are very considerate men, and will take few chances, If the horse proves all right they will seek a match race, and if they try conclusions I think Axtell will beat Allerton. He was always the faster of the two, and always stuck to the trot better than Allerton when pressed. With Doble in condition and drive him the chances are greatly in Axtell's favor. I should not be at all surprised if Axtell dethrones Palo Alto before the snow flies again."

Henry C. Jewell says that not more than forty head will be reserved of the 290 that comprise his catalogue, at the sale that will take place at the farm, beginning May 24th. He says the Jewett Farm was established with the object of affording pleasure and change from the cares of business, but having grown to proportions that are a tax on his time and a burden on his mind, he has determined to put it back to the condition for which it was originally planned. He will reserve only the chief stallions, a few broodmares and a few horses in training.

L. A. Richards, owner of Elector 2,170, was an interested spectator at the races. In answer to an inquiry, he said he had a number of colts and fillies come this year that were exact pictures of their sire. He will have quite a number of "green ones" to enter in the races this fall. If they are as good as those he sent on the circuit to surprise the talent last year, we believe that Elector will go where all the rest of our choicest stallions go—to the Eastern states. We will hate to see him go for no greater son of Electioneer was ever foaled than he.

Director's new owner is a wealthy racing man of Philadelphia who has become noted the country over by his extensive purchases in Kentucky this year. He bought, among others, Palo Alto Belle for $15,000, Mary Marshall, 2:12½, for $12,850; Margaret S., $15,000; Position, $10,000, and last week bought Annorean for about $15,000. In the last three months he has invested upwards of $150,000 in trotting stock, and has laid the foundation of what promises to be a famous breeding establishment, as it now contains more extremely fast mares than any stud in America.

There may be better bred foals dropped this year but we doubt if there are many better lookers than the brown colt Welby owned by Chas. W. Welby of this city. His breeding is as follows: Sired by Electricity, 2:17¾, out of Swift by Sidney, 2:19¾, second dam Bay View Maid (dam of two that will enter the list this year) by Gen Benton 1,755; third dam Minnie by Skenandoah 926, and fourth dam by Williamson's Belmont. Several offers have already been refused for this royal bred youngster. With his blood lines, he should be eligible to a record on the track and a name in the stud.

The get of Electioneer have won 577 heats in 2:30 and better—and average of 5¾ heats each. The number of heats won by sons and daughters that have records in 2:20 and better, are as follows: Lot Slocum is his greatest heat winner, with 65 to his credit, Palo Alto has 54, Adair 36, Sunol 26, Albert W. 25, Anteeo 22, Manzanita 20, Ladywell 14, Delmar 10, Bonita 9, Suisun 9, Campbell's Electioneer 9, Bell Boy 8, Antevolo 8, Norval 7, Hinda Rose 7, Arion 6, Ansel 5, Amigo 4, Montrose 3, Advertiser 3, and Electricity 3. The average is about 16 heats each. Twenty-six of the get of Electioneer have tin cup records. The descendants of Electioneer number 160 performers, among them one hundred and fifty-six trotters and four pacers.

There is not so much talk or so many wonderful trotting performances in the month of April this year as there was in 1891. What can be the matter? Are our trainers getting more sensible, and are they anxious to be on hand at the races with good ones? We anticipate much pleasure in chronicling the doings of scores of young trotters and pacers this fall. We dislike to do it months before there are any races there is neither glory nor excitement in it and very little thanks from owners and drivers, and if the colts could speak—from them. Therefore we ought to be thankful.

At Lodi the trainers and drivers are all very busy. Thos. Keating has a string of good ones including Turk Franklin, 2:16½; Frank M., 2:17¼ (to cart); Crown Prince, by Dexter Prince; and one called the Brush colt by a son of Nephew. Charles David has a fine black horse called Nevada and a fast green pacer. Mike Costello, of Tacoma, has a fine Dexter Prince pacer. Mr. Trefry has a stable of trotters. Doc Ruggles is also working a few. While one of the best looking ones at the track is owned by B. F. Sprague, he is called Re-Elect and is sired by Elect (sire of Electmoore 2:27) out of a mare by Nephew.

Tuesday was a very happy day for two men that we know of—Col. H. I. Thornton and Charles Trevathan. Col. Thornton bred Castro, winner of the California Stakes, and Charles Trevathan, racing reporter on the Examiner, was the lucky buyer. Sobrante is Col. Thornton's favorite stallion, and he firmly believes that the horse will make his mark as a sire. Castro is one of the first crop, and goes far to show that the Colonel is right about Sobrante. Several horses brought larger sums than Castro at the Thornton sale, notably Oporto and Dick O'Malley, yet little Castro goes out and outruns the pick of the youngsters.

A. L. Whitney will sell on the 14th of May a collection of rare equine gems. He says he believes he is the only one who has any young trotters out of daughters of Dawn 2:18¾, and if the two that he will offer at the sale are representatives of that horse's breeding-on qualities there can be no doubt of the position he will attain among sires in a few years. The little trotting filly Marchioness by Commodore, that Lee Shaner had at the Bay District track which created such a furor among horsemen is one and a filly called Mirabelle, by Secretary, is another that will be sold that can trot faster than Marchioness, and that is saying a great deal.

The directors of the Gentlemen's Driving Club of Spokane are W. W. D. Turner, C. A. Stratton, J. W. Wentworth, D. W. Maloney and T. S. Griffith. The finances of the club make a good showing for the first year. The programme for the spring meeting, which will commence June 26th, is a good one and an experienced judge will preside. The Derby will be run on the 4th of July. Mr. Ross' stable of pacers will be one attraction. The classes for pacers, 2:30 class, 2:18 class and free-for-all with big purses for each will be a grand opportunity for Gold Medal 2:14½, C. W. G. 2:21½, Alexis 2:23½ and a colt which can pace a quarter in thirty seconds.

Good qualities in our trotting-bred stock are wonderfully productive. We should try to intensify these by breeding where similar good qualities exist, and again also disseminate them among others. Each one will be the center of a circle, benefiting all within a radius, while these again will become the centers of other circles, ever widening and multiplying, as a stone thrown in the placid waters causes one circle to follow another, becoming numerous the while, and as they become numerically great, so do the circumferences become all the broader; one influence starts another. The coming generation may profit by the germs of greatness and speed that we are now sowing.

A Santa Barbara correspondent writes us as follows: "On the famous Glen Annie Ranch Mr. A. L. Den has several brood mares grazing. Two weeks ago Mr. Den, accompanied by the overseer, Mr. Main, went to look at the stock, and Mr. D. was much grieved to find his fine broodmare (by Hesperion out of Monte Belle) had foaled a colt by Harry Stamboul, two-year-old trial 2:30, but the colt was dead. The mare was striving to bring to life her little daughter. The next day Mr. Dean noticed that the mare, although she had foaled a colt, still had a large belly. Eight days after she had foaled her colt she foaled another, and the colt is now three days old and doing well.

Ed. Geers, the staid and dignified Tennessee reinsman, has bought a new safety bicycle, and he astounded the horsemen at the Buffalo Driving Park by entering the track the other day, riding in like an old-time wheelman. The "Silent Man" was never expected to do such a thing, and the fact has has become a talk at the track. Horsemen are a trifle jealous of bicycles, and when a great driver like Geers turned a wheelman, the drivers were thunder-struck. Mr. Geers said he learned to ride the wheel in half an hour, but that he experienced a little difficulty at the outset, because when he wanted to increase the speed he clucked at the wheel, much the same way as he calls on Hal Pointer, when he makes the driving finish, and that when he wanted to stop he yelled "whoa!"

In the General Assembly of Kentucky, Dr. Woods has introduced an act to regulate entries and competition in certain cases of contests of speed on courses under the control of agricultural and other associations in the State, and to prevent "ringing." It provides that it shall be unlawful for any person or persons knowingly to enter or cause to be entered for competition, or to compete for any purse, prize, premium, stake or sweepstakes, offered or given by any agricultural or other society, or association, person or persons, or to drive any horse, mare, gelding, colt or filly under an assumed name or improper class, when such prize, purse, premium or stake is to be decided by a contest of speed. The offence is made a felony, punishable by not more than two year's imprisonment in the penitentiary.

At Nashville last fall when Vic H., Rosaline Wilkes and Nellie W. trotted their great race, and the gray mare won, no one looked for her to be dangerous. The race was, in fact, conceded to Vic H., as Rosaline had a little trouble in one hock, and Nellie W. was only hanging on to the company by her eyelids, or, at least, that was the way it looked. The play went on undisturbed until the scorching heat, when a hand was all that separated the three mares at the finish. Turner lifted, hugged and shooed Rosaline in the most approved style, but could not get there. Vic H. got the heat, and as he and Starr jogged back they were talking it over. Turner was puzzled, and after he had rubbed his glasses a few times he turned to Starr and said in his terse way: "George, where did that gray thing come from?"

We abuse and revile the scrub on every opportune occasion and the scrubbier the scrub may be the meaner the treatment we bestow upon it, says an exchange. Miserable scrub! And yet who made the "scrub?" If it were not for man's negligence and inhumanity to his animal possessions there might not be any "scrub" stock in our country. A choice selection of sires and dams, good feeding and housing and good treatment generally would in time breed up the quality of the scrub herd to one of first-class merit. Neglect and vicious breeding and management makes the scrub. Bad treatment will in time transform the choicest herds of thoroughbreds into the most inferior grades of live-stock. The scrub is a living example, a monumental reminder of misjudgment, indifference, neglect, lack of intelligence, or intelligence unutilized, shiftlessness, non-appreciation of the rules that underlie civilized, progressive and economic stock-breeding.

A correspondent at Portland, Or., sends us the following interesting items: "Minnie Mac is a good-looker, and is going like a shot, as also is the brown stallion Caliph, by Sultan. A fast runner at the track here is Daily Oregonian, a chestnut gelding by Ophir, dam Blue Mountain Belle. Al Peacock has a good combination stable of fine horses. Among they are Georgie Woodthorpe, an exceedingly fast gray mare, and Antee-Echo, a bay stallion by Antevolo, out of an Echo mare. He is a fine individual. A full sister to this stallion is a pacer, and a speedy one. A two-year-old filly by the stud is much admired, as is also a brown mare by Antevolo in the same stable. Phallamont Boy, 2:30, is as fine-looking a trotter as one would wish to see, and is doing well in his work. Johnny Epperson has a number of gallopers in his charge. The Portland track is a good place to winter at; in fact, hard to beat anywhere. The horses are all very forward in their work."

Jas. G. Ladd, Beatrice, Neb., and M. E. McHenry have offered to match Lobasco, 2:16½, against Pat Downing, who took a time record of 2:12 last fall, for from $1,000 to $5,000 a side, half forfeit, balance to be paid in August. Pat Downing was sent against the watch five times to beat 2:13½ before the feat was accomplished. He was fourth twice at Rockford, Ill., last August in 2:23½, 2:17¾, which heats were won by Brilliant, 2:17½, and Charleston, 2:15, the latter winning the race, while Pat Downing was distanced in the third heat. Pat won a race at Independence, Iowa, in August in three straight heats, best time, 2:18. At the same meeting Lobasco won a race in 2:16½, 2:16½, 2:18, and trotted almost a dead heat with Bonnie Wilmore, when Bonnie took his mark of 2:14½; in fact, the heat was so close that the instantaneous photograph was used to decide which had won the race. Both Lobasco and Pat Downing are known to be great race horses, and should a race be arranged it will be an event worth going miles to see.

Mrs. C. R. Noyes, undoubtedly the best-posted lady in the world on trotting blood lines, has decided to have her elegant broodmare Marinette, by Director, 2:17, trained in 1893, hence will not have her bred this season. This is the mare that produced the promising filly by Axtell, 2:12, which attracted so much attention at the New England Breeders' Meeting last fall. This filly at eleven months old stands 14.1, and can trot like a young whirlwind. Marinette will produce a foal by Nelson, 2:10, this season. Had she been bred, Arion, 2:10¾, would have been selected. Mrs. N. thinks some of breeding Elita Russell to Arion this season if she can secure a chance. This filly is bred in very nearly the same lines as Arion, only reversed. Her sire is Lord Russell, full brother to Maud S., 2:08¾. Her dam, Elaine, 2:20, is by Messenger Duroc, out of the famous Green Mountain Maid. Bred to Arion, 2:10¾, the produce will be inbred to both the great broodmares, Green Mountain Maid and Miss Russell. What would a good individual, possessing such a combination of blood lines, bring under the hammer? Even the Axtell filly would have to take a back seat.

The Detroit, Mich., Journal gets off the following: "A lame and half-starved old white horse, attached to a wagon partly loaded with ashes, stood on John R. street, near Adams, and a school-boy about 10 years old stood with his hands in his pockets looking at the horse. The owner of the rig came out of the cellar with a basket of ashes on his shoulder, and after dumping them into the wagon, he turned to the boy and said: "Look yere, boy, what yo' doin' yere?" "Lookin'," was the reply. "What you lookin' at?" "Lookin' at the horse." "Wall, you run right 'long 'bout your bizness. Dat hoss has got feelin's. If you keep lookin' at him he'll bimeby think he's got to get up and prance and snort around an' run away an' smash dis wagin' all to smash. Den de queshun comes up who's gwine to pay de damages, an' yore pore fadder will wish you had nebber been bo'n." "I guess I can look!" muttered the boy as he moved off. "I dun tole yo' boy! I shan't bodder wid you no mo'! If your fadder is wurf a millyon dollars an' yo' want to take de chances den yo' go right ahead; but doan' you dun sw'ar befo' de jedge dat I didn't tole you dat hoss had feelin's an' might kick up the awfulest ambulashun eber heard on John R. street."

If an English trainer were to propose to run one of the Hermit tribe fifty-nine times in a season he would be accounted mad; but that is what they did in America with Lizzie, a three-year-old daughter of St. Blaise, and she won seven races. More striking still, however, was the case of Belisarius, a four-year-old gelding by St. Blaise, who ran forty-five times and won twenty. St. Florian, the best two-year-old by St. Blaise last season, started twenty-four times and won seven ($37,825), and La Tosca, St. Blaise's champion three-year-old filly, won sixteen times out of twenty-one, and the four-year-old Chesapeake thirteen times out of thirty. What will strike all English readers, however, is the astounding number of times which American horses are called upon to run and prove capable of running. It is no use running away with the old pessimistic craze that horses abroad are bred more with a view to soundness than in this country. St. Blaise is a horse imported from this country to America, where his stock prove equal to running in the manner of which I have given a few details. The question is, what would happen to a man who tried to run a son of St. Blaise fifty-nine times in a season in this country, or who started a two-year-old by St. Blaise for forty losing races. Earth tracks in America has much, of course, to do with horses not suffering from hard ground. This, and this only, saves their legs at all, but I shrewdly suspect that there are plenty of American owners and trainers who send their horses to the post so long as ever they have a leg to stand on, just as we may see some limping cab horse still urged on to his daily task.—London Sportsman.

Our Denver Letter.

DENVER, COLORADO, April 14, 1892.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—It has been a long time since we had the pleasure of writing you and advising you of the situation here in racing circles.

Since our last letter the Overland stakes have closed very satisfactorily, we understand to the officials of the club. You have, we are informed, already published the list of entries, so that your California folks will thoroughly understand what they will have to contend with here.

The writer left Denver for New York in February, and but recently returned. He attended the Withers sale, which took place March 31st. This was the most notable sale of race horses that has occurred for some time. He had an idea that he might slip in unobserved and buy a colt for little money; but it is needless to say that he bought none. The average for the twenty-four head was over $3600 each.

The Experiment filly brought $11,100. Fred Gebhard was the purchaser, and he is probably securing a choice collection of fillies now, so that when their racing days are over they may go to California and be bred to Greenback, provided the colts of Greenback are worthy of their name.

The veteran S. D. Bruce was the auctioneer at this sale, and it must have been particularly satisfactory to him to see before him all the well-known men in racing circles, both in the Board of Control and out; and certainly the result in the way of prices must have been to him a particularly pleasing one.

The most of the colts were by Uncas, imported Mortemer and Sensation, and were a clean, racy-looking lot; but brought prices, I think from my standpoint, hardly justifiable.

The most important event in Eastern racing circles happening recently is that of the decision of the Monmouth Park folks to race at Monmouth Park this season. Monmouth is the favorite race-course in the East, and was the pride of Mr. Withers' eye. The necessity for closing it for the past few seasons was greatly mourned by him, and, in fact, by all. This track and property cost about $1,400,000, and is perhaps the best arranged and most satisfactory race-course in the world.

In order to keep pace with everything in racing matters, your correspondent went to Guttenberg for a day. He found, to his surprise, built on a rocky hill, with no features of land or sky to particularly recommend it, a race track which is certainly cutting a large swath in public estimation.

There are stabled there some 900 horses, and it is hardly necessary to say that they vary in 900 different ways. It rather seemed to me as if a horse would go running along for a month or two, selling in the field and finishing in the ruck until matters became ripe, and about forty to one were laid against him, and then, presto change, he became a race horse. Of course, this might only be a fancy of mine, and I know Judge Burke and Starter Caldwell are doing their very best to prevent anything which looks like in-and-out running. They are both very pleasant gentlemen, and thoroughly realike that they are perhaps the two central figures in racing, outside of the Board of Control, at present. The Overland Park folks seem to be in hopes that either or both of them will visit Denver at the time of the races.

J. F. Sanders, one of the Jockey Club, mentions the fact that he is assured by Jack Chinn, who is starting the East St. Louis races, and who is the owner of a number of race horses, that he will be here and superintend the running of his stable, in person. He is a whole-souled man, and a capital man to have on a race course, as he puts everyone in excellent humor, and helps things to go off with a dash.

J. B. Ferguson, we understand, who will start at Overland, is now at the Bay District, where he is engaged for their spring meeting. The Overland people are glad to know that their judgment of Mr. Ferguson is thoroughly endorsed by you people in the West, and they know that Mr. Ferguson will give you entire satisfaction.

In your issue of April 9th we had the pleasure of reading your report of the Modesto races, and as so many of your California horses are entered at Overland we watch, with a great deal of interest, their early performances at home.

We hardly think that Royal Flush ought to beat the great old mare Geraldine in three-fourths of a mile, even with a difference of eleven pounds; and as Geraldine will probably be here, we will be willing to back our judgment, if they should meet in a three-quarters race.

Queen Alta, running second at Modesto to Mero, is entered here in the three-year-old stakes. She will be a very prominent candidate, if she does well in her work, for the Derby.

We also notice with a great deal of interest, the list of thoroughbreds that you mention as being in training at the Bay District track. Within a few days Mr. Temple tells me he will mail to all the owners at the track programmes of the Overland meeting, and judging from a look we had at the book of purses and stakes, there will be sufficient to attract most or all of those stables here.

We personally feel particularly interested in the Three Cheer colts, possibly a sentimental feeling regarding the beauty of the nomenclature of these colts is the secret, but nevertheless it exists; and we would like to know exactly why, after such a beautiful sequence as Hurrah, Three Cheers, Applause, Acclaim, there should come a Royal Flush—can you tell us?

We were particularly pained to learn from Mr. Henry R. Wolcott, who was recently in Butte, Montana, of the losses of Mr. Daly. From what Mr. Wolcott says, the losses occurred only at one ranch, and only among horses that had been at that ranch for some two or three years. This seems remarkable. The St. Blaise colts recently purchased at very high prices fortunately escaped the epidemic, if such it was. No one has done more, within recent years, for the reputation of Western horses, than Mr. Marcus Daly. His pride in his stock is something wonderful; and we look to him to help us establish here in the West a racing board and a racing association which will perhaps be a rival of those associations now represented by the Board of Control; therefore, we feel particularly in sympathy with him relative to the set-back he has received by the loss of these valuable broodmares and colts. It is needless to say that the best veterinary talent and skill in the country was secured, but it seems to have been of but little avail.

Superintendent Temple, of the Overland, reports that the horses out at the track are in most excellent shape in the matter of health, with not a cough among them.

The track is in good condition, and as the number of horses there is increasing daily, it has become an interesting point to visit.

The Union Pacific has made arrangements to erect a loading and unloading chute on the west bank of the river, and now stock can be loaded in California and unloaded immediately back of the stables of the Overland track. This is a great improvement.

The Secretary of the Overland is expecting to have some of your San Francisco book makers here, and is in correspondence now with some of them, which will result, he hopes, in their presence.

Your correspondent hopes to make your personal acquaintance in the spring, if you come to the races, and he cordially invites your presence, and knows that the Overland officials will extend every hospitality in their power and that you wtll never have reason to regreat such a holiday.

The other day the writer was in Washington, and met Senator Walcott, the brother of the President of the Overland Jockey Club, and was glad to find that he took enough interest in racing to be the owner of a couple of very finely-bred fillies. These fillies were bred by C. J. Lamar, at Elmo, Missouri, and are named Francesca and Naomi. The former is by Faustus, out of Emma Warren, by imp. Billet. Naomi is by Faustus, out of Alma Lamar, by Volturno. Both of these fillies are due to foal soon, having been stinted to the great California race horse Beaconsfield, by Hock-Hocking out of Aileen Allanah. We were gratified to find that the Senator, who had endeared himself to the people of this whole State by his manly advocacy of silver, and, in fact, of all Colorado interests, has a love of the thoroughbred, which brings him closer to us.

We have only to say in conclus on, that we have understood the Carlile stable of horses is in most excellent shape at Pueblo, and inasmuch as the weather there has been rather moderate for a long while, they are forward in their training, and we want to warn you California people that when you come down here you want to come prepared to ride your horses out, if you want to win. Very truly yours,

FUTURITY.

Sells' Circus Horses in Australia.

Ever since the news of the arrival of Sells' circus in Australia the daily newspapers have been filled with accounts of the many glandered horses that were found in the company by the Australian authorities and destroyed by them. A few weeks ago a veterinarian of this city, who was seeking notoriety as an expert on this disease, published an article in one of our daily papers in which mention was made of the same news. In order to learn the truth of the story and to ascertain the reason why it was so difficult to land horses at the Antipodes, we interviewed Mr. Peter Sells, advance agent of the circus that bears his sur name. He stated that before the circus left this city the managers called in two reputable veterinarians to examine the live stock, and they forthwith gave the agents a clean bill of health. As the horses had just been taken from active service in this State and were then "cooped up between decks," the voyage was very hard upon them, and especially in crossing the equator, where the heat was terrible and the animals suffered from it and from want of exercise. On nearing Sydney two of the old horses, that were always driven as a team in the Roman chariot races, seemed to suffer worse than the others; their limbs stocked, and the groom in charge bathed them repeatedly in salt water. When they arrived in port it was noticed that the salty applications had caused little boils or pimples to break out on their limbs. When the Inspector-General came on board he noticed them and spoke to the agent, and told him the quarantine laws were very strict, that "all live stock are placed in quarantine for fourteen days, and if there were any signs of disease they were compelled to remain for ninety days," and added that he had fears regarding the two old horses. The agent told him he had certificates from two veterinarians, who were endorsed by the British Consul in San Francisco, and that all the horses were in perfect health, but if he he had any idea that any of the animals were afflicted with contagious diseases he was willing they should be examined and quarantined, and rather than prevent all the horses from appearing in the circus ring he was willing to have the afflicted ones destroyed. The animals were allowed to land, the advance agent having secured sufficient space at the Moor Park, this portion they asked to be quarantined, here they were to give the first performance. The first night after they landed Messrs. Bruce and Stanley, the government officials, decided, at the agent's suggestion, to destroy the two horses that were suffering from their long confinement and the impoverished condition of their blood. This was done secretly, as they thought, but a live reporter who was employed upon a newspaper that dislikes America and Americans with "a good healthy dislike," immediately published a long account of the destruction of the animals, and then added that the rest of the animals were also sick, and there was no doubt it was glanders they were all afflicted with. The next day the news spread and the authorities deemed it advisable to place all of the horses in quarantine for ninety days; consequently the circus opened without a horse; it was like the play of Hamlet with Hamlet left out. The people came in crowds, however, and the performance went off smoothly. The agent immediately purchased a number of horses, and the work of training them commenced; the "circus without horses" became fashionable, and everyone admired the "pluck of the Yankees." In two weeks the new horses appeared, and when the ninety days of quarantine ended, not a sign of disease having appeared the company decided they had no further use for them in the colonies, and shipped them to California while they visited all the cities of Australia and New Zealand with their band of native horses. The managers were placed under greater expense all through a sensational newspaper story. Not a trace of glanders, distemper, pinkeye, farcy or any other disease was found among the horses, and the newspaper that started the report acknowledged its error, and made all the reparation possible. Mr. Sells also said that shippers of horses from California should get certificates signed by veterinarians who can be endorsed by the British Consul, although in their case that portion of their work was performed correctly, yet there were several instances which he cited where horses were not allowed to land because of this omission. He had words of praise for the people there, and said that "they appreciate justice, merit, pluck and fairness as well as any American audience he had ever seen, and they felt that it was their duty to rally to their support when the falsity of the accusations against their trained horses was made known."

SACRAMENTO SPRING MEETING.

Runners and Trotters Entered in the Coming Races at the Capital City.

Judging from the entries made and the interest taken in the Spring meeting this year, the event will be one of the most successful race meetings ever held in Sacramento.

The balance of the programme for running horses at the Spring meeting will be published a few days prior to May 9th.

The Directors have not yet fully decided what arrangements they will make for "over night races," but the matter will come up for further consideration shortly, and no doubt satisfactory conclusions will be reached.

The days upon which the running races will take place have not yet been arranged.

SPRING MEETING ENTRIES.

MONDAY, MAY 9TH.

Trotting -Three Minute Class Purse $300.—Jessie, entered by Dan McCarty; Administer, entered by Worth Ober; Colonel McNasser, by S. C. Tyron; James L., by T. E. Keating; Wildo, by George A. Wiley; Billy B., by George A. Woodard.

Roadster race for Sacramento County horses without records that have been used as such. Purse $300.—Crescent, entered by S. C. Tyron; Saphyr, by T. C. Snyder; Fannie C., by Peter Cassady; Little Phil, by George C. McMullen; Hollywood, by Dr. A. M. McCollum; Pex-A, by Williard Gardner. Dandy and Butte were not eligible, and were ruled out.

Pacing, 2:25 class. Purse $300—Mattie B., entered by G. W. Woodard; Eastwood, by B. C. Holly; Albina, by Thos. Wall, Jr. This race was declared filled with three entries, deducting two, as they are good ones and will make an interesting race.

MAY 11TH

Trotting and pacing, free for all Purse $300—Frank M., entered by T. E. Keating; Turk Franklin, by A. Ottinger; Nevada, by Charles David; Tom Ryder, by P. H. Newton; Our Dick, by O. A. Hickok. This will make one of the most interesting races of the week, as all the entries are fast and evenly matched.

Trotting 2:40 class. Purse, $300—This race did not fill, as there were but two entries (St. Lucas and Pandora) and was declared off.

LET the colts shed their coats naturally. Where the hair, which comes out freely at this season, is scraped off or carded out, there is danger of their taking cold. Attention to little things will make a vast difference in the balance sheet at the close of the year.

The name of many of our stock farms are taken from the Spanish, and most of them are very appropriate. Frank H. Burke's famous La Siesta farm received that appellation, which means the place of quietness or rest because of its location. To see this "Home of Eros," a representative of this journal and an Eastern horseman recently paid it a visit.

In just one hour and eight minutes from the time the train left the depot we were at the oak-shaded station of Menlo Park. A carriage was in waiting to convey us to our destination. The morning was delightful; nature seemed taking a holiday, for it was just the time of year when hill and vale and grove were clothed in the fresh and tender robings of the spring. The music of the hoof-beats of our prancing team seemed to chord well with the sweet notes of the meadow larks as they flew across the gold-flecked fields of growing grain. Leaving the county road to the right the driver turned the horses' heads toward a winding road that led to the farm. We passed large fields of grain dotted here and there with rugged oaks and rich green laurels, around little knolls where vineyards were budding and young fruit trees were in full bloom, adjacent to some vine-covered cottages or surrounding more pretentious dwellings. Beneath the quiet shade of interlocking branches of giant trees which almost hid the road from an extended view, the horses quietly trotted. Then another scene presented itself, a picture of innocent rural life that seemed completed by the presence of matronly looking broodmares which were nibbling their way through the verdant grasses, beds of clover and alfalfa apparently unconscious of the gambolings of their foals, which were romping like little children over the green, frightening the butterflies from the vari-colored flowers. The hills that formed the background seemed to reflect all the bright colors of the rainbow; the blue sky above, the golden-hued eschscholtzias, the yellow buttercups, the blue sage blossoms, the pink and white daisies and the various shadings of green out of which all of these flowers grew, added not a little to the scene; while under the surrounding oaks the gentle kine could be seen enjoying a siesta in the shade.

A turn of the road, and, like a sudden shifting of a scene in some spectacular play, a different view was revealed to us. Upon a hillside overlooking the valley were a number of imposing barns and buildings; sentinel-like, the residence of Mr. Frank H. Burke, owner of La Siesta Farm, was seen. The road to it was bordered on one side by young locust trees, and on the other, beyond the fence, by a row of willows, madrones and sycamores that traced the course of the ever-flowing stream called the Las Trancas.

This creek marks the southern and eastern boundaries of the La Siesta Farm. Driving through the gate, we passed a paddock on one side, and the corral where numbers of Holstein Friesians were, on the other. The horses soon brought us up the gentle slope to the rounding vine-covered arch built over the driveway in front of the magnificent residence, where a cordial greeting awaited us from Mr. Burke and his wife. On entering the spacious hallway we perceived the display of an exquisite taste, not only in the design of the building, but also in its furnishing; the beauty of its interior was in harmony with its charming exterior. It is a home wherein all the comforts of life are enjoyed and every wish is gratified. The library, with its collection of books on every subject, was arranged with all the appurtenances to make it a place where one could spend many profitable hours of intellectual enjoyment. The sun shines in every one of the seventeen rooms of this house at some period of the day; the view from its upper porch across the garden, orchard and grain fields to the rolling hills of Palo Alto is one that, once seen, is never forgotton.

After a short rest, we paid a visit to the barns, the stable, the orchard and all the places of interest on this model stock farm of three hundred and ninety acres of rich, rolling land, every foot of which is under a high state of cultivation except that occupied by buildings and paddocks. Two large springs of water having an outlet some two hundred feet higher than the residence furnish water for irrigating and dairy purposes. The granaries, barns, winery, stables, blacksmith shop and dairy house are built on the most approved plans. The barn is a large, commodious structure, having room for four hundred tons of baled hay. On each side of the main building are long sheds, so constructed that the lower portions are used as stall rooms for the cattle, while the upper—used as feed rooms and contain machinery for cutting hay. Outside of this building are the engine house and boiler room, from which the power comes to run the hay-cutter and the circular saw, besides the deep-well pumps and the derrick for hauling hay. On the other end of the building is the room where the milk cans are cleaned. Everything is uniformly neat throughout the place. The granaries and wineries are very solidly constructed. A large wind mill and tank that can be seen from all parts of the valley are on a line with the cupola of the large barn, and add to the appearance of the place.

The lack of level ground to build a race track is seen, and to atone in a measure for this great loss Mr. Burke has had constructed a covered kindergarten about one-seventh of a mile in diameter. Here the colts and fillies exercise. At present they are at the San Jose race track in charge of Mr. Vioget, so we did not have the pleasure of seeing the young Eros colts and fillies move.

In one of the barns near the kindergarten we counted fifteen young Holstein-Friesian bulls all standing quietly in their stalls; a walk among them convinced us of their gentleness, and demonstrated clearly that "kindness is the governing rule on this farm." Here were prize-winners at all the fairs in which they were shown. The pedigree of horses can be traced through many generations, but the pedigree of many of these animals extend much further. Before going to look at the cows we inspected the pens where Mr. Burke has his imported Berkshire hogs, and found them neat and comfortable, the royally-bred occupants being fat and contented.

In the corral, in the center of which the barn was built, the cows were standing, waiting for the "merry milkman and his pail." Leland Stanford Jr. University receives its daily supply from this farm; it therefore becomes a necessity to have this want supplied. As we walked around each of the splendidly-formed, large, black and white cows and noticed their immense udders and escutcheons we were not surprised to hear that many of them gave from twenty-five to thirty-five quarts of milk per day. The exact amount given by each cow daily is weighed and recorded. The amount fed is also recorded, and everything is systematically kept. This herd of one hundred and fifty head is considered one of the best in the United States, and as Mr. Burke is about to issue a catalogue of them, every one interested in the dairy business will see in it facts and figures about this breed of dairy cattle that will be very instructive.

On each of the little knolls above the house are covered reservoirs; around them thousands of fruit trees have just been set out, between the rows—which are some ten feet wide—Mr. Burke plants bald barley and gets two crops of this green feed, besides one of corn, during the year. The grain field lies on the other side of the hill from that on which the residence is built. The broodmares that are on this farm are a select lot. Here are the dams of seventeen performers; among them we noticed the chestnut mare Sister, by John Nelson. She is the dam of Bonanza, 2:29½, and Albert W., 2:20, and the granddam of Vida Wilkes, 2:18¼, etc.; Fanny Fern, by Jack Hawkins, dam of Balkan, 2:15; Molly Drew, 2:27; Fred Arnold, 2:29; Molly Drew, 2:40 (dam of Alannah, 2:18, and granddam of Freedom, 2:29¾, as a yearling); Mona by Brigadier, out of Countess (dam of Dawn, 2:18¼ and Strathway, 2:20); Olita (dam of Cæsar, 2:16½); Stella S. (sister to Alfred S., 2:16¼, 2:16½ to wagon.) These mares are all heavy with foal to Eros, 2:29¾, the premier stallion. Besides these these are a number of other great broodmares (more for the number than on any other stock farm of its size in the State) also looking in the pink of condition.

The colts and fillies which have been sold in the East from this stock farm have satisfied their purchasers so well that, so far as heard from, every one gives such promise that they will be trained. The two sons of Eros, 2:29¼, that are in the stud here, Mount Hood, 2:22¾, and Iris, are proving their value by siring well-shaped colts and fillies that are natural trotters and very speedy.

The sun was just sinking behind the Coast Range, and as the shadows of evening fell aslant the hills and valleys we bade adieu to our genial host and hostess and soon were on our way back to business cares, where we could take a retrospective glance over memory's fields and enjoy the scenes that will linger long among our pleasant recollections.

Santa Rosa Scintillations.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN: Owing to the inclement weather Saturday the stock exhibition and purses advertised to come off under the auspices of the Santa Rosa Trotting Horse Club was postponed. This was a great disappointment to a great many stockmen, as they had made arrangements to attend and show their fine stock. Another date will be set, however, and our farmers will not be deprived of the pleasure of seeing what we can trot out in the way of trotting, draft, coach and saddle animals.

We visited the stable of I. DeTurk Saturday. This is one of the best-appointed horse palaces in the State, and long since was written up in detail in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. We found Mr. DeTurk and the only McGraw there and were shown everything about the place. Nobody enjoys talking horse more than Mr. DeTurk, unless it is Mr. McGraw, and it is their delight to take visitors thaough their establishment. Mr. DeTurk's great wine plant is just across the street from the stables, but we are not going to write about that this time.

The first horse the visitor asks to see, of course, is the "Black Cyclone," Silas Skinner. Silas was never in better fix or finer fettle than now. His silken coat shines like the traditional clerical garb, and his mettle is all there, as it was the day he came down the line with magnificent stride at Sacramento. Silas is without doubt one of the most remarkable horses ou the coast. His matchless vigor, granite-like endurance and superior intelligence make him one that will leave a stamp upon his progeny that will be recognized anywhere.

Silas Skinner will meet some hot company in the free-for-all and the 2.15 classes this year. In fact he will meet the Spartans of the speed ring. In reply to the question as to what he thought of the prospect before him this season among such horses as Palo Alto, Cupid, McKinney, Advertiser and others, "Mc" said: "Well, if the old horse gets down there in good shape he will push 'em along faster than any race seen on this coast for some time." And here in Santa Rosa we believe that he will. Silas has had a very successful season thus far, and his owners seem to be well satisfied with the reception the Sonoma-county breeders have given him.

There are other horses at the DeTurk stables of wide reputation besides Silas. There is Myrtle, the great three-year-old of last year. Myrtle is looking well and when she comes to the wire this summer will acquit herself, we think, equally as well as she did a year ago. Antietam, the three-year-old, sired by Anteeo, dam a Nutwood mare, has grown a good deal since last spring, and is really a promising-looking young horse. He is receiving plenty of work and shows good speed. The Hero colt, Robin, dam by Nephew, is looking well. One of his legs has been blistered, but he is rounding to in good style. Robin has been stinted to two choice mares, and gives indications of becoming a valuable sire.

The bay gelding Chili was named during the recent complications with our dark-skinned neighbor below. He is by Anteeo, dam an Illinois mare by Hambletonian Chief, out of a Cassius M. Clay mare. The little chap they called Brown Wilkes, last year, is now known as Major Brown. Major Brown is by Philosopher, dam by Brown's Volunteer. He is entered in the two-year-old stakes at Petaluma. As a racy-looking little fellow he has few equals.

Pop Eye is the name of a fine five-year-old bay mare sired by Wisecarver's Mambrino Patchen. She is out of the same dam as Chili. She is a very clever driving mare, and is often seen on the streets hitched to the DeTurk wagon.

Silas Skinner Jr. is growing like unto a weed. He is the picture of the "Black Cyclone" and out of a General Taylor mare. This fellow is the pride of "Mc," who predicts that he will be a record-breaker, and he ought to know something about it. Nic Russell is son a of Silas Skinner, dam by Nutwod. This youngster was named after the genial steward of Centennial Club, of which organization Mr. DeTurk is the president. Nick is only eleven months old, but can trot like a veteran. The groom took him out and led him up and down the road a number of times, and it was surprising how the little rascal did trot. Sometimes he forced the saddle horse into a rapid run, and at no time did the youngster forget that he was expected to do his best.

Dan Brown, the bay gelding by Anteeo, dam by Volunteer, is in good condition and gets a fair allowance of road work. The five-year-old stallion John L. dam an Echo mare, never looked better. John is a handsome horse and would make a valuable head to some large breeding establishment. Ukiah, the four-year-old stallion by Anteeo, dam by Brown's Volunteer is a graceful stem of the trotting line. He is a good mover and goes off at a comfortable gait.

The Guerneville people had a great race a few days ago. It was a running event, and was between Henry Watson's mare Gertrude, Henry Ungewitter's mare Lizzie and Edgar Turner's horse Thieving Billie. It was two heats, half-mile and repeat, and was won by Gertrude, Thieving Billie second. The purse was for $75, and the winner took it all. After the big running event, everybody that had a saddle horse joined in the grand free-for-all gallop, which was kept up for a number of minutes, to the great amusement of all the spectators. The Guerneville people enjoy sport about as well as any citizens on earth, and when they set out for an afternoon of innocent merriment do not allow the grass to grow under their pedal extremities.

So far we have heard of no cases of glanders in this county this spring, but the authorities are determined to be vigilant, and toward that end the Supervisors have notified all the county officers to be extremely careful to report any case they discover, and to have the afflicted animals killed at once. Glanders do not exist here, however, at least we hear no reports of diseased horses. Sonoma county has the reputation of being one of the healthiest in the State, for beasts as well as for men.

The Work That Is Being Done.

This is the era of preparation. While the rapid hoofbeats of the fleet thoroughbreds are marking time on the Bay District course, the owners of trotters and pacers are not idle. It being the intention of several owners of our largest stock farms to send many of their "very youngest trotters" to the East, as well as their tried campaigners, they find that every moment of time is becoming more precious. Amid hope and fear they are watching carefully the work of preparation. Sulkies are inspected, boots carefully fitted and an extra supply ordered in case of accidents; horse clothing and blankets, besides harnesses, are being manufactured to order for them. Every day the horses are given their exercise; as they are seen trotting fast quarters and halves, and show no signs of distress, the owners are encouraged. At Pleasanton, Orrin A. Hickok has a string of green horses and a few campaigners which are seen moving up and down the stretches and around the turns accompaning George Starr's galaxy of equine wonders, with which he hopes to repeat the victories achieved last year.

About two miles from this famous training ground on the Valensin farm, Millard Sanders and his brother are kept busy from sunrise to sunset working intelligently, quietly and for a purpose with the young Sidneys that the Eastern turfites have heard so much about and yet have never seen.

The other farm that is also to have its youngsters make their debut on the circular tracks beyond the Rockies is that of Mr. Corbitt's—the San Mateo Stock Farm. Through the protracted illness of the principal trainer and driver, John A. Goldsmith, this string of trotters and pacers by Guy Wilkes and Sable Wilkes goes East heavily handicapped for the want of the necessary preparation, still we believe the "speed and gameness is in 'em," and they will make a creditable showing.

No one knows better than Messrs. Valensin, Corbitt, Salisbury and Hickok the great risks attendant upon the journey East. The transportation by rail is, in itself, quite an undertaking; but the change of food, of water and of climate—the greatest of all changes—are enough to put the colts back in their work, and may disappoint these gentlemen, who, in their endeavor to add more glory to California's crown, have shown such pluck and enterprise.

At Palo Alto a number of trainers are at work, and the colts and fillies are doing well. These youngsters will only appear on this coast. We believe it is not decided to send any of them East this year.

On every race track, kite or circular, drivers and trainers are very busy handling colts and fillies, during their rests between getting the speed out of their tried campaigners.

There is not a horseman in this State who has a colt in training but believes that ere the wintry rains fall he will have that youngster in the 2:30 list, and with that prospect in view he is paying little attention to the way the thoroughbreds are moving at the Bay District track, for all his spare moments are devoted to the work of developing the youngster in which he has seen such signs of promise.

Liberality and Enterprise.

The race meeting now in progress at Bay District track is one of the best from every point of view ever held on the Pacific Coast. "What makes it so?" one would naturally ask. The number of horses participating in the various events. "And what brought the horses here?" Money. Liberal purses bring horses from far and near every time, and good fields call out the people. It is so the world over. Successful as has been the meeting so far from a financial point of view, we would say with all respect that there have been too small a number of handicaps, too many short dashes and the track too lumpy or safety or speed.

The largest attendance of the meeting, probably, was last Tuesday, when the California Stake was contested. Have more stake races and give us a good, old-fashioned two-mile dash or two, with a liberal purse to the winner. It is an experiment well worth trying, and we venture the assertion that the attendance will be increased at least a third on the day the race comes off.

The association is on the right track now, with its excellent paid starter, largely increased purses and races so arranged that almost every owner will go away with more than winter expenses. This is as it should be, and we trust that in future we will have more stake races, more handicaps and fewer sprints. The San Francisco public should support one of the greatest racing organizations in America, and doubtless will when it is made to understand that nowhere in the world do they have better racing than right in our midst. California is the horse Paradise, and the directors of the Blood Horse Association are warming up to the good work and getting their eyes open to the wants of the sport-loving public. At no time during the meeting has there been anything looking in the slightest like a job, and no better proof is wanted of the squareness of the racing than that nearly every bookmaker is loser on the meeting. The day is not far distant when there will be a stake race every afternoon, and when that time arrives we can confidently look for increased interest in racing in and around San Francisco and the making of this city the racing metropolis of the United States west of Chicago.

A Valuable Suggestion.

An Eastern gentleman who has been visiting the various stock farms in this State, remarked to a well-known breeder:

"There is one thing that struck me most forcibly while among the various stock farms in California, and that was the apparent flimsiness of the barns in which the very choicest stallions and broodmares are kept. Should a fire break out on some of the places I have visited there would be no way in the world of saving the horses. The partitions between the box-stalls do not extend to the ceilings, and a draught is thus created in case of fire that would give the flames a chance to burst from one end of the long row of stalls to the other. The doors are locked and fastened inside and out with locks and bolts that could never be wrenched off; buckets of water are never left where they could be found in case of an emergency, and the wonder to me is that the fire fiend has not swept some of your most valuable horses away. The matter of protection from fire is an all-important one, and steps should be at once taken by owners of horses to build barns and stables that will not burn like a piece of tinder." The remarks of this observer bear the impress of truth, for only a few years ago the fire at the Bay District track proved fatal to a number of horses, and the terrible fire that destroyed Norlaine, Rexford and a number of others at Palo Alto is not forgotten.

Another Change Imminent.

The various turf journals throughout the United States are commenting on the action of the Register Association which recently convened at Chicago. "Raymond," one of the most observant of turf writers, prints the following note in the Horse World:

"The separate standards adopted by the Register Association for trotters and pacers will set many people wondering what will be done with those pacers that have already been registered in the trotting register, and especially with the stallions that have been given numbers. A good many have been registered, and as their owners have paid the fee demanded, it is doubtful if the association has an any legal right to take away the privileges thus conferred. The whole muddle only goes to show that no changes should be made in the standard until an expression of opinion is secured from breeders in all parts of the country, for it is to these breeders that the association has to look principally for its patronage and support. Take away the support of the so-called small breeder, and the Register would be a rather unprofitable piece of property. More than one observant man has become convinced that at some time in the future performance will cut no figure in the standard any more than individuality now does, but that the horse that can show a certain number (the more the better) of standard crosses will be regarded as of the highest standard, while ability to perform and individuality will be regarded simply as adjuncts, necessary adjuncts to be sure, but entirely unconnected with his relation to the standard, much as the thoroughbred is judged at the present time."

Accept This Invitatlon.

The directors of the various district associations are working hard to give good programmes so that large crowds will attend their respective meetings. They should spare a day or two and attend the Blood Horse meetings at the Bay District track and see how the officials there, by superior management, send everybody away satisfied when the last event of the day is run. Everything runs as smoothly as well-oiled machinery; every official knows his duty and attends to the fulfillment of it. The professional starter is a success and is a living argument in favor of having professional officials at our trotting horse meetings. Everything connected with this running horse meeting is the "embodiment of life;" no delays are allowed; every race is called on time and no excuses are listened to. The various events take place with the regularity of clock work. No spectacular play on the modern stage is given with as little friction. No long waits between the scenes, no apologies for non-appearance, and no disputes between the young men are tolerated. The methodical way in which everything is done is appreciated by the general public, and the crowds of spectators are increasing every day. Horse-racing is the all-absorbing topic. Pugilism, baseball, lawn tennis, bicycling, acquatic sports and matinees are forgotten, and the young ladies and their escorts are rallying to the "Sport of Kings" in a way that is most commendable and augurs well for the revival of the old-time interest that was almost made a national sport in the ante-bellum days.

Therefore we say that all sticklers for the old methods would do well to spare a day or two and attend these races. No greater or more lasting lesson can be learned by them than the impression that will indelibly fix itself on their memories when they see the horses called to the post and in a few moments thereafter hear the thrilling shout, "They're off!"

The directors of the Blood Horse meetings deserve credit for the way they are working, and we can with a certainty almost affirm that in the Spring of 1893, the Baldwin, Winters and Haggin thoroughbreds will be here to swell the lists of competitors and make this city what it deserves to be—"the Lexington of the West."

Again we wish to impress upon all associations to ask their presidents and directors to visit the race meeting now in progress at the Bay District track and see how racing can be made attractive. There is no reason why trotting horse meetings could not be made just as popular if they are managed as well.

The Whitney Sale.

A. L. Whitney has concluded to sell without reserve, every trotting-bred horse, mare, colt and filly he has, on the seventeenth of next month. He has been collecting some extra fine individuals, and were it not for the multiplicity of business cares that engage his whole time and attention, there is no doubt he would continue in the business of breeding and raising a most excellent class of trotters from the foundation blood lines he selected. The auctioneers have concluded to add a number other good ones and make this a combination sale of the very choicest individuals offered this year. Due notice will be given hereafter.

Among the horses in training at the Salem track are: Barrows Bros.' Multnomah, Del Norte, DeLinn, Multao, Multena; W. A. Wells' Kitty Wells; Dr. Courtney's Lady Cole; George Henderson's Alonzo; J. W. Shannon's Mary A., a six-year-old Altamont-Kisbar mare, and a yearling two-year-old Rosemon filly; John Knights' four-year-old Altamont mare and yearling, Director Jr. colt; John Shaw's two-year-old Rosemon filly; D. J. Fry's three-year-old Lockwood filly; Hatch & Riely's yearling Magna Charta filly; Bright & Cox's Rosemon, Rosemon Jr. and four-year-old Rosemon gelding; Dr. Griffith's two-year-old Rosemon; Jay C. Smith's four-year-old Challenger mare; Richard R. Hughes' Gyp and Bert; Tom Holland's Maud, Maud B., Black Jim, Golden Wilkes, Daisy D., Neta, Robert D. and Barney; T. G. Perkins' Nellie Bly and Little Phil; W. J. Irwin's Lady Maud; B. O. Van Bokkelin's Holmdel, Celtic, Walter, Governor, Oliver Goldsmith, Celtician and Kenwood Maid; E. M. Lafore's French.

Jimmie Matlock died in Portland on the 14th inst., of dropsy of the heart. He was a son of T. J. Matlock, of Heppner, one of the well-known breeding firm of Matlock Bros. The remains were taken to Heppner for interment. Jimmie, who had followed riding for years past, was widely known as a good jockey, and was a favorite among turfmen for his genial ways and courteous behavior. He had ridden in Montana, California, Oregon, and in many of the principal races in the East, accompanying the Matlock Bros., on their tour and carrying their colors to victory in numerous contests while mounted on the fleet and famous mare, Repetta, which he alone was allowed to ride after the teaching of a trusted jockey. He lately attended Bishop Scott's Academy at Portland, returned to his home at Heppner, was attacked with disease, and came to the metropolis for medical treatment, being vanquished at last in the race between life and death.

By a dispatch received just as this paper is going to press we are advised that the railroads will take horses during the meeting through the Montana Circuit at one fare for both ways.

Sacramento Items.

Since the bang-tails left Agricultural Park to take part in the Blood Horse meeting at Bay District interest has flagged somewhat at the track, though the trotters and pacers are all going in good form and getting ready for the 9th of May.

Dr. McCollum is driving his mare every day now. He has her entered in the roadster class, and is working to get some of her extra flesh off.

George McMullen has built a track at his place at Brighton, on which he is training his roadster. The horse is reported going fast.

Hugh Casey is having his mare trained for the roadster contest. She is doing well.

Willard Gardner's black horse had his first fast work given him yesterday. He went in 58. Some one who was looking on remarked that the genial Gardner must get Yorkey to ginger up the horse with Lash's bitters, or something, if he expects to get him anywhere.

Vet Tryon's horses are doing well. Colonel McNasser is improving in style and speed every day.

Worth Ober has a colt that is entered for the spring meeting that can knock off a mile in 40.

C. Schlusher is in charge of Wilber Smith's stable here while the latter is at the Blood-horse meeting.

Schlusher is driving a pacer, owned by a gentleman at the Capitol, that is going fast these days. Competent judges say he will open the eyes of knowing ones this Fall.

Dr. Root's horse which is now at Glenbrook is looking well and can move a mile in 35 or better.

Swanson's mare, at the same place, is clipping along at a 40 gait.

Brilliantine, Harper's filly, is doing nicely. She worked out in 30 yesterday morning.

Grum's Falrose also worked out at the same time in the same notch exactly.

Bert Kidder, the popular young gentleman at Baker & Hamilton's, has purchased from Worth Ober a likely horse by Ross S. Mr. Kidder calls him Hardnut, and his many friends wish him the very best of good luck with him. He is pleased with his purchase and says he does not propose to take anybody's dust this year on the Riverside.—Sacramento News.

Woodland Turf Topics.

Agricultural Park, Woodland, presents a scene of activity at present. A large force of carpenters are employed in building a fence on the inside of the new runners' track, while several teams are at work harrowing and rolling the track in order to have it in prime condition for the spring race meeting.

Every morning the track is lined with flyers that are under training for the races. A number of horses are expected next week, and all the stalls will then be occupied.

Det Bigelow has charge of Geo. W. Woodard's string of Buttons. Belle Button is only being "jogged" a mile or so every day, as she is with foal by Hollywood.

Laura Z. is under training for the Sacramento spring meeting, as she will trot in the 2:25 class at that time. The mare is a little fleshy, but Mr. Bigelow will have her in trim in a couple of weeks.

Mattie B., another three-year-old pacer by Button, will be entered in the 2:35 class at Sacramento. She is a beautiful animal, and shows remarkable speed.

The favorite of the Woodard stable is the four-year-old Button mare, Lucy B., who has a three-year-old record of 2:28½. This mare is a magnificent specimen of horseflesh, and promises to be a world-beater. Mr. Woodard refused an offer of $6,000 for her, which was made by an Eastern horseman last week. Lucy B. is in the pink of condition, and is undoubtedly the prettiest mare at the track.

Mr. Bigelow has several other Buttons at work and also a Stamboul colt, the property of Thomas R. Lowe, which is destined to make his mark in turfdom. Mr. Woodard will start a large number of his colts in the spring meeting here, and will afterward make the circuit with them.

Johnnie Blue, the veteran trainer, has a string of well-bred horses. He has Cy. Groff's mare, Hattie B., in hand, and this game little animal is improving every day.

G. W. Griffin's two-year-old colt, Tidal Wave, is the pride of Mr. Blue's string. This colt is by Electioneer, and already shows a forty gait. Mr. Blue considers her the most promising mare in Northern California. He also has the brown horse Chub, Wm. Rhemke's Killarney colt, Billy R. and several other youngsters under his control, and expects to have a number of them in shape for the spring meeting.

T. A. Stephens has several runners in his string, which will go in the spring and fall races. The stallion Lucky B. is also in his stable.

R. H. Newton speeds Tom Rider every day, and is also training a Clay Duke colt which he calls Tommy Gray, to start in the three-minute class.

Alvis Hunt is another admirer of fine horseflesh. He can be seen at the track every morning speeding his roadster, Peanuts.

Dr. G. W. Zimmerman's horse is being trained to start in the buggy horse race which will take place during the spring meeting.

John Hoppin has a four-year-old trotter by Button at the track, which will be entered in the Breeders' Stake race at the Bay View track this fall.

The stallion Hollywood, by Woodnut, will also start in the Breeders' meeting. This stallion is a three-year-old, and trots a quarter at a 2:06 gait.

Bell B., another Button colt, will be entered in the three-minute class at the Sacramento meeting, as well as Alexander Button Jr., who will start in the 2:35 class.

Vidette is the name of a promising two-year-old pacer and a half sister to the celebrated Yolo Maid. With four trials Vidette can show a 2:35 gait.

Oscar Parker has a thoroughbred mare called Crystal, which will start at the spring meeting.

Gilbert Wright, of Dixon, has a four-year-old mare named Jennie D., in Blue's string, and a two-year-old in the hands of Det Bigelow. These animals will be started at the Dixon races on the 29th inst.

J. E. King has Red Cloud and another of the get of Red Iron quartered at the track.

All in all, the exhibition of high-bred stock at the track is a creditable one, and several of the animals under training will prove to be very fast company at the coming spring and fall races.—Yolo Democrat.

SUMMARY.

From an athletic point of view, the field-day of the Olympic Club, which was held last Saturday afternoon, was a decided success, but it is to be regretted that the gate receipts were not large enough to cover the expenses of the meeting. The Olympic Club members are eagerly looking forward to May 26th, when the annual boxing championships will begin in their gymnasium. To-morrow week the handicap road race under the auspices of the P. A. A. A. U. will take place at San Leandro, Cal., and owing to the large number of entries, many of whom are novices, the handicapper will have a very difficult task in arranging the different starts.

THE SPRING FIELD DAY OF THE OLYMPIC CLUB.

Ever since the opening of the out door grounds of the Olympic Club the directors of that organization have been devising ways and means wherewith to attract the attention of the sport-loving public towards their field days, but, somehow or other, their efforts have not been fully appreciated. When the regular invitation exhibitions did not serve to coax the public on days when an entrance fee was charged the offenders considered that it was not a very wise plan to hold field-days on holidays and so they resolved to give a series of Saturday afternoon sports, to which a small admission fee would be charged. The first of these field-days was held last Saturday afternoon at the club grounds, but the innovation was as far as finances were concerned, a flat failure. Scarcely more than a couple of hundred gentlemen paid the admission fee, and the consequence was that the club once more had to shoulder the expense of the prizes. It was a great pity that a larger crowd of gentlemen did not put in an appearance, for the running was splendid. The ladies were admitted free, and fully one thousand representatives of the fair sex occupied seats in the grand stand. The sports began promptly at the advertised time, 2:30 o'clock, and the bitter cold air and threatening aspect overhead did not in the least discourage the thinly-clad athletes nor prevent the spectators from being unusually enthusiastic. The pistol was in the hands of James Jervis, the champion walker, and a more judicious starter could not have been selected. In almost every instance he caught his men at the first possible opportunity, and there were none of the long waits before the pistol was fired that have characterized many field-days in the past. The other officers also performed their various duties in a very creditable manner and the programme was gone through with as spee dily as possible.

Several outside athletes took part in the games, but, although the representatives of the University Athletic Club were confident of victory, still the Olympic Club boys found no difficulty in landing first medal every time. Judging from the result of the different events last Saturday it is almost a foregone conclusion that the championship meeting, which will be held next month, will be a very one-sided affair. The one-mile handicap run was the most interesting event of the day, and the running of Skillman and Pheby was very creditable. The other scratch man, Frank Cooley, ran well until the call of the fourth lap, when he dropped out. He was evidently not in the pink of condition, and will no doubt give a better account of himself on May 30th. Choynski and Baird also made a good showing. Henderson's sprinting in the "hundred" was grand, and he won the final heat in splendid style. Jellinek proved himself to be the third best man, while Ellis and Calhoun also made a fair showing. Mays ran with his usual good judgment, but it is very doubtful if he will do better than win third place at the championship meeting. Humphrey did well in the half mile, as did also Cosgro, who took second place. The records made in the running long jump might have been better, and had Foster been in good condition he would have won that event easily. The bicycle race, owing to the small track, was a very tame affair, and the time made in the different heats was below the average. The final heat was the 220-yar is run was won in great style by young Ellis, with Henderson right at his heels. In breasting the tape first in the "quarter" Mahoney showed a decided improvement over his own form and he will be heard from in the championship games. The hurdle race was a one-sided affair, as the scratch man, Foster, was unable to clear the last piece of timber owing to a touch of rheumatism in his right knee. He struck the hurdle and received a very severe fall. On account of lack of entries the 3-legged race was struck off the programme. The O. A. C. members were ready with their new war cry: "Hi-yea—hi-yea—hi-yea—Olympic-yea-a-a" but as there was no opposition from the U. C. crowd, the yell was not given very often. Some of the Olympics, however, were in possession of immense tin horns, and whenever one of their club mates landed a first prize they exercised their lungs for the benefit of the people in the grand stand. The following is a summary of the results:

One hundred yards run, final heat, A. S. Henderson, O. C., scratch, 1st. Time, 10¼ seconds. Paul S. Ellis, O. C. juv., 6½ yards, 2nd.: C. A. Jellinek, O. C., 3 yards, 3d. Scarcely a foot divided the three men at the finish.

Half mile run, handicap Starters: W. H. Toomey, O. C., scratch; D. Waterman, U. C., scratch; J. P. Cosgro, O. C., 15 yards; H. E. Humphrey, A. A. A. A., 30 yards; F. R. Gallagher, O. C., 60 yards. First, Humphrey; second, Cosgro. Time, 2 minutes 2½ seconds.

Running broad jump—Starter: F. F. Foster, scratch; A. Keller, 1 foot 6 inches; M. L. Espinosa, 2 feet 6 inches; A. Mahoney, 2 feet 6 inches. Winner with handicap, Mahoney, distance 20 feet 7½ inches; Keller second, 20 feet 2 inches.

One mile bicycle handicap race.

This was a very poor exhibition of riding, and after two uninteresting heats were contested V. H. Wassermann won first place in 3 min. 8⅗ seconds.

One-mile handicap race—Starters: P. D. Skillman, O. C., scratch; Fred S. Pheby, U. C., scratch; F. L. Cooley, O. C., scratch; Sol. Choynski, Alpine, 65 yards; G. D. Baird, O. C., 76 yards; E. P. Tobin, Alpine, 80 yards; Ed. Langer, Alpine, 90 yards; William Spellman, O. C., 110 yards.

Skillman won a grand race by about a foot. Time, 4:41. Pheby, second.

220-yard race, handicap Starters: First heat—A. S. Henderson, O. C., scratch; C. R. Morse, U. C., 4 yards; R. A. Chick, U. C., 6 yards; L. Gill, O. C., 6½ yards; W. Smythe, Acme, 7 ½ yards; Paul S. Ellis, O. C., juv., 11 yards; A. Mahoney, O. C., 10 yards. First, Henderson; second, Paul Ellis. Time, 23 ¼ seconds.

Second heat Starters: Edwin Mays, U. C., scratch; Grant Calhoun, L. S. Jr. U. C., 4 yards; C. A. Jellinek, O. C., 6 yards; George J. Hoffman, U. C., 9 yards. First, C. A. Jellinek, Mays second. Time, 23 ¼ seconds.

In the final, Henderson, Ellis, Jellinek and Mays started. It was a grand finish, and was won by Ellis, with Henderson at his heels. Time 23 2-5 seconds.

220-yard hurdle handicap Starters: Foster, scratch, and Keller 7 yards.

Foster got the best of the start and caught Kelter before the first turn was reached. Foster fell over the third and last hurdle, and Keller jogged in a winner in 28 seconds.

440-yard handicap run—Starters: C. R. Morse, U. C., scratch; William Smythe, Acme 14 yards; R. Mays, U. C., 17 yards; Ed Langer, Alpine, 21 yards; A. Mahoney, O. C., 16 yards; D. Winter, U. C. 17 yards; M. L. Espinosa, O. C., 21 yards. First, Mahoney, Winter second. Time, 52 4-5 seconds.

During the progress of the track events several of the O. C. juveniles amused the ladies with interesting as well as scientific exhibitions of boxing and wrestling, which highly reflected on the ability of the instructors of boxing and wrestling, Professors George Michling and Walter Watson.

The great International tug-of-war tournament will begin this evening in the Mechanics' Pavilion and carpenters have been at work all the week putting up new seats. It is expected that the pavilion, will be crowded to the doors every night during the contest.

D. G. H., Vacaville.—Give me the register number of Fred Low and Old St. Clair. Answer—Fred Low, 656; St. Clair, 16,675.

To W. H. J., Sacramento.—Dot was by J. B. Larue (who was by a son of O. J. Demich's Bashaw Drury, son of Queen's Bashaw, dam Lodi, by a Morgan horse. This is at least the breeding given at the time she was bred to James Madison.

W. B.—Please give breeding of Todhunter's Mambrino. Answer.—The horse was known in after years as Marmaduke, and is registered in volume 7 number 3082. He was by Marion (son of Mambrino Chief 11), dam by Bob Didlake 794; second dam by Young Lord. He was bred by R. Todhunter, Lexington, Ky., and by him taken to Missouri. This horse sired Bessie, 2:26¼.

S. & D. G., Auburn, Cal.—1. Is Kaffir, 2:30, by Alcazar, 2:20½, registered, and what is his number? 2. Are the programmes out for State Fair and for Stockton Fair, also for Napa Meeting, and when do entries close? Answer—1. His register number is 15,045, and will be found in volume 10. 2. The racing programme is out for Napa. In our issue of April 16th, will be found the Napa programme, and entries to stakes close May 2, 1892. Sacramento's programme is completed also, we believe. In our issue of March 26th will be found that one.

R., Santa Maria, Cal.—1. Please inform me as to the first and second dams of the running-bred horse Shylock (Shiloh), and whether he was sired by Lexington or not? 2. How many trotting-bred horses have been in California under the name of Ethan Allen? If one, give sire of dam. Answer 1. Shiloh, foaled 1862, was by Cosmo dam Fanny Harper, by Grey Eagle; second dam Julia Ann, by Medoc. Shiloh was the sire of John Treat and other good race horses. There was a Shylock by Lexington. He was foaled in 1860 at Woodburn Farm, near Lexington, Ky., and was out of Edith, by imported Sovereign; second dam Judith, by imported Glencoe. 2. The question is too hard, and it is impossible to answer it correctly. One (Vick's Ethan Allan Jr.) was by Ethan Allen 43, dam Harris mare, by Hambletonian 2.

J. H. B.—1. Please give the pedigree of Eoline? said to be foaled in Kentucky about nine years ago. 2. Is he registered in Bruce's American Stud Book? 3. Please give sire of Peregrine, first dam, Irene Harding. Answer.—1. There were two Eolines, and both were by Eolus. One was foaled in Virginia, the other in Pennsylvania. One was out of War Song, by War Dance, and died Dec. 4, 1884, aged about 8 months; the other, out of Gazelle, by Revenue, is now 9 years old, and was foaled the property of A. J. Cassatt, the Pennsylvania railroad king. 2. Both were mares, the one out of War Song registered in vol. V of Bruce, page 734, the other, out of Gazelle, in vol. V, page 310. 3. The Stud Book (vol. V, Bruce) says Peregrine is by Joe Hooker or Jumbo.

To J. K. N., Santa Rosa, Cal.—In your paper of the 2d, "J. K. N.," of Santa Rosa, inquires about Oregon Yank. You will find enclosed the pedigree given by Mr. Stearns, of Oakland, Oregon, who owned him a number of years. Yours respectfully,

J. W. Mullen, Roseberg.

Oakland, Or., April 15, 1892. Mr. J. W. Mullen—Dear Sir: Your favor of 9th and inquiry of Oregon Yank. He was sired by Vermont, first dam Jenny, sired by a Sherman Morgan, a horse raised by Alex. Brown in the northern county of New Hampshire, brought by him by land travel across the plains in 1859, died out in Humboldt; was a fine, stylish, speedy horse; attracted much attention in every place they passed through en route—this from hands that were along and disinterested. His second dam was a bay, stylish kind of Morgan mare, raised by Alex. Brown, and half sister to the Sherman Morgan, so Jenny was an inbred Sherman Morgan. This statement was from Alex. Brown, who is now dead, and is as far as I know of his pedigree. Yours,

D. W. Stearns.

F. L. D., Chico, Cal.—1. Is there on the register a bay mare, black points, with small star in forehead, named Nellie Richmond, sired by Echo, dam by George M. Patchen Jr.; second dam by Pilot Temple. Said mare was bred and raised by J. B. Haggin, and was to have been registered in March, 1891? 2. What is Pilot Temple's performances, and has he any in the list? 3. Who is Secretary of the American Association Stud Register, and what is his postoffice address? Answer—1. There is a Nelly Richmond registered, but not bred as you state or anything like it. Volume 10 of the Register arrived about ten days ago, and the mare you inquire about is not registered in that; however, it may be in volume 11, which should be here next month. 2. Pilot Temple was a great race horse with a record of 2:24½, by Pilot Jr. 12, dam Madam Temple (dam of Flora Temple, 2:19¾). He won thirty-six races in his time, and beat such good ones as Red Cloud, Western Boy, Cozette and Aldine. Pilot Temple has sired nothing in the list. 3. J. H. Steiner, Rialto Building, Chicago, Ill.

The Napa Fair.

The attention of our readers is called to the advertisement of the Napa Agricultural Society. The list of stakes and purses are to be found therein, while the most essential part and that which must not be forgotten by the horsemen in the district is that the entries close on Monday, May 2, 1892. Everyone knows what an excellent race course there is in this land of the vine and the olive. The officers and directors of this association are workers, and are determined to make their annual fair better this year than it has ever been.

WHEN YOUR BLACKSMITH TELLS YOU

That he doesn't need a SOUTHER FARM RASP, that he can level a horse's hoof for the shoe with the common rasp, he is glori ously mistaken. However, don't poin ou the error of his ways too suddenly, but merely tell him to go ahead with his old rasp.

When he pronounces the foot level, use the file side of the SOUTHER FARM RASP as shown in adjoining cut, and all hands will be astonished to see how uneven a bearing surface is made by the common rasp, even when handled by a first-class workman. When used by any sensible man, the SOUTHER FARM RASP does perfect work, and leaves the bearing surface absolutely level; and it is the only tool on earth that will give a perfect bearing of both heels and the entire wearing surface.

SECOND DAM NAPA QUEEN,
BY EUGENE CASSERLY.

THIRD DAM BY STEVENS' BALD CHIEF 1766.

NAPA WILKES was foaled in 1884, bred by Wm. Corbitt, San Mateo; is a handsome bay stallion; 16¾ hands high, and weighs about 1,200 pounds. He is a horse of splendid conformation stylish, remarkably level-headed, intelligent and of kind disposition. His trotting action is perfect, and for the little work he has had, has shown himself to be a horse of wonderful speed and a producer of speed, which is demonstrated in all his colts.

NAPA WILKES will make the season of 1892 beginning FEBRUARY 1st and ending JULY 31st, in Salinas City, at W. R. Ellis' Stables on Alisal Street.

TERMS FOR THE SEASON, $75.

One-half of the service fee for mares that do not prove with foal will be returned. Excellent pasturage and the best of care taken of mares, but no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes.

THE MAGNIFICENT TROTTING STALLION

MARKS L.

Will make the Season of 1892, ending July 1st,

AT THE BAY DISTRICT TRACK.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

MARKS L. was foaled 1888; he is a handsome bay in color; stands 16.2 hands; weighs 1,150. He is a remarkably well-muscled, heavy-boned, clean-limbed horse, and a more perfect-formed or a more promising one is not standing for public service. In action he is a perfect line trotter, and although never having been handled for speed, there is little doubt but that he will trot close to 2:20 this fall.

MARKS L. was sired by Antevolo, 2:19½, out of Maggie L., by Grand Duke Alexis; second dam Vashti, by Chieftain 721; third dam by Nena Sahib (thoroughbred). Antevolo, by Electioneer 125. Grand Duke Alexis was by Stephen A. Douglas 422, out of Black Bessie, by Blucher. Stephen A. Douglas was by Hambletonian 10 out of Kate, by Balsora 1024; second dam Neva, by Vincente Nolte, etc. Chieftain 721 was by Hiatoga, out of a daughter of Trimble's Eclipse. Terms, $50 for the season. For further particulars, address

ABDOL 17,716.

RECORD, 2:28.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

Abdol was foaled in 1883, bred by John Watson, Oakland, and is one of the finest sons of the Grand Moor. He is a handsome black in color, stands 16 hands high, and weighs 1,200 pounds. He is a horse of splendid proportions, exquisite style and perfect trotting action. He is remarkably level-headed, intelligent and of kind disposition, and possesses the qualities of speed and gameness to a remarkable degree. His record is no mark of his speed. When it was made it was the intention to keep him in the 2:30 class. He has shown in his work last quarters in 34 seconds—a 2:16 gait—and can get away equally fast.

DESCRIPTION—Coal black horse, small star; stands 15¾ hands high; weighs 1,100 pounds; well-formed and of good disposition. This horse got a record of 2:17¾ with only four weeks' work; he can show a half-mile in 1:06½ and one-eighth in 16 seconds.

PEDIGREE—Got by Nutwood 600, first dam Belle, by Jack Roberts; second dam Young Nance, by Shakespeare, thoroughbred. Jack Roberts by Eclair, and he by old pacing Pilot; the dam of Jack Roberts was by Copperbottom. CYRUS R. has two crosses of the great Pilot blood, once through Nutwood and again through Belle, his dam.

SPECIAL NOTICE—No service fee if this horse does not trot in 2:12 or better in 1892, barring accidents.

ANTEROS NUTWOOD.

PEDIGREE—By Anteros 6020, full brother to Anteeo, 2:16¼, Antevolo, 2:19½, by Electioneer, the greatest sire the world has ever known. First dam Newark Belle, by Nutwood, 2:18¾, the greatest living sire; second dam Tillie, 2:40, by San Bruno, he by David Hill, and he by Vermont Black Hawk; third dam by Young Grey Eagle

DESCRIPTION—ANTEROS NUTWOOD is a handsome bay horse with black points, no white; stands sixteen hands one inch high; weighs 1,150 pounds. He is a horse of immense power, and yet so highly finished as to give him the appearance of a thoroughbred. He gives promise of trotting as fast as the celebrated Arion 2:10¾, as he can show better than a 2:20 clip to a road cart without training, and is of the same blood as the phenomenal Arion, 2:10¾, two years old. No service fee will be charged if this horse does not secure a record of twenty-five or better in 1892, barring accidents.

Season from February 1st to June 1st, at which time all bills are due and payable in United States gold coin. Limited to fifteen outside mares.

SERVICE FEE, $150 for the season. Last season we did not give him a fair show; he served thirty-nine mares and did service up to June, and was compelled to start in races in July against the best horses in Montana, being very short of fast work. At Butte, Montana, he won the $2,500 purse, Free-For-All, defeating Faust, 2:18½, Steve Whipple, 2:23, Ida D., 2:25, and Frank M., 2:18. Faust winning the first heat in 2:20, Silver Bow the second in 2:22¾, Frank M. the third in 2:22, and Silver Bow the fourth and fifth in 2:24¾ and 2:24¼. He won nine races in all last season, and had it not been that he was troubled badly with a tender mouth, he would not have lost a single race.

With his speed he will make a wonderful record the first time he starts on a good track and in perfect condition. His oldest colts are yearlings, and are very promising animals. We have one of his colts foaled May 23, 1891, which is a wonder, showing a burst of speed and perfect trotting action surpassing anything I have ever seen except in a carefully trained colt. I have also three others by SILVER BOW which are marvels of beauty and speed. We have reserved one hundred and fifty acres for pasturage for mares, and give the best of feed at $5 per month and the most careful attention, but no responsibility for accidents or escapes. ALCONA 730.

Sire of ALCONA JR., record 2:24; FLORA BELLE, record 2:24; CLAY DUKE, record 2:29; PRINCE WARWICK, trial 2:18; ALMONITION, 3-year-old trial 2:22.

Grandsire of SILAS SKINNER, record 2:17; DEL REY, record 2:29; MARK MEDIUM, record 2:24.

"LACONA" made a 2-year-old race record of 2:42½, with 17 days track work. Every one of the above descendants of ALCONA were trained by different men, in different parts of the country, and all made their records in races over regulation tracks. ALCONA is 11 years old and has already two producing sons and a producing daughter. TERMS, $75 FOR THE SEASON.

GRANDISSIMO 14,995. RECORD, 2:27 3-4. (FULL BROTHER TO GRANDEE, THREE-YEAR-OLD RECORD, 2:23½.)

Sired by La Grande 2868, dam Norma, by Arthurton 365; grandam Nourmahal, full sister to A. W. Richmond 1687.

GRANDISSIMO got his first work last season better than 3 minutes November 11, 1891. Was worked out four times and trotted to a record of 2:27¾ in a race Thanksgiving Day at Napa, finishing the last quarter in 36 seconds. Fifteen days training,—certainly a remarkable showing. I expect him to get a low mark next season. His colts are fine lookers and natural trotters. He will be bred to a limited number of mares at the low price of $50 FOR THE SEASON.

ALCONEER 15120. (FULL BROTHER TO ALCONA JR., 2:24, SIRE OF SILAS SKINNER, 2:17¾.) Sired by ALCONA 730, dam Madonna (dam of Alcona Jr., 2:24, Del Rey, 2:29¾, by Cassius M. Clay Jr. 22; grandam by Joe Downing 710.

ALCONEER is a handsome, good-sized horse, and a natural trotter. With two months training last fall as a 3-year-old he trotted a mile in 2:41; last quarter in 37½ seconds. TERMS, $50 FOR THE SEASON.

CADUCAS 10,840. Sired by ALMONT MEDIUM 2133, record 2:28½, dam Amelia T. (full sister to Prince Warwick, trial 2:18), by Alcona 730; grandam by Almont Mambrino 761; g'g d by Delmonico 110; g g g d by Cassius M. Clay Jr. 22. CADUCAS is a handsome individual, and will make a trotter. His pedigree is all one could desire. He will be bred to a few mares at the low price of $25 FOR THE SEASON.

KING WHIPPLETON (Standard). PRIVATE STALLION.

Sired by WHIPPLETON 1883, dam Kate Chapman, by Nauhuc 501; grandam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31 g g d by Ethan Allen 2903.

The season to commence February 1st. ALCONA'S season to close September 1st. GRANDISSIMO, ALCONEER and CADUCAS' season to close July 1st, as I expect to trot them during the circuit. Mares can be shipped by rail from any part of the State direct to St. Helena or by boat to Napa City, where they will be looked after. The very best of pasturage at $4 per month; hay and grain $8 per month for mares if necessary. Mares kept same as my own at $60 per year. Mares not proving with foal can be returned the following season free. Should any of my stallions die or be sold, mares will be returnable to any of my other stallions by paying difference in service, if any. For further particulars, address

DESCRIPTION AND TERMS.

Not only is Memo full brother to Frou-Frou, the champion yearling trotter in the world.. but he is also one of the very best-bred young stallions in service, having three crosses of Rysdyk's Hambletonian, one of Harry Clay, sire of Green Mountain Maid (dam of Electioneer, etc.), and Long Island Black Hawk. Through Flaxtail he traces to Canadian Pilot (sire of Pilot Jr. 12), through Bull Pup, sire of Rowdy Boy, 2:13¾, and two others. Sidney, Memo's sire, is universally known and recognized as the best young sire in the world, as a producer of extreme speed at an early age. The average speed of his progeny is lower than that of any of the get of the twelve leading stallions of America.

Memo trotted in public in his two-year-old form, obtaining a record of 2:49, though he was close to Grandee in a race on the Bay District Track, the second heat of which was made in 2:31½, the first in 2:32. He exhibited phonomenal speed when three years old, for on the Oakland track he was timed a mile in 2:20¼, and frequently trotted quarters in from 32½ to 34 seconds.

He is sixteen hands high, and of powerful build throughout. His color is a glossy black, with both forefeet white. His disposition is all that could be desired, and his action superb. He is a sure foal getter, only one mare being reported not in foal during his last season.

Terms—$100, with usual return privileges, for a limited number of mares. Season to close JUNE 15th, when he will be prepared for track purposes.

Good pasturage at reasonable rates. No responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, address

THE BEST-BRED AND FINEST-LOOKING WILKES STALLION IN THE STATE.

No. 8707. BILLY THORNHILL Rec. 2:24 1-4

By BEVERLY WILKES, Brother of

PROSPECT MAID, 2:23½, WALSINGHAM, 2166 (sire of LATITUDE, 2:19¾ at 4 years).
GEORGIA WILKES, sire of VALENTINE, 2:18½, BAS BLEN WILKES, 2:24½, BILLY WILKES, 2:29½, BESSIE WILKES, 2:31½.

By GEORGE WILKES, Sire of

GUY WILKES, 2:15¼, HARRY WILKES, 2:13½, and seventy-four others in the 2:30 list, and seventy-five sires of 249 trotters.

Dam EMILY, Dam of

FORTUNA, 2:22, BILLY THORNHILL, 2:24½
COL. YOUNG, 2:30.

By GEORGE WILKES, 2:22, Sire of

Seventy-five producing sons and forty-six producing daughters.

Second dam SUE STOUT,

By ASHLAND 47, Son of

MAMBRINO CHIEF 11 and sire of HIGHLAND WIN 1226, and others in list and the dams of EDWIN THORNE, 2:16¼, and others.

Third dam LEAR MARE, Dam of

JIM IRVING, 2:23, and YOUNG JIM, sire of BUTTERFLY, 2:19¾, GARNETT, 2:19, and twelve other performers.

By LEAR'S SIR WILLIAM, Son of

HOWARD'S SIR CHARLES.

BEVERLY WILKES (who died when but three years of age) was out of Neilson, by Mambrino Pilot 2:27½ (sire of Hannis, 2:17¾, and others), out of Juliett, by Pilot Jr. 12; second dam by Webster, son of Medoc; third dam by Blackburn's Whip. Ashland was out of Utilla, by imp. Margrave; second dam Too Soon, by Sir Leslie, etc.

The above extended pedigree needs no further comment. That it is bristling with the names of some of the greatest trotters, as well as most prepotent sires, none will deny, but a description of the representative that has such a royal lineage is much more difficult to give. In color he is a deep mahogany bay, no white markings; he stands 15.2½ hands, and weighs 1,080 pounds. He represents the highest type of a trotting horse. He has a faultless head and neck, well-sloped shoulders, magnificent back and loins, remarkably well-built across the coupling, well-rounded barrel, muscular arms and thighs, well-shaped hocks and good joints, fetlocks strong and elastic, the best of feet, and he stands with them well placed under him. He is a perfect line trotter, and can trot in 2:40 without boots of any kind. His first colt showed trials last fall in 2:20 in his 3-year-old form, and all of his 2-year-olds that have been handled any show lots of speed and a nice way of going. He is a sure foal-getter, and all of his progeny are bays or browns, without white, and they inherit his excellent disposition and intelligence to a remarkable degree.

He will make the season of 1892, commencing February 1st, at Milpitas, Santa Clara Co., Cal.

TERMS, $75 WITH USUAL RETURN PRIVILEGE.

I have a good pasture to turn mares in at $5 each per month. The best of care taken of mares, but no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes.

For further particulars, address JAMES BOYD, Milpitas.

RACE RECORD, 2:28 1-2.

ALMONT MEDIUM 2133.

• HAPPY MEDIUM, MAMBRINO PATCHEN, ALMONT AND EDWIN FORREST BLOOD!

ALMONT MEDIUM IS BY HAPPY MEDIUM, SIRE OF NANCY HANKS, 2:09; MAXEY COBB 2:13 1-4, AND SEVENTY-ONE OTHERS IN 2:30 LIST.

First Dam, LADY CHILES by ALMONT 33. (Sire of Fanny Witherspoon, 2:16¼, Piedmont, 2:17½, Aldine, 2:19½, and 35 others in 2:30 or better).

Second Dam, LADY ROTHSCHILD by MAMBRINO PATCHEN 58. (Dam of King Philip, 2:26¼, he sire of Lexington, 2:24½). (Sire of London, 2:20, and 17 others, and 17 dams of 64 2:30 performers, and 19 sires from daughters with 141 in the list).

Third Dam by ALEXANDER'S EDWIN FORREST 49. (Dam of Rothschild, grandsire of Ready Boy, 2:23, etc.). (Sire of Billie Hoskins, 2:26½, etc.).

Fourth Dam by BLACK HIGHLANDER; Fifth Dam by LANCE, son of American Eclipse.

ALMONT MEDIUM is a dark bay with black points, 16.1 hands high, weighs about 1100 pounds, was bred by General William T. Withers, Lexington, Ky., is a model of perfect symmetry, remarkably level-headed, speedy, and game as a pebble, and will undoubtedly, get a record of 2:15 or 2:16, barring accidents. He is bred in almost the identical lines of Nancy Hanks, 2:09, her second dam being by Edwin Forrest and Almont Medium's third dam by Edwin Forrest; Nancy Hanks' fifth dam by Lance, son of American Eclipse, and Almont Medium's fifth dam is by the same great horse. The only son of Almont Medium ever trained for speed (Mark Medium) gained a record of 2:25¼ during 1891 as a four-year-old, and all of this horse's progeny show speed at an early age.

Almont Medium will make the season of 1892, from February 1 to July 1, at the Race Track, Petaluma, Cal. TERMS, $100 THE SEASON, With the usual return privilege, providing Almont Medium is in the State.

Good pasturage at $3 per month. Best of care taken of mares, but no liabilities for accidents or escapes.

    - REBEL DAUGHTER, by Williamson's Belmont.

NUTWOOD WILKES is a handsome chestnut in color, stands 15½ hands high, is level-headed, kind and intelligent.

RAPID TRANSIT,

Limited to Fifteen approved Outside Mares at $75 for the Season.

RAPID TRANSIT is a fine-looking bay horse, stands 15½ hands high. He is by DIRECTOR 1989, 2:17; dam Lida W., record 2:18¼, dam of Nutwood Wilkes, 2:20½ at 3 years. (See above tabulated pedigree.) He is a horse of splendid individuality and excellent blood lines.

LONG BRANCH.

Limited to Fifteen Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

LONG BRANCH is a magnificent bay horse, 15¾ hands high, sired by Antevolo, 4-year-old record 2:19½ (brother to Anteeo, 2:16¼, sire of seven with records from 2:17¾ to 2:30), by ELECTIONEER 125 (sire of 100 trotters with records from 2:08¼ to 2:30, 22 of which have records better than 2:20), dam Zola (dam of Maud C., 2:19), by Steinway, 3-year-old record 2:25¼ (sire of seven with records from 2:10 to 2:28¼, including the dam of Maud C., 2:19, and Bourbon Russell, 2:30), second dam Fanny Malone (grandam of Charles Derby, record 2:20, and Maud C., record 2:19).

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD.

Limited to Fifty Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD is a handsome chestnut horse, stands sixteen hands one and one-half inches high, and is the sire of Maud C., 2:19; Annie C., 2:25; Albert H., 2:27¾, and several others with trials from 2:37 to 2:50. He is by the greatest living sire, Nutwood 600, record 2:18¾ (sire of 77 with records from 2:11½ to 2:30; 17 from 2:11½ to 2:20, and half-brother to Maud S., 2:08¾, the fastest trotter in the world on a regulation track); dam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31, record 2:27 (sire of ten with records from 2:18 to 2:30; the best son of Geo. M. Patchen, record 2:23½, made in 1860; the fastest and gamest representative of the Clay family). This pedigree demonstrates that California Nutwood represents the best strains of Hambletonian and Clay blood, a combination that cannot fail to produce fast and game race horses as well as great broodmares. He is a horse of splendid conformation, stylish, level-headed, pure-gaited, speedy, game and intelligent, qualities that he transmits to all of his get. He gets bays and chestnuts from all kinds of mares. He is just the kind of a horse that a poor man can make no mistake in breeding a good mare to, as he will get a horse large enough for work on the ranch or road, besides a chance of producing a very fast and valuable race horse.

NOTICE.

The great blood lines represented in the four above stallions, GUY WILKES, NUTWOOD, ELECTIONEER and DIRECTOR, are, as all horsemen will agree, the best race horse strains—the greatest producers of extreme speed and gameness to be found in the trotting families. NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT are the two greatest representatives of developed race-horse speed there are to be found in the stud to date. This is a broad assertion, but it can be demonstrated by anyone who will take the trouble to look it up. Their sires, Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼, and Director, 2:17, were two of the fastest and most consistent race horses on the turf in their day and about as safe horses as a man ever placed his money on, for they would gamely fight a race out to the bitter end, almost invariably scoring a victory. The dam of NUTWOOD WILKES and RAPID TRANSIT is Lida W., record 2:18¼, made after raising five colts, the last one last spring, her record being made on the 20th of October last. She is one of the fastest daughters of the great Nutwood 600, 2:18¾, who, besides being a great and game race horse himself, is the greatest living sire. Among the produce of his daughters are to be found Arion, the phenomenon, two-year-old record 2:10¾, and nineteen others from 2:18¼ to 2:30.

Mares not proving in foal may be returned the following season free of service fee. Parties desiring the services of any of the above horses must send the mare or ten per cent of the service money with the engagement. Excellent pasturage at $5 per month, and when the condition of the animal requires it, hay or grain or both will be fed at $10 per month. The best of care will be taken of mares, but no liability will be assumed for accidents or escapes. Mares may be shipped direct to me at Irvington, Alameda Co., Cal., via Broad Gauge Railroad.

All bills are due at time of service, but must be paid by August 1st. No stock will be allowed to leave the place until all bills are settled. Season from February 1st to August 1st, 1892.

    - Harry Clay 45, Sire of dams of Electioneer and St. Julien, 2:11.

Delwin 14,681, record 2:26 1-2, will, if he has no setbacks, pace in 2:15 or better, and beat 2:30 trotting over the fast Stockton kite track this fall. Delwin is one of the handsomest grandsons of the great Moor; in color, he is a dark dapple bay, sound as a dollar, outside of his broken hind leg, and the best of feet and legs; 15.1½ hands high, and weighs 1,000 pounds; he is one of the finest-formed horses for great speed in the land; has the same level head and intelligence that his half-brother, Guide, 2:16¼, has; in color and form he resembles Harry Clay 45 (sire of the dam of Electioneer and George Wilkes, 2:22), more than any horse that we ever saw. Delwin has the same blood lines as the handsome grandson of The Moor, Stamboul, 2:11; he has two crosses of American Star 14, also of Clay, one of Hambletonian 10, sire of the dam of Stamboul, 2:11; one to Mambrino Chief, sire of the dam of Director, 2:17, and two of the great Pilot Jr., sire of the dam of Nutwood, 2:18¾, combining altogether the same blood lines that lay in the grandest stallions, living or dead—Arion, 2:10¾, Stamboul, 2:11; also the first yearling to beat 2:30, and who trotted the fastest last quarter in that mile that was ever trotted by any yearling, 34 seconds—Freedom, 2:29¾.

Del Sur, 2:24, sire of Don Tomas, 2:20, and Cousin Joe, 2:20¼, being a full brother to the dam of Sable Wilkes, 2:18, sire of Freedom, 2:29¾, and two others better than 2:28. Delwin's colts all show the trot out of any kind of mares.

Terms $40, with usual return privilege.

Good water and pasturage at $5 per month, but will not be responsible for accidents or escapes. Mares can be shipped to the farm and home of Delwin, the Meese Stock Farm, Danville, Contra Costa County, Cal., per S. P. R. R., via Martinez. For further particulars, address,

DIRECTOR JR.

WILL MAKE THE SEASON OF 1892 AT THE ASYLUM RANCH, SAN RAFAEL.

DESCRIPTION.

DIRECTOR JR. is a grandly formed stallion, a handsome black in color; stands 15.3 hands; weighs 1,175 pounds. In appearance and disposition he is more like Director than any other son of that famous sire. He has never been trained for speed, but can easily show a 2:20 gait on the road, and will surely get a mark much below that this fall, as he will be put in training for this season's campaign. Up to the present time he has been in the stud in Oregon and never given an opportunity to show his speed. His colts, like himself, are all grand lookers, show great trotting action, intelligence and gameness. A three-year-old now in training has shown a mile in 2:21, and Directwood, a two-year-old son, won every race in which he was entered last year, and could have gone in the thirty list had his owner so desired. At the Oregon State Fair last year Director Jr. and five of his get were awarded first premiums.

PEDIGREE.

It will be seen that Director Jr. is bred on blood lines almost identically the same as Direct, 2:06, the Greatest Harness Horse in the World.

DIRECTOR JR. =
- Director, 2:17 (Sire of Direct, 2:06; Margaret S., 2:12½; Evangeline, 2:19; Gazelle, 2:36¼; Emma, 2:21¼, and 7 others in the 2:30 list.)

TERMS, $50 FOR THE SEASON, LIMITED TO TWENTY APPROVED MARES.

MELROSE

DESCRIPTION.

MELROSE is a handsome bay stallion, foaled in 1889; stands 15.3 hands high and weighs 1100 pounds. In conformation he is symmetrical throughout, splendid bone and muscle, stylish and a grand individual in every respect. At twenty months old, with very little work, Tom Murphy drove him a mile in 2:35. As he was growing fast it was decided better to cease working him until this Fall, when he will be prepared for the track and put in the list, barring accidents.

His splendid individuality and fashionable breeding makes him one of the most desirable young stallions on the Coast.

TERMS: $40 FOR THE SEASON.

Gannon's Electioneer

GROVER CLAY.

Fifteen hands three inches high; weighs 1,050; is as fine a horse as there is in California.

Bay stallion, foaled 1884, by Senator Stanford's Electioneer 125; bred by Hon. W. W. Traylor, San Francisco. First dam Maggie Norfolk, by Norfolk; second dam Tilda Quil, by Billy Cheatham; third dam by Dorsey's Golddust, sire of Lucille Golddust, record 2:16½, Rolla Golddust, 2:20; Fleety Golddust, 2:20; Indicator, 2:23, and many others in the 2:30 list; also grandsire of Rosalind Wilkes, 2:14, and Johnston, 2:06¾.

GROVER CLAY will make the season of 1892 at the San Clemente Stock Farm, Marin County, half way between Tiburon and San Rafael. Mares may be sent by the Donohue Broad Gauge, via Tiburon, there being a depot on the farm, or driven via Sausalito, five miles to the farm.

TERMS $100 for the season, from March 1st to July 1st, payable at time of service or before the removal of the mares. Excellent pasturage at $5 per month. The best of care taken of mares, but no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. Having the best half-mile track in the State on the farm, I will take a few colts to train. *Balkan.

BALKAN 8848

Record 2:15.

Will make the season at Oakland Race Track beginning February 1st. But a limited number of mares will be accepted, in order that he may be prepared for the great contests of the year. He reduced his record, 14⅝ seconds, in nineteen days last fall, and as he is perfectly sound there is every assurance that he will be able to compete with the fastest, especially at two-mile heats.

DESCRIPTION.

Seal brown (no white), with black points, 16 hands 1½ inches in height, beautifully proportioned and elegantly finished. Balkan is the one horse whose limbs are so correctly formed that a plumb-line from the shoulder drops through the center of the arm, the knee, the cannon-bone, pastern and hoof; consequently his action is straight forward without the slightest side swing, making a pure, frictionless gait. His style and carriage are so lofty that it is universally admitted that in these respects he has no superior on the turf. In a race he is as steady and level-headed as possible, and trots his last quarter the fastest.

PEDIGREE.

By Mambrino Wilkes, son of George Wilkes, sire of Harry Wilkes, 2:13½, and 74 others in the 2:30 list, grandsire of Allerton, 2:09¼; Axtell, 2:12 three years, and hosts of other noted race horses; dam Fanny Fern by Jack Hawkins, son of Boston, sire of second dam of Maud S., 2:08¾, and Jay-Eye-See, 2:10, and grandsire of second dam of Sunol, 2:08¼. The dam of Jack Hawkins was the famous Keenon mare, the great grandam of Sunol, 2:08¼. Jack Hawkins sired the second dam of Direct, 2:06, so that Balkan, while by a son of George Wilkes, is closely related on the dam's side to the fastest horses of the times. His sire, Mambrino Wilkes, by George Wilkes, dam Lady Chrisman, by Todhunter's Mambrino, son of Mambrino Chief 11, grandam by Pilot Jr., has produced Gus Wilkes, 2:22, Bay Wilkes, 2:25, Alpheus, 2:27, Clara P., 2:29½, Balkan, 2:15, and numbers in the thirties. His dam, Fanny Fern, produced Mollie Drew, 2:27, Balkan, 2:15, Fred Arnold, trial, 2:27, and several in 2:40 and better. If there is anything in the science of breeding, Balkan, coming from a producing sire and a producing dam, should be unexcelled as a producer. He is just seven years old.

RESUME.

Considering the size, style, beauty, gait, speed, endurance and unexceptionably fashionable breeding of Balkan it is respectfully submitted that he offers as great attractions to breeders as any of the horses that get a service fee of $500 and $1,000.

AND HIS SERVICE IS OFFERED AT $100 FOR THE SEASON.

The services of no other young horse of his conformation, breeding and quality, with such a record, is offered at so low a figure.

Bear in mind that colt stakes will soon be given for the get of stallions with records of 2:15 or better. If you want to raise colts which will be eligible to enter in all stakes, BREED TO BALKAN, as he is the only horse in this region with a record of 2:15 whose services are offered to the public.

Good pasture and excellent care guaranteed for mares sent to him.
This horse can be seen at The Oakland Track, in charge of A. L. HINDS.

Australian Thoroughbred Blood

Loyalist and Chesterfield

Two Sons (from Grandly-Bred Mares) of THE MARQUIS, one of Australia's Greatest Sire,

Will make the season of 1892 at the SOUTHER FARM, San Leandro, Cal.

These horses can hardly fail to produce speed and staying qualities from the strains of thoroughbred blood in this State.

Mares that prove not to be with foal may be returned without service fee in 1893, provided the horse bred to is alive and at the Souther Farm.

LOYALIST - - - - $100, INCLUDING KEEP OF MARE TILL JULY 1st, 1892.

Bay horse, foaled 1884. Winner of the Brunswick Stakes, worth about $7,000, one and one-quarter mile in 2:08¼.

LOYALIST'S mile and a quarter in 2:08¼, was the best on record in Australia when made, and has only been surpassed by Abercorn and the great Carbine. His sire was a race horse and a sire of race-horses; his dam was a winner and has produced winners. Loyalist has proven himself a race-horse, and he will produce race-horses.

CHESTERFIELD - - $75, INCLUDING FREE KEEP OF MARES UNTIL JULY 1st, 1892.

Bay horse, no white, foaled 1876. Bred by Mr. C. B. Fisher, Victoria. (See Australian Stud Book, Vol. 2, page 201).

CHESTERFIELD was a good race-horse and a first-class weight packer. In ten important stakes he was first in four, second in four and third in two. He will produce great two-year-olds from our California mares; in his own two-year-old form he took up 128 pounds and won the Flying Handicap at Wollongong.

THE GUY WILKES STALLION

HOCK WILKES.

Sired by GUY WILKES, Record 2:15¼ (Sire of Regal Wilkes, 2:17½; Lillian Wilkes, 2:17¾; Sable Wilkes, 2:18; Vida Wilkes, 2:18¼; Hazel Wilkes, 2:20; Una Wilkes, 2:19¼; Allanna, 2:18; Rupee, 2:14¾, etc.) By GEORGE WILKES, 2:22. (Son of Rysdyk's Hambletonian and sire of Harry Wilkes, 2:13½; Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼; Wilson, 2:16¼; Richardson J. B., 2:16¾; Baron Wilkes, 2:18, and 71 others in 2:30 or better.)

Dam LADY BUNKER (Dam of Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼; Joe Bunker, 2:19, and William L., sire of Axtell, 2:12.) By MAMBRINO PATCHEN. (Son of Mambrino Chief and sire of 18 in 2:30 list, and of the dams of Houri, 2:17; Astral 2:18; Baron Wilkes, 2:18, and 60 others in 2:30 list.)

HOCK WILKES' First Dam, EDA (Thoroughbred, sister to St. David.) By HOCK-HOCKING. (Having one cross each of Boston, imp. Trustee, imp. Glencoe, eight crosses of imp. Diomed, and being the sire of Beaconsfield, St. David, Batchelder, Arthur H. and Four Aces.)

Second Dam, EVA COOMBS (Dam of St. David, Wildidler, Maid of the Mist, and second dam of Beaconsfield, Batchelder, Arthur H. and Four Aces.) By BILLY CHEATHAM. (Having one cross of Boston, five of imp. Messenger, seven of imp. Diomed, and two of American Eclipse.)

Third Dam, RUBY, by Winnebago, son of imp. Glencoe and imp. Delight.

Fourth Dam, ELLEN JOURDAN, by Blacknose, by Medoc, son of Duroc by imp. Diomed, and Miller's Damsel, by imp. Messenger.

Fifth Dam, EMILY JOURDAN, by imp. Jourdan.

Sixth Dam, ELLEN TREE, by Henry, son of Sir Archy by imp. Diomed and of a daughter of imp. Diomed.

Seventh dam, Betsy Ransome by Virginian, son of Sir Archy by imp. Diomed; Eighth dam, Favorite, by imp. Bellair; Ninth dam, Fairy by imp. Bedford; Tenth dam, by imp. Pantaloon; Eleventh dam, by imp. Master Stephen; Twelfth dam, by imp. Juniper; Thirteenth dam, imp. Duchess, by Cullen Arabian, etc.

DESCRIPTION—HOCK WILKES, foaled 1888, is a handsome bay with black points, 15½ hands high, of speedy conformation, good bone and powerful muscular development. He is pure in trotting action, very speedy, and, but for difficulty with one fore pastern, he would now have a low record. He is one of the handsomest sons of Guy Wilkes, with the Wilkes substance and trotting instinct and the thoroughbred quality and type of conformation. The sire of Hock Wilkes, Guy Wilkes, stands at a service fee of $1,000, and he is conceded to be the best representative of the great Wilkes and Hambletonian family. The dam of Hock Wilkes is a large mare, 16¾ hands, of powerful build, a daughter of Hock-Hocking, who produced the speedy and long-distance performers St. David, Beaconsfield, Batchelder, Arthur H., Four Aces, etc., and whose dam was the third dam of Anteeo, 2:16¾, Antevolo, 2:19¾, and Coral, 2:25.

TERMS, $40 FOR THE SEASON of 1892, from February 1st to July 1st, with return privilege for the season of 1893 on any mare not proving with foal, provided either the mare or stallion does not change ownership. The season of 1892 will be made at 2536 Market Street, San Francisco.

Address JOS. MICHL, 2536 Market Street.

George Washington
11,623.

2-year-old Record, 2:44;

3-year-old Record, 2:30;

4-year-old Record, 2:20;

GEORGE WASHINGTON is a handsome bay horse, hind feet white, foaled 1886, bred by Thomas Smith of Vallejo, stands 16 hands high, and weighs 1200 pounds.

PEDIGREE:

GEORGE WASHINGTON, by Mambrino Chief Jr. 11,622, record 2:34. George Washington's dam was Fanny Rose (full sister to Prince Allen, 2:27) by Ethan Allen Jr. 2903 (sire of the dams of George Washington 2:20 and Bessie S., 2:29¼, also of Lynwood, sire of Lynette etc, three-year-old record 2:25½; also sire of Prince Allen 2:27) second dam, Jenny Lind, thoroughbred, dam of Prince Allen 2:27.

GEORGE WASHINGTON has proven himself a great race horse, and would have been given a much lower mark last season had it not been for an accident. As an individual, he is all that can be asked, being perfect in form, intelligent and of kind disposition, and represents the highest type of a trotting sire. As he will be put in training for the campaign of 1892, he will be allowed to serve only a limited number of approved mares.

TERMS: $100 FOR THE SEASON.

Mambrino Chief Jr.
11,622.

Record 2:34. Sire of George Washington, record 2:20 at four years Blood bay horse, hind feet white, 15.3 hands high, weighs 1100 pounds. By McDonald Chief 3583, Mambrino Chief's first dam Venus by Mambrino Patchen 58, second dam by Wardloes' Shakespeare, third dam by Love Gold, fourth dam by Silver Heels.

WILL MAKE THE SEASON OF 1892 AT $50.

McDONALD CHIEF, 3,583.

Seal brown horse, 16 hands high, and weighs 1175 pounds, foaled June 24th, 1868, got by Clark Chief 89, first dam by Berthune, son of Sidi Hamet grandam by McDonald's Copperbottom. Bred by Thos. Van Meter, Clarke Co. Ky., passed through the hands of Isaac Smith of Lexington, Ky., to Rufus Ingalls of Chicago, Ill., to Thomas Smith of Vallejo, Cal. Trial to wagon, 2:32, has wonderful bone and muscle and very pure-gaited. He sired Catherine, 2:28¼, Mambrino Chief Jr., 2:34, trial 2:26, sire of George Washington, 2:20, Maud, 2:29¾, Highland Chief, 2:30, Daisy S., 2:42 at three years old, trial one-half mile 1:12, Peat Treat 2:23 and a number of others with the ability to beat 2:30 with proper handling.

WILL MAKE THE SEASON OF 1892 AT $40.

Mares not proving in foal may be returned next season Free of Charge. Season commences February 1st. Good pasturage at $3.00 per month, and excellent care taken of Mares in any manner that owners may desire, but no responsibility for accidents or escapes. Anteeo Wilkes as an individual is worthy of his great blood lines; he is 15:3 hands high and of perfect form. Although handled but little and never driven once by a professional driver he has trotted a mile in 2:52 quarters in forty seconds without shoes, as a two-year-old, with the marked purity of gait, for which the Guy Wilkes trotters are noted. At close of season will be trained for a great record.

Anteeo Wilkes will make the season of 1892, at the stables of his owner, cor. 45th and Watts street, near Oakland race track; look for sign board on Park Ave., leading from San Pablo Avenue to race track.

Williamson's Belmont was the sire of Venture, 2:27¼, and of the dams of Belle Echo, 2:20, Flora Sheppard, 2:30, Monarch, 2:28¼, Nellie Patchen, 2:27¼, Prince, 2:28¾.

DESCRIPTION.

BAY ROSE is a dark bay or brown, with black points, 16½ hands high, and weighs 1,150 pounds. He is remarkably intelligent, of good dispotition, and a pure-gaited trotter. He was foaled in 1881. His colts are large, stylish, rangy animals, and inherit his qualities of speed and endurance. He is the only horse that won a heat from Palo Alto in 1889.

TERMS, $200 FOR THE SEASON.

Return privileges 1893, provided neither the mare nor stallion change ownership. Good pasturage $3 per month. First-class care taken of mares in any manner that owners may desire, but no responsibility assumed for escapes or accidents.

Limited to a few approved mares.

MISS ALICE, 2:17¼,
THORNTON, 2:26¼,
WILKESDALE, 2:29.

Second dam BRIDESMAID, Dam of

THORNDALE MAID, 2:30, and
TRIXIE, (trial), 2:25½.

By GEORGE WILKES, 2:22, Sire of

GUY WILKES, 2:15¼, HARRY WILKES, 2:13½, and seventy-five others in 2:30 list.

By MAMBRINO PATCHEN, Sire of Eighteen in 2:30 list, and the dams of GUY WILKES, 2:15¼, HOURI, 2:17, ASTRAL, 2:18, BARON WILKES, 2:18, and sixty others in 2:30 or better.

By THORNDALE, 2:22¼, Sire of

EDWIN THORNE, 2:16¼, DAISYDALE, 2:19¾, and five others in 2:30 list, by ALEXANDER'S ABDALLAH, sire of GOLDSMITH MAID, 2:14, ALMONT, etc., out of DOLLY, dam of DIRECTOR, 2:17, ONWARD, 2:25¼, THORNDALE, 2:24¼, and CZARINA, 2:21, by MAMBRINO CHIEF.

By RYSDYK'S HAMBLETONIAN, Sire of

ELECTIONEER, GEORGE WILKES, and forty-one trotters in the 2:30 list.

WILKESDALE is a seal brown, sixteen hands high; bred at Highlawn Farm, Mass. He very closely resembles his sire, Alcantara, four year old record 2:23 (trial 2:17), and a study of his pedigree will convince anyone that if there be anything in inheritance, we may expect extreme speed from his produce. His sire, Alcantara, at fifteen years old has forty-seven in the 2:30 list, and has five producing sons, two of whom have sired two-year-olds that entered the 2:30 list this year. His full brother, Alcyone, died when only ten years old, yet he is the sire of twenty-five in the 2:30 list, among them being McKinney 2:12½, fastest record for a four-year-old stallion. Another half-brother, out of Alma Mater, is the sire of Strong Boy 2:12, fastest four-year-old record for a pacing stallion. Wilkesdale's dam is herself a trotter, record 2:30, and is in the list of great broodmares, being the dam of Miss Alice 2:17¼ (who was shown trials the past season in 2:14); Thornton, 2:26¼, and Wilkesdale 2:29, all sired by Alcantara. Thorndale 2:22¼, the sire of his dam, is also the sire of Sue, the dam of Egthorne 2:12½, one of the sensational trotting stallions of the past season.

ALMA MATER, his grandam on his sire's side and Dolly, (the dam of Director 2:17, etc.) on his dam's side, are among the few of the great producing dams, Wilkesdale was taken out of the paddock the 1st of October last, soft and in no condition for trotting, yet in less than two months he gained a record of 2:29 in third heat, trotting the second heat in 2:29½. After his stud season closes he will again be placed in training, and under favorable circumstances will no doubt trot under 2:20.

TERMS—He will make the season of 1892 at Wolf's stable in Stockton, Cal., at $75, for the season, from February 1st to July 1st, with usual return privileges for mares that fail to get in foal this season.

The Best Son of Nutwood in California!

Dawn 6407

(Sire of Silky 2:26, Anna Belle 2:27½, Oaknut 2:24½, Dot 2:29½.)

Will Make the Season of 1892 at the

Agnew Stock Farm,

HILLSDALE, SANTA CLARA COUNTY.

SERVICE FEE $150. LIMITED TO 20 MARES.

DAWN has a record of 2:18¾, and three heats of a race in 2:20 or better. His sire, Nutwood has record of 2:18¾ in a third heat, and is now regarded as the greatest of living sires, having put seventy-seven into the list altogether, of which twenty-six entered the list in 1892. At his present fee Dawn really is the CHEAPEST OF AMERICAN STALLIONS, and, as a recent writer has said, "his form baffles description." Being by the great Nutwood 600, now standing at $1,000, out of Countess (dam of Strathway, 2:20, Placida and Morna, driven as a double team a trial mile in 2:26), Dawn shows that his family is a trotting one on each side of the house. Countess was by Whipple's Hambletonian, sire of Graves, 2:19, and fourteen others in the 2:20 list. The chestnut stallion

BOSWELL, JR.

Will stand at the same place at the low price of $50 the season.

BOSWELL JR., sired by Boswell (a son of Almont 33), dam Nellie B., by Kirtley's Patchen; grandam Sophie (grandam of Nancy Hanks, 2:09), by Alexander's Edwin Forrest; great grandam by Parker's Brown Pilot. This stallion Boswell was purchased by King Kalakaua from Gen. W. T. Withers, Fairlawn Stock Farm, Lexington, Kentucky. Boswell Jr.'s dam, Maude, 2:20, by Bertrand 3262, sire of Frank Fisk, 2:29; second dam by Hamilton Chief, son of Royal George 9; third dam the Dooley Mare, MAUDE started in twenty-one races and won eighteen first moneys, and is well known to all horsemen. BOSWELL JR. showed miles in 2:26 and quarters in 35 seconds on two weeks' work.

Mares stabled or pastured (as owners may desire) on reasonable terms. All bills payable before the animal is removed. No liability for accidents. Best fences in the country. Address,

The Standard Stallion

WILKES PASHA 2618

Will make the Season of 1891 at the Stables of the undersigned, at the Trancas Bridge, two miles north of Napa, on the Soda Springs Road.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

WILKES PASHA 2618 is a dark bay with white hind feet; 16½ hands high; bred by R. P. Pepper, of South Elkhorn Farm, Frankfort, Kentucky; sired by Onward 1411, record 2:25¼, trial 2:17; sire of 48 in the list. He is proving one of the greatest sires in America and his sons are proving to be sires of extreme and early speed also. Onward is by George Wilkes, 2:22, sire of seventy-five horses in the 2:30 list, ten with records below 2:20; first dam Fisher (dam of Clara Wilkes, 2:18¾, trial 2:25), by American Clay 34, sire of Maggie Briggs, 2:27, Ella Clay, 2:27½, and the dams of Executor, 2:24½, Ranchero, 2:21½, Judge Hawes, 2:24, Ambassador, 2:22¼, Sir Walter, 2:18¼, and nine others in 2:30; second dam by Wilson's Snow Storm, sire of Jim Irving, 2:23; third dam by Paddie Burns, thoroughbred.

WILKES PASHA is the only son of Onward in this part of California. He combines the much-prized Clay cross, his dam being a producing daughter of American Clay 34, who traces to the very best of thoroughbred foundations. As an individual, Wilkes Pasha is as handsome a horse as one could wish to see. He has been bred to ordinary mares. Every one of his progeny shows perfect trotting action and fine size; in color they are all deep bays or browns, and in disposition they cannot be excelled.

TERMS—$30 for the season. Pasturage $4 per month. Every attention and care will be given to mares, but no liabilities assumed for accidents or escapes.

Postoffice address, CHARLES SCOTT, Napa City.

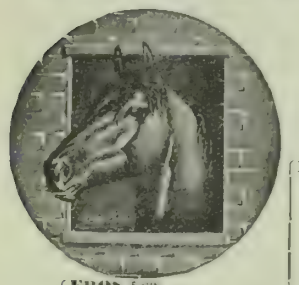
ALCONA JR. 2,755.

Record 2:24, last half in 1:10½ and last quarter in 34½ seconds.

PEDIGREE.—Alcona Jr., 2:24, was sired by Alcona 730, out of Madonna, by Cassius M. Clay 22; second dam by Joe Downing, by Alexander's Edwin Forrest. Alcona 730 (sire of Alcona Jr., 2:24; Flora Belle, 2:24; Clay Duke, 2:29, etc.) is by Almont 33, out of Queen Mary, by Mambrino Chief 11, etc.

DESCRIPTION.—Alcona Jr. is a handsome dark mahogany bay stallion, 16.1 hands high and weighs 1,250 pounds. He represents the highest type of the large trotting horse. His symmetrical conformation from the fine-finished head to the fetlocks, his stylish way of moving, perfect trotting action, magnificent limbs and great muscular development commend him at once to all lovers of the trotting horse. He was not given any training until late in the year, and on a heavy track in a race at Santa Rosa he earned his record of 2:24.



TERMS—$75 for the season, ending July 1st, as this horse will be put in training.

The best of care taken of mares, but no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. Pasturage, $2.50 per month.

The Fast Trotting Stallion SILAS SKINNER.

RECORD 2:17. STANDARD, 10,681.

Will make the season of 1891, commencing February 1st and ending July 1st, at De Turk's Breeding Stables on Donahue Street, opposite De Turk's Wine Cellars, Santa Rosa, Cal.

SILAS SKINNER, sired by Alcona Jr., 2:24; first dam Fontana, dam of Flora Belle, 2:21 , by Almont 33, sire of thirty-eight in the 2:30 list; second dam Fannie Williams, dam of Bay Chieftain, 2:28¼, by Alexander's Abdallah 15, sire of Goldsmith Maid, 2:14; Rosalind, 2:21¾; Thorndale, 2:22½, etc.; third dam by Gaine's Denmark; fourth dam by Robert Bruce; fifth dam by Virginia Whip.

ALCONA JR. was sired by Alcona 730, sire of Flora Belle, 2:21 ; Clay Duke, 2:30; Prince Warwick, trial 2:18, etc., by Almont 33. First dam Madonna by Cassius M. Clay Jr., sire of Durango, 2:23¾; Harry Clay 2:23½; Clay Davis, 2:26½; Cora, 2:30, etc.

The above is a condensed pedigree of Silas Skinner, but enough is given to show him to be as richly bred in the best trotting lines as any horse living, besides being a great individual with remarkable speed and staying qualities, which was shown by his performance on the California Circuit the last two seasons. In 1890 Silas Skinner started in six races, trotting in all twenty-three heats. Of these six races Skinner won four and was second in two, and closed the season of 1890 with a record of 2:19.

The performance of Silas Skinner during the season of 1891 has also been very meritorious, having started in seven races, three of which he won, being second twice and twice third. In his race at Sacramento, September 19, 1891, Silas Skinner trotted so horsemen said—one of the gamest races ever trotted in California. His competitors were Frank M. and Wanda, whom he defeated, winning the first, third and fourth heats, the second heat failing to Frank M. Time of each heat 2:17, 2:17, 2:17, 2:19½.

SILAS SKINNER is a black horse, sixteen hands high, and weighs in stud season about 1,100 pounds. In color, breeding and conformation he approaches very near the ideal stallion, and he descends on both his sire's and dam's side from ancestors who have few equals in the history of the American trotting horse.

TERMS: $100 FOR THE SEASON.

Mares not proving with foal may be returned next season free of charge, provided SILAS SKINNER remains the property of the present owners. Pasturage $5 per month. Every attention and care given to mares, but no liability assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, apply to

The Antevolo Stallion SIROCCO

Will make the season of 1892 at Egbert Rancho, near Rio Vista, from February 1st to June 15th at $50 for the season.

PEDIGREE AND DESCRIPTION.

SIROCCO, by Antevolo 7618, 2:18¾, by Electioneer 125, sire of 100 in the 2:30 list, dam by Rifleman (thoroughbred), sire of Col. Lewis, 2:18¾.

SIROCCO is a handsome bay with black points stands 16-1 hands high, 16.2¾ over the hip; weigh about 1,150; five years old, and one of the best and speediest sons of Antevolo. He is remarkably intelligent, kind, and a splendid individual. Trial, quarter at three years old .37 to 150-pound cart without regular work. Good pasturage and the best of care taken of mares at $2 per month, but no responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, address

DON MARVIN

Five-Year-Old Record 2:28.

DON MARVIN is a beautiful seal brown, foaled 1886; bred by Senator Leland Stanford, Palo Alto, Cal; is 16 hands high and weighs 1200 pounds; sired by Fallis, 2:23 , sire of four in 2:30 list, he by Electioneer. Dam, CORA (dam of Don Marvin, 2:28, and Elected (trial) 2:26) by Don Victor, sire of the dams of five in the 2:30 list, by Belmont. Second dam, CLARABEL (dam of Clifton Bell, 2:21½, and Rebecca, dam of four in 2:30 list) by Abdallah Star. Third dam, FAIRY (dam of Stoner Boy, 2:29 , and Sweepstakes, sire of 22 in the 2:30 list, and three other producing sires and dams) by Rydyk's Hambletonian. Fourth dam, EMMA MILLS (dam of four horses that have sired 2:30 performers) by Seely's American Star.

DON MARVIN is a horse of great natural speed. His record was made with scarcely any preparation, after making large season in the stud, and is no measure of his speed. His oldest colts (only five in number) are three years old this spring. One of them with very little work trotted quarters last fall in 36 seconds, and could have easily entered the 2:30 list in his two-year-old form had he been given an opportunity.

DON MARVIN will make the season of 1892 at $40, with usual return privilege, which makes him the cheapest horse in the State, record and breeding considered, having what no other public stallion has on the Coast Four producing dams.

  - GREEN MOUNTAIN MAID (8 in 2:30.)
    - HARRY CLAY 45
    - SHANGHAI MARY
- NELLIE BENTON (Trial for Charles Marvin, 2:18.)
  - GENERAL BENTON 1755 (17 in 2:30 list and dam of Sunol, 2:08¼.)
    - JIM SCOTT 836
    - LADY BENTON
  - NORMA, 2:33¼ (Dam of Norval, 2:17½; Norris, 2:22¼; also Lucy Cuyler, trial for Robert Bonner, 2:15½; Nellie Benton, trial for Chas. Marvin, 2:18.)
    - ALEXANDER'S NORMAN
      - Lula, 2:15; May Queen, 2:20.
    - BY TODHUNTER'S SIR WALLACE

$200 for 1892, usual return privilege and free keep and care from March 1st to July 1st, 1892.

Fourth dam Eagletta by Grey Eagle, sire of grandam of Ansel, 2:20.
Fifth dam Mary Howe, by Tiger.
Sixth dam Lady Robin, by Robin Gray, sire of third dam of the great Lexington.
Seventh dam by Quicksilver, son of imp. Medley.
Eighth dam by Meades' Celer.

El. Benton's breeding is of the best. The Electioneer-Benton and Electioneer-Norman crosses are deservedly famous, and El Benton combines them all through grand individuals. His dam, Nellie Benton, trotted a trial in 2:18 and went East with the Palo Alto string, but broke down before starting (Marvin's "Training the Trotting Horse," page 102). She is now in foal to Palo Alto, 2:08¾; El Benton is her only living produce foaled before 1891. He is a born race horse and a most worthy member of the greatest trotting family the world has seen.

GLEN FORTUNE

(25 per cent. of the blood of Shanghai Mary; the exact amount carried by Electioneer himself.)

- ELECTIONEER 125 (Sunol, 2:08¼; Palo Alto, 2:08¾.)
  - HAMBLETONIAN 10 (His sons have produced nearly 1,000 in 2:30.)
    - ABDALLAH 1
    - CHAS. KENT MARE
  - GREEN MOUNTAIN MAID (8 in 2:30.)
    - HARRY CLAY 45
    - SHANGHAI MARY
- GLENNE (Out of a half-sister to Green Mountain Maid.)
  - MESSENGER DUROC 106 (20 in 2:30; dams of 19 in 2:30.)
    - HAMBLETONIAN 10
    - BY ROE'S ABDALLAH CHIEF
  - GLENELLA (Out of the dam of Green Mountain Maid.)
    - WOODWARD STAR
      - Son of Seely's American Star.
    - SHANGHAI MARY
      - Grandam of Electioneer.

$100 for 1892, usual return privilege and free keep and care from March 1st to July 1st, 1892.

As the dam of Green Mountain Maid and grandam of Electioneer, Shanghai Mary may be called the foundation stone of the Electioneer family, which now holds practically every best on record. Glen Fortune is inbred to this great old mare once through his sire, Electioneer, and again through his dam, a granddaughter of Shanghai Mary.

Glen Fortune's oldest colts were foaled in 1891, and show up splendidly in the kindergarten, where they may be seen any week day.

By The Grand Moor.

MOORLAND, $40.

First dam Lady Budd, dam of Capri, sire of Clara Z., 2:26¾.
Moorland's colts show speed. His dam, Lady Budd, was a wonderful road mare; nothing ever beat her in an all-day tussle on the Cliff House road.

The training department is very complete, and curing faults in gait is a specialty. The Souther Farm system of balancing was used most successfully during the past season on several well known horses, of which one took a record of 2:16 1-2, another 2:22 3-4 with several other creditable records and trials.

The Souther Farm Swimming Tank is in regular operation and horses are given swimming work every week day in good weather. Swimming gives EXERCISE WITHOUT CONCUSSION, and is an invaluable aid in training trotters or runners. Visitors welcome any day except Sunday.

FOR SALE.

On account of departure of owner, W. F., one of the best young stallions ever bred in this state, three years old, standard-bred, 15.2 hands high, as fine a youngster as a man could wish to see (can show speed enough to go in first-class company), is offered for sale. He is by CARTOON 2308, son of Wissahickon, he by William Welch 341, he by Rysdyk's Hambletonian. Cartoon's first dam was the P[illegible]on mare, by Norfolk; second dam by John N[illegible]on 187; third dam McCormick mare (the dam of May Howard, 2:21). W. F.'s first dam, Nerea, has a record of 2:23½, and was sired by John Nelson, a son of Trustee, imported thoroughbred. Among his relatives is Sallie Taylor, by General Taylor, son of the Morse horse. I will only mention a few of his relations to show that he is of a trotting family that breeds on:

LORD BYRON, 2:18	PEANUTS
NEREA, 2:23 1-2	FRED
AURORA, 2:27	SISTER
GOV. STANFORD	NETTIE LAMBERT
NEMO	BIDLER

In addition to the above named, hissire, the handsome mahogany bay horse

Training The Trotting Horse.

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm."

THE BLOOD HORSE RACES.

Royal Flush's Rapid Run in Front of Zaldivar and a Fine Field.

SIR MODRED - COLUMBINE FILLY FIRST.

Bridal Veil Easily Defeats Orta—Bernardo Proves Himself a Very High-Class Race Horse—Regal Captures a Race.

Cadmus Redeems Himself by Winning in Fast Time Esperanza First From Start to Finish—The Lightly-Weighted Orrin Downs the Good Colt Monowai—El Rayo's Astonishing Reversal of Public Form—Geraldine Still Queen—The Events in Detail.

SENSATIONAL indeed was the racing this day, and something to be talked of and remembered for many a month. Zaldivar met his Waterloo at the feet of Royal Flush, and the latter's runaway win brought thoughts to the mind of the race-goers that Royal Flushes are hard things to beat in any civilized country. Jockey Joe Narvaez piloted three of his mounts to victory in to-day's events, and Tommy Morton had his first win of the meeting. Bridal Veil conclusively proved that she was not a counterfeit, after all, and Bernardo demonstrated to everyone's satisfaction that he was a race horse of high degree, by giving weight away and a sound beating to a good field of older horses, in which one, El Rayo, backed off many a bookies' board, quit like a cold-blooded critter in the homestretch. Regal, with 117 up, won in the gamest fashion from Mero, who was coming very fast at the end. The day's sport was good all the way through, and speculation was very lively on every event. Zaldivar was asked to give away twenty-six pounds to such a good colt as Royal Flush, and in consequence was never dangerous in the race, being beaten for place by Ulster, with 105 pounds in the saddle. The attendance was very good, over 2,000 spectators being present. The sky was clear, but a strong, disagreeable wind blew throughout the afternoon, and the track was lumpy and about two seconds slow.

Following is a detailed description of the day's racing:

EIGHTH DAY—FRIDAY, APRIL 22, 1892.

There were five entries in the first race, and the untried in-public but much-fancied Cheviot colt, Narvaez, with his namesake in the saddle, was made a tropical first choice in auctions and books. Aerolite was next in favor, the others despised by the bettors. Tigress got a trifle the best of the send-off, and led the Sir Modred-Columbine filly, her closest attendant, a neck for a little over an eighth of a mile, when the latter passed easily to a position in front, never to relinquish it, winning with wonderful ease by two lengths, Tigress second, three lengths from Aerolite, third, the favorite, Narvaez, beaten away off and never in the hunt. Time, 0:50½. The winner had run once before during the meeting, but did not show up well; consequently few touched her to-day at odds of 10 to 1 in the books. The ease with which she won and the good time made stamps her a very fair filly that should be "in it" with any youngster shown here thus far.

SUMMARY.

BAY DISTRICT TRACK, FRIDAY, April 22, 1892.—First race, purse $400; $300 to first, $75 to second, $25 to third; for two-year-olds; winners at this meeting to carry 10 pounds extra; those having run second, 5 pounds extra; horses that have not run first, second or third, allowed 5 pounds. Half a mile.

Time, 0:50½.

Won by two lengths, three between second and third.
Auctions—Narvaez, $25; the field, $15; Aerolite, $8.
Book-betting—Sir Modred-Columbine filly, 10 to 1; Tigress, 8 to 1; Aerolite, 3½ to 1; Narvaez, 7 to 10; Charmion, 8 to 1.

Second on the programme was a handicap for three-year-olds, one mile, in which Zaldivar was asked to give Royal Flush twenty-six pounds, Ulster twenty-one pounds, Bessie W. twenty-four pounds and others still more. Notwithstanding his heavy impost, Zalvidar was at 1 to 3 in the books and sold for $150 in the pools against $60 for the whole field. To a good start of the field of eight Royal Flush, on the outside immediately shot to the fore, attended by Bessie W. and Zaldivar. This was the order past the quarter and half, where Motto had come up on nearly even terms with Zaldivar. At the three-quarters Royal Flush was over two lengths to the good, Bessie W. and Motto second and third, the favorite fourth. Once straightened out Royal Flush even widened the gap, Bessie W. and Folly fell back with "enough" written in their eyes, Ulster came out of the bunch on the inside like a meteor and passed Zalvidar, who gave him battle, but the 10 to 1 shot, Royal Flush, with the best jockey on the coast in the saddle, won the race by three good lengths. Ulster after a good struggle, nipped the place from the big favorite by half a length, and the Owen Brothers were happy and "in clover," financially speaking. The time, 1:43 2-5, was equal to 1:41½ on a good track, and shows Royal Flush to be a hard one to beat in any company when right. One bookmaker lost $1,500 in a single bet on the winning horse, while Ulster was played quite strongly for a place.

SUMMARY.

FRIDAY, APRIL 22, 1892.—Second race, purse $500; $375 to first; $75 to second, and $50 to third horse; handicap for three-year-olds; $10 declarations after accepting weights to go to first horse. One mile.

Three horses only responded to the bugle call in the third event on the day's card, but it was a great betting contest all the same, Bridal Veil and Orta being backed for several thousands of dollars Bridal Veil went to the front at once, was never headed, and won with ridiculous ease by two lengths from the much-punished and heavily-played Orta, who in turn was four lengths from Dutch Dancer. Time, 1:04.

SUMMARY.

FRIDAY, April 22, 1892.—Third race, purse $500; $350 to first, $100 to second, $50 to third; handicap for two-year-olds; $10 declaration after accepting weights to go to first horse. Five-eighths of a mile.

Book-betting—Bridal Veil, 4 to 5; Orta, even money; Dutch Dancer, 10 to 1.

A great many persons imagined that the little brown gelding, Bernardo, was a sprinter—nothing more—and in consequence threw their golden eagles and silver dollars into the boxes of the bookies for El Rayo tickets with remarkable abandon. The distance in this race was one mile and seventy yards. El Rayo took the track at once, with Henry T. as his closest attendant, Fannie F, third; but by the time the quarter-pole was reached Bernardo and Henry T. were head-and-head, leaders af the lively band, with El Rayo third. At the half-pole it was Bernardo first by a length, El Rayo second, Henry T. third. At every stride Bernardo bounded away from his opponents, and reaching the three-quarter pole was three lengths ahead of El Rayo, Applause now third and coming fast. In the homestretch El Rayo shut up with lightning-like rapidity, and old Applause got the place by three parts of a length, Fannie F. third. Bernardo won easily by a length and a half. Time, 1 48.

SUMMARY.

FRIDAY, April 22, 1892.—Fourth race, purse $500; $350 to the first, $100 to second, $50 to third; handicap for all ages; $10 declaration after accepting weights to go to first horse. One mile and 70 yards.

A selling race, seven-eighths of a mile, wound up the day's sport, and in it were nine starters. Tom Stacey, because Narvaez had the mount on him, was made favorite in the books, with Regal next in public estimation. Initiation was first to show after the send-off, Regal next, Hello third. This was the order passing the quarter-pole. At the half Regal drew up even with Initiation, whom he and Hello soon passed. At the head of the stretch Regal was leading Hello by a half a length, Tom Stacey third, Mero fourth and coming fast. Regal went on and won by half a length from Mero, who was coming fastest at the end, the latter two lengths from Tom Stacey, third. Time, 1:31½.

NINTH DAY—SATURDAY, APRIL 23, 1892.

Cadmus redeemed himself to-day, and after he had run all over the track, slackened up, came again and won in a romp by four lengths in very fast time everyone said he was a wonderful colt—and he is. Esperanza beat a good field, which she led from start to finish. Orrin, with a concession of just thirty pounds' weight, beat the great colt Monowai easily, never making a move till he struck the homestretch. El Rayo showed a remarkable reversal of public form. The day before he was beaten away off by Bernardo in slow time with light weight up, and to-day, with only two pounds less in the saddle, he won a remarkably fast race comparatively easily. This looks odd, to say the least, but possibly the owner of El Rayo can account for it. Geraldine, in her old-time form, actually romped away from a splendid lot of sprinters, and went in circular track record time at five and one-half furlongs. The course was faster to-day, the sky was, as on the day preceding, clear, but a cold, biting wind blew the entire afternoon. There was a goodly attendance of the fair sex, but the audience was hardly as large as usual on Saturday afternoons.

The handicapping in the race won by Esperanza was miserable, to draw it mild. Esperanza had just beaten San Pedro in a good race and in fair time, and yet the game filly from the Encino Stable was asked to carry but 105 pounds. Then came Charles Kerr's Ulster, the same age as Esperanza, with no brackets to his credit and comparatively untried in public, and he was asked to pack 120 pounds. Another non-winner at the meeting, Queen Alta, had an impost of 115 pounds, and it is strange to see how the handicappers could figure out that she was ten pounds better than Esperanza. About the proper weights on these horses, in order to see a head-and-head finish, would have been: Esperanza, 112 pounds; Queen Alta, 110 pounds; Ulster, 114 pounds. There was no excuse for putting big weight on Ulster and taking it off the others, who had done better than the colt had in races here. The trouble with most handicappers is that they are afraid to put big weight up on the really good horses, and the medium and poor ones are put in so light that no good jockey can ride, and stable boys must have the mounts.

Following is a description in detail of to-day's races:

Cadmus was an overwhelming favorite in the opening race, one of five furlongs, with eight starters. Conde, with Narvaez up, was well-played for the place, the rest of the field were not considered dangerous in the least. Conde got the best of the send-off, and he and Cadmus ran away from the others. Cadmus went up fast from the half till between that point and the three-quarter pole, where he fell back alarmingly. In a second, though, he came again on the outside of the track, and straightening out for home Conde only had a neck the best of it. From there on Cadmus fairly flew, and won a remarkable fast race by four lengths, Conde second, five lengths in front of Donna Lilla, third. Time, 1:02 1-5—this after a serpentine run and quitting for a moment nearing the the final turn. Cadmus is undoubtedly in the "phenom" class, and when he runs true will be a very hard nut for any colt in America to crack.

SUMMARY.

Bay District Track, Saturday, April 23, 1892.—First race, purse $400; $300 to first, $75 to second, $25 to third; for two-year-olds; winners at this meeting to carry five pounds extra; horses that have not run first, second or third allowed five pounds; horses that have started and not finished better than third allowed twenty pounds. Five-eighths of a mile.

Esperanza, with her light impost, was made a favorite in the second race, mile and an eighth, with seven starters. Most of the money went in on Esperanza, while Ulster and Bert Hart were strong tips for place honors. Fsperanza forged to the front at the flag's flop, attended by Ulster and Queen Alta, and this was the order all the way around. Esperanza won strong by nearly three lengths, Ulster second, a length in front of Queen Alta, third. Time, 1:57 2-5. Ulster's performance, with 120 pounds up, shows him to have run about as good a race as the winner.

SUMMARY.

The third event, five-eighths of a mile dash, for two-year-olds, was a great betting affair. Monowai, notwithstanding his concession of thirty pounds to a couple of his young horse friends, was favorite at odds of 8 to 5. Mezzotint was played heavily for place, Sir Reel had lots of backers, too, for that honor, while a quiet play was made on Orrin, a big bay, John Happy, colt with only 90 pounds in the saddle. Monowai bounded to the front at once, Sir Reel being closest to him, Orrin third, two lengths away. This was the the order clear to the head of the stretch, where Orrin made his move. In a twinkling he had passed Sir Reel and collared the favorite, and in another second it was plain to be seen that Monowai had struck a snag, for little Donathan brought his whip down hard on the back of the big son of Midlothian. Orrin was not to be caught with only a peanut on his back, though, and won with ease by half a length, two lengths between second and third.

SUMMARY.

Seven faced the starter in the fourth race, one mile and a sixteenth. Captain Al was the favorite—this with 123 pounds on his black back against 100 on El Rayo, Narvaez up, and 100 on Applause. Applause, Revolver and Mero had several admirers with coin, and El Rayo, in the face of his miserable run yesterday, lacked not for supporters. El Rayo led off, attended by Revolver and Applause. At the quarter past the stand it was Applase first, El Rayo and Captain Al head-and-head. El Rayo now commeuced to gain, and passing the half was nearly a length in front, Applause a head before Captain Al. Applause fell back and Captain Al moved up second. Once in the homestretch Revolver was cut loose under the whip, and so fast did he come from the rear of the bunch that El Rayo had to be shaken up considerably to beat the game old gelding a neck. Revolver, second, was three lengths to the good of Captain Al, third. Time, 1:47¾—remarkably fast. The mile was run in 1:41½.

Montana being added to the last race, five and a half furlongs, made the speculation much keener than it would otherwise have been. Geraldine was well backed, as was Joe Ellis. Hercules, with his 134 pounds impost, had many supporters. Montana went to the post a decided favorite, though. The horses acted badly, and delayed the start till the crowd was in a bad humor. At length the flag fell with Geraldine and Montana head-and-head, Kyrene third, Hercules heading the second bunch. The ex-queen of the sprinters and Montana ran stride for stride past the half, when Geraldine moved up a peg. Between the half and three-quarter poles Porter Ashe's popular mare drew away at a wonderful rate, and entered the homestretch over a length in front of Montana, Hercules now third. The order was not changed at the end, and the beautiful daughter of Grinstead, amid loud applause, passed under the wire like a rocket two lengths and a half ahead of Montana, who in turn was two lengths from Hercules, in third place. Time, 1:07¼. From five-eighths pole home Geraldine did the distance in 1:00 flat—the fastest time ever made on a circular track. Jockeys whose names commenced with "H" were first, second and third in this race, and they were the only three in it whose names commenced with that letter.

TENTH DAY—TUESDAY, APRIL 26, 1892.

The racing to-day was interesting and exceedingly exciting throughout the long programme of six races. Not during the meeting had the track been in such good shape, consequently the time made was good in almost every instance. Bridal Veil won her race handily, although the winner and Orrin both appeared quite tired at the end. Braw Scot, in the Tidal Stakes, second on the day's programme, created a great sensation by taking the bit in his teeth and running off with Hennessy. The clever Maltese Villa jockey yanked and pulled until his arms were sore, and, finally becoming exhausted from his efforts, fell off the horse after he had gone a mile. He landed on his face, but strange to say was not injured to such an extent that he could not ride again, and pluckily remounted the gray demon. Elmwood won the stake after a clever finish by Hill, while Braw Scot and Bessie W. had a hammer-and-tongs finish for place, the latter ultimately getting the verdict by the scantest of margins. By the way, Billy Hill outrode everybody to-day, piloting all three of his mounts to victory—Elmwood, Sheridan and Inkerman. Sheridan showed what a really good horse he is when on edge by taking up 124 pounds and defeating Acclaim with 122, Lottie Mills with 106, Bert Hart with 95 and Obee with 105 pounds in the saddle, and winning the race, seven furlongs, in 1:28¼. Narvaez rode Lottie Mills like a green stable boy, and let up lamentably close to the wire, Acclaim thereby getting the place by a neck. Bally, on Acclaim, also rode with bad judgment, that is if he was not ordered to ride the race as he did. Genora's victory was a handsome one. Inkerman, splendidly ridden by Hill, laid back third until the homestretch was struck, when he came away from his field and won a fast race by over two lengths. St. Patrick's success was deserved, for he won gallantly in the final eighth. Good time was made—much better than expected. The pencilers fared badly, being whipsawed on the first and last races and beaten on all the others except the Sheridan race, where there was a tremendous play on Lottie Mills for the place. The attendance was about 1,800, and the day's sport was thoroughly enjoyed.

Following is a detailed description of the events of the afternoon:

Bridal Veil was an even-money favorite in the opening race, five-eighths of a mile, with five starters. Orrin was played strongly for the place, while there was quite a plunge on Steadfast, resulting in the odds being cut down from 30 to 10 to 10 to 1. Bridal Veil jumped away in the lead, and making every pole a winning one, won in a rather tired fashion by a little over a length from the equally weary Orrin, who in turn was a length and a half from Martinet, who came up strong at the finish. The order clear into the stretch was Bridal Veil, Orrin, Alliance. The time waa 1:03—fair, with weights up.

SUMMARY.

Bay District Track, Tuesday, April 26, 1892.—First race, purse $400; handicap for two-year-olds. Five furlongs.

Time, 1:03.

Won by a little over a length, length and a half between second and third.
Auction pools—None sold.
Book-betting—Bridal Veil, evens, Orrin, 3 to 1; Alliance, 5 to 1; Martinet, 6 to 1; Steadfast, 10 to 1.

The Tidal Stakes was next on the programme, and four faced the starter for this mile and a quarter dash. Bessie W., with Narvaez up, was made a favorite at 8 to 5, Elmwood going at 2½ to 1 at the start. Braw Scot got the bit in his teeth and Hennessey exhausted himself trying to stop the gray demon in his mad career. At the end of a mile Hennessy fell off and was slightly stunned, and for a while it was feared the clever horse pilot was killed. Braw Scot continued on, and ran half a mile further at top speed, while poor Hennessy was brought back to the saddling paddock, where he rounded to splendidly and pluckily remounted Braw Scot, who was caught on the first turn from the wire. The bookies, after Braw Scot's runaway, put his odds up to 5 to 1 and lowered those of Elmwood to even money; against Bessie W. 4 to 5 was offered at the post. Elmwood and Braw Scot made the running head-and-head past the stand, Borealis third and the favorite last. This was the order past the quarter. Then Braw Scot took the baton and led the band past the half, Bessie W. second and Elmwood, sulking and catching the whip, third. The latter, getting plentiful doses of lash, came again, and was leading Bessie W. half a length into the stretch, Borealis only a head behind the daughter of Darebin. Once straightened out, Elmwood came away under Hill's clever urging, and won a slow race by two lengths. Bessie W. and Braw Scot fought gamely every inch of the way for place honors, but the mare was freshest, and got the verdict by a head. Many were of the opinion that Braw Scot would have won the race had he not made that mad circuit. The time was 2:13. Hennessy was roundly cheered for pluck he displayed in riding the hard-mouthed son of Midlothian.

Seldom are better races seen than the third one on to-day's programme, seven-eighths of a mile, with five starters. Acclaims, notwithstanding her heavy impost of 122 pounds, was the favorite at 8 to 5, Sheridan and Lottie Mills going at 3 to 1 each, Bert Hart at 6 and Obee at 30 to 1. And how the money did pour in on Lottie Mills and Sheridan for place and Acclaim to win. Before the horses went up for the start the stream of coin that went on Mills for second honors was a perfect torrent. Lottie went off at the flag's fall and set a merry pace, Obee being second and Sheridan third. This was the order passing the quarter and half, Lottie Mills showing a streak of daylight up to this point. Between the half and three-quarter poles Sheridan was given his head and moved up in a style that caused his admirers to to shout with joy. Acclaim was also coming like a blue streak, and there was a closing up between the three the moment the trio straightened out for the final effort. Lottie Mills held on tenaciously till within an eighth from home, when Narvaez brought the whip down on her sides with a vengeance, and the filly did not relish the punishment a little bit, and fell back a trifle, Sheridan passing to the front and leading her a neck. Just when it looked like Sheridan was safe in front and Lottie Mills in the place Narvaez let up in his riding from weakness, overconfidence or something that no one can ken, and Acclaim, coming like a bullet, nipped the place by a neck in the last jump. Sheridan won the race handily by a good neck. Time, 1:28½—a wonderfully good performance with the weight up. There were no end of uncomplimentary comments on the finish made by Narvaez with Lottie Mills, which was weak, to say the least.

The brown Palo Alto filly Genora was installed favorite in the fourth race, half a mile, with eight starters. By Jove had been scratched out. McCarty's Estate was played heavily for the place, and Panchita was nibbled at a little. After a tedious delay at the post (about thirty minutes), the flag fell to a good start, and Genora came out of the bunch immediately and opened up daylight without delay. Panchita was her nearest attendant, and Charmion third. Estrella came up fast, rounding the turn for home, passed Panchita, and was second when the youngsters straightened out. The order was unchanged, and Genora won easily by two lengths in 0:50. There was quite a fight for place, but Estrella would not be denied, and got the honor by half a length.

SUMMARY.

Hercules, with a stable boy up, was choice in the fifth race, although Regal and Inkerman had almost as many admirers. The distance was three-quarters of a mile, and there were eight starters. Hello was first to show after the flag's fall, and he was attended by Hercules, Inkerman third, over a length away. This was the order till rounding the final turn, where Hill was riding Inkerman with great determination and getting closer and closer to the leaders. Into the straight they thundered, Hello, Inkerman and Hercules almost level, but not for long were they on even terms, for Inkerman drew away gradually in the gamest fashion, Hello fell back rapidly, Regal moved up from fourth place, and a pretty finish resulted for place between Hercules and Regal, the latter getting the desired honor by a scant neck in a rattling burst. Inkerman sailed in winner of the race by two and a half lengths in the fast time of 1:15.

Nearly every man, woman and child around the place played St. Patrick to win, Tom Stacey for place in the last race, which also had eight starters and the same conditions as the previous event. Woodbury Jr. got off a trifle in advance, and ran well for half a mile in front. The order clear around in the stretch was Woodbury Jr., Tom Stacey, St. Patrick. Woodbury Jr. shut up in the straight at an alarming rate, and St. Patrick, ridden out hard by Narvaez, came rapidly out of the bunch and assumed the leading position at the drawgate. Continuing on unheeded, he won a good race by a length, a neck separating Tom Stacey, second, and King George, third. Time, 1:15¾. And the bookmakers were sad.

Book-betting—St. Patrick, 2 to 1; Tom Stacey, 2 to 1; King George, 5 to 1; Lucinda, 6 to 1; Joe Stacey, 8 to 1; Woodbury Jr., Washington Bartlett and Pearl, each 15 to 1.

ELEVENTH DAY—THURSDAY, APRIL 28, 1892.

The racing to-day was enjoyable and first-class from first to last, and a large crowd was present. Sir Roy, the heretofore unfortunate colt from the Rose stable, at last got off well, and won in an easy gallop from his six opponents, and in fast time, too. Sullivan rode Conde poorly, and got beaten easily for place honors. Revolver's defeat of Acclaim and Captain Al was a stunner to the "talent," and the result shows that Revolver is not only a really good horse when in shape, but a game one and a wonderful finisher as well. Bernardo must now, by his heavy concession of weight to everything he has gone against at the present meeting and the excellent time he has made, be classed as strictly first-class, and anything in America that beats him up to a mile and a sixteenth, will know he or she has been to a very hard horse race. Bernardo's victory to-day at seven-eighths of a mile, which he ran in 1:28 flat with 124 pounds up, demonstrates conclusively that no horse at present in the West is "in it" or close to him as a weight-carrying crackerjack. Geraldine still reigns as queen of the sprinters, and her run of four and a half furlongs in within a quartor of a second of record time, with 119 up, tells the story of just how good she really is at the present moment. Princess' run reflects great credit on her trainer, Richard Havey, and she is probably chief in the two-year-old filly division. Initiation outclassed her field, but gave away lumps of weight, hence the good odds of 3 to 1 against her in the books. However, Sullivan nearly succeeded in stealing the race from Hill, and the finish was of the hair-raising order. The bookmakers lost heavily today, especially on the races won by Bernardo, Geraldine and Initiation. Narvaez rode three winners, Hart one and Hill one.

Following is a complete description of the days' racing:

Sir Reel, Dick O'Malley, Charmion and Oporto being scratched out of the opening event, Sir Roy reigned favorite at odds of 2 to 1 on. Conde was played strongly for a place. Sir Roy got off well, forged to a position in front at once, attened by Conde and Tigress, who were head-and-head until nearing the homestretch, where Tigress, well-ridden by Vignes, passed Conde. Sir Roy, without the use of whip or spur, won by three lengths, pulling up, in the good time of 0:55½. Sullivan pulled up an eighth from home and then sent Conde dashing toward the inside, trying hard to get the place, but Tigress got the position easily enough by three parts of a length.

Book-betting—Sir Roy, 1 to 2; Tigress, 12 to 1; Conde, 3 to 1; Darebin—Iris filly, 15 to 1; Donna Lilla and Sidney, each, 30 to 1.

Acclaim (with Narvaez in the saddle) was made a warm first choice at 2 to 5 on. Her opponents were Captain Al, with that good rider, Hill, up; Revolver, Hart up, and May D., Sullivan, pilot. May D. was first away, attended by Revolver. At the quarter Acclaim, who had moved up fast, was second to May D., Captain Al third, Revolver last and trailing in the dust. At the half the order was unchanged, but Revolver had now got within reaching distance, and was gaining. In the run to the homestretch Revolver had moved up like a well-oiled, unthrottled locomotive, and was right with Acclaim. May D. had fallen back and Captain Al had not improved his position as his admirers fondly wished. Down the homestretch one of the prettiest and at the same time most desperate finishes resulted, Revolver getting a neck ahead and never losing an inch. Acclaim ran gamely, with her 122 lbs. up, but the son of Joe Daniels would not yield an iota, and won a grand race, to the surprise of nine out of every ten, by a neck, Acclaim second, a trifle over a length in front of Captain Al. Time, 1:42. The quarters were 0:25½, 0:50, 1:16, 1:42.

The sprinters now took an inning, and a good field of them it was. Geraldine, with Narvaez to pilot her, was the choice of the talent at evens, while a strong play was made on Princess and Hercules, principally for place. April Fool, a sprinter of some reputation, had several friends, although just making his debut here. The last-named was first away at the start, closely attended by Geraldine and Hercules. At the three-quarters it was Geraldine and April Fool, necks apart in the order named, Princess now third and moving well enough to suit her many admirers. Geraldine went away from April Fool at a great rate once the homestretch was reached, and won comparatively easy by a length and a half. Princess, in the gamest sort of a finish, stuck her head out in front of April Fool right under the wire amid considerable excitement. Time, 0:54½—exceedingly fast on any style of track.

SUMMARY.

Now came a seven-furlong dash, with Bernardo, 124 pounds up; Romair, 120; Royal Flush, 110; Esperanza, 104. There were five others entered, but these were the ones on which the coin went. Bernardo's heavy load made the bookies think he might take a beating to-day, and therefore Esperanza was looked upon as the most likely one to do the trick. Royal Flush sailed to the front at once, but Esperanza soon caught him, and the pair ran locked past the quarter and half, Bernardo a good third all the time. Royal Flush drew out as if he meant to say good-bye to the field once for all, but entering the stretch Esperanza had caught him again, and Bernardo was cutting away like a perfectly regulated mowing machine on a field of oats. Royal Flush got enough an eighth from home, and Esperanza took the lead. As steady as a clock, however, came Bernardo, and collaring the little Judge McKinstry filly fifty yards from the wire, he passed her and went ahead like a shot, passing the wire in the gamest fashion imaginable in the phenomenal time, weight considered, of 1:28, winning the race by over a length, Esperanza second, a length from Royal Flush, he in turn but a head in front of Lottie Mills. Time, 1:28. Bernardo is a rare race horse, and no mistake.

In the last race, one mile, everything (and there were six of them) was backed, but St. Patrick and King George were probably played a little harder than the rest. To a splendid start King Hooker was first to show in the lead, attended by St. Patrick and Initiation. At the quarter it was St. Patrick first by a neck, King Hooker second, half a length from Initiation. The latter was running easily, and made her move nearing the half pole, where she was leading St. Patrick a head, King Hooker close up, third. Initiation led into the homestretch by half a length, St. Patrick and King Hooker heads apart in the order named. Initiation opened up daylight in the stretch, and Hill, a little too sure of the race, eased the mare up, when St. Patrick, in the gamest style, came up with a rush. A rattling finish ensued, but Initiation outclassed St. Patrick, and won by half a neck amid cheers by the ladies, who fancied the pretty mare from the Elmwood stable greatly. St. Patrick, second, was a trifle over a length from King Hooker third, and the time was 1:43¾.

The Finigan Sale.

The attention of every gentleman who desires a bargain in royally-bred horses and splendid buggies is called to the advertisement in another column of this paper regarding a sale of trotting stallions, broodmares, colts and buggies, the property of P. A. Finigan, of this city. This sale will be carried on by Easton, Eldridge & Co. at Mr. Finigan's place, 1248 California street, between Jones and Leavenworth, on May 17th, commencing at 11 o'clock. Mr. Finigan intends going abroad for a long time, and a rare lot of bargains will doubtless be secured in consequence.

Who Uses Spelterine?

This question can be easily answered by applying to any of the prominent trainers and drivers. It is endorsed by veterinarians, used by horsemen, and proves to be superior to any hoof-stuffing ever thought of. When once tested it recommends itself. It is far superior to linseed meal and cheaper than it or any other hoof-stuffing ointment. It is a natural product which retains moisture for hours and never gets hot. In allaying inflammation of the hoof it is perfectly wonderful.

The Coming Haggin Sale.

Horsemen and business men desiring either a fine trotter or a splendid draft animal should not allow themselves to forget that on the 10th and 11th of May, 1892, there will be a great sale in this city. On that date, at Killip & Co.'s saleyard, Van Ness avenue and Market street, there will be disposed of an exceedingly choice collection of 120 trotters and eighty draft horses, and many great bargains will be secured at that time.

Here's a list of the famous horses Robert Bonner has driven on the road:

Lantern—the first horse to go in 2:22 in double harness.
Peerless.
Lady Palmer and Flatbush Maid—the first team to trot in 2:26.
Dexter—with a record of 2:17.
Joe Elliott—record of 2:15½.
Edwin Forrest—showed a trial in 2:11¾.
Rarus—record of 2:13½; trial of 2:11½.
Maud S.—record of 2:08¾.
Sunol—record on kite-shaped track of 2:08½.
Alfred S.—secord of 2:16½ in harness, and 2:16¾ to a wagon.
Lucy Cuyler—who made the fastest half mile to a wagon, doing it in 1:05.

NEXT Monday the "strings" of Charles Kerr, of Bakersfield; L. J. Rose, of Los Angeles, and Wilber F. Smith, of Sacramento, will leave Bay District track for the East, where all the horses are well engaged and likely to have a say in many a race in the cities across the Rockies. The horses of Messrs. Kerr and Smith go to Chicago, and those of Mr. Rose to Brooklyn.

A dog receives as much benefit of the bone he buries as do some men out of their horses. The loss of the former is a negative one, that of the latter a positive one. The man might have a mine of wealth and pleasure just for the digging of it. He leaves buried an undeveloped treasure.

THE GUN.

The State Sportsman's Association.

The importance of the work to be accomplished by this body cannot be a question the minds of any one acquainted with the conditions obtaining in this State at the present time. It would indeed be suicidal to the sportsman's interest to allow the opportunity for concerted action to go unimproved for a single day longer than to perfect the formation of this body, so that it may have active co-operators in every district in the State to the end that the laws enacted for the purpose of protecting fish and game may become effective. To compel these laws to be respected, a public sentiment must be aroused sufficient to accomplish this end. In no way can this better be done than through the above named organization. The object, and the sole object, of the State Sportsman's Association is to see to it that the laws already upon the statutes be respected and enforced with the further broad and general purpose of looking to the enactment of further legislation to the end that the game and fish of the State be fully and rationally preserved for the benefit of the public at large. The objects of the Association is clearly set forth in the following article appearing in the Constitution of this body. It reads:

The objects of this association shall be

"To unite the sportsmen of the State in securing the introduction and acclimatization of suitable game and fish not found here; to educate the people of the State generally to a higher standard in the benefit results to present and future generations of a wise code of game and fish preserving laws faithfully observed; to urge the enforcement of the laws now in operation, and to secure the enactment of such further laws as may seem wise; to bring men of kindred tastes into more intimate relations, in order that all proper rights, privileges and pleasures may be secured to those whose instincts make them lovers of the rod and gun; and to further such other ends as may properly lie within the province of an association of sportsmen."

The Constitution and By-laws of the association are now issued in neat and convenient form and any applying to the secretary of the association at 313 Bush street this city, may obtain a copy together with much valuable printed matter which will be useful in furthering the objects of the association. It would seem that this cause would only have to be mentioned in order to receive the hearty support of every true sportsman in the State. We are confident that every lover of the rod and gun will cheerfully become associated with this body and aid by every means the furtherance of the objects sought. Let nothing interfere with prompt action in this matter. If you are not already a member of this body join it at once and let the interest of the sportsmen of the State be cared for in such a manner as will insure sport in abundance, at seasonable times, for generations to come.

A very important meeting of the Board of Directors of the State Sportsman's Association was held at the office of the Secretary of the Association at 313 Bush street, April 26th, President Robinson in the chair. On motion of E. L. Bosqui, sustained by F. L. Wooster, the Secretary was instructed to convey, by resolution passed by the Board, the action of this meeting to the several sportsmen's club urging immediate action in the matter of joining the Asssciation.

President F. S. Buttler, of the San Francisco Gun Club was also present. The outlook for effective work during the year is very bright and there can be no doubt that the Association will not fail in accomplishing great good in the work for which it was formed to accomplish.

The work, however, cannot be done as thoroughly and efficiently as it should be done until every sportsman in the State becomes an active member of it and throws his personal endeavor into the effort to bring about the end sought—the complete protection of the game and fish of the State, together with such collateral matters as pertain to the work of the Association.

The developments so far made at the trap, for this season, show that a number of new men will be in at the death, so to speak, when the final account is made upon September next. This is all the more interesting as the true measure of sport is in the observance of the improvement made in shooting by careful painstaking men. One of the great wants of most, if indeed not all of our shooters seem to be an absence of securing and deriving the benefit which is ever to be derived from a careful coacher. There is scarcely anyone among the entire contingent of our sportsmen here who avail themselves of this very important factor in their shooting.

In shooting, as in most other efforts in life, few men can see their own faults clearly enough to correct them until their attention is called thereto by a word of kindly and timely suggestion.

Of course all know that the universal tendency is to shoot before and behind the birds, and that most sportsmen loose by being too slow in shooting, but almost every man has faults peculiar to himself alone and these too of a character that may be readily overcome, if conscientious endeavor is made to correct them. This can only be done by practical coaching on the ground. We hope to see more of it done at our regular trap events.

The Blue Rock Club holds its regular monthly meeting one week from to-day at the Lincoln Gun Club grounds at Alameda Point. This club extends a cordial invitation to all sportsmen to be present and participate in the events of the club on that date. The club is composed of a pleasant, gentlemanly membership, and their meetings invariably result in a pleasant experience to all present.

The Staunton (Virginia) Tournament commenced on April 12th with a large attendance. They seem, from the reports made in our Eastern contemporaries, to do things up in the shooting line in great shape back there. The tournament lasted three days, and proved te be one of the greatest yet held this year.

On May 30th the San Francisco Gun Club will hold its regular annual picnic and pigeon shoot somewhere over in Ross valley. Last year a most enjoyable time was had, and in fact this annual celebration has become one of the fixed events of this club.

The U. S. Gun Club of Oakland organized this spring has a membership of twenty-seven. This club has had several interesting events at the trap and contains some good shots.

The Recreation Gun Club meets at Oakland Track to-morrow to celebrate its regular monthly event at the trap.

The Selby Medal Contest.

On Sunday last a contest for this well known trophy was held at Oakland Shooting Park, but a limited number appearing in the match, owing, no doubt, to the very threatening aspect of the weather. The faithful were on hand, however, and a few were so early on the ground targeting their guns that the next relay of sportsmen were inquiring of the earlier arrivals if they had not camped on the ground all the night previous.

The mists of the morning presently rolled away, and the warm sun came out and rendered the day most pleasant. The shooting was very good, considering the lively quality of the birds, this the more pronounced as a wind of sufficient force to greatly aid the birds in flight was blowing most of the day.

Mr. C. J. Haas, of Stockton, won the medal on the score of nineteen out of a possible twenty, Mr. R. A. Eddy and Mr. T. R. Barney taking the money on a score of eighteen and seventeen respectively.

From some unaccountable reason three of the best shots of the State, Messrs. Robinson, Smith and "Slade," fell down, so to speak, and withdrew when they saw there was no probability of winning the prize. Mr. Haas lost his second bird, a swift left quarterer, which fell dead out of bounds, which fact places him as near to a perfect score as it is possible to make and yet be shaded.

Mr. Eddy lost his sixth bird, which also fell dead over bounds, while his ninth but managed to reach the skermish lines,beyond where it fell to a fusilade fired by the hangers on, who are becoming quite a nuisance at the matches at Oakland Park. These second-hand gunners should be suppressed as they must be very annoying to the residents about the park. Let the clubs take vigorous measures to suppress them.

Mr. T. R. Barney's shooting, during the pools following the main match, was a feature of the day's sport. Several corkscrew flyers which fell to his aim at very long range elicited the warmest commendation from all present. Messrs. Fay and Merrill each made some very fine kills. Mr. Fay drops his birds, as a rule, very near the traps. The score:

C. J. Haas	2	*	2	2	1	2	2	2	2	1	1	2	1	2	2	1	1	2	1			2—19
R. A. Eddy	1	1	1	2	2	*	1	1	0	1	1	2	1	2	2	2	1	2	1			1—18
T. R. Barney	1	2	1	1	1	1	1	*	1	2	2	0	1	1	1	0	2	1	1			1—17
C. A. Merrill	1	1	1	1	2	0	1	0	0	1	1	1	2	1	0	1	1	1	2			2—16
Ed. Fay	2	0	2	2	0	2	2	2	2	2	2	2	2	0	2	2	2	2	2	0		0—16
C. Robinson	2	1	1	1	1	*	0	1	1	2	1	1	1	2	1	0	2	*	w			—14
C. B. Smith	0	1	*	1	1	1	*	1	0	w												— 6
"Slade"	-	1	1	1	*	1	*	1	0	1	0	w										— 6

The following pool $5 entrance, eight birds, was then shot off, terminating as follows:

Robinson	2	0	1	2	2	1	2	2—8
Smith	1	1	2	2	1	1	1	2—8
"Slade"	1	1	1	2	1	2	2	1—8
Eddy	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1—8
Andrew Jackson	2	2	1	1	1	2	2	1—8
Barney	1	1	2	2	0	1	*	1—6
Bosqui	2	2	2	0	1	2	2	0—6
Haas	0	2	0	1	1	0	2	0—4
Sperry	0	1	1	2	0	1	0	0—4
Fay	0	2	2	2	0	0		—3
Geo. Jackson	0	1	1	0	0			—2
"Doc"	1	1	0	0				—2
Golcher	1	1	0	0				—2
Merrill	0							—0

In another pool, same entrance and conditions, the result was as follows.

Barney	1	2	1	1	2	1	1	2—8
Robinson	1	1	2	2	1	1	1	1—8
Fay	1	2	2	2	2	2	2	1—8
Smith	1	2	1	1	1	1	1	2—8
"Doc"	1	1	2	2	1	1	0	—6
Hunt	1	2	2	2	0			—4
Eddy	1	1	2	1	0			—4
Jackson	2	2	0					—2
Haas	1	2	0					—2
Bosqui	2	0						—1
Webster	0							—0
Golcher	0							—0

Following this pool, same conditions, Bosqui, Barney and Haas divided on a clean score of eight each, Mr. Webster losing his eighth bird, Robinson his seventh and others falling out as they missed earlier in the score. The final pool, same conditions, was won by Bosqui, Smith and Barney on clean scores of seven birds, Robinson, Webster and Haas losing their last birds. This brought to a close a splendid day's sport.

The Country Club.

On Saturday last the Country Club met at the traps in Oakland Shooting Park for the purpose of contesting in the regular monthly club match for April. The attendance was, as usual, quite large and the enthusiasm was subdued, yet of that quality which is ever present when true lovers of the gun assemble to enjoy the sport furnished by live pigeon shooting at the traps. The day was lovely and out of the forty-five dozen birds furnished by Murphy but three refused flight. To the credit of the shooters is the comment of the above-named pigeon man, who said that he never secured so many dead birds from any club event of this magnitude before. Many of the birds were extremely swift, which accounts for an absence of clean scores. Mr. Raymon E. Wilson made his first appearance at the trap for this season on this occasion and showed himself to be in fine shooting form by standing even with Mr. R. B. Woodward in highest skill of the day, these gentlemen making eleven clean kills each out of the dozen birds fired at in the main match. Mr. Wilson lost his seventh bird, which, severely punished, managed to flutter over bounds. Mr. Woodward lost his eleventh bird, a swift, slightly left quartering driver.

Mr. R. H. Sprague made ten fine kills. He fires a very close shooting gun and is rapidly improving in his methods.

Mr. F. W. Tallant in keeping up his record of last year. On this occasion he lost his eleventh and twelfth birds, the former being hard hit,circled about the grounds, then dropped dead just over the fence.

Mr. F. R. Webster shows in his shooting the remarkable difference which obtains in the shooting of some men, by being allowed to hold the gun at will, as to position. Under the new rule which eliminates all restriction as the position of gun, he is making a fine record, killing his birds neatly and promptly at the trap. He scored ten out of his first dozen fired at under the new conditions.

SUMMARY.

Oakland Shooting Park, Oakland Cal., April 23, 1892. The Club's April meeting at the trap, for the Club's medals and prizes offered for the season of 1892. F. R. Webster' President; Joseph M. Quay, Secretary; C. W. Kyle' referee. The score:

In a further match Messrs. Wilson, Bosqui and Donohoe divided on clean scores. "Freeze-outs" and pools finished the birds of the day and at a late hour the sport wound up with satisfaction to all.

This Will Be Interesting.

A challenge has been sent by the Athenean Club of Oakland to the Country Club of this city to shoot a match at live birds at Oakland track in order to determine which club is entitled to first honors. The proposition is to pick a team of ten men from each club and contest in a match of twenty birds to each man. This will be most interesting, especially as the Athenian men have not had the practice at the trap which the Country Club men have had, but Mr. John O. Cadman, the inaugurator of this event, believes that the excellent field shooting of his brother Athenians will compensate for any lack of practice they may have had at the trap and he is confident that the wreath will fall to the heads of these "men of Athens."

On the other hand President F. R. Webster, of the Country Club, smiles quietly when the subject is referred to, and by his demeanor shows that fear, on his part, is an unknown and unrecognized quantity in his contemplation of the coming struggle. At all events there will probably not occur until the Country Club's outing at Monterey in August next, such another event. It will be looked forward to with interest and no doubt but that a large number of the friends of the clubs, including the local sportsmen generally will be on hand to witness the outcome of the contest. The date will be decided upon and announced at an early day.

The discussion now going on in many of the sportsman's journals of the country relative to powders is not only interesting, but of the first magnitude and importance. On all questions pertaining to nitro powders there remains much, very much, yet to be solved. Of one thing there seems to be a uniform conclusion, which is that none of the nitros give the uniformity in penetration and pattern to that of the best grade of black powders. Is not the "quickness," that is, the undue suddenness of the ignition of nitros an element which changes the pattern and causes the shot to fly wild and wide? We believe it to be so. We are also persuaded that most of the charges used to-dayin twelve-gauge guns of less than eight pounds weight are too large, and that effectiveness and uniformity are all too frequently sacrificed on this account. It is most annoying to the average sportsman to be compelled to fire two shots at a target to one at a bird in order to keep his confidence up to a reasonable pitch in the effectiveness of many of the "standard" loads of the day. Do you know an expert shot who is not continually in "hot water" on the question of what charge he shall use in important contests? At one time certain "lots" of powder gives satisfaction, and the sportsman for the time, after trying his shells repeatedly, is content, but what is his surprise and chagrin on going to the score with the same brand and grade of powder, but from another "lot," that the results are so non-uniform as to unsettle all of his former convictions. So forceful and terrific an explosive as nitros have been proven to be, must of a necessity be handled with the utmost delicacy and care. To vary one "jot or tittle" in the manufacture, handling or loading is to the detriment of results. Perhaps some day these powders will be manufactured so as to obtain the same uniformity in strength shown by black powder, but in none of them has this day as yet arrived.

Captain Bremer is nothing if not confident as is clearly proven by the fact that next month he is matched against records to kill 97 per cent of 500 birds to be fired at. It is dollars to doughnuts that he will not accomplish so great a feat. He will be entitled to great honors should he succeed in so doing on good strong birds.

Fishing at Chautauqua.

Here lad and lassies ply the oar;
'Tis here they hasten by the score.
And, in a gaily painted boat,
'Tis here they often idly float,
And hear the old, old story told,
By lovers who, becoming bold
When out upon the limpid lake,
The opportunity they take
To breathe their vows in willing ears.
And settle all their hopes and fears.
"Will you, my darling, bless my life
By promising to be my wife?"
"I will, if papa thinks it's right."
* * * *
Stop! Charlie, stop! I've got a bite!
Oh! if it is a monstrous fish
Why, then, at last I've got my wish."
"Now, Maud, my dear, your angling stop."
"There, Charlie, your remonstrance drop.
You're angling only for a lass;
I'm bound to catch a noble bass.
There, don't so disappointed look;
You cannot tell what's on my hook
My! how he pulls! Do take the line
And land him, sure, if husband mine
You have the slightest wish to be.
Don't lose him, if you value me.
I'd rather see you in 'the drink'
Than lose that fish. Just see him plunge.
Oh! if it is a muscalunge,
How proud I'll be to take him in;
The girls shall know I've fishing been.
See! There he goes! Now, Charlie, dear,
If once again he comes so near,
Just strike him with this ready 'gaff.'
Oh! if we get him, I shall laugh.
That's right! You've got him! Land him quick,
And hit him with this bit of stick.
He'll weigh ten pounds. I think he will.
Why, Charlie, dear, you've very still,
Why do you look at me so queer?"
"Miss Maud, I think it's very clear
You'd rather catch ten pounds of fish
Than a lover true. Then let me wish
Good luck when e'er you angling go.
But I'll not bite again. Not if I know
Myself and heart. You're a pretly bait;
But as to marriage—well' I'll wait,
Nor into matrimony plunge,
'Till I'm worth more than a muskalunge.

Rod and Reel at Tacoma.

As usual, Green river was my favorite haunt last summer, and, though I only visited it four times, those four times were so full of delightful sport that I live in its memories yet, says John Leasure in American Angler. I was unfortunate on each of my trips up there in losing a big fish, and, strange as it may seem, it was the same identical fish every time. He had his home under the root of a giant fir stump that stood out in the river. Above the stump the water formed an eddy about six feet deep, and across the bottom laid a huge log with about a foot of clear space under it. My fish always made for this hole, and generally succeeded in getting one of my flies caught on the log as he passed under, and you know the rest. The last time I grew cautious, and waded down the stream nearly to my arm pits in the swift water. My most alluring fly—a royal coachman—was put on for his especial benefit, and, as I made a short cast, he came up from the depths like a shot, and I was just a little bit frightened at the way he saluted me. Right out of the water he leaped, and took the fly as he went down, and at his old tricks he went. In spite of the efforts I made—the tip of my six-ouncer almost kissing the butt—he got under that darned old log again and "broke away." I didn't swear very much—but, like the fellow who tumbled out of his boat while shooting ducks in October, I thought a "tarnation lot." Well, well, I've got my brand on that old fellow up there, and I claim him as my individual property for this summer.

The trout laws of this State open on May 1st and close November 1st. The best fishing in Green River is in July and August.

There is a small land-locked lake about fifty miles from this city—has neither inlet or outlet—that is literally packed with trout. I first heard of it through an ardent angling friend of mine, who fished it last May. To use his own words:

"It is, without exception, the prettiest bit of water I ever fished. It's only about three miles around its shores and about a quarter across. The shores slope gently to deep water, so that you can wade fully fifty or sixty feet from its banks on a hard, gravelly bottom. When I made my first cast the water fairly boiled in the efforts of the fish to get the flies. I landed two fish. Put on three flies and landed three; put on four and five, and on each fly I killed my fish. The trout were very game, and one very noticeable thing about it was, they were all of one size, about eleven inches. I caught 160 pounds in three days."

Up at Lake Crescent, near the north end of the Olympic range of mountains, is another fine spot. The trout are large and vicious, and test the tackle to its utmost.

Last fall witnessed one of the greatest salmon runs ever known here. They were the hump-back species, would not take spoon, bait or fly, and were caught either in nets, with spear, or in the naked hands. I alone caught thirty-five one evening by simply putting my hands in the water and catching them through the gills. I saw them frequently leap into row boats that were being rowed about. They were caught in myriads, and sold on our streets at one cent each. The fish would weigh from six to ten pounds.

One day I went up the Puyallup River, near here, to fish for trout. I used the roe of salmon for bait, and fished on the sandy bottom of the stream. My pipe was in active operation as I sat listlessly on the bank in deep reverie, from which I was awakened by the hum of my reel, and, before I knew it, most of my line had disappeared, going up stream. The fish turned, and, with the force of the current and his own efforts, he came down like lightning, and I started on a mad race down the sand bar to check him, and at the same time save my line from being snapped. Up again he turned, and then down he came. Four times was this operation gone through, and I was blowing like a porpoise, and about as nearly played out as my fish. I finally got him into my net, and found it to be an old hump-back salmon. My hooks had fastened themselves between his pectoral fins as he was rooting in the sand. Eight or nine different times did this occur that day, and all in the same way. None of them took the bait, but the fish were so plentiful in the muddy water that it seemed utterly impossible to make a cast without hooking one. I had lots of fun, but did not care for the fish, as they are useless for the table after being in fresh water for a while.

The silver salmon followed the hump-backs in their spawning season, but the run was light, and I did not bag over thirty during the run.

Most of this winter we have had good sport with the tyee or winter salmon. They would take a fresh herring readily, but would not look at a spoon. They are savage fighters, of good weight, and afford splendid sport. The season closed the first of this month, and will not open till June 1st.

My next amusement will be black bass and sole fishing, with a change to crab netting, till the trout season opens.

We have had several parties arrested lately for having trout in their possession. The trials are going on now, and we hope to be able to convict a few of these violators and put a stop to illegal fishing.

Origin of Fish-Catching Dogs.

If I only had a pen large enough and strong enough; a brassy pen with steel springs and reinforced parts all around so that it could be made to stand the strain, I would pen my truthful impressions of "the trout that got away," but alas! I am a modest man and on this account the public have long and often been deprived of learning of many of my truly wonderful experiences. I regret this very much, for I am a philanthropic man, of kindly feelings and generous impulses.

I have been known to sit for hours and lavish upon my friends a wealth of information from my large and varied store of experiences, comprising many thrilling events. I don't mind it, and I am sure that it is of great benefit to them.

I am sure that in any event it enables them to cultivate the very essential qualities of patience and forbearance. Some day I shall be numbered with the great men, philanthropists, philosophers and liars of the past, and I am constrained to give the public of my wisdom and truthfulness while yet I may.

There has been an attempt on the part of some would-be-considered authorities to impose upon the unsuspecting anglers of the country. One of these pretenders has sought to curry favor by telling about a tame trout, one that had become thoroughly domesticated and cultured in the devices of the human race, but alas! it is said that it went on a memorable occasion with its master on an angling expedition and in a moment of absent-mindedness it strayed too near the purling pool and falling into the stream from the treacherous bank was drowned!

Another philosopher with, I must say, some considerable force and logic reasons, that as in the beginning the waters covered the face of the earth that all life was adapted to the wave, and that as the land arose out of the water the fishes became desirous of exploring the land and did so and that the true ancestors of all land animals, man included, sprang from the fishes. This wise man records the fact that this process is still going on and records an illustration as coming under his personal observation.

The trout of which he speaks lived in a quiet lake down back of the barn. The sunshine of the morning glancing on the bosom of the placid home of this wonderful link in the Darwinian chain gave no evidence of the truly startling development which it contained. The first evidence of greatness evinced by this wonder was that of devouring all of the other fishes in the lake, then he attacked the fruit trees which grew on the banks of the stream and as soon as he got a taste of the apples his eyes and ears were opened and he reveled in the delights of wisdom. His Paradise enlarged and, literally speaking, hs fell upwards. He was no longer satisfied with laving in the shimmering lake, a desire for knowledge consumed his vanity and he gamboled upon the green about the lake, consulting, arguing and absorbing wisdom from every one whom he met. As the picking became short in the fall he waltzed up the path to the barn whisking the dust with many a swirl with his tail. Here he lived on hay during the winter, barked like a dog, crowed like a cock and in every way adapted himself to this new environments.

It was a lovely morning when I set out for a favorite trout resort. At my first cast I drew in a fine large trout—a very large trout—I landed him after much exertion. I threw this catch back on the grass and angled away for several hours, landing many more fine fellows. On turning about to gather into my basket the many trout I had landed I was much surprised to find, curled up in the grass a beautiful little puppy! Its soft, brown, silken hair feeling warm and oily to the touch, but my large trout had gone! It had turned into a puppy. This puppy is my fish catcher now. He dives into the water and invariable returns with a fine trout in his mouth. On first returning from the water this dog flops about, imitating the motions of a trout. He is the sire of all the fish-catching dogs of this country. Puppies of this breed for sale. Pedigrees furnished.

Notes From Marin County.

A great many trout have been caught in Olima Creek lately. One young man, a resident, caught 140 in a day; a party of boys caught 120, etc. The Country Club members believe in moderation; they catch or shoot a reasonable amount and cry quits. It is the greed of the American sportsman which has exterminated the buffalo and the elk; is fast killing off all the deer, and which will tender preserves a necessity.

Some greedy elves,
Pot-hunters vile,
Appear to grieve
If forced a single bird to leave.
Such men avoid, and be your pride
With those who soon are satisfied.

The country is never more beautiful than in April (from Aperio, to open). Do not all the buds open then and smile into bright blossoms for the delectation of the honey-laden bee? Sunshine and clouds are chasing each other; the coquetry of the skies. Bright, warm rains moisten all the earth and start into life every green thing. Hope is a wing on the air in the spring. Come from the cities, all you weary ones. Here shall you live in peace; here shall your joys increase; here shall your cares all cease, when you see the grain fields in the spring.

The Los Angeles Show.

[Special Report.]

The Fourth Annual Bench Show of the Southern California Kennel Club opened at Hazard Pavilion, April 20th, with 178 entries, not quite as many as last year, but much better in quality. Mr. James Mortimer judged all classes to the satisfaction of all, and the club are in hopes to have the gentleman again visit the coast as judge of the shows. Mr. H. M. Wilson, the genial superintendent, was all one could wish in his official capacity, having his men dressed in light coats and hats, being easily distinguished from any of the rest of the crowd; all were steady and sober men. Mr. C. A. Sumner, the gentlemanly secretary, appeared in a new and neat uniform. The committee worked together in the best possible manner, and all deserve great credit. Messrs. Kiefer, Casey, Holbrook and Bright were in constant attendance, doing all they could for the visitors.

Mr. Tony Bright, one of the managing committee and member of the club, who does not own a dog, was one of the hardest workers for the show. None of the "kickers" attended the show, and all was harmony.

Mastiff Dogs, Open Class.—The class was fairly good, six entries in dogs and two in bitches. Draco A., a medium-sized dog, with good head and ears (best in class), fair mask, good body, back and loin, but has a poor tail but carries it very fairly; is a very good mover.

Amado (the winner of second) is fair in skull, but rather of the type of the bloodhound; too much loose skin, good mask, has the best bone of any in the class; has good legs forward, bit bad behind; carries his tail very badly; is a poor mover.

Bishop, winner of third, has a very good skull, good ears; has too much color in head, and is too shallow in chest; rather high in legs, and too amall a dog all through.

Maro A. (13,240) V. H. C. is short in skull, pinched in muzzle, with grey on same; is fair in body, legs and tail.

Wodan, H. C., is fair in head; ears poorly hung, being a long way from a good standard dog.

Richland Commodore is small in skull, light in mask, rather small in bone, fair legs and chest, with tail well carried.

Mastiff Bitches, Open Class—Phyllis, winner of first, fair in size with skull and muzzle too narrow, very good in body, feet and legs, with considerable character.

Lomita Hilda second much too light in skull, weak in head, fair mask, too light all way through.

St. Bernard Dogs—Republican, the winner of first, was shown in good condition and has improved considerable since shown here last year. His skull is good, ears set well but a little large, fair muzzle not square enough, blaze in face should be larger, expression is good, excellent coat and color, good in bone, good feet and legs, except front feet which turn out a trifle, is a good mover.

Grand Chancelor, winner of second, is a promising young dog, and with another year's age ought to make other cracks hustle. He is the largest dog on the Coast, 33½ in. in height, 83 in. from tip of nose to tip of tail, has good depth of skull, a little deficient in stop, shows a good deal of character, has good shoulders and good depth of chest, is too light in bone.

St. Bernard Bitches—Gypsey entered as a St. Bernard bitch but shows no quality, looks like a big yellow mongrel and is a litter, sister to Scott, shown as a Newfoundland, the 3d awarded was more than she deserved.

New Foundland Dogs.—Scott, winner of first entered, is a Newfoundland dog, a litter brother to Gypsey, is a big black dog, showing as much of the St. Bernard as Newfoundland and not much of either, should have been thrown out.

Newfoundland Puppies.—Only two entries, one absent, the other was awarded first; shows a small quality of the breed in head, is a big, black dog, with a very poor coat. If shown with an ordinary class of Newfoundland dogs could not get a C.

Great Dane Dogs or Bitches.—There was three entries, two of which were absent. Rhona A., a small, light bitch, lacking bone and showing but little character, not yet matured, was awarded first.

Deerhound Dogs.—Five entries in both dogs and bitches. Trojan, winner of first, is good in head and neck, good in body, back and loin, too high in hock and too straight in stifles, is a very good mover. Cervus, winner of second, poor in head, good legs, well bent, carries tail nicely, but not near the winner of first, in quality. Was rightly placed.

Deerhound Bitches—Flora, winner of first, has a good head. The lack of coat makes it look flat; has a good skull and muzzle, good body, ribs well sprung with good body, feet and legs; is a very good mover.

Lady of the Lake, has a very fair head and skull, good body and loin, fair feet and legs, but was shown in very poor condition as she was suckling puppies.

Greyhound Dogs—Seven entries. Leo (20,898), winner of first, is very good in head and muzzle, good body, back and loin, too high in hock, a little straight in stifles, with rather poor feet.

Lap, 2d, is too short in head and neck, good depth of ribs, has good body, back and loin, is a little straight in stifles, good feet, and an excellent mover, rightly placed.

Handy, 3d, has fair head, clean, nicely built, with good body, back and loin, stifles fairly well bent, a good, easy mover, but not equal to either first or second in character.

Nemo, V. H. C., is a clean and racy built dog, well ribbed, fair back and loin, good legs and feet, but is rather too small.

Romeo is fair in head, poor in neck, bad in shoulders, good legs, and feet very fair, and not well arched in loin.

Greyhound, Bitches. Open Class.—Pronto, winner of first, is a trifle short in skull and a bit weak in muzzle, good, deep chest, splendid body, back and loin, fair feet and legs.

Silk, second, it a solid black bitch, is too light in skull and muzzle, short in neck but deep in chest: best in body, feet and legs, in class almost equal to winners of first.

Deno third, is fair in head, good length of neck, good body, fair in legs and feet but too high in hock and not well beset in stifles.

Fly V. H. C. is wide in front, short in back ribs, good head and neck fair in feet and legs with good tail well carried.

Fleet, H. C., a very nice little bitch with fair head and neck, weak in pasterns and too high in hock.

Primrose, H. C., good skull but too light in jaw and muzzle, too light in bone for size of body.

Fannie, too short in head, a good muzzle, but lacking bone.

Greyhound Dog Pups.—Charleston, winner of first with good head and muzzle, well ribbed, good body and back, loin well arched, is a trifle high in hock and is a very promising young dog.

Wallace Go By, second, is a clean made with fair head, neck and shoulders, good loin and back shown in good condition.

Slugger, V. H. C., (third, withheld); fair in head and body and was rather fair in quality with but little difference equal well nigh to Hector and Dock.

Greyhound Bitch Puppies.—Lilly Ha Ha, the winner of first, was a nicely built bitch with quality and an easy winner in her class.

Brindle Dutchess, second, with the best head in the lot, good back and loin, good legs, with not the best of feet.

Queen (third) a fair bitch; fair head, good body, ribs well sprung, fair legs and feet.

Valley Queen, V. H. C., we can't see why people will give a dog a name which has before been claimed, but little difference between her and winner third, the balance of entries in this class.

Foxhounds—There were five entries—three dogs and two bitches. Yoick, winner of first, is an English Foxhound. is a very good specimen, is too heavy in skull, and has a sour expression, and is rather long in muzzle.

Warrior, second, is an American hound, and a very good specimen, a very fair head, best in shoulders, legs and feet.

Dixie, V. H. C., is a very fair one, but not equal to Yoicks or Warrior.

Foxhound Bitches—Music, first, has good head and neck, good in body and legs and feet, was but little difference in between her and Patty, the winner of second.

Challenge Pointer Dogs—Kan-Koo, the only entry, was shown too fat, is a very nice dog, has a fair skull, good muzzle, splendid back and loin, well ribbed.

Pointer Dogs—Open Class (over 55 lbs)—Ah Sing, first, has a good head, skull and muzzle, a trifle short in back good loin, with the best of feet and legs, tail carried beautifully, and ought to hold his own anywhere.

Jap, second, is fair head and muzzle, with good body, back and loin, but is out at the elbows and feet, spreading, covering too much ground, is a very good mover.

Hindoo, third, has a fair head, with fair body, tail carried nicely, elbows turned in, good hind legs and feet.

Pointer Bitches (over 50 lbs.)—Only one entry, Amaryllis, first, was the only entry, with a good skull (ears well hung), is pinched in muzzle, has a good body, back and loin, good feet and legs, and has a good tail, well carried.

Pointer Dogs (under 50 lbs.)—Ko Ko, the winner, is too heavy in skull, short in neck, good body, back and loin, a neat and compact dog.

Idstone Bang is good in head, but trifle pinched in muzzle, has fair body, feet and legs, but has piece of tail gone and carries it badly, is a beautiful mover.

Ray F., third, is too broad in skull, with eyes set too far apart, and short in neck, good chest, good body, back and loin, trifle deficient in stop.

Don, V. H. C., has a very fair head and muzzle, good back and loin, elbows turn out, is a very fair mover.

Pointer Bitches (under 50 pounds).—Teppetta, the winner, is a neat, rangy little bitch; has a very good head, with ears well carried; rather light in muzzle; good body, back and loin; good legs, but feet to much on the ground.

Kioto, second, is too thick in skull and short in body; good body, back and loins; is very nicely ribbed; good legs and feet, with tail well carried.

Bessie Jane, third, is a good, fair bitch, with good body, back and loins; was rightly placed.

Fraulien, H. C., but very little difference between her and Bessie Jane.

Gypsey was over weight, and not entered in the right class.

Pointer Dog Puppies.—Spot, the winner, has a good head, ears well carried, with splendid muzzle; fair body; legs good, but too straight in stifles; carries his tail beautifully.

Lemon, second, a very fair head and muzzle, good body; fair legs and feet.

Quail, V. H. C., has the best head in class, but has a bad expression; fair body; good chest; has good fore legs, with hind legs not enough spring.

Pointer Bitch Puppies.—Dressy, has a fair head but a light eye; too light in muzzle, lacking in character not yet developed.

English Setter Dogs, Open Class.—Kash, the winner, is a little thick in skull; ears a trifle high, and of good body; back and loin nicely ribbed; has good legs and feet; shown in fine condition.

Stambol, second, is a very racy, nice built dog, with a good head and muzzle; nicely ribbed, with excellent feet and legs; carries his tail badly, and if shown in good condition, ought to defeat the winner.

Roy T., third, has a fair head, but has not a good expression; to high occiput; good in feet and legs; very fair mover.

Prince Charles, very good head, fair body and loin; a trifle straight in stifles and feet too long; poor mover.

Spot, V. H. C., good skull, but not square enough in muzzle; good shoulders, but inclined to be swaybacked, with front feet inclined to turn out; straight in stifles.

Colonel, H. C., thick in skull, fair chest and shoulders, good back and loin, rather poor in legs and feet, and not a good mover.

Cocker Spaniels (not over 28 lbs. were two entries).—Dan Skater won second, was the best of class, had some of the cocker spaniel type in head, but lacking very much in quality.

Duke was awarded third; looks as if he might be connected with cocker spaniels in some past generation.

Cocker Spaniel Bitches (not over 28 lbs.).—Flirt, winner of first, was the best entry in the entire spaniel class, is much too thick in skull, fair body.

Nellie, very poor specimen, all prizes withheld.

Cocker Spaniel Puppies.—Only one entry and no name, and was not in for competition, another streak of luck.

Retriever Dogs.—Two entries in this class, perhaps either of them would retrieve, but both of them were just curly, black dogs. Nigger received second, Roy third.

Chesapeake Bay Dogs.—But one entry, and was of good head, coat and color, and was a very good specimen of the breed.

Collie Dogs.—This class had four entries and a very good class. Fordhook Bravo, winner, has a good head and skull, ears well carried, good body, has good legs and feet, was badly off in coat.

Perris.—Second, is still a puppy and is also in the puppy class, is a very handsome collie, with an almost typical head, good legs and feet, and an elegant coat, but little difference in winners of first and second.

Laddie, third, is considerable larger than either Bravo or Perris, but has a good head, fair legs and feet.

Shep, V. H. C., all he could expect in this class.

Collie Pups.—Perris, winner of first, was also winner of second in open class described in the same.

Bull Terrier Dogs.—There were but two entries, Spotless Prince and Tiger Prince absent.

Bull Terrier Bitches.—In this class there was two entries and only one bull terrier. Twilight, first, described in bitch puppies. Tip, a specimen of the pit bull terrier receive a C.

Foxterriers, Challenge Class.—Ch. Blemton Volunteer (6958), the only Foxterrier in the challenge class, has a very fair head, pinched in muzzle, a little cheeky, has an excellent body, chest and legs good, all round dog, fit to show in any class, his markings are against him.

Foxterrier Dogs, Open Class.—This class had eight entries with one absent. Blemton Reefer is a dog just received from the East by Mr. J. B. Martin, and was the winner of 1st. He is a very nice dog but was not in first-class condition, needing more flesh, he has a splendid head and neck but is too high in legs.

Blemton Vesuvian (14,290) 2d is a rattling good terrier, shown in fine condition and he himself showing well, not quite long enough in muzzle, good feet and legs. He shows a good deal of character all the way through.

Jack C., has ears too wide at base and too high on head, inclined to be cheeky, has good coat and character.

Foxterrier Bitches.—This class was a good one, having thirteen entries. Winefreda winning 1st, good head and shoulders, too long in body and legs, showing good quality, a very nice terrier.

Foxterrier Bitches, Open Class.—Bonnie Buzz (22,650), winner 2d, good in head and neck, fair body, feet and legs' and a bitch showing a good deal of quality.

Golden Chip (23,852), winner 3d, thick in head, ears not well carried, too stocky in feet.

Bonnie Bess (18,080), V. H. C., plain in head, too long in body, good legs and feet, has considerable quality.

Golden Patch, V. H. C., is a very good bitch, has very good head, is little short in face, thick in jaw, she was shown in very good shape this season, she won 1st in open bitches at Los Angeles, 1891.

Foxterrier Dog Puppies.—This class had seven entries and a very fair class. Randy, the winner, has a fine head, straight in front, ears good but too wide apart, is too long and high for his age.

Hampden Tip has good muzzle, bit heavy over the eyes, ears heavy but nicely carried.

Ready, V. H. C., is medium in size, of good head and muzzle.

Frisco Joker, V. H. C., a very neat and compact little dog, entered in both classes but was sick and carried himself poorly and did not show up as well as he would have otherwise done.

Fox-Terrier Bitch Puppies.—Roxy, the winner, is of good bone, with too much stop; too small for her age, but well matured.

Bonnie Buzz, second, was also in the open class.

Golden Chip, V. H. C., was also in the open class; received third in the same.

Sweep and Rays both received C., and are very fair puppies.

English Setter Bitches—Open Class—Lilly C., the winner, has a grand head, neck and shoulders, is well ribbed, fair legs and feet, has weaned a litter of puppies, and is not in show condition.

Princess Claude II is a little short in skull and muzzle snipey, and not much quality, bad coat, light in bone.

Irish Setter Dogs—Had only two entries. Brace, first, is too heavy in skull, a trifle short in neck, splendid body, back and loin, beautiful coat nicely feathered and a good mover.

Mack B., the other entry, was absent.

Irish Setter Bitches—Nora Mavourneen, the winner, has a grand head and skull, fine muzzle trifle deep, good in body and legs, not as good in form and body as winner of second.

Lady Josie, second, is the equal to winner in legs, feet, coat and color, is good in body and loin, and moves equal to any setter in show, and is a trifle small and loses to the winner in head and size.

Gordon Setters—Dogs—Donald was awarded first, the only entry, was very rough in coat, coarse in head, and rather a poor specimen.

Gordon Setter Bitches—There were but two entries in this class. Lady Clara Jane, the winner, was a very fair bitch with a good head, inclined to be snipey, good body, feet and legs, the best in the class of Gordons.

Gordon Setter Dog or Bitch Puppies—But one entry; all prizes withheld.

Irish Water Spaniels—But one entry, and that a mongrel; all prizes withheld.

Spaniels of all Breeds—This was one of the poorest classes in the show, the judge asking what they were to be judged for. Gip, who won first in Los Angeles in 1891, has a bit of character of spaniel in head, was awarded a C-card; the other two were mongrels.

Spaniels of all Breeds (over 28 lbs.)—Bitches were two entries; both were awarded a C, and were very lucky to get that; also a puppy entry of about the same class received a C.

Bull Terrier Dog or Bitch Puppies.—There were four entries, two were absent. Twilight, winner of first, was in reality the only bull terrier in the entire show and is a splendid specimen with an almost typical head, best of body, feet and legs; is liks a piece of springy steel, was shown in the pink of condition with the exception of not having her ears clipped. The others did not receive a card.

Skye Terriers.—Had but one entry, Jerry, a very fair specimen who had lots of ribbons and attention from the owner, receiving first place.

Airedale Terriers Dogs and Bitches—Had four entries in the class. Red Venus, the winner of first, had the best in size and color, and shows the most terrier character. Badger II, second, was too coarse, with a bad mouth and teeth mostly gone.

Daschund Dogs or Bitches—Waldena first the only entry is a most peculiar marked pup and is yet too young to form much of an opinion about.

Spitz Dogs—Dody was the only entry and was shown in the best of condition, with his beautiful white coat showing nicely inside of his sea-shell shape kennel, attracted a good deal of attention.

Miscellaneous Class—Mustache, a shaggy Russian terrier or setter was awarded first place. Setter.

The Southern California Kennel Clubs gave a great many valuable and handsome special prizes. The manner in which they were placed shows they were not put up for one man to win, but divided in classes—open to all—for competition, and delivered at the closing of the show on Saturday evening, and as far as we can learn gave satisfaction. Among the number were twenty-five silver cups of the most elegant designs and workmanship. Four of them came to San Francisco, Mr. Chas. J. Ahlbon receiving one on his Irish Setter Brace; Mr. W. H. Collins one for his Bull Terrier bitch Twilight; Mr. J. B. Martin two on his Fox Terriers; Mrs. H. W. Vail, of Los Angeles, one with her Deerhound Trojan; S. Tyler, of Pasadena, one with Greyhound dog Pronto; Capt. A. B. Anderson with Foxhound Yoicks; H. M Tonner with Pointer bitch Amaryllis; also one with Pointer dog Ah Sing; Mr. H. T. Payne, Los Angeles, with his English Setter bitch Lilly C.; C. H. Brown, Los Angeles, with his Gordon Setter Donald; J. W. Edwards, of Redlands, with his Gordon Setter bitch Lady Clara Jane, and E. S. Slater with Cocker Spaniel dog Dan Slater one each; Fred S. Cox with his Cocker Spaniel bitch Flirt; R. S. McKnight with his Chesapeake dog Laddie; S. W. Ferguson, Bakersfield. with his Fox Terrier dog puppy Roxy; F. Stokes, Pasadena, with his Fox Terrier dog Hampden Tip one each. H. M. Tonner won cup for best kennel of Pointers; G. W. Gordon won the special of one champagne ice cooler offered for best Greyhound, won by Leo; J. B. Martin won a case of wine with his St. Bernard dog Republican. W. H. Collins a meerschaum pipe with Bull Terrier bitch Twilight. H. E. Green, Los Angeles, silk umbrella with pointer bitch puppy Dressy. H. T. Payne, Los Angeles, one book on Wild-fowl Shooting with Lilly C. J. W. England, of Redlands, won ten dollars on Pointer dog puppy Spot; also a book on "Sports" with his Irish Setter bitch Nora Mavourneen. C. R. Johnson ten dollars for the best Collie puppy with Perris. W. E. Christie, of Los Angeles, one set of silver spoons with Pug bitch Neal.

Many other specials too numerous to mention were distributed to winners at close of show.

Every one visiting the Los Angeles bench show returns sounding, in no uncertain tones, the praises of the management of the show, and that of the kennel contingent, at that point, in general. The hospitality and general courteous treatment accorded the representatives of the press, especially, is a feature that will not soon be forgotten by the knights of the pencil. Sunday subsequent to the closing of the show, a delegation consisting of the officers of the show with Judge Mortimer and the press representatives as guests drove through the beautiful fruit and flower gardens of this veritable Paradise, where the absence of the serpent renders it more fair and lovely than any elsewhere known. Dinner was taken by the party at the San Gabriel hotel, a lovely rural resort where every wealth of fruit and flower lends enchantment to a scene enriched by nature with her choicest gifts and rendered charming by the artistic work of man. A perfect poem, woven of vine and bloom, where birds of song flit beneath the summer azure and fleecy fragments of snow-white clouds coquet with zephers, slow of wing and heavy with the breath of nature's choicest perfumes. Beautiful beyond the power of the imagery of a Byron to describe or the fancy of a Moore to enhance by adornment. It was a handsome testimonial tendered by the management of the show and no doubt but that Judge Mortimer will carry the picture and experience back to the metropolis as one of his most pleasant impressions of the golden shore.

Poison, whether given with intent or otherwise, though presumably the former and administered by some wretched miscreant, carried off the splendid Greyhound bitch "Lotus" and a fine litter of six puppies, thrown to James Watson's, Saturday Night at Oakland last week. The bitch formerly belonged to Major Waugh of this city, he recently having presented her to a friend in Oakland. She was a fine animal tracing back to the celebrated Master McGrau. We trust no effort will be spared in tracing out the culprit and teaching him that such devilish actions cannot go unpunished.

J. B. Martin, of this city, has purchased from Charles Bernheimer, of New York City, the foxterrier bitch Blemton Rapture A. K. C. S. B. No. 6986, by Regent ex Champion Rachel by Champion Result ex Heatherbell. Regent by Rogsterer ex Ransome. Rapture has won First Puppy Class, Syracuse and is blood sister to Rational, the sire of the sensational puppy Vice Regal. Rapture is in whelp to Woodale Rustic.

Mr. J. B. Martin has sold the grand St. Bernard Republican winner of first Los Angeles 1891, San Francisco 1891, Los Angeles, 1892, to Mr. Frekrich K. Rindge, of Los Angeles. The St. Bernard fanciers are very sorry to see him leave San Francisco, but congratulate Mr. Rindge on his purchase.

Edward Lawton, of Los Angeles, informs us that he has arranged a match between G. W. Gordon's greyhound Leo and George Robinson's Romeo, for $50 a side. A full account of the course is promised for publication in these columns.

Mr. George Robinson had his kennel containing Romeo, a greyhound, decorated with a wealth of jack-rabbit ears taken from hare which the dog had caught, and his owner had saved them as trophies of the chase.

Captain C. A. Nelson, the well and favorably known judge of field trial competitions, and an old friend of Judge Mortimer's, was an interested visitor at the Los Angeles show.

The winnings of several dogs entered from this city at the Los Angeles show is quite encouraging to the gentlemen entering them.

JOSEPH CAIRN SIMPSON.

Breeding Trotters.

CULPEPPER, VA., April 12, 1892.

JOSEPH CAIRN SIMPSON, ESQ.—

DEAR SIR: Many thanks for the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN of the 2nd inst., containing your friendly criticism of my letter to a friend in this State, which was published in The Kentucky Stock Farm. It was simply meant to emphasize the value of the blood of the pacer and the Norfolk trotter1 Bellfounder, as elementsin the composition of the modern American institution—the trotting horse.

Without understanding the degree to which my correspondent advocated the use of running blood, you would probably construe my remarks as combating more strongly than I intended its use. My correspondent is a racing purist—a strictly "thoroughbred" trotting horse theorist—combating all recognized trotting blood and advocating the production of the ideal trotter by the use of absolutely thoroughbred animals, ignoring hereditary instinct and relying solely upon presumed latent capacity which he proposes to bring out by training from generation to generation—thus losing, as I conceive, all the benefit of proclivity for the trotting gait achieved at immense expense, and thoughtful experimenting in the fusion of certain blood elements, for the past fifty years, the formation period of the American trotting horse's history, which has so nearly culminated in the establishment of a "breed" capable of reproduction with the reasonable certainty of a defined trotting instinct and other characteristics peculiar to it—just as other longer established breeds or types reproduce themselves. America having a practical monopoly of this product, the fastest trotting horse, I regard it hazardous, especially for men of moderate means to go back to first principles and attempt to build better than those whose success, already assured and established by the records, could in their most sanguine dreams of fifty years ago have hoped for.

I regard the pacer of great value to the trotting horse industry, chiefly as a sort of Mordant (?) to be used in combination where more fresh thoroughbred blood is to be introduced. The pacing and running-bred Pilot Jr., when bred to daughters of Boston and Lexington, produced a Miss Russell and a Midnight. Thus one-quarter of the blood of old pacing Pilot succeeded in bringing it safely into the trotting port, and holding it on the ground after it got there, about three times its amount of running blood, and in so doing assisted largely in making a Maud S., a Nutwood and a Jay-Eye-See possible. I doubt if at that time there existed a trotting horse that could have captured and brought safely into camp so large an infusion of running blood.

The pencil note you refer to was only to show you that I recognized that the same forces were at work in California as in Kentucky and other states farther East. I noted Flaxtail, St. Clair and the descendants (pacing descendants) of A. W. Richmond which I look to for great results when mated with trotting sires in giving an accession of trotting speed (did not mean to refer to A. W. Richmond as pacing-bred, but as a sire of lightning pacers).

Gov. Stanford is keeping up the most valuable "experiment station" ever established on earth for the benefit of the trotting horse breeders of America. I think the full value of running infusions in giving "staying powers" will be more apparent generations after its successful infusion than at first hands, as the trotting gait becomes second nature, there will be less effort and less friction, even though the same per cent of running blood is carried.

I observed in the copy of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN sent me a most interesting table of California's great broodmares. Is not Susie, 2:26½, by Geo. M. Patchen 31, dam of Suisun, 2:18¼ and Susetta, 3:32½, one of California's great broodmares? In that table Young Martha, by Geo. M. Patchen 31, is given credit for her two trotters in the list, but not for being the dam of the sire of 2:23 at three years, and of the dam of Faustino, 2:24½ at two years. If I am correct, these add to California's laurels.

I am greatly pleased to note the success of Anteeo in the stud; it was with him in my eye that I added the unfortunately expressed reference to A. W. Richmond's descendants.

I observe that Jas. Madison, 2:17¾, is claimed to be his best son, and Hailstone, the first son of Anteeo Jr. and first great grand son of Electioneer, to enter the 2:30 list are respectively out of Lucy Patchen and Star, both daughters of Geo. M. Patchen 31.

The relationship through our horses, though only collateral) (through San Purdy and Anteeo and their descendantsshould keep us from fighting over breeding theories.

Yours sincerely, FOXHALL A. DAINGERFIELD.

This very welcome letter from Captain Daingerfield may not have been written with the intention of having it published, but as it will be read with great interest by those who are pondering over the problem of the methods most likely to result successfully when fast and enduring trotters are the aim, I take the liberty of copying. Let me add, and also the highest class of light harness horses, when beauty of form, symmetry of proportion, intellectual ability, courage, docility, real worth from every point of view are taken into consideration. Those who have not been completely carried away by the infatuation for "fast records," made under the most favorble conditions, and whose judgment has not been subverted by the craze of the present, cannot fail to see that as soon as that particular delusion has run its course, different standards will prevail. The highest classification will be awarded to those which combine trotting speed shown by capacity to win races, and the other qualities mentioned.

"Record-breakers" will, of course, always attract attention, but trial-horses, although dignified by a higher name, which are just fast enough to confer standard rank, will be marked down, and the "lists" of stallions which, in a majority of cases, have an asterisk before the names, will not be so favorably considered as to obscure the merit of horses which, with a lesser number to their credit, have stood the crucial test in the alembic of the race-course. Records and additions to the lists have been an overwhelming desire with a majority of breeders and owners of stallions until a 2:30 or better trial has lost its significance, and under the pressure of anxiety to obtain these coveted honors, a multitude of semi-trotters have been forced into prominence, while others, in reality far more valuable, will not half repay the cost of production. What with early training, fast tracks and "tin-cup" privileges, there has been such an avalanche of trotters, that people are bewildered. The Year Book of 1890 was something of a study; that for 1891 throws it so far in the shade, in the way of "purses against time" and "prize cups," that the only safe conclusion to arrive at is, that unless the delirium soon comes to an end, there will be little else but that kind of trotting in vogue. The last meeting at Independence, Iowa, from October 19th to November 10th, including these dates, 396 fifteen-dollar purses against time were trotted and paced, and at Stockton, on the only record meeting on the kite-track, about 200 of the same class were decided. Independence had all of the contiguous States to draw upon; Stockton had to depend upon California alone, so that in the laudable desire to take "the lead and keep it," we can claim precedence on this as well as in all of the other trotting disputes.

This, however, has little to do with the subject matter embraced in Captain Daingerfield's communication, and yet it has a bearing. From my point of view, in which I feel a great deal of confidence, the future will sustain, the "running purist—a strictly thoroughbred trotting-horse theorist" would have a better chance to make money by breeding in accordance with his ideas than will follow a strict adherence to trotting lines, the same amount of capital employed, and the like judgment and skill displayed. I do not assert that he would show as much trotting speed, for, perhaps, a few generations, and it might be that several generations would be necessary to afford the opportunity for selection ere a high class of speed was obtained. Neither will I prophesy that the first result would be failure in that respect, but I do emphatically contend that the venture would be remunerative and give some of my readers for arriving at that conclusion. Mares and stallions would, in the first place, require a smaller outlay. Suppose that twenty mares and one stallion were the number selected. Outside of the most fashionable families these could be bought for a good deal less than one trotting stallion which possessed the qualities which would be likely to prove successful in the stud. Form, color, size and the best natural trotting action should be the first points to govern the selection, and with these seeured there would be a good foundation laid. The first quality named, form, should be the corner-stone of the edifice. There are horses which show "good points" without being symmetrical. Many of the very best which are not "handsome horses," but in making selections for an experiment of this kind close attention should be given to beauty. Dark bays, shades of brown, which are not likely to become dingy, would be preferable, as these are always in fashion, and though dark chestnut is one of the very handsomest tints for a finely-formed horse, there is danger of shading off into a sort of mixture which is not so desirable.

There are many very beautiful shades of chestnut, and also a variety of bays and browns which will elicit admiration, but the lighter shades of either, especialty the yellow bays, will mar even high form. Solid colors are the safest, though a well-placed star adds greatly to beauty of features. Size is important. Not "overly large," say from 15½ hands to sixteen hands in the mares, the stallion an even sixteen, or so close to that standard that one inch below, or half an inch above, would be the limits. Assuming that the choice of mares and stallions has been guided by knowledge, and that the selections are reasonably good, no one will deny that the progeny should be superior in point of good loods to those which are descended from a mixed ancestry. That the highest type of equine beauty is represented by the thoroughbred is so universally acknowledged that it will be a waste of time to argue that phase of the question; that the specific for of the thoroughbred is also the best adapted for a fast pace, and continued violent exertion cannot be controverted and that the breed excels all others in nerve force, the quality which incites men and animals to perform great deeds to struggle and contend against physical exhaustion, is so generally conceded that it may be accepted as proven.

I am free to acknowledge that to breed trotters—fast trotters—from sires and dams of the above-advertised type is an experiment and also there are greater risks than when sires and dams have shown the qualities which are sought for in the offspring. All phases of horse-breeding are more or less experimental, none so much so as the perpetuation of a high rate of speed. But that the chances of obtaining valuable offspring from thoroughbred sires and dams which had been especially selected to breed elegant, handsome, useful, saleable horses from would be reduced to a minimum, more than good, and that the fouudation would be laid for a grand race of fast and enduring trotters, and while theoretical now, there are logical reasons for the belief.

In this paper, however, my aim will be to show that a man who has capital sufficient to warrant undertaking the experiment can do so with little risk of "losing money" and in place of the sheriff being the legitimate sequence to the venture, as so many predict, he could embark in it with well-founded hopes of pecuniary success. With capital to warrant a trial on the scale of one stallion and twenty mares, and the necessary adjuncts required, sixteen foals could be expected, equally divided between the sexes. The "Palo Alto methods" should be the system adopted and the kindergarten with its soft foot-bed, the primmer from which the first lessons are taken. These lessons should be presented by capable teachers and as much attention given as in any of the future courses. Weanlings form the class at first, but there should be no hurry to take the pupils out of it even after a portion of the exercises are "in harness;" by far the most economical way of teaching young trotters, though that and leading by the side of a saddle horse can be joined with profit. Males which exhibit decidedly good action, and manifest adaptability to acquire the fast-trotting step should be retained entire, but all but the very best the surgeon should operate upon.

Really good geldings now-a-days are rarely found, and there are thousands of highly-bred trotting stallions which would be worth more money if the ecrasseur had been employed and there would be a good market for those which did not promise to make fast trotters. Now that racing has become so prominent a feature that there is not a day in the year when a race meeting is not in progress in some section of the United States, for a greater part of the season several of them at the same time, and the yearlings which did not give hopes of trotting fast enough to repay training could be disposed of a price which would leave a good margin after the cost of production had been paid. A very good estimate can be made after the kindergarten exercises extending from weaning time until the close of the next season, and both colts and fillies which were below the mark could be marketed. The colts in this division need not be emasculoted, and with eight colts as the starter, I will suppose that five of them are below the guage, and labeled for sale at yearlings; two of them are of fair promise, these are operated upon; one of decided merit retained entire. Adopting the same ratio for the fillies, and from the first crop ten yearlings are in the sale list, six left to train for trotters when two years old, and thus in the third year from the commencement of breeding, there would be six two-year-olds and six yearlings in full harness work, with the same yearly additions as the years progressed. There would be plenty of buyers for the fillies which showed trotting proclivities, and by the time the geldings were four years old, their chances to bring renumerative prices would be very good. It is manifestly beyond the scope of a single article to explain fully the minutia of the plan proposed, and there are objections from a mere money-making view-point. The breeding of race horses is, at the present day, the best paying investment which horse-breeders can engage in, provided the breeder has capital enough to secure the right kind of mares, and the proper stallion to cross with them, and unless the man who proposed to utilize the progeny of such mares and stallions for fast trotters had a world of enthusiasm, a big world of determination and no end of persistency, it is not likely that he would carry his project to a successful issue. But there is one argument which Captain Daingerfield presents, and which has been a favorite contention with others who denounce near crosses of thoroughbred, which loses a good deal of force when all the evidence is fairly weighed. That is "going back to first principles." The correspondent referred to does not intend to go back to first principles further than the use of sires of kindred blood to those which founded all of the noted trotting families. In place of accepting scrub blood to mingle with the pure, all should be pure. In place of the said-to-be daughter of Messenger which coupled with the thoroughbred Mambrino resulted in Abdallah., he would use a thoroughbred daughter of Messenger. He would eliminate the bad, retain the good. Not long ago a statement went the rounds of the press that the trotter was evolved from a mixture of "thoroughbred, scrub and pacing blood," and if the scrub had as potent an effect in the composition, as very many argue, the scrub should be retained. Captain Daingerfield's correspondent takes the position that scrub blood is not good, and that racing blood would be better, and on that point, he and I will be in accord.

"The pacing and running-bred Pilot Jr., a square trotter, is the only son of the French-Canadian horse, which has gained any distinction, and therefore it is a just inference that the running side of the house is entitled to a full share of credit. I heartily concur with Captain Daingerfield that pacing blood has mixed kindly with other strains in the composition of fast trotters, but do not consider that its greatest influence is exerted to hold racing blood in subjection.

All the celebrated families of pacers trace paternally to thoroughbreds or with close relationship on the maternal side to the blood horse. The tumult which was raised over the admission of pacers to standard rank can only be explained by ascribing it to a false estimate of the value of the standard, and that printing pacers and trotters on the same page of the Register and Year Book dethroned the diagonal division, and in place of being both Mikado and Tycoon in one left him a divided empire. I would have been better pleased if the enmity to the pacer had been carried far enough to banish him from the territory which his more illustrious relative reigned over and given him a country of his own, a book by himself, and then when information was sought both pages could be viewed without turning leaves backward and forward, forward and back in pursuit of knowledge. But this can be overcome by obtaining duplicate volumes so that it is only a matter of a few dollars additional outlay.

The supporters of the reigning dynasty must have been fearfully frightened judging by the clamor they raised. Never were tom-toms and gongs beaten so vigorously, never more frantic shouts. Ordinary type could not express their feelings and a flood of capitals and italics overran the pages. Even after all their grand preparations made for a campaign they were surprised at the victory gained, without a single gun shot in response. Too bad that so much valor was wasted, and that the parade and panoply of "glorious war" only resulted in a conquest which wss barren of horns, unless the satisfaction of beating drums and blowing bugles is accounted an honor.

There can be no controversy over the value of Palo Alto as an experimental station in relation to breeding and educating fast trotters, and the great benefits which have resulted will be more clearly understood and more generally acknowledged when the practices and methods have been more closely studied and comparisons fairly made. I was greatly in hopes that experiments would cover a still greater area and that the scope would be enlarged. It has been heralded all over the trotting world that Governor Stanford had selected a thoroughbred yearling to put in the trotting school, and should that one fail to trot fast, very fast, the claim will be made that thoroughbreds cannot trot fast under the most favorable conditions. In a conversation with Governor Stanford I called his attention to the propriety of employing the same means of making selections as prevailed in the trotting department and give all of the thoroughbred yearlings a trial. He answered that he preferred the Cheviot filly from Fairy Rose to the one chosen, but it was hardly fair to the superintendent of that department to take a half sister of Racine and Fairy from the "legitimate" ranks.

A few days ago I spoke to Mr. Walsh rehearsing what Gov. Stanford had said. His answer was "The filly I selected for him can out-trot Charm, the Fairy Rose filly," but he afterwards said that he told the boy who rode Charm that if he trotted her when the Governor was present he would beat him to death. No one can blame Mr. Walsh for opposing what he considers the degradation of one of his pets, and when I told him partly in joke that I was not going to abstain from soliciting that a miniature track should be established on the Matadera part of the rancho, his look was sufficient explanation of his feelings on the subject. Much as I would rejoice witnessing the outcome of such experiments as could be instituted in the thoroughbred department of Palo Alto, were they likely to interfere with a continuation of the success which has followed Mr. Walsh's superintendency, and the still greater which I feel confident the future will show, not a line would be written or words spoken to change the existing order of affairs. If that one selection should prove a fast trotter, however, it will be indisputable evidence that it is not necessary to pick the best of the whole class, and that less than an average will do.

VANCOUVER, Wash., April 19, 1892.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN,

DEAR SIR: We are about to commence the construction of a race track at this place. We have been discussing among ourselves the question of throwing up the turns. The bone of contention is whether the whole turn should bear a uniform pitch, or whether the pitch should be gradual, commencing at the entrance to the curve and increasing until the maximum pitch of say an inch and a tenth to a foot is reached at the middle of the curve. If I rember right, in an editorial of some week's since you favored the gradual increase idea. Will you kindly help us by reproducing that article with such other thoughts as might suggest themselves to you, or if that is not practical please send us a copy of the paper containing it.

Very truly, FRED W. BIER,
President Vancouver Driving Park Association.

Some years ago I visited Mr. J. H. White's ranch at Lakeville. He had just finished building a training track on his farm, and that was laid out on the plan of semi-ellipse for each town, and it was the first track I saw; in fact, the first time I heard the principle advanced. It may have been that Mr. Bier saw the description published at the time, or read something embodying a like plan. That it is an improvement on a semi-circle seems so reasonable, that few proofs are required. The gradual increasing curve of the ellipse, the shortest radii being at the center of the turns is advantageous in two ways. The "pitch," i. e. the angle from inside to outside rising gradually, there is less abruptness from the nearly level of the stretches, and the centrifugal force is overcome without violent transitions, and without extending the grade beyond the limits of the curvature. With a curve of equal radius, the higher outside has to be extended for quite a distance on the stretches, in a half-ellipse the level can be kept very nearly to where tangent and curve join. The horse is certainly enabled to negotiate the turn more easily when there is a gradual shortening of the curvature, and the only objection that can be urged, is that it will increase the length of the line from center to center of curves, and, consequently require a larger area, the stretches, of course, being the "regulation" length. Mr. White is a civil engineer of long experience, and his endorsement stamps the innovation with the seal of merit.

TURF AND TRACK.

Robert Steel has sold his farm near Philadelphia for $1,000 an acre.

It is often disadvantageous to get "married" to a horse, however promising.

Remember the entries for the Napa Agricultural Fair close on Monday next.

2,781 heats in 2:30 or better have been won by the produce of the sons of George Wilkes.

The New Orleans race track has been leased for two years by Charles Burch "and associates."

The American Trotting Register Association has assets over liabilities amounting to $34,287.04.

Direct, 2:06, and James Madison, 2:17¾, are, respectively, the fastest little and big horse on any stock farm.

Bernardo, everything considered, is the champion of the race meeting now in progress at Bay District track.

Marcus Daly's disappointing and unfortunate colt, Montana, has been declared out of the Brooklyn handicap.

Major P. P. Johnston, President of the National Trotting Association, has lost five of his broodmares from lung fever.

A glance at the announcement of fifty prominent trotting meetings in 1892 shows that the stake and purse total foots up $880,000.

Remember the closing-out sale of Whitney's fine brood mares and fillies will take place May 17th at Killip & Co.'s salesyard.

Kate Agnew, 2:28, died February 20th, and the owner in California never heard of it for sixty days; surely bad news travels slowly.

The horsemen are very busy at Stockton. The regulation track will soon be placed in as fine a condition as the kite track was last year.

Bessemer, 2:23½, Fred Arthur, 2:13¾, and Direct, 2:06, are about the same size. It seems that size cuts no figure with the fastest performers.

The entries for the St. Louis Fair close Monday. Horsemen, who contemplate making a journey eastward, will do well to heed this notice.

The report that was circulated in some of the daily newspapers that W. S. Hobart was dying, is, we are pleased to state, without foundation.

The three two-year-old stars of last year, Arion, 2:10¾, Monbars, 2:16½, and Ralph Wilkes, 2:18, are not in the Hartford $10,000 Futurity Stake.

Arrangements have been completed whereby C. J. Hamlin will drive three horses abreast at the Cumberland Park meeting in Nashville next fall.

William Sargent, the trainer who brought out the famous St. Julian, 2:11½, will campaign the Jamestown horse, Lakewood Prince, 2:16½, this year.

At the combination sale to be held on the 17th of May D. J. Murphy, of the Moorland Stock Farm, will sell some very well-bred stallions and mares.

F. C. Holmes & Sons, of Ashland, Or., last week shipped their trotting horses to Yreka, Cal., for development purposes during the next few months.

The pacing mare Nightingale, 2:13¾, by Alcantara, has foaled a filly by Allerton, 2.09½, that has a speed inheritance faster than that of any filly living.

The trotting standard is now exactly as it was before the pacer was admitted last year. The pacing standard practically is based upon a performance of 2:25.

Charles Reed, of Fairview Farm, has lost at least $40,000 from mares slipping their colts. Forty-seven mares due this spring met with this unfortunate accident.

Messrs. Williams & Morehouse moved their stable of trotters to the San Jose track lately. This race course is almost as lively at present as the one at Pleasanton.

Revolver is a great horse in the homestretch, and if he is within hailing distance of the leader when he strikes that spot Holly is sure to get some of the money.

The way the Sir Modred–Columbine filly walked down the homestretch to victory on the 22d inst. stamps her as a regular "phenom." Narvaez, the favorite was never in the hunt.

At Cloverdell Farm, Mary Marshall, 2:12¾, dropped a chestnut foal by Allerton, 2:09½. The average inherited speed of this youngster is 2:11. Mr. Moore has been offered $10,000 for it.

The subject of having good roads is now agitating the people in the Eastern States. It is hoped that the epidemic in discussion will spread to this coast, and that some good may result therefrom.

J. A. McKerron is filling orders for the bit that he advertises as the Perfection Bit, it seems to be endorsed by all trainers and drivers. John A. Goldsmith considers it the best one he has ever used.

It has been arranged that Delmarch, 2:11½, and Nelson, 2:10, will meet in a race at Bloomington, Ill., next September, providing Nelson is not barred from trotting on the American Association tracks before that time.

The sheds and stables at the Salinas track are rapidly approaching completion. The carpenters have been kept pretty busy, and when horsemen attend the races they will be agreeably surprised at the many improvements there.

J. W. Martin informs us that Clay Duke, 2:29, is the youngest producing sire in California, excepting Sable Wilkes. Clay Duke was foaled in 1883, and his son, Del Rey, trotted inside the 2:30 list in 1891, getting a record of 2:29.

The race for the City and Suburban handicap, at the Epsom (England) spring meeting, was won by Buccaneer. Trapezoid was second and Catarina third. There were twenty-two starters.

Balkan, 2:15, never looked better, and will be seen on the circuit this fall in good company. A. L. Hinds has his smooth coat shining like satin, while his feet and limbs are as clean as a thoroughbred's.

Mattie H., 2:23, now owned by G. M. Alexander, of Chicago, will probably be in George Starr's stable this season. Her owner writes that she is in fine condition and will make a great mare this year.

The New York Tribune says Tenny may never run again. "Snip" Donovan looks at Tenny with sadness when he works on the track. The famous "swayback" is willing, but his dickey legs are against him.

W. H. Wilson, of Abdallah Park Farm, Cynthiana, Ky., has sold the noted pacer Budd Doble, 2:13½, to N. W. Hubinger, of New Haven. Budd Doble was sired by Indianapolis, dam Kate by Stocking Chief.

General Owen Williams has withdrawn his English Jockey Club motion to change the date of the age of racehorses, and offered one to prevent the racing of two-year-olds at one mile before October 12th.

Doble has a yearling pacer in his string that can go about as fast as anything of his age yet brought out. As usual with fast pacers, he is strictly trotting-bred, being by Jersey Wilkes, son of George Wilkes, dam by Electioneer.

Father Ladd, of Beatrice, Neb., who owns the good stallion Lobasco, 2:16½, by Egmont, says he is willing to wager $1,000 that Lobasco will this season take a record within two seconds of the present stallion record, 2:08¾.

No mare with a record better than 2:20 can make a better showing as a broodmare than Lucille Golddust, 2:16½, as she is the dam of Sprague Golddust, 2:16½, and Lucille's Baby, 2:20½, and both of her foals carry race records.

The Board of Directors of Agricultural Association No. 23 held a meeting last Saturday afternoon and elected the following officers for the ensuing term: President, P. L. Nash; Secretary, G. W. McConnell; Treasurer, E. B. Montgomery.

Last Monday night at Dennington, New Jersey, a fire destroyed $125,000 worth of property, belonging to Edward T. Wells. A number of valuable Jersey cows and high-priced horses were burned, including Prince Allen, a $20,000 stallion.

DuBois Bros., Denver, Col., have leased the racing qualities of the chestnut mare Red Bird, 2:25½, from Camp Bros., of Greeley, and will probably send her to represent their stable in the $10,000 stake at Detroit, and also at other places on the Grand Circuit.

Munster, the gigantic four-year-old by Darebin, out of Mariposa, by Monarchist, has broken down, we are sorry to say. His owner, Charles Kerr, of Bakersfield, tells us that Munster was a truly good race horse, and he expected him to make his mark this season.

Jockey James Goater, once one of England's greatest horse pilots, died at his Newmarket, England, residence early this month. He was fifty-five years of age. He left two sons-in-law, James Woodburn and Fred Barrett, both successful jockeys of the present day.

Henry Walsh, superintendent of Palo Alto's thoroughbred department, has refused $10,000 for Cadmus, the crack brown two-year-old colt by Flood out of imported Cornelia. Charles Fair offered this sum after the youngster had won in phenomenal time last Saturday.

One of the largest colts of the year was foaled at the Asylum Farm last Sunday, he is by Silver Bow 2:22½ out of a mare by the Grand Moor. He measured forty-four inches at the shoulder, is as straight as a drum major, and at three days old was trotting like an old campaigner.

Builder Thompson, of Yonkers, N. Y., firmly believes that his stallion Brown Richmond, four, 2.34½, by Monroe Chief, 2:18¼, dam by A. W. Richmond, will trot low down in the twenties this year. He is in training and C. Devine, of White Plains, N. Y., is handling him.

T. H. Griffin, the horse trainer that was handling Redwood, 2:21¾, is now located at Agricultural Park, Los Angeles. He has a string of twenty-four horses including three McKinney colts in training. Mr. Griffin expects to have a number of "surprises" for the boys on the circuit this fall.

The colt Joe Ellis would make a first-class trick horse for some circus in need of a sensational feature. In one race he kicked that good mare Ida Glenn severely, while last Saturday he got in his heels on Echo in a way that was far from agreeable to either the colt or his owner. A bad kicker is the ignoblest work of the devil.

Geraldine was herself again last Saturday, walking away as she did, from a fine field of nine horses in the best time ever made in California in a eleven-sixteenths of a mile dash—1:07¼. The queen of the sprinters ran the final five furlongs in 1:00 flat. Who said the old daughter of Grinstead and Cousin Peggy had seen her best days?

Vic H., 2:13½, has been shipped to Jamesville, Wis., in charge of Andy Somers, formerly trainer for her owner, D. M. Reavis, and will be turned over to George Starr, upon his arrival in the East with the Salisbury string. The brown daughter of Blackbird is looking uncommonly fine and will more than hold her own again this season.

This is the advice of an old breeder: If a mare slips her colt she should not be bred till fall, provided the colt that was slipped was from a service in the spring, but if it was from a service in the fall she should be bred in the spring. He says he has tried this several times and never had any more slips from the mares thus experimented on.

Royal Flush is a "corker" when on edge, as his defeat of Zaldivar, Ulster and other good ones shows. The Owen Bros. are reported to have made a killing on their horses' victory. Royal Flush went out with the lead, was never headed, and won with ease by three lengths. The colt had been a little sore, but was just right Friday.

Prof. Wilkins, of Vienna, finds in horse-breeding, when the parents are different in color, that of the mother most often results in the colt. Bay is the most frequent color, black the scarcest. There are only about 190 black mares per 1,000. The Arab is generally white, and 729 times out of 1,000, if the mare is white and the stallion is not, the colt will be.

Michael F. Dwyer is said to favor the meeting of the mighty Kingston in a race at a mile against the speedy La Tosca over a straight course, and believes that the winner would reduce Salvator's famous record of 1:35½. That these two equine giants would run a grand race none will gainsay, but it is most likely that Salvator's mile record will stand for some years to come.

Robert Bonner passed through Pittsburg on his way to the Franklin stock farm, where Sunol is quartered. During a conversation Mr. Bonner expressed his conviction that Sunol would lower her record of 2:08½. He says she will be given an opportunity to do so this season. He believes she can do more toward reaching the dreamed-of two-minutes record than any other living horse.

Phil Dwyer has sold to W. C. Daly the chestnut four-year-old stallion Bolero, by Rayon d'Or, dam All Hands Around. Bolero was purchased by Dwyer at the Scott sale and cost him $35,000. "Father Bill" got the colt for $2,000. The colt was a great two-year-old, a disappointing three-year-old, and the result is that Phil Dwyer has resolved to rid himself of the "hoodoo."

A. D. Merrill, Tilsonburg, Ont., has sold the chestnut horse Alvin, 2:14½, by Orpheus, dam Nancy, by Toronto Chief, Jr., to Capt. Jas. Miller and A. A. Parker, Detroit, Mich. Alvin is the fastest horse ever bred in Canada and has been a successful race horse for two seasons past. He will be campaigned again this year and will either go down the Grand Circuit or the Western Plain.

It is worthy of comment at this particular season that the Suburban or Brooklyn Handicap has never been won by a mare. The Kentucky Derby, for colts and fillies three years of age, instituted in 1875, and run in the month of May, has never been captured by a filly, and the American Derby, run at Chicago in the latter part of June, instituted in 1882, has been won only once by a filly—Modesty.

Gentleness, docility, speed are like precious pearls. As long as the pearl is in the shell at the bottom of the sea the pearl is of no use to mankind and can excite no attention. If brought to the surface and the sun shines on it, it will attract all eyes. The qualities in the steed must be developed, brought to the surface and made to shine, and the value of their possessor is enhanced beyond all measure.

J. M. Thornton, the well-known Eminence, Ky., turfman, who raced the old selling plater Bob Forsythe so successfully last season, has decided to claim the colors of the late D. D. Withers, and this year his horses will run in the all black. His principal reason for assuming these colors is on account of the failure of his eyes, which makes it difficult for him to figure out lighter shades at any distance to speak of.

Ed. Geers is the latest advocate of a pneumatic tire for a sulky. He has a pneumatic-tired Columbia bicycle, and claims it will be equally beneficial when attached to a sulky. He will soon experiment on a pneumatic-tired sulky, but the admirers of Direct need not think it is a scheme to beat the California wonder, for judging from Hal Pointer's appearance this spring he will need no unfair advantage over the champion.

Out of twelve starts the Cheviots won in the first two weeks of racing nine races, have been second in one that they did not win, three times third and only unplaced once—a marvelous showing for the Australian horse, truly. Cheviot is at Charles Reed's Fairview Farm, Gallatin, Tenn., but two of his brothers, Sir Modred and Idalium, are now in California, the former at Rancho del Paso, the latter at Agricultural Park, Sacramento.

The indications are that there will be a great boom in the Wilkes Boys this year. George Starr will have the stallion Grattan, 2:18½, in his stable. W. H. Crawford will send Angelina, four-year-old record 2:18½, to Orrin Hickok and Johnnie Dickerson will have Sternberg, 2:26, the biggest winning two-year-old of 1890. Angelina was sick during the greater part of last year and with half a chance she will reduce her record materially this year.

A meeting of trotting-horse drivers was held in Lexington Monday night, at which the initial steps were taken for the formation of a National Drivers' Association that will be protective in its character. At a meeting to be held Saturday a call will be issued to all trotting horse drivers in the United States and Canada, urging them to send delegates to a national convention to be held in Lexington May 28th, at which time the association will be organized.

Adelaide seems to be a lucky name in trotting nomenclature. The Phil Sheridan mare by that name was one of the best race-mares of her inches that ever trod the turf, took a record of 2:19¾, and at the stud has produced Addie De, three years, 2:25½, and Nina De, four years, 2:26½. Adelaide, 2:18, by Milwaukee, was an equally good mare on track and her first foal, Adelaide McGregor, by Bonnie McGregor, 2:13½, made a two-year-old record of 2:29¾ last year.

The Santa Anita string left late last week for Chicago, where they are liberally entered. All the horses are in good condition except one. The exception is Galindo, one of the most prominent candidates for the great American Derby. Mr. Unruh was in from Santa Anita recently. He says that the gray son of Gano has gone amiss, and unless he rounds to very rapidly, the chances are that he will not be a starter. This is a great pity, as Galindo's chances were second to none in the classic race. The two-year-olds of the string are all looking first-class.

An old timer working well at Memphis, Tenn., is Blue Wing, who ran a sensational second in the Kentucky Derby in 1886, and gained a similar position in the Brooklyn Handicap a year later. He is now nine years old, but still retains much of his old-time vim and vigor, he having moved a mile recently at Montgomery Park at Memphis in 1:46, and reeled off halves in 51 and quarters in 25 seconds. His people are waiting for rain, so the soft track will aid his game legs, then they calculate to slip him in among some of the so-called cracks and make a genuine hog killing.

A PITTSBURG, Pa., man has a two-year-old by Sidney, that, according to report, went a trial mile in 2:20 recently. We predict that the Sidneys will this year wipe out the last vestige of the prejudice that has for so long kept the family name from occupying a high place in public esteem.

WE have just learned that George L. Swan, the genial and expert driver who developed and drove James Madison, 2:17¾, to a record, has been employed by Martin Carter, of the Nutwood Stock Farm, to handle Nutwood Wilkes, three years, 2:20½, California Nutwood, Director General and a number of very promising youngsters at that farm.

BRAW SCOT is an exceedingly game gelding. After running away at top speed for a mile and a half, he finished a good third to Elmwood in a mile and a quarter dash. Many are of the opinion that the gray son of Midlothian and Helen Scratch would have won the Tidal Stakes had Henmessy been able to control him.

BILLY HILL'S work last Tuesday was simply superb, he piloting the only three mounts he had to victory in great style. Hill clearly outrode Narvaez in the race Sheridan won, and when it comes down to making a finish, Hill is there or thereabouts every time. Narvaez's stronghold is getting off in front, not in finishing, while Hill is a great judge of pace and a demon in a wind-up.

THOS. MURPHY, of Petaluma has the following in his string: Almonition by Alcona 730, dam Pansy; Veronica by Alcona 730, dam Fontana; Leader, brown colt by Director Jr., dam by Kisbar; Moondyne, black colt, by Director Jr., dam by Altamont; Melbourne, bay colt, by Sidney, out of Zelika by Grand Moor. Electress, bay colt by Gaviota out of Lily Vernon, (dam of Belmont Boy), by Tom Vernon; Ulanee, full sister to Dynamite 2:32, bay mare by Gaviota out of a Geo. M. Patchen mare.

A BOLT of lightning struck the Maple Grove Stock Farm barns, near Charleston, Ind., the morning of April 18th, and the buildings took fire and were at once consumed, together with nine trotting horses. Among the animals destroyed in the fire were Kentucky Ruler, 2:29, by Egbert; Jewel C., 2:24½, by Kentucky Ruler; Monsieur, 2:33½, by Kentucky Ruler, and the stallion Richmond. The estimated value of the horses is $44,000. There is no insurance except $1,000 on the buildings.

THE Board of Censors of the American Trotting Register Association have passed upon the pedigree of Sunol, 2:08½. They find that her second dam was by Lexington, out of the "Keenon Mare" by Brawner's Eclipse. The gentlemen, composing the Board, were of the opinion that it was as well established an historical pedigree as any that they have ever been called to pass judgment upon. The fact is that the papers discovered in Kentucky and California place the matter beyond any reasonable doubt.

WHEN Gen. B. F. Tracy entered President Harrison's cabinet he decided to sell the horses at his Marshlands Farm. Mambrino Dudley, 2:19¾, was Gen. Tracy's favorite, being a son of Woodland Mambrino, in whom, as a sire, Mr. Tracy had great faith. At the time of the sale A. H. Moore, now known as the "prince of buyers," was young in the business, and he biought Gen. Tracy's favorite horse. But Director has been given the place of honor at Cloverdale, and Mambrino Dudley will go into the auction ring once more.

IF ALL we hear about the speed of the sons and daughters of Alcona 730 proves true, this horse will take a leading position among sires this fall. He is the sire of three in the list now, and has two sons that are sires and one daughter that is the dam of a performer. There are in training at present Prince Warwick, Almonition, Veronica, Alconeer and Lacona, all of these are very promising, and of this quintette at least two will enter the 2:20 list this fall. If Mr. Loeber knows of any more that are in training we should like to hear from him.

CADMUS is indeed a youngster with the most startling turn of speed we have observed in many a day. On the day he beat Conde et al. he went up to the leader, fell back apparently beaten between the half and three-quarter poles, and then came again on the extreme outside of the track like an unthrottled locomotive, eventually winning the race by four good lengths in 1:02 1-5 for the five furlongs. Taking everything into consideration, if the colt had run true he would have finished the five furlongs that day in 1:01 or even under.

T. J. DRAIS, of Farmington, has sent his gray mare Blanchward to be bred to Guy Wilkes, 2:15½. Blanchward is royally bred, in fact, there are very few of her kind on this coast. She is sired by Onward 1411, (sire of 43 in the list) out of a daughter of Mambrino Patchen; second dam Lady Blanche (dam of Alcryon, 215) by Privateer 258; third dam Jenny Lind by Abdallah 15. Blanchward is only three years old and is wonderfully speedy. Mr. Drais has a number of colts and fillies, one is a sweet filly by Roy Wilkes, 2:08½ out of a mare by Muldoon; a filly by Sidney out of a mare by Chieftan and a Dexter Prince filly out of the same mare.

THE business of training and driving is vastly different from the mercantile business. When a stock of goods runs down and the shelves begin to look bare the matter of replenishing the stock is no difficult task—a clerk can fill out the order. When the high-mettled trotter is nearing the critical point in the race the job can't be turned over to the "rubber." Only the skilled mechanic can guide him safely over the danger point. When the horse's appetite fails and his constitution begins to give way, how many drivers and trainers are there who can fill out the proper prescription to replenish the storehouse? This is part of the business, and it will soon be one of the requirements.

DR. D. K. WISE, the Los Angeles horseman, who is going to send his string of trotters to Montana, has recovered from his accident. He has secured Ed. Connolly to train for him, and will leave Los Angeles next month for Salt Lake City, where the horses are all engaged. After the Salt Lake meeting he will take in the Montana circuit. The Wiseburn string this year will be the best, on the whole, that ever left that county. It is as follows: Glendine, ch h, 6, by Judge Salisbury, dam Tempest, by Sultan; Emin Bey, b h, 4, by Guy Wilkes, dam Tempest, by Sultan; Adelaide McGregor, b m, 3, by Bonnie McGregor, dam Adelaide, by Milwaukee; Bonnie June, b m, 3, by Simmons, dam Mollie Wilkes, by George Wilkes; Adelaide Simmons, b f, 2, by Simmons, dam Adelaide, by Milwaukee.

A FRIEND who knew Nourmahal years ago when Simpson had her, called at our office after we had published the letter last week, in which Simpson declared that the mare was the best long-distance mare in the world, and said: "Dunton, do you know I have an excellent photograph of the old mare taken from life? Yes I have, and a good one it is, and I wish some one would take it and get an engraving made from it that people could see what a mare she was." I'll take it, said I, and take it we did, and sent it to George C. King, who copied it well, and we shall present it to our readers for them to criticise next week.—Dunton's Spirit of the Turf.

THE money offered in stakes and purses, on the Montana circuit, is divided as follows: Deer Lodge, $4,000; Dillon, $7,500; Anaconda, $29,500; Butte, $29,500; Helena, $12,700; and Great Falls, $15,100. This represents $98,300, and there will be sufficient extra races with liberal purses to bring the total above $100,000. The schedule is so arranged as not to interfere with the Salt Lake and the Puget Sound meetings. Missoula is not on the regular circuit, but will have a race meeting after all the others are finished. Work was begun yesterday on the Anaconda track and it will soon be in first-class shape. Work on the Butte track will begin next week. About ten horses are in training at the Butte track. The racing season begins at Deer Lodge, July 4, and will conclude at Great Falls, August 26.

SCOTT and Cal Quinton have a large string in training at Trenton. Among them are: Verona Wilkes, 2:27, by Guy Wilkes, dam Glen Ellen, by Arthurton; Don Wilkes, 2:29½, a brown stallion by Red Wilkes, out of Princess, by Mambrino Pet; Brother G., 2:26¼, by Sentinel Wilkes, dam Sister G., by Mambrino Boy; Fascinator, a bay stallion, four years, by Whips, dam by Thorndale; Manor Born, a three-year-old, by Epaulet, 2:19, out of Lady Griswold, 2:30, and Robin Adair, a yearling son of the same mare, by Brother G. In addition to these are Muscadin, a bay stallion, four years, by Valensin, out of Flirt, the dam of the champion yearling Frou-Frou; Cassie, a chestnut filly, three years, by Sidney, dam Miss Casserly, by Eugene Casserly, and Otto, a three-year-old colt, by Red Wilkes, out of Nutwood Queen, dam of Dashwood, 2:29.

ALL attempts to evade the law of heredity will end in defeat, writes J. H. Wallace in the Horse Review. The condition of parents, mental and physical, at the time of conception, is a matter of far more importance than is generally conceded. They should be in the highest physical health, and should have exercise enough immediately before being brought together to fully arouse all the senses and instincts of their nature. In short, if the colt is to run, the sire and dam should have a slow exercising mile, finishing at their highest speed; and if the colt is to trot, the very same tactics should be adopted at that gait. Then, when all aroused, and wanting to go more, they are in a position to procreate and produce the best results of which they are capable under the ever-present laws of heredity. The teachings of experience seem to show that it is not best to breed to a horse nor from a mare when in a high condition of training. There is too much depletion and too great a remove from the normal to expect the best results.

IT IS well understood that horses are a good deal like men—everything goes wrong one day, and on the next they gallop at their best, but the astounding reversal of public form shown by El Rayo needs close investigation, we should think. On Friday El Rayo ran in a mile and seventy yards' race against Bernardo with 105 pounds up and Hennessy in the saddle, and was beaten away off in the slow time of 1:48. In the books Friday he was backed from 2½ to 1 down to even money. Saturday the horse was entered in a mile and a sixteenth race, with 100 pounds up, Narvaez in the saddle, and odds of 3 to 1 against him. Result—he wins easily in 1:47¾. In short, he ran forty yards further in much less time than he accomplished the mile and seventy yards on Friday. He was beaten off about five lengths Friday, equal to about a second and three-quarters in time, or 1:49¾ for the mile and seventy yards. This is queer "form," to say the very least, for El Rayo must necessarily have run the mile and seventy yards close to 1:45 on Saturday, or 4¾ seconds faster than he accomplished the distance on the preceding day.

WHILE speaking to John A. Goldsmith at the San Mateo Stock Farm the other day about Le Grand, the son of Almont and Jessie Pepper, that observant horseman said: "Some people have an idea he was not a great horse. I consider he was, considering his opportunities. He was bred to some fair mares on this place, and his fillies showed up so well at two years of age that Mr. Corbitt bred them to Guy Wilkes and they are now among our very best ones. Le Grand was only a few years in the stud; he never got many outside mares on account of his size; he stood over seventeen hands high, and breeders did not care to send their mares to him. His breeding was satisfactory, but his size was not in his favor. He is the sire of Anita, 2:25½; Beaumont, 2:23½; Grandee, 2:23½; Grandissimo, 2:27¾, and the pacer Hattie F., 2:18. I know of a number of mares here that could trot in 2:30 with ease. His progeny are all well limbed, of good size, dead game and pure-gaited. His worth will increase every year, for he represented that breed of horses we all like, 'the one that breeds on.'"

WHILE theory is really the father of practice experience merely brings the elucidation or working out of rational theory, it is sometimes erroneously supposed. The very many different breeds of thoroughbred stock which we now have, and which have added so many thousands of dollars to the material wealth of the country, are the direct results of, first, generous feeding, and second, of systematic breeding. There are scores of persons, even breeders themselves, who give breeding the first place, when it should have merely a secondary one, for breeding viewed in its proper light, has done but little towards the improvement (we use the word advisedly) of live stock. With feeding, however, it is not so, for generous and systematic feeding is what really developes, fosters and improves all the good which happens to be innate. How have these peculiar breeds of cattle, horses, etc., been produced for especial purpose, except by generous feeding seconded by proper attention to hygienic laws? This is the impulse which has developed the desired qualities, whether it has been for flesh, size, endurance, milk, form or other peculiarity. This is as far as feeding alone can go, and breeding steps in to continue or perpetuate the improvement gained by feeding. Are not those animals then selected for breeding stock which, under the system of feeding bestowed, have shown the greatest tendency to development in desirable qualities? The off-spring of these are naturally good animals, for the simple reason that their parents were well cared for, though they will soon return to first principles if neglected.

A WRITER for the American Breeder thus describes Abdallah, the sire of Rysdyk's Hambletonian: He was a bay, sixteen hands high, very light mane and tail, and a look at him from behind would disgust any horseman. He was cow-hocked, and his quarters were what is scientifically known as atrophied (all sunk away). But put a bridle on him and take him out, then you saw a different animal. His eyes stood out in bold relief, brilliant as the morning star, his head large, clean and bony, his ears long and erect, with a long, thin crest, which gave his anterior a majestic appearance down to the feet, which were of whalebone. But he was no trotter. He had a will of his own. No man could drive him in harness, not even in his feeble days. He had no respect for wheels, but to saddle he was gentle, and showed a pretty fair trotting gait, but no speed.

H. S. HENRY, of the Penn Valley Stud, where Anteeo, 2:16½, lords it in a harem composed of one of the choicest bands of broodmares ever gotten together, visited Independence on the 12th inst., and purchased from C. W. Williams, at prices not quoted, but necessarily heavy, the two-year-old filly Can't Tell, sister to Axtell, 212; the brown mare Barona, foaled 1887, by Baron Wilkes, 2:18, dam Lou, (dam of Axtell 2:12), by Mambrino Boy, 2:26¼, in foal to Allerton, 209½; the yearling colt Fosdick, by Barnhart, 2:22¾, dam by Robert McGregor, 2:17½, second dam by George Wilkes, 2:22; a filly by Barnhart, dam by Onward, 2:25½; second dam by Belmont, and another filly by the same sire, out of Epithet, 2:29¾, by Princeps. Mr. Henry has also purchased from W. R. McKean, Edgewood Farm, Terre Haute, Ind., the three-year-old filly Gazelle, by Guy Wilkes, 2:15½, dam Eva, 2:23½, by Sultan, 2:24; second dam Minnehaha, (dam of five in the list); the three-year-old filly Gabrielle, sister to Gazelle, and a two-year-old filly by Jersey Wilkes, out of Daisy Rose, (sister to Eva, 2:23½, Alcazar 2:20½, etc.), by Sultan 2:24. At this rate the Penn Valley Stud will soon be about the largest and most select one in America.

THE horse's association with man and his education during countless generations developed his intelligence to a high degree, and at a very early date, for animals that displayed first-class physical qualities, enhanced by marked intelligence, high prices were paid, writes a historian. Alexander the Great paid nearly $15,000 for Bucephalus. That celebrated war-steed was a "skew bald" or calico horse, being white, marked with large, deep, bay spots, a breed held in the highest estimation by the Parthians. At the battle of Hydaspes the noble creature received his death wound, and, for the first time disobedient to his master's command, galloped out of the fight, carried Alexander out of danger, then knelt for him to alight, as was his custom, and having performed this last act of duty, fell over and died. Among the Saxons the horse was an object of superstitious veneration, and from an old document bearing date A. D. 1000 some idea may be formed of the estimation in which he was held by the value therein assigned to him. It is there stated that if a horse be destroyed or negligently lost the compensation to be demanded should be the sum of thirty shillings; for a mare or colt, twenty shillings, and the same sum for a man. The value of money at that date in England differed widely from that of the present day, but the above document shows that a human being was valued at the same price as a colt and below that of a horse.

THE most important Futurity stake to be decided for trotters this year is the Hartford $10,000 stake to be trotted for by three-year-olds at the Grand Circuit meeting at Charter Oak Park, August 25th. Several hundred nominations were made when the stake was opened in 1889, and 45 made payments due April 1st, which insures a large field of promising starters, representing the leading stock farms of the country. The best-known starter is the filly Belle Flower, the sister of Bell Boy, Hinda Rose, Chimes and others. As a two-year-old Charles Marvin gave her a record of 2:24¾. She is now owned by Miller & Sibley, of Franklin, Pa., and in the race will be piloted by Marvin. The San Mateo Farm names the fast colt Macleay, 2:22½, by Sable Wilkes, dam of Nutwood. He was a good performer last year and is looked upon as California's strongest representative in the race. Marcus Daly, of Bitter Root Ranch, will start Merry Will, by Wilton. The Village Farm's representative will be the fleet Chimes Girl, 2.26½, that in her two-year-old form showed a half in 1:07¼. J. Malcolm Forbes will have the filly Starlight in the race. She is by Electioneer, out of Sallie Benton, 2:17¾, and is very fast. The Valensin Farm of California, that is noted for its colt wonders, will start Sid Fleet, the brother to Fleet by Sidney. A probable starter will be the Kentucky sensation of 1890, R. P. Pepper's colt Pilgrim by Acolyte, out of Cathedral. William Simpson, of Cuba, N. Y., has named three youngsters, Artiana, by Artillery, Noontide Belle by Bell Boy, and Time by Lord Russell, the brother to Maud S.

THERE are many different kinds of horses in England, or rather different breeds. Almost every section and every county has a different breed. There is the Norman, the Suffolk, the English cart horse, the dray horse, the Clydesdale, the Cleveland bay, the Yorkshire pony and many others. From time immemorial England has possessed a heavy, comparatively misshapen animal, which in Queen Elizabeth's time was used as a charger or pack horse; the slower and more sluggish ones were also used for the plow. From this horse was produced in time what is known as the improved Lincolnshire dray horse, a large and magnificently-shaped animal, chiefly used to the London drays. They are a result of a cross between the horse previously mentioned and the Flemish horse. From the cross of the Lincolnshire came the Suffolk, an improved cart horse much used in the agricultural districts of England. The Clydesdale is an intermediate between the Suffolk and the dray horse, but more active than either. He is supposed to be bred from a cross of the Dutch or Flemish horse, imported by the Duke of Hamilton in the latter part of the last century, with the active descendants of the pack horse already spoken of. These horses are said to be able to draw heavier loads in carts than others, and are consequently especially adapted to the lowlands of Scotland, where the Clydesdales are universally employed. A great deal of attention has recently been paid to the breeding of the Clydesdale. Most of the breeders of England used the pure Suffolk or Clydesdale, and breed from one or the other, crossing on half-bred mares. The Percheron is used very extensively as a dray horse in the larger cities of England. Some of these are of enormous size and massive build, a pair weighing as high as 3,700 pounds. The brewing and commission houses employ these horses almost exclusively, while they are very much used in the heavier trades. One of these horses will draw three tons weight over the stones of the city pavements.

EASTWARD-BOUND.

List of Horses That Leave San Mateo Stock Farm for Terre Haute, Ind., To-day.

When the history of the growth of the trotting-horse industry on the Pacific Coast is written considerable space will be devoted to the important position attained by Mr. William Corbitt, proprietor of the San Mateo Stock Farm. His love for the trotting horse is an innate one, for as soon as he purchased the four hundred acres of unimproved land in San Mateo county he started East and purchased two stallions, Irvington and Arthurton; for the former he paid $20,000, and for the latter, as a yearling, he paid the sum of $5,000. He also bought a number of well-bred mares. When he arrived in California, he expended thousands of dollars in improving the place he intended for a stock farm; he planted rows of eucalyptus trees around its boundary line and built barns and stables that are a credit to their designer, and have since been copied by numerous other California stock farm-owners. He had the land divided into fields and paddocks, and then built a half-mile track which he has had enlarged to a three-quarter mile course since. There was little hope for great financial returns from this investment, and many marvelled at the enterprise shown, for fifteen years ago there were very few trotting horses of note here, and fewer representative breeding farms.

This quiet breeder kept acquiring broodmares that had merit; he saw that Irvington was not to be his successful premier stallion, so he sold him and endeavored to keep the best of the fillies by Arthurton for broodmares. He purchased two other horses in the East; Le Grand, a very handsome son of Almont 33, out of Jessie Pepper, the famous broodmare, and that "King of Wilkes stallions," Guy Wilkes. He had the latter trained, and it was not long before he saw he had a "bread-winner" in the handsome bay son of George Wilkes. At the age of seven he had a record of 2:15½, the lowest to the credit of any son of "Billy Simmons' pony" up to that time. Guy Wilkes was retired to the stud at the farm, and is proving his worth in a manner that needs no further dissertation in these columns, for every horseman in America knows how valuable he has become. Guy Wilkes was only twelve years old last August, yet see what his roll of honor is—a good one, for none of his sons or daughters were over five years old when they made their records. The list is as follows: Atalanta Wilkes (3), 2:29¼; Hazel Wilkes (4), 2:20; Lillian Wilkes (3), 2:17¼; Nutwood Wilkes 3), 2:20½; Raven Wilkes (3), 2:30; Regal Wilkes (3), 2:17½; Sable Wilkes (3), 2:18; Una Wilkes, 2:19¼; Verona Wilkes, 2:27; Vida Wilkes (3), 2:18¼; Alannah (4), pacer, 2:18, and Rupee (4), pacer, 2:14¼.

Up to December 30, 1890, Guy Wilkes was the youngest sire with four in the 2:20 list; his progeny have possessed within the three previous years the fastest three-year-old record; the fastest three-year-old stallion record; the fastest three-year-old filly record; the fastest four-year old stallion record; the fastest two-year-old stallion record, and in the second generation he sired the fastest yearling champion, Freedom. Looking at what he has done by the records, and then taking a glance over the numbers that are eligible to go inside the charmed circle, one is convinced that Mr. Corbitt must have a keen insight as to the value of selecting good broodmares and also appreciates the necessity of having the produce trained. On the San Mateo Stock Farm to-day there are broodmares which represent all the fashionable families that are classed as "Californian," as well as many of the leading families of the East.

Most of the stock sold from this farm has been relegated to stud duty, and there is hardly a large stock farm in the East that has not one of the colts and fillies that were bred here. These are prized so highly by their owners that none change ownership and few have been given any training, although letters have been received lately which contain the news that they will receive a trainer's handling this year.

It is Mr. Corbitt's intention to offer for sale in the New York auction ring next winter many of his choicest and best-bred colts and fillies, some of which have records, and many others would have if Mr. Corbitt had a trainer; but, unfortunately, only grooms are now left on the farm, the only man who was competent to handle the youngsters having gone East to assist Mr. Goldsmith, owing to the latter's ill health.

On the car which leaves the San Mateo Stock Farm depot this morning is the string of trotters which are to appear on the Southwestern circuit. His trainer and superintendent, John A. Goldsmith, who has been at death's door for months, will be on the same train, accompanied by his able assistant, John Rogers; their first stopping-place will be Terre Haute, Indiana. Although the horses have not felt the magic touch of that master reinsman, Mr. Goldsmith, they have been carefully handled by Mr. Rogers. When the bell taps, however, it is believed that the former will be strong enough to mount the sulky and go through the circuit as well as he ever was. He says that Mambrino Maid 2:15½ and Position 2:22½ will also be sent to be driven by him.

This string of trotters will surprise the people of the East by their strong appearance. Every one looks stout and entirely different from those that are usually campaigned there. The young ones are not samples selected from the very best at this farm, for after most of them were named it was ascertained that in breaking the others a number of them showed even greater speed.

The first one led out for our inspection was Muta Wilkes, by Guy Wilkes, 2:15½, out of Montrose, by Sultan, 2:24. This four-year-old was the one that met with an injury at Omaha while on her way to be sold in the East two years ago. She entirely recovered, and will prove good company for some of the Eastern 2:30 trotters. When G. Valensin saw her lying in the car at the time of her injury in Omaha he offered $1,000 for her, but it is doubtful if she could be purchased for five times that sum at present.

One that will also captivate the horsemen, as soon as she gets the word, is the bay filly Sable Dale, by Sable Wilkes, 2:18, out of Vixen, by Nutwood. She represents another strong argument in favor of Sable Wilkes as a sire, as it is the opinion of everyone who has watched this horse's progeny, that he is destined to be in the "first rank among the prominent sires of trotters in America." Vixen is the dam of Vida Wilkes, 2.18½, and as she is out of Sister (dam of Albert W., 2:20, and Bonanza, 2:29½), by John Nelson, there is no reason why she should not be among the foremost of broodmares. Sable Dale is a simon-pure trotter, one of the kind that can be depended upon in the best company of two-year-olds this fall.

Ora Wilkes is another two-year-old Sable Wilkes that will receive much praise; he is out of Ellen Mayhew, by Director. With such "game" blood so close up, Ora is just what one might expect; but a prettier-shaped or a more sensible colt would be difficult to find. He is but 22 months old; he has only been handled a few months. He was a late colt and undersized. Mr. Goldsmith did not consider it advisable to name him for any of the Futurity stakes; however, he is a gem fit to take his place anywhere in the equine world.

Sabina, 2:27½ (as a two-year-old), is another one of the Sable Wilkes' family that earned her record in a race on a regulation track. She has grown considerably, in fact, one would hardly know her.

Every visitor to the race tracks last fall remembers the black two-year-old colt Macleay that got a record of 2:22½, and showed that he was a game, consistent, square-gaited trotter. He is by Sable Wilkes, 2:18, but is unlike him in shape; he has grown taller and very rangy during the past six months. He is the type of a race horse that is sought for by owners of stock farms everywhere. Macleay is entered in the Hartford $10,000 Stake.

The Sable Wilkes contingent has another beautiful specimen of equine form in the ebony-hued three-year-old filly Lallah Wilkes, out of Susie Hunter, by Arthurton. She is worthy of all the praise that will be lavished upon her.

The Guy Wilkes mare, Vida Wilkes, with a three-year-old record of 2:18½, looks fat and strong, and will lower her record, unless barred by some accident.

Hazel Wilkes, the four-year-old that got a record of 2:20 and was barred from all stakes in California last year, has had a year's rest, and looks as if it agreed with her. She will need plenty of slow work to get down to "fighting trim." Mr. Goldsmith takes delight in driving her, for she does not pull a pound on the bit. When the people East see her move they will declare that she "is the exemplification of the poetry of motion." Like the balance of the get of Guy and Sable Wilkes, she trots with the lightest of shoes and never knows what it is to break.

Venita Wilkes, by Guy Wilkes, is a four-year-old that her owner, Mr. Goldsmith, thinks considerable of. She is out of San Mateo Belle by Speculation. There is not the least doubt of her entering the list but the question is, "how near will she come to the 2:20 mark?"

The only pacer and one that will prove creditable to his sire and show that for beauty, color, style, disposition, speed and gameness there are few superior to him, is the fine seal brown stallion Rupee that earned his record of 2:14¾ last year in a hard-fought race and retired for a well-deserved rest with more words of praise, both printed and verbal, than any pacer that appeared on this coast for years. He has not a pimple nor a blemish on his limbs, and this statement also applies to every horse that has been campaigned by Mr. Goldsmith. Every one of these goes East to-day in the pink of show-ring condition. With the change of feed, water and climate, they will also undergo a change, but by going East before the hot weather sets in it is hoped they will be become acclimated and fit to go at the tap of the bell. This precious carload go with the best wishes of every Californian, and their course will be carefully watched by every horseman in the land.

Shasta Notes.

Special Correspondence.

At the last meeting of the Board of Directors of the Mt. Shasta Agricultural Association (10th District) the following officers were elected: Samuel D. Prather, President; Maurice Renner, Treasurer; Clarence S. Smith, Secretary. The President appointed Directors J. M. Walbridge and Fred A. Antenrieth a committee on preparing a speed programme for the coming race meeting of the Association, and Directors J. E. Harmon and J. T. Moxley a committee on track and buildings, and Director James Vance and Secretary C. S. Smith a committee on the revision of the premium list.

It was decided to hold the annual fair at the usual time, when an excellent racing programme will be offered, and a most attractive premium list is now being prepared, the committee using their utmost efforts in preparing a popular list and introducing new and attractive features, one of which will be a grand brass band tournament and contest for three valuable prizes.

The prospects for a prosperous season in this vicinity this year are good. Crops are looking well, but the promises for a successful fair are flattering. Horsemen who make entries may be assured of receiving the best attention and that everything possible will be done for them. The Board of Directors of the Mt. Shasta Agricultural Association are enterprising and energetic, and this year they will try to outdo themselves in making their fair the greatest ever held in that part of the State. C. S. S.

San Benito Racing Stakes.

The Board of Directors of the San Benito County Agricultural Association closed the colt stakes for the fall meeting with the following races and entries:

Three-year-old colt stakes, trotting and pacing, for foals of 1889, to be trotted in 1892. Entrance $50; ten dollars upon nomination, $15 July 1, 1892; $25 September 1, 1892. Added money $100. Entries: P. Nash's Col. Benton, Y. Malarin's Albert S. and J. L. Powell's Orpheus.

One year-old colt stakes, for foals of 1891, to be decided in 1892, trotting, half-mile and repeat. Entrance $20; $5 upon nomination; $5 July 1, 1892; $10 September 1, 1892. Added money $100.

Two year-old colt stakes, for foals of 1891, trotting, 2 in 3, to be decided in 1893, and the running mile dash for foals of 1890 were declared off, there being no entries for these stakes.

Three-year-old colt stakes, trotting and pacing—3 in 5, for foals of 1889, to be decided in 1892. Entrance $50; $15 upon nomination; $15 July 1, 1892; $20 September 1, 1892. Added money $100. Five to enter and three to start. Entries: M. Lynn's Violante, James B. Iverson's Ivola, J. P. Sargent's La Brea and Argo, and P. L. Nash's Col. Benton.

The two year old colt stakes, trotting, for horses in Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Benito counties, and Gilroy township, was declared off, only three entries being received.

A new stake was established for the above, for two-year-olds, trotting and pacing, for horses in the same district, entries to close May 15, 1892. The Association will add $100 to this stake.

The Napa Races.

Owners of trotters and pacers should bear in mind the fact that entries to the various goodly stakes offered by the Napa Agricultural Society close on the 2d of May. The races come off from August 22d to 27th inclusive, and the events are so arranged that every one has a chance to get a little of the coin. Read the advertisement in another column of this paper, enter liberally at once, and address D. L. Hackett, Secretary, Napa, Cal.

Marcus Daly's Horses in Training.

Riverside, Mont., April 15.—This has been a disastrous season for Mr. Marcus Daly. Many of his mares have slipped their foals (about forty-five in all), most of them being the trotting bred matrons. The trouble seems to be similar to that which prevailed in Kentucky and other States last year and the year before, and it appears to be almost epidemic.

Mr. Daly has thirty-three trotters in training, and his trainer, Mr. Ben. B. Kenney, the developer of the great Nancy Hanks, informs me that they are all doing well, and not a few of the green ones are expected to give a good account of themselves this season.

The list of the animals now taking preparation is as follows:

A. L. Kempland, ch c, foaled 1890, by Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼, dam Manon, 2:21 (full sister to Woodnut, 2:16½; Manette, dam of Arion, 2:10¾ at two years, and Hattie D., 2:26¾ at three years), by Nutwood, 2:18¾; second dam Addie, 2:36, by Hambletonian Chief (son of Rysdyk's Hambletonian); third dam Manton, by Harry Clay 45. This colt was bred by J. A. Goldtmith, and being a half brother in blood to the renowned Arion and by the fastest entire son of George Wilkes, much is expected of him.

Baritone, b c, foaled 1890, by Lord Byron, 2:18 (son of Gen. Benton), dam Easel, by Commodore Belmont; second dam Irene, by Dictator; third dam Fanny Helm, by Alexander's Abdallah 15.

Belles Lettres, blk f, foaled 1890, by Bell Boy 63, 2:19¼, dam Annie Jackson, by Red Wilkes; second dam Miss Patchen, by Mambrino Patchen; third dam Kate Messenger (dam of Wildwood, 2:30), by Bay Messenger Jr. This filly was bred by G. W. Stout, Faywood, Woodford County, Ky., and cost a large, round sum when a weanling. She is one of the most fashionably-bred trotters in America to-day, and besides is a good individual and very promising.

Brown Silk, br m, foaled 1887, by Baron Wilkes, 2:18, dam Nanny Etticoat, by Bellwood 756; second dam Soprano (dam of C. F. Clay, 2:18; Eminence, 2:21¼, and Strathbridge, 2:28½), by Strathmore; third dam Abbess (dam of Steinway 63, 2:25¼, and Solo, 2:28), by Albion; fourth dam by Marshal Ney; fifth dam by Bertrand.

Dan O'Connell, b c, foaled 1889, by Deputy, dam Vixen, by New York 524; second dam Mischief, by Hambletonian 10; third dam Starlight, by American Star 14.

Deputy, b s, foaled 1884, by Echo 462, dam Marie Rose, by Inca, 2:27; second dam Cecilia Clark, by Clark Chief; third dam Captain Beard mare (thoroughbred).

Deputy's First, b c, foaled 1889, by Deputy, dam Sally Wilkes, by Clay Wilkes 1840; second dam Novelty, by Roscoe; third dam Jolly, by Doughty's Grey Eagle.

Dr. Hall, b c, foaled 1889, by Governor, 2:30½, dam Lightning Bug, by General Washington; second dam May Bug (dam of Edison, 2:28½), by Aberdeen 27; third dam May Steers (dam of May Bird, 2:21), by John C. Fremont; fourth dam by American Star.

Eclipse, ch f, foaled 1889, by Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼, dam Manon, 2:21, by Nutwood; second dam Addie, etc.

Fred O'Brien, b c, foaled 1889, by Albert W., 2:20, dam Mabel (sister to Beautiful Bells, 2:29½), by The Moor; second dam Minnehaha (dam of Alcazar, 2:20½; Sweetheart, 2:22½; Eva, 2:23¼; San Gabriel, 2:29¾; Beautiful Bells, 2:29½), by Bald Chief (Stevens'); fourth dam Nettie Clay, by C. M. Clay Jr.; fifth dam Col. Morgan mare, by Abdallah 1; sixth dam by Engineer II (sire of Lady Suffolk, 2:26½).

Helen T. (full sister to Arion (2), 2:10¾), b m, foaled 1888, by Electioneer, dam Manette (dam of Arion, 2:10¾, and sister to Woodnut, 2:16½, and Manon, 2:21), by Nutwood; second dam Addie (dam of Woodnut and Manon), by Hambletonian Chief; third dam Manton, by Harry Clay 45.

John Mackay, b g, foaled 1889, by Senator, 2:21, dam Maudine, by Jay Gould, second dam Lady Maud, 2:18¼ (dam of Monbars, 2:16½ at two years), by General Knox; third dam Fanny, by Sabek.

Lena Holly, rn f, foaled 1889, by Director, 2:17, dam Steinola, by Steinway (3), 2:25; second dam Phaeeola, by Silverthread (son of The Moor); third dam Minnehaha (dam of Alcazar, 2:20½, etc.), by Bald Chief (Stevens'); fourth dam Nettie Clay, by C. M. Clay Jr. 22, etc.

Little Keene, ch f, foaled 1889, by Red Wilkes, dam Myrtle, by Norman D.; second dam Lizzie H., by Norman 25; third dam Bird, by Morgan horse.

Lord Byron, b s, foaled 1885, by Gen. Benton 1755, dam May Day, by Wissahicken 947; second dam Nora Marshall (dam of Alfred S., 2:16¼), by Union; third dam by American Star.

Mascot, b c, foaled 1887, by Stamboul, 2:11, dam Minnehaha (dam of Alcazar, etc.), by Bald Chief (Steven's); second dam Nettie Clay, by C. M. Clay, Jr., etc.

McCap, ch f, foaled 1889, by Robert McGregor, 2:17½, dam Mary Cap (dam of Linnie, 2:25), by Mambrino Time; second dam Cap (grandam of Temple Bar, 2:17¾; Shadeland Onward, 2:20¼, and Egbertine, 2:25), by Ward's Flying Cloud.

Merry Will, br c, foaled 1889, by Wilton, 2:19¼, dam Mary Sprague, 2:20½; second dam by Edwin Forrest 49; third dam Bay-a-Dere (dam of Lady McFatridge, 2:29), by Bay Chief 759; fourth dam by Pilot Jr. 12.

Milroy, blk c, foaled 1889, by Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼, dam Nanon, 2:21 (full sister to Woodnut, 2:16¼, etc.), by Nutwood, 2:18¾; second dam Addie, etc.

Minnie G., rn m, foaled 1888, by Jay Bird, dam Betsy Higgins, by Strathmore; second dam Roan Betty by Davy Crockett.

Nadjy, b m, foaled 1887, by Stamboul, 2:11, dam Lady Graves by Nutwood; second dam Lady Babcock (dam of Elector, 2:21¼, and Soudan, 2:26½), by Hambletonian 725; third dam DuBois Mare.

Prodigal (full brother to Patron, 2:14½), by Pancoast, dam Beatrice (dam of Patron) by Cuyler 100; second dam Mary Mambrino, by Mambrino Patchen; third dam, Belle Wagner, by Embry's Wagner.

Red Cherry (2), 2:29½, b f, foaled 1889, by Red Wilkes, dam Madam Herr (full sister to London, 2:20¾), by Mambrino Patchen; second dam Becky, by Edwin Forrest 49; third dam Dixie, by Moore's Mambrino Prince.

Stambella, b f, foaled 1889, by Stamboul 2:11, dam Fanny Belmont, by Arthurton 365; second dam Minnie Belmont, by Belle Alta.

St. Ambrose, ch c, foaled 1889 by Albert W., 2:20, dam Hilda, by Nutwood; second dam Eudora, by Volunteer; third dam by Seely's American Star 14.

St. Patrick, 2:19½, b s, foaled 1884, by Volunteer 55, dam Young Selene (dam of Monroe, 2:27½), by Guy Miller; second dam Selene, by Pamunkey.

Vesolia (2), 2:29½, br m, foaled 1886, by Stamboul, 2:11, dam Inez, 2:30, by The Moor; second dam Katydid, by Fireman.

Wilmus (full brother to Judge Rider, 2:26), blk c, foaled 1890, by Billy Wilkes, 2:29½, dam Miss Bemis (dam of Judge Rider) by Mambrino Patchen; second dam Lady Ayres (dam of Lottie Thorn, 2:23¾), by Redmon's Abdallah; third dam Lady Abdallah (dam of Don Carlos, 2:23, and Granville, 2:25) by Abdallah 15.

Wilstor, ch c, foaled 1889, by Robert McGregor, 2:17½, dam Wilka Monroe, by Bourbon Wilkes; second dam Nina Monroe (dam of Wilshire, 2:26) by Jim Monroe 836; third dam Jenny, by Sider's Andrew Jackson; fourth dam Rabbit, by Shawhan's Tom Hal.

Minell, br m, foaled 1888, by Wilkes Boy, 2:24¼, dam Miss Mamie, by Contractor; second dam Alice, by John Dillard Jr.; third dam by California Jr.

It may be that some of Kentucky's Blue Grass farms can show thirty-three animals with as many well-bred ones among them, but I doubt it. It will be seen that Mr. Daly's string carries the blood of Electioneer, General Renton, Nutwood, George Wilkes, The Moor, Volunteer, Pilot Jr. and Mambrino Patchen, besides that of some of the most famous broodmares the world has ever produced. With such a grandly-bred lot of horses, the millionaire miner ought to be able to win many races before the season closes.—"Copperbottom," in Kentucky Stock Farm.

We erroneously stated in our issue of last week that there would be six days' racing at Sacramento immediately after the Blood Horse meeting. There will be but five days of racing, and it bids fair to be first-class in every respect.

The bookmakers are traveling a very rocky road this meeting, and their financial feet are getting very sore.

NAPA SODA Sold in all saloons, restaurants and drug stores on the Pacific Coast.

Merriwa Sold.

Hearing that Matt Storn, the well-known horseman, had purchased the Australian stallion, Merriwa, we asked that gentleman for a verification of the rumor last Wednesday evening. Said he:

"Yes, it is true. I had heard he was fast, and when I saw his second gallop, that settled it—I wanted him and offered Mr. Lopez the price he offered him at when he first arrived—$5,000. This sum he refused, so I offered $6,000, and at this figure he became my property. If I am not very much mistaken, I have not only a first-class sire, but a race horse as well."

Merriwa comes from great racing and producing families on both sides of the house; being by Goldsbrough (sire of 112 winners in Australia), dam Habena, by Yattendon (sire of Chester), second dam Atholine, by Blair Athol (sire of Prince Charlie and other famous ones), third dam Habena (winner of 1,000 guineas in England), by Irish Birdcatcher; fourth dam, The Bridle, by The Saddle; fifth dam, Monoeda, by Taurus ; sixth dam, Mona by Partisan ; seventh dam, Miltonia, by Patriot ; eighth dam, Miss Muston, by King Fergus; ninth dam, Columbine Espersykes ; tenth dam by Babraham Blank; eleventh dam, Tipsy, by Starling; twelfth dam, Switch, by Lonsdale Arabian ; thirteenth dam by Cyprus Arabian ; fourteenth dam, Crab's dam. Mr. Storn says he will take Merriwa East, there to race him. Merriwa is a black horse, with three white feet and white streak in face, sixteen hands high and weighs about 1,125 pounds. He is five years old and has been standing for public service at Agricultural Park, Sacramento.

At Last.

A great many horsemen will no doubt remember the handsome brown mare Lou Whipple, 2:26¾, by Whipple's Hambletonian, that Mr. I. N. Killip took so much pride in driving through the circuit of 1876. After her racing career was over she was used on the road for a while and then sold to Senator Leland Stanford, and entered the brood mare list at Palo Alto. In 1881 she was stinted to Gen. Benton, was barren in 1882, '83, '84, and '85, after being bred to different horses. In 1885 and 1886 she was not bred, the case being considered hopeless. In 1887 she was stinted to Geo. Lancaster, and proved barren in 1888. Her name was now stricken from the catalogue and the mare sent to Vina, a branch of Palo Alto. In 1889, 1890, and 1891 she still proved barren. In 1891 she was studed to Good Gift, son of Electioneer, and the old mare in her 23rd year foaled Sunday morning last a bay colt. Senator Stanford remarked that the mare had been a great disappointment, but this, her late foal, might make amends for all. Old Lou is very proud of her foal and guards it with jealous care. She will be stinted to Whips, 2:27½, son of Electioneer.

E. D. MORSE, Chicago, Ill., has sold to John Graham, Dysart, Iowa, the bay colt Simon, by Sidney, dam by Nutwood. Price $2,500.

Portland Items.

PORTLAND, OR. April 23, 1892.

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—A great deal of interest is being taken in the coming spring and fall meeting by horsemen throughout the district, though the weather has been such that the "boys" do not expect to break any records at the spring meeting. The stake races offered by the different societies have been well filled, and you may look to see some Oregon records "smashed" this year sure. At City View track there are now in training Mr. Peacock's string, brought up from California; of the merits of these horses the average Oregonian knows but little, and may know more after the meeting in June. Mr. Quimby's stable is in charge of Sandy Smith, formerly of your State, where can be found that good young stallion Phallamont Boy, record 2:30, by Phallamont, dam by Pocahontas Boy. Mr. Quimby also has some very fast yearlings and two-year-olds.

R. C. Smith's stable in charge of that wholesouled fellow, John Green, better known as Red, are all in good condition. He has St. James, a pacer, Electrify, green trotter, and Prince H., record 2:33. Red expects to be in the gang in June.

Mr Mann has Altao, record 2:22½, Tremont, no record, and some other young fellows. Altao has the stallion record for Oregon, but he will have to look sharp if he don't lose it this year.

Mr. Misener has quite a string, all in fine form. J. S. C., by Echo, is likely to be troublesome in the 2:29 class this year. He also has some green pacers.

Mr. Henry thinks his Goldsmith Wilkes will make a mark for himself this year. He has others, too, that go along some. At Witch Hazel we find "Honest John" Sawyer handling the reins over DeLashmutt's stock. Blondie, trotting record 2:24½, has been put to pacing, and he seems at home in his new way of going Vanquish, three-year-old, by old Ham, is doing well, and may lower the three-year-old record this year for Oregon. Robert Steel is as handy at one gait as the other, and it is hard to tell where to find him this year, though Van is trying him at the trot. Pilot Champion, who has been worked at the trotting gait, is reported to have paced eighths at a rapid gait; perhaps they have learned it from the conversion of Blondie. There are too many good yearling and two-year-olds in Sawyer's care to give them all, but you may expect Witch Hazel to be very prominent and well represented in all the colt stakes.

J. C. Mosher, the veteran trainer, is handling several good ones. Amongst those we noticed were Challenger Chief, record 2:25¾, by Challenger, dam Rosa Chief, by D. Monroe. Chief, as he is commonly called, made his "debut" last season, starting in nine hard-fought races, winning three, second in three, third in two, fourth in one, gaining a record for himself of 2:25¾, besides proving himself to be one of the gamest race horses in Oregon. Look out for him this year; barring accidents, he is sure to beat 20. King Patchen, by Mambrino King, is a dangerous-looking three-year-old, and Mosher says he will beat the get of Mambrino King this year at that age.

"Noonday Bell," by Noonday, out of the dam of Cœur d'Alene is, it is said, the fastest two-year-old on the farm. Unfortunately she was bred outside the State and is not eligible to start in the colt stake races. C. M Mack has quite a nice string of mostly green and colt trotters that will be better known after the races are over. At McMinnville, Charley Woods pulls the strings over Susie S., record 2:23, by Hambletonian Mambrino, McMinnville Maid, 2:29 (3), by Altamont; Vinmont, three-year-old, by Altamont, Althea, two-year-old, by Altamont. At Dillon Mr. Hauk propels the trotters there under a covered track and from reports he must have a good string. He is working Dick Flaherty, Democrat and some youngsters. More anon.

PHŒNIX.

The Curious Orloff Trotter.

In the Orloff Museum in Russia there is a skeleton of a horse which shows two ribs more than ordinary horses. This is the skeleton of Smetanka, the great original of the Orloff family of trotters. Smetanka was used but one season in the stud and then died, leaving only four colts and one filly. The stallion Barss, which bears the same relation to the Orloff family that Hambletonian does to the American family of trotters, was a grandson of Smetanka, by Polkan, out of a Dutch mare. Mr. A. J. Rosseau, of St. Petersburg, says that Smetanka was bought in the south of Greece in 1777 by Count Orloff for 60,000 rubles, about $8,000. He was a pure-blooded Arabian of the Saclavi class, of the Koelani breed.

Barss was the only one of the breed that combined the blood, muscle, power of endurance and temper of Smetanka. Barss left eleven stallions, four of which had no progeny. Count Orloff bred Barss to English-bred mares, and avoided inbreeding. When he got the stamp of horses he wanted he gave all his attention to training them. He trained both for speed and endurance. Mr. Rosseau describes the Count as trotting his horses ten or fifteen miles at a stretch, in order to give them stamina. To give them speed he would send them about fifteen hundred feet at top pace. In 1845 the Imperial Government bought up the Orloff stud, and now sells annually the surplus stock which is not required by the Government studs. The Orloffs have bred true for over eighty years. In Russia a horse, to be considered a trotter, must do one verst (3,500 feet) under two minutes. Mr. Rosseau says that the racing career of the Orloff begins at three years of age and continues till they are twelve and fifteen years old. Geldings are not allowed to compete in trotting matches. The stallions are broken when two years old and are always trotted in harness, and never mounted.

In 1845, when the Government bought the Orloff stud from the Countess A. A. Orloff, daughter of the founder, there were 21 stallions and 194 brood mares of the Orloff-bred trotter, and 9 stallions and 112 brood mares of the Orloff hack breed, says the Newark Call.

A Great Institution.

The St. Louis Fair is an exceedingly well-patronized affair always, and the Association has ever been noted for the liberal stakes and purses it offers. This year is no exception to the rule, as a perusal of the St. Louis A. & M. Association's advertisement in another column will show at a glance. Owners of trotters and pacers should enter liberally in the stakes, and do so on or before May 2, 1892, for on that date the entries close.

A Lesson Learned.

The auction sale of trotting stock which took place at the Souther Farm demonstrated clearly that the people who patronize sales of this description now are becoming better acquainted with the value of trotting blood, are able to discriminate between individuals, and show a a willingness to pay fair prices. The old cross-roads debater who argues that the supply of trotters exceeds the demand would receive a severe lesson were he to stand by and hear the bidding on the best animals increase fifty dollars at a time. The people who purchased were satisfied, for they had time to carefully study the blood lines of every animal offered and all they wanted to see was whether the individuals were worthy of their pedigrees. They came, they saw, they bought 'em, for they were determined to have them at a fair price. The lesson taught our small breeders by Mr. Tompkins' sale should prove a valuable one, as it demonstrates most clearly that there is a demand for well-bred animals on this Coast; and, as soon as a well-bred, good-looking individual is offered, there are plenty of horsemen who want that one. The sale was a credit to the enterprising gentleman, and all who were present were loud in their praises of his energy, pluck and good judgment, and when the sale ended there was not one who felt that the day had been wasted, but instead, a feeling of satisfaction seemed to predominate; in fact, everyone resolved to attend the next sale. The Souther Farm sales will fill a niche in the walls of equine fame in the future, and the attendance will increase on every occasion.

The good example set by Mr. Tompkins will be followed, we hope, by all other breeders on this coast. The idea of breeders offering horses for sale at auctions and then "buying them in" must be stopped. At one of the large auction marts in New York it was discovered that a prominent breeder followed this method and when he held his next sale the low prices he received compelled him to publicly acknowledge that he deserved nothing better. His example should be a good warning to others.

Bad Handicapping.

Nothing injures a racing association more than bad handicapping, and we have seen some wretched work in this direction during the past week. The first race which showed the Blood Horse handicapper's incompetency was the one won by three lengths in a romp by Royal Flush, who had, notwithstanding his defeat of Geraldine at Modesto, but 100 pounds in the saddle against 126 on Zaldivar and 105 on Ulster. Had Zaldivar ever shown that he was twenty-six pounds better than Royal Flush, who had won the only race he started in as a two-year-old in very fast time? No. Then Royal Flush had also opened up this season by beating the queen of sprinters, Geraldine, three-quarters of a mile over a heavy track. He, a three-year-old, carried 109 pounds and a stable boy and beat the old mare easily with 120 pounds and an experienced pilot in the saddle. The horse was defeated here a couple of times when his feet were a trifle sore, and then got in at least a dozen pounds lighter than he should, in all fairness. The result is that he ran away and won in a hand-gallop by three lengths.

The next bad handicap was in a three-year-old race, where Esperanza was asked to carry but 105 pounds, while on the untried Ulster were piled 120 pounds and on Queen Alta, who had run no better than Esperanza, were placed 115 pounds. Result—another runaway race and a procession at the finish. A sensible handicap would have been: Esperanza, 112 pounds; Queen Alta, 110 pounds; Ulster, 114 pounds. If these had been the weights, a head-and-head finish would have resulted, and everyone would have been satisfied. On the heels of this procession came another handicap of two-year-olds, where Monowai's weight was placed at 120, Orrin's at 90 and Alliance's at 90. Orrin carried three pounds over, or 93. A few days previous to this race Orrin, with equal weight up and not in the best racing condition imaginable, had run a good third to Monowai, the distance separating the winner and third horse at the finish, being a trifle over two lengths. If there were twenty-seven pounds difference between the two youngsters, we fail to see where it came in. The old law of handicapping is that seven pounds means three lengths and three lengths a second. Allowing a two lengths' beating, then Monowai was not more than six pounds better than Orrin, instead of thirty, as the handicapper made it out last Saturday. If this figuring is correct, the weights should have been: Monowai, 120; Orrin, 114 (twenty-one pounds less than he had); Alliance, 85. Then we should have seen a beautiful finish, instead of a certainty for Orrin, as it proved in the end.

A bad handicap cuts two ways. The public becomes thoroughly disgusted with processions in place of horse races and loses interest in racing, while an owner who get such a heavy impost for his horse that it stands no chance of winning becomes "sore" and imagines that the handicapper has some grievance and is giving him the worst of the weight in a spirit of revenge. This bad handicapping often results in owners keeping their horses away forever from the track where they think they have been "cinched." While we do not believe that such practices are often in vogue, we do know that the handicapping here this spring has not given satisfaction to the public and a majority of the owners thus far, and it would be better to have no handicap races at all than to see horses win three and four lengths off, with not even a fight for the place.

A Bewitching Study.

All the various owners of stallions who have been close observers of the class of mares that have been booked to their horses agree upon one fact, and that is that owners of broodmares are paying more attention to the value of "good crosses" than they have done heretofore. One of our largest stock farm owners says that the idea of sending mares to breed to any no merit stallion that has, is dying out. The owner of the broodmare comes and inspects the horse, "sizes him up" you might call it, and sees if the animal will be good enough to breed to his mare. The breeding may suit him very well, but the individual might prove a disappointment; then he goes away and visits some other stock farm; always seeking to get as near an ideal cross for his mare as possible. He wants to take no chances, and does not believe in trusting to luck. The science of breeding to him is one to which he loves to devote all his spare time and attention to. He takes the leading turf papers, has all of Wallace's Register Books in his library, and is willing to listen to all arguments, pro and con, regarding the merits of all horses. Having selected the stallion and booked the mare, he patiently waits and watches for the coming of the youngster, and when it arrives his interest in the equine beauty increases. He takes untold satisfaction in watching the growth and development of the young trotter; he sees in it points that every horseman of his acquaintance acknowledges are indicative of speed and perfect conformation; he watches with undefined pleasure the love and affection bestowed by his favorite broodmare for her baby trotter as the little one speeds across the paddock with its head and tail on high, skimming like a bird o'er the grassy meadow.

The weeks, months and years roll on and the youngster is taken up and trained, and, by his gait and gameness, proves that his breeder's theory regarding his breeding is a correct one. The satisfaction that is afforded the gentlemanly owner is another great factor that adds to the sum total of his pleasure, for he sees where that pleasure is combined with profit, and perhaps a glorious reputation awaits him.

There is hardly a stallion that has been advertised in the columns of this journal whose list of mares is not superior in quality to any he has ever been stinted to. The owner of each stallion is satisfied, therefore, that there is a better chance for his horse to get 2:30 performers than he ever had before, and he believes that horsemen everywhere are being convinced that owners of mares are becoming educated and that the old idea of breeding mares to the best-bred stallions, irrespective of conformation, disposition, or color, is lost in the dusk of old fogyism, and the dawn of a progressive era is becoming brighter every year.

The Trotters' Turn Next.

The thoroughbreds will leave the Bay District track as soon as the races are over next Saturday. They will scatter to all the prominent points where racing is to be held in the United States. Some will stop over at Sacramento on their eastern journey and show the people of the Capital City that they have been trained to go at the dropping of the flag, thus furnishing proof of the efficacy of having had a master-mind to direct their movements while here. The Blood Horse meeting so far has been a decided success in every particular, and nothing has occurred, except in the work of handicapping, that will hereafter be reflected upon by interested horsemen for any shortcomings either in attendance, management or enthusiasm. The public has been awakened to the delight of the sport, and should the long-talked-of race track proposition be broached again, there is little doubt but that it will find a greater and more unanimous endorsement than it has heretofore received.

The trotting-horse interests on this Coast will receive a "boom" this year also, if they are conducted in a proper manner. The example set by the President and Directors of the Blood Horse meeting may be copied most profitably by the officers in charge of our trotting-horse meetings. The employment of a professional judge who understands the public's wants and realizes the great importance of having every race called on time, must first be considered; his presence will also prove a great drawing card. The laying up of heats and the delay occasioned by drivers who are controlled by the pool-boxes must receive a death blow at the beginning of the season. The public ought to be pleased, and when the various trotting-horse organizations realize this fact, then, not till then, will success crown their efforts.

The year 1891 was a great one in the trotting world, but the year 1892 will be a greater one. Already the din and bustle of thousands of trotters is heard. The various tracks throughout the United States are "alive" with scores of trotters and pacers moving to and fro in their preparatory work for the great events of the year. More money is offered on the circuits than has heretofore been dreamed of; the numerous "phenomenal" trotters and pacers that flashed across the horizon last year have startled the managers of the different associations, who at once perceived that the trotting meeting that induces the greatest number of these "stars," will have the largest gate receipts. To do this, they are offering liberal purses and asking low entrance fees from the owners of these fast ones so they will be able to place their various organizations on a good, sound financial basis, and be able to still further encourage the industry of breeding and raising trotters.

In the coming seven months there will be a great string of "wonders" on the turf. In the contests for stallion championship there will be Palo Alto, Stamboul, Allerton, Nelson, Delmarch, Axtell and various others (that are not thought of at presen,t) that will trot for the richest prize of the trotting turf. It will be a wise man who can predict which stallion will wear that crown at the close of this year.

Then look at the array of last year's two-year-olds that will come out as three-year-olds this fall. Arion (if handled), Monbars, Ralph Wilkes, Macleay, Kebir, Annorean, Bermuda Boy, Bellflower and a score of others that are working hard to get as close to the 2:10¾ mark, as possible.

The scores of yearlings that are being gently handled with a view of wresting the honors from Frou-Frou and Fausta will be heard of in their battles on the turf, and there are strong reasons for believing that Father Time's hour glass, which has been set for the infants, will be shattered. The thousands of horses that are striving to get within the charmed circle, besides the long list of those which are already safe within that "sacred boundary line," represent millions of dollars, and are owned by extensive stock farm owners as well as many small breeders. The work of developing all the horses, old and young, is still going on. In California, a greater interest is being taken than has ever been shown before, and the majority of youngsters being trained are far superior to those that tested the patience and skill of trainers a few years ago. We venture to assert that four-fifths of them trace to the most fashionable foundations on both paternal and maternal sides, and, consequently, the gameness which everyone seeks in the best-bred ones, and is unknown among the "mongrels," makes the work of training much more enjoyable and profitable.

James M. Nelson, one of the best-known turfmen in America, died Tuesday night last at the Baldwin Hotel, this city. Mr. Nelson was a native of Charleston, S. C., about fifty-five years of age, and was respected and beloved by an unusually large circle of friends. The deceased, who had been presiding judge at Gloucester, N. J., race course during a meeting lasting 280 days, had become overworked in his endeavor to make the racing successful, and came to California in the hope of gaining strength and vigor from our equable climate. Attending the races at Bay District track on the opening day, Mr. Nelson caught a severe cold, and that, combined with the asthma, resulted in his never leaving his room again alive. Twenty odd years ago Mr. Nelson received a fall from a horse, injuring his back, and has never been strong or hearty from that date. The deceased was a terror to evil-doers while officiating as presiding judge, but his genial manners and splendid conversational powers made him popular wherever he was. The remains were embalmed and sent to the place of his nativity, Charleston, South Carolina.

THE OLD MELROSE TRACK.

Will Oakland at Last Have a Great Race Course?—New Bidders at Emeryville.

It will be good news to Oakland horsemen, the information that a movement is on foot to rehabilitate the old Finigan speed track at Melrose.

Time was when horsemen came from far and near to speed their horses on the Melrose track, and when the old clubhouse, gone to ruin now, was the favorite resort of the kings who put the great sport on its feet in California—the men who laid, deep and broad, the foundations upon which were to be reared the race horse industry of the Golden Coast of today.

It was in the days of old John Treat that the Melrose track was laid out. John Treat was a man of rare discrimination and judgment, a typical horsemen of the olden times, and he dreamed great dreams of the future of racing as it would be conducted upon the breezy downs where he lected to lay out his track. It was in a salt marsh that he laid it out, and the soil was banked up, high and dry, and with not a grain of sand in ten miles of it. There was nothing but the tough roots and fibres of sea grass going to its composition, and there was about such soil a springiness that other tracks hereabouts have nothing of. Horses running upon it went as upon a rubber cushion, each step provoking a corresponding spring, and there was none of the jolting that breaks and ruins many a noble animal upon the tracks of these times. Speed—well, there was speed, and the inspiration of speed, in the Melrose track, or the Finigan track, rather, as it came to be called in after time. It was upon this track that Senator Stanford's milk wagon mustang, Occident lowered the world's trotting record—the animal all at once discovering that it had good blood in its veins, and at the same time awakening in Leland Stanford the latent love of sport that has eventuated in the splendid establishment at Palo Alto, and given to the world Sunol and Palo Alto and a hundred other good ones. Speaking of Occident, why should his breeding ever have been traced? Were not all the mustangs descended from the Barbs of Andalusia? Do you not see it to-day in the conformation of even the most scrawny of them still remaining? And are not the evil habits of the mustang the same result of years of abuse that can be seen in the case of the Godolphin Arabian? The mustangs have fire and spirit—and there is not one of them that will not go until he drops in his tracks.

But this is wandering. The old track passed from the hands of John Treat. He could not make a success of it. Possibly he was in the field ahead of his time. Then P. A. Finigan obtained control, and gradually the old track has been allowed to fall into decay. Half the course has fallen back into the marsh. The club house is a pigeon roost. The fences are down. The stable roofs sog and sway in the wind. The swallows build nests in the judges' stand, and old horsemen, passing on the trains to Livermore and San Jose, sigh for the times that are gone. Yet there is no reason why the dream—the dream of old John Treat—should not be realized. The track is admirably located for all purposes of racing. It is as easy of access from San Francisco as the Oakland Trotting Park, and there could be built there a course that would take the place of the Bay District at once, and the Oakland track.

That it will be rehabilitated and used once more for racing now seems one of the things that is exceedingly apt to occur. The gentlemen who are taking an interest are the same who controlled the lately defunct Gentleman's Driving Association, and who talked at one time of building an entirely new track, because they could not come to terms with the lessee of the Oakland track. Such men as Charles Neal, of Alameda; Gilbert Tompkins, of the Souther Farm; Alfred Cohen, of Alameda, and Supervisor Brown, with about twenty others have, it is reported, agreed to go into the scheme to create a speed track at Melrose. That means, of course, a track that will eventually be used for all purposes of racing. It will not cost more than from $1,600 to $2,000 to put the old track in condition for racing, and P. A. Finigan, who is about to leave for Europe to be absent a year or more, has given the gentlemen interested the use of the track free of charge to do with as they like until his return, and as much longer as they may desire. Should the present plans prove successful—and there is no reason why they should not—it is more than probable that Oakland will yet see a great race course, one worthy of the State and of the center of population of the State, on this side of the bay.

OAKLAND TROTTING PARK.

There would appear to be not a little doubt as to what is to be the future of the Oakland Trotting Park at Emeryville. The lease of Mr. Lavin expires on May 26th, and whatever is done with the property, Judge Mee, its owner, is certain that the Lavin lease will not be renewed. That would seem to be the only certain thing in the whole business. The Portuguese and Italian gardeners are still anxious to secure the land for a vegetable garden—but Judge Mee would like to keep it up in its present shape, if that is possible. The gardener will only get it when he knows that he can do no better—and he now has a chance to do better. Judge Mee's idea was to lease property to some of the gentlemen composing the directory of the Golden Gate Fair Association, and to do that he was willing to spend anywhere from $10,000 to $25,000 in building new grand stands, repairing fences and stables, and for the general improvement of the place. He wanted a guarantee, however, from the directors that would assure him interest upon the sums invested. He wanted, moreover, the personal guarantee of these gentlemen, being unwilling to take that of the association. As a matter of fact, the association being a creature of the State, is liable to be legislated out of existence at any time—and, should Judge Mee take it as security, he would be as apt as not to find out, some fine morning, that he had a guarantee from nobody. That is why he wanted individual security.

"I do not yet know what we will do about the Oakland Trotting Park," said Director William M. Kent, of the Golden Gate Fair Association, to a reporter for the Times, yesterday. "I shall call a meeting next week, however, and then the subject will be discussed thoroughly. Of course, if the Portuguese gardeners get it we will have to hold our meeting, which begins on August 15th, across the bay. That is the worst of the whole business. But I hardly think it will come to that as, in case we do not take it, Judge Mee has a couple of men who are after the place, and who will make a first-class racing property of it. I do not know who these parties are. The truth about the Directors giving the owner of the track a personal guarantee lies in the fact that we only hold office for four years, and consequently we would be apt to find before the lease had expired, that the track was controlled by men having no connection with the Fair Association. But we will know something more definitely next week."—Oakland Times.

History of the Mohawks.

Mohawk 604, bred by Geo. Alley, of Westchester Co., New York, sired by Long Island Blackhawk 24. His dam was by Mambrino Chief 11. She was known in New York State being one of the best road mares that ever was driven in New York City.

In the year 1860 Jos. W. Hall, of Fredericktown, Knox Co., Ohio, shipped a car load of horses to New York City for the purpose of exchanging what the load would bring for a trotting stallion. He was shown many stallions, and selected Mohawk because he was large, fine and possessed great speed. I shall never forget the day he landed at Fredericktown; it was the first day of April, 1860. A few days before he landed it was known that a trotting stallion was expected to arrive at Fredericktown on the first of April, and a large crowd had gathered to see him. When the car was run up for him to be unloaded it was found that Mohawk could not be gotten out until the top of the door and a part of the roof had to be cut away; his neck was so long that he could not get it down to get out until it was cut away above. The crowd cheered when he struck the ground and bounded off with his head high in the air. He was a dark chestnut, three white ankles, star and snip, 16 hands, weighed 1250 pounds. For style, size, beauty and speed no stallion in his day could excel him. He trotted a number of races after he was brought West, and never was defeated. He always trotted to a sulky that weighed 125 pounds. I have seen him pull this sulky over miserable half-mile tracks in 2:32 different times. No records of trotters were ever kept in this county at the time old Mohawk won his races. To say he was the greatest stallion ever brought to Ohio does not do him justice, for we doubt if ever there was a greater stallion lived than old Mohawk, considering his opportunities. He never was known to serve a standard mare or one that could trot in three minutes except Lady Weaver, dam of Mohawk Jr., 2:26.

Mohawk 604 was a great sire, considering the class of mares bred to him. He sired Clark's Mohawk, record 2:25 at four years old, sire of Yellow Dock, record 2:11 with running mate, and many others with records better than 2:30. He sired Hall's Mohawk, record 2:26, sire of Belle Ogle, 2:21½, Mohawk Chief, 2:30, Mohawk Gift, 2:21¾, Mohawk Kate, 2:26, and McFadden (p), 2:24. The readers of your journal who reside in this State all know of the hard-fought battles that Belle Ogle won through the Grand Circuit. Mohawk Gift won the Ohio stallion stake at Cleveland, Ohio, defeating a number of good stallions. Hall's Mohawk, 2:25, has sired a number of good colts in this country that will soon enter the list. Among them are such young stallions as Mohawk Jr. 2d, now owned by Geo. Hall, of Fredericktown, O. The young stallion is destined to make as low a mark as his half-sister, Belle Ogle, 2:21½, and is now being educated by his owner, who educated Belle Ogle. Mr. Hall informs me that he will make a short season with Mohawk Jr. 2nd, and then prepare him to start through the Grand Circuit. He certainly will be a good one in his class, as we have repeatedly seen him trot miles in 2:28, and he has no record. Mohawk Jr. 2d is sixteen hands, and will weigh 1200 poundt. He is marked and looks just like his sire, Hall's Mohawk. 2:26, says a correspondent of the American Trotter.

Mohawk 604 is also the sire of Elmo, sire of Alfred S., 2:16, Overman, 2:19, L. C. Lee, 2:15, and others with records better than 2:30.

Alfred S. is owned by Robert Bonner, of New York City. Mr. Bonner sent his son over to Philadelphia to see Sunol trot, and when he returned Mr. Bonner asked him how he liked Sunol. He remarked "I liked her very well, but I saw a horse I like much better." Mr. Bonner informed his father that Alfred S. was the horse that he liked better than Sunol. Mr. immediately wrote to Mr. Hickok, asking him what he would take for Alfred S. The purchase was soon made, Mr. Bonner paying seven thousand five hundred dollars for Alfred S. Mr. Bonner is now driving Sunol and Alfred S. together.

The Mohawk horse, Keno F., record 2:17, surprised everyone by winning the ten thousand dollar stake in 1890. Keno F. and Alfred S. were two of the most successful trotters that went through the Grand Circuit in 1890.

The Mohawk mares are selling for big figures to be crossed to Wilkes stallions. The dam of Jack Shield, three-year-old record 2:22, is a Mohawk mare. His sire is Boss Wilkes. There never has been any family of trotters in this country that have sold for the money that the Mohawks have. Mohawk 604 sold for $4,000, Elmo sold a three years old for $2,000, Belle Ogle sold for $3,000, two Mohawk brood mares were recently sold for $900. Good horses bring good prices.

Anyone having a well matched team for sale will find a buyer by applying at this office. See advertisement in another column.

FIXTURES FOR THE FUTURE.

May 1st—Road-race, under the auspices of the P. A. A. A. U., at San Leandro, Cal.

May 1st—Cricket match, between the Alameda and Klinknerville teams.

May 26th—P. A. A. A. U., annual boxing tournament, in the Olympic Club gymnasium, to decide the championships of the Pacific Coast.

May 30th—P. A. A. A. U., second out-door championship meeting, at the Olympic Club grounds.

May 30th—Alameda Bicycle and Athletic Club, bicycle tournament, at the Schutzen Park grounds, Alameda, Cal.

July 4th—City Division L. A. W., annual race-meet, under the auspices of the Bay City Wheelmen and Capital City Wheelmen, at Sacramento, Cal.

SUMMARY.

To-morrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock, the first road-race of the P. A. A. A. U. will be held at San Leandro, Cal., and, judging from the large number of entries the race will be a hot one from start to finish. Several athletes, many of whom are Olympians, are getting into trim for the coming championship meeting. The University boys from Berkeley are rather discouraged over the failure of their team on the occasion of the last Olympic Club field-day. The wheelmen are practising hard for the race meet of the Alameda Bicycle and Athletic Club, which is billed for Decoration Day. The great International Tug-of-war has been crowding the Mechanics Pavilion during the week, and it is expected that even standing room will be at a premium this evening when the championship will be decided.

THE ATHLETES, WHEELMEN, CRICKETERS, OARSMEN, ETC.

The amateur athletes are in a quandary as to whether or not the annual out-door championship meeting will be held this year. President Robert McArthur, of the P. A. A. A. U., is very much discouraged because he finds it impossible to get together the delegates from the different associate clubs, and unless the outside clubs come to his assistance at once the chances are that the Olympic Club will be compelled to take the matter into its own hands entirely and manage the meeting itself. Considering the large number of outside clubs, the lack of interest on the part of the delegates proves that athletics on the Pacific Coast are on the decline. The track athletes have every chance in the world to practice on a good track, and their failure to recognize this fact more thoroughly must be regarded as a sign that the day is fast approaching when purses instead of prizes will be sought after by our leading sprinters and field athletes. An uncalled for spirit of dissatisfaction at present exists between the two leading clubs, viz., the Olympic and the University, and every week, through the columns of the Occident, a paper published in the interests of the students at Berkeley, the Olympic club members are given to understand that the U. C. athletes are growing very tired of their company, both athletically and socially. If the sentiments of the athletic editor of the Occident are echoed by the rest of the students it is about time that the Olympic Club boys were duplicating the line of separation which that publication is struggling tooth and nail to draw. There is a perfume of jealousy and boorishness about all the articles that have lately appeared in the Occident regarding the Olympic Club members, which materially proves that the O. A. C. team is growing stronger and firmer, while the U. C. team is getting weaker and less confident. Were the coming championship meeting of the P. A. A. A. U. to be held under the old rules, that of awarding points to the first three men in each event, and a pennant to the club whose representatives won the most points, the O. A. C. could easily spare a few good men out of the contests, and then experience no difficulty in walking off with the championship banner. We earnestly hope that the Occident growler is alone in his denunciations and that the student athletes will follow the teachings of their better nature and get in and train good naturedly and with the intention of meeting their foemen on an open battle-field, where they will soon find out that their Olympian foemen are brave and generous warriors and not the "dirty scrubs" that the Occident would have them.

All who desire to witness the great road-race at San Leandro to-morrow, should leave this city on the boat which leaves the wharf at 12 o'clock noon. There are several entries from the different associate clubs of the P. A. A. U., and the distance will be four miles. Skillman will be at scratch, while the other runners will be given starts according to their previous records. The limit man will be sent off at two o'clock P. M. sharp, and the others will follow in their order of handicaps.

To-morrow afternoon there will be a practice game of cricket at the Klinknerville grounds between men picked from the different clubs. At the Alameda grounds the Klinknerville combination will play against the Alameda combination.

A picnic run of all the bicycle clubs around the coast will be held to San Mateo beach to-morrow. It is expected that several hundred wheelmen will attend.

The Bay City Wheelmen have moved from their old quarters, 301 Van Ness avenue, to the much larger building, 519 Van Ness avenue.

President J. J. Kennedy, of the Golden Gate Bicycle Club, has almost entirely recovered from the effects of the injuries caused by his taking a "header" several weeks ago.

On Tuesday evening, April 21st, the Olympic Club gave a "Ladies' Night" entertainment. The gymnasium was crowded with a fashionable audience. The programme consisted of athletics and an operetta. The latter proved to be highly interesting, but the athletic portion of the programme was hardly as good as on former occasions. The programme was as follows:

Horizontal bar, Messrs. Boyce, Boulo, Huber, Keller, Schuster, Prof. Braun and Prof. Bogner colored.

Boxing, F. Paul and S. Vicini; F. L. Cooley and R. McArthur.

Fencing with rapiers, Prof. Troischer and F. Chapuis.

Single trapeze, Walter Hogg.

Indian clubs, H. J. McGill.

Cox and Box, an operetta. Characters: Box, Mr. Alfred Wilkie; Cox, Mr. H. M. Fortescue. Bouncer, Mr. F. G. B. Mills.

At the recent practice field-day of the University Athletic Club the following records were made:

50-yard scratch run, Mays, 1st; time, 4 4-5 seconds.
1-mile run, Phelps, scratch, 1st; time, 4:47 4-5 seconds.
120-yard run, Linney, 10 yards, 1st; time 12 1-5 seconds.
440-yard run, Linney, 22 yards, 1st; time, 53 4-5 seconds.
Running long jump, Morse, scratch, 1st; distance, 21 feet 3½ inches.
Running high jump, North, scratch; height, 5 feet 1 inch.

The Spring field-day of the club will be held on Saturday afternoon, May 21st, on the cinder track at Berkeley, Cal.. The following is the programme as at present laid out:

100-yard maiden run, closed. 100-yard scratch run, open. 120-yard run, handicap closed. 220-yard handicap, open. 440-yard run, closed. handicap. 880-yard run, open handicap. One-mile run, closed. handicap. One-mile walk, closed, handicap. 120-yard hurdle, closed, handicap. 220-yard hurdle, open, handicap. Running broad jump, closed handicap. Running high jump, open handicap. Running, hop, step and jump, closed scratch. Pole vault for height, open scratch. Putting 16-lb shot, open handicap. Flinging 56-lb weight, closed scratch. Throwing 16-lb. hammer, open scratch. Standing broad jump, open handicap. Tug-of-war, class teams. Class relay race. Two-mile run, open handicap, special Stanford University event, Three-legged race, closed scratch. Entries will close on May 13th. An entrance fee of fifty cents will be charged for each event. Gold medals will be awarded to the first man in each event and silver to second.

"Nemo" desires to know if a professional fighter can take part in an amateur foot race. He states that Joe Soto, of the Alpine Club, who ran at the last field-day of the O. A. C. is a professional fighter. "Nemo" also declares that V. N. Bakulich, of the Olympic Club, has forfeited his amateur standing by taking part in the tug-of-war tournament. According to the rules of the Amateur Athletic Union any man who competes for money in any branch of athletics is a professional. Bakulich and Soto are therefore professional athletes and cannot enter in any amateur sport.

Answers to Correspondents.

Answers for this department MUST be accompanied by the name and address of the sender, not necessarily for publication, as proof of good faith. Write the question distinctly, and on one side of the paper only. Postively no questions will be answered by mail or telegraph.

M. J. S., Salinas, Cal.—"A" has two colts entered in a trotting colt stake. After making first and second payment he intends to drop one colt out, but the trainer offers to make the remaining payments and start the colt in his own name. Can he do so, there being no rule of the local association prohibiting it? Answer—Yes. The trainer can secure the trotting qualities of the colt, and he can be started in the trainer's name.

Will some one please give us the breeding of a horse called Copperbottom, that stood in Santa Clara county a good many years ago?

J. L., Chico, asks us: Will you please state when and by whom was Nelly Richmond registered, and what was her breeding? Will some of our subscribers please answer this correctly.

J. W. M., Roseburg, Ore.—Please inform me if there is a figure eight track in California, and what other places have them. Are they considered a fast or slow track? Answer.—There are no figure eight tracks in California, and very few in the country. We believe Coney Island Association has one, but are not positive.

F. S., Vallejo, Cal.—Is Dunton's Ethan Allen a standard horse, and if so what is his number? Answer—Woodward's Ethan Allen is a standard and registered horse, but Dunton's Ethan Allen is not registered in any volume from two to ten inclusive. If you will give us the breeding of his dam we may be able to tell you whether he is standard or not.

G. W. B. City.—What was the time of fastest half-mile race ever run in California? Answer—Forty-eight seconds, and no less than five California horses have hit this mark, viz., Cyclone, at Santa Rosa, August 17, 1886; Daisy D., at Petaluma, August 25, 1886; Susie S., at Ione, August 9, 1889; Iodine, at Visalia, October 10, 1890; Ed McGinty, at Visalia, October 8, 1890. This has never been beaten in California in a half-mile race.

G. P. L., Los Angeles, asks: In June, 1888, I bought a mare called Lill F. from a Miss Luch, of West Oakland, Cal. Lill F. was s. t. b., sired by Pacing Abdallah, and her dam was Fiora, by Ethan Allen. Lill is said to have made a record in 1878 of 2:32½. She was brought from Kentucky by P. J. Finigan, and was owned by Father Michael Gleason, of East Oakland, who sold her to Mr. Leach, who kept a hotel in West Oakland. Mr. H. R. Warner, of East San Gabriel, has been making inquiries about her, and says that a mare named Lill F. is still owned up north. Can you give me any information as to Lill's sire or dam, or as to the party is who owns a Lill F. up north? Some one please answer this.

J. D. M., Vallejo—Please inform me through your valuable paper who was the owner of a horse called Venture, record 2:27¼, about the year 1878? Where is the said owner residing at present? Is Venture still alive? Do you know of any horseman by the name of John Allman? He raised a mare called Miss Allman, said to be sired by Gen. McClellan 141. The last time I heard of him he resided in the city. I would like to find his address. Answer—We believe the Williamson Bros., San Jose, Cal., owned the horse at that time, and Henry Williamson is still alive and living at San Jose. We do not know the gentleman you enquire about.

F. P. G., Marsfield, Or., wishes some information as to the breeding and performances of a stallion called Leviathan, said to be the sire of Old Nancy, record 2:32, bred in Oregon and taken to California and obtained his record. 2. What is the fee and how do you provide for a Racing Organization to join the National Trotting Association? Answer—1. We have no traces of a mare with the record you give us. 2. Address: The yearling membership to the National Association is based upon the amount of money given in purses and stakes by the member joining. Write to M. M. Morse, secretary National Trotting Horse Association, Hartford, Con., for particulars.

W. G., Needy, Or.—1. Please state through your paper the breeding of Pacific Laplander and who bred him? I think he was brought to Oregon in early days by G. J. Baskett. 2. The breeding the stallion Uncas, and who bred him? Answer—1. We know nothing of this Laplander. 2. There were several stallions (thoroughbreds) called Uncas. One, foaled in 1841, was by imp. Jordan, dam Adria, by Pacific, and was bred by Michael Schlatre, Plaquemine, La.; another Uncas was foaled in 1828, sired by Sir Archy Montorio, out of Lady Jane, by Potomac; still another by Uncas, dam by Alphine, bred by James Gamble, Indiana; another by Randolph (Desha's), dam by Dungannon, bred by R. C. Hawkins, Arkansas; another Uncas was by Stockholder, dam by Powhatan, bred by O. Shelby; lastly, one by American Eclipse, dam by Shawnee, bred by J. K. Bullock, North Carolina.

Fissure of the Hoof-Wall.

Except with those whom experience has taught differently, experience acquired in owning or having the charge of a horse with sandcrack, the prevailing impression seems to be that it is possible, by proper treatment, to "cure" fissure of the hoof-wall; but this is utterly impossible, for we can no more obtain a reunion of the divided edges than we can unite a split finger-nail—in fact, the same thing must happen in both instances. We must obtain a growth of sound horn from the coronet, and the crack or split must grow out.

Horn is sometimes spoken of as "built of hairs firmly matted together," and it really consists of tubes which are similar to hair and secreted by the same kind of cells. It is without sensation or blood supply, and is incapable of diseased action, being a secreted and not formative material. With a substance like horn no such process as healing is possible, and once it is divided it will never grow together again.

There are two positions in which sandcrack generally makes its appearance, and they are described as "toe" sandcrack and "quarter" sandcrack. Toe sandcrack is mostly seen in heavy horses, and results from digging the toe into the ground as the horse throws his weight into the collar and propels his body forward. It is invariably the hind feet that develop to sandcrack. Quarter sandcrack is generally confined to the forefeet, and principally to light horses. This is accounted for by the quarters being the weakest part of the hoof, and its greatest frequency in the inner quarter by this being the weaker of the two.

The most serious cases are where the fissure penetrates quite through the horn, exposing and permitting the insinuation of grit and dirt to the sensitive foot structures, and unfortunately these are the most common.

In the treatment of a sandcrack, two objects must be kept in view—to promote the growth of sound, strong horn from the coronet, since, as we have already pointed out, reunion is impossible, and, in order to give the newly-produced horn a fair chance, to limit the motion of the wall of the foot as much as possible. Where the crack is superficial there is no lameness, but it requires attention nevertheless.

Lameness arises when dirt penetrates the crack, and causes irritation and pain to the sensitive foot structures; but it is most severe when granulations sprout up through the crack, and are pinched between the divided edges as the foot is alternately lifted up and brought to the ground. This makes the limiting of motion doubly necessary. Sometimes the crack does not extend right up the coronet, and then the old fashioned plan of cutting off the fissures from the coronet, so as to prevent extension, is very useful. This consists in cutting a groove, or drawing a red-hot firing iron or blacksmith's shovel, down from the coronet in the shape of a V, the apex corresponding to the middle of the crack, and the two limbs to the coronet on the two sides of the crack.

To further reduce movement, to prevent the ingress of dirt and to strengthen the hoof—in the case of a horse that is not lame and can work—binding the foot tightly with strips of stout linen is useful. The edges of the crack should be thinned, and in the case that does not penetrate through the horn to the quick, it should be as nearly as possible rasped out. The hoof should then be thickly tarred, the linen strips wound tightly round, putting more tar between each layer of bandage, and then securely fastened off.

When there is a bad fissure and fungus granulations appear through it, they should be cauterized, the edges thinned and the crack riveted or clamped. There are several ways of doing this, and an appliance for this purpose, suggested by Professor McGill has been patented. The clips of this instrument are arranged so that they travel on a thread, or screw, and when the nut between the two is turned with spanner, they are brought towards each other. A notch or groove is fitted in the hoof on either side of the crack into which the clips are fitted, and when drawn together movement is reduced to a minimum. There are also other clips or clamps devised for similar purposes. Riveting is a plan we have practiced with considerable success. This is simply an ordinary shoeing-nail of suitable size driven from one side of the crack to the other, the number put in being according to the length of the crack. Considerable care is required in setting the point of the nail to begin with, and also in the driving, because it is obvious that the nail must not penetrate or press too closely on the sensitive foot structures. When successfully driven the nail is drawn up and clinched tightly, as when it secures the shoe to the foot, and the head rasped down sufficiently to prevent its getting in the way. Drawing up and clinching the nail brings the divided edges together, and retains them in position as with the clip. Any good blacksmith could rivet a sandcrack when once shown how.

With a quarter sandcrack there is rather more difficulty than when the split is at the toe, owing to the horn being thinner at the quarters and giving less nailing room. A bar shoe is useful in that it assists in keeping the crack together, and this is frequently applied with advantage. In all cases, no matter what shoe is employed, there should be no clips or nails in the shoe in the immediate neighborhood of the split, and it is well to pare out the hoof under the crack in the shape of a half moon, so that it does not take a bearing on the shoe.

When the crack runs right up to the coronet, and treatment proves useless to get sound horn to grow from it, sandcrack is a bad business, and there remains nothing but a trial of the French operation of stripping the foot and a prolonged rest. Blistering the coronet tends to promote the rapid growth of horn, and may perhaps have a useful effect in those cases where the brittleness arises from disease of the horn-secreting structures. In every case that is bad enough to call for cessation of work, owing to lameness, or when rest is given as a precautionary measure and to favor recovery, a blister should be applied, while, in every instance, a gentle stimulation would be an advantage. Brittle feet that are disposed to crack should have every care taken of them by the frequent application of some animal fat, or they should be dressed with that useful hoof dressing, lanolin. Lanolin consists of a mixture of Cholesterin fat and water, and is a by-product in wool manufacture, but is also obtained from horses' hoofs, hair, feathers, etc. It is perfectly neutral, and does not easily become rancid like other fats. Experiments made with lanolin on living as well as dead horses' hoofs go to show that the horn of living animals becomes not only firm and elastic, but is no longer so liable to split and crack. Dead horn treated with it becomes soft and pliable. It has other advantages over the ordinary rough fat generally used, in that it does not decompose and form fatty acids or spoil the consistency of the horn and increase its tendency to dry up, and it leaves the pores of the hoof free.

One caution with reference to sandcrack may not be out of place—in purchasing a horse without warranty or veterinary examination, always look carefully at the hoof walls, as dealers sometimes fill up the crack by running in some melted cobbler's wax, gutta percha or pitch, and when this is done neatly and all the hoofs are blacked round, only a careful observer will detect it.

Spokane's Meeting.

It is hardly necessary to call the attention of our readers to the advertisement in our columns of the Spokane Fair and Agricultural Association. The policy pursued by the management toward all who compete in the races has been so well endorsed and so highly commended that it has been held up as a model by visiting horsemen for other associations to copy. As entries will close June 7th our horsemen should take time by the firelock and send in the name of their very best ones.

St. Louis' Great Fair.

Entries for the stakes offered by this great Association close on Monday, May 2d, and as many owners of our very best trotters and pacers are preparing to go East they should not let this opportunity pass of making their entries now. St. Louis is well known and the reputation which its race course and its managers enjoy are guarantees of the cordial reception all horsemen will receive. See the advertisement in this issue and act accordingly.

Modesto Races.

The horsemen of Modesto are early in the field with their advertisement, and it is so self-explanatory that a reference to it is hardly necessary. Stanislaus county is coming to the front, and as a horse-breeding county, bids fair to outrival all of its neighbors. Of one thing the owners of colts may be certain, they will receive every support the association can give to render the work of training easy. With a good track and good accommodations, half the labor is saved and nearly all the danger is avoided.

Horsemen, Attention!

Look at the last page of this journal and see the advertisement of a few of the choice young mares to be sold at the Whitney sale. There are twenty in all, and a better bred lot nor a more promising consignment never was brought to the auction block before. In conjunction with them, Messrs. Killip & Co. will offer a number of choicely-bred ones selected from a large number that will be in keeping with those offered by Mr. Whitney, so breeders and owners of stock farms will do well to keep on the lookout for the future announcement regarding this sale, to be published in our issues hereafter.

A Salinas correspondent writes us under date of April 27th: "Yesterday afternoon the standard-bred mare Soprano purchased by Mr. Hiram Corey, of the Las Palmas Farm, Salinas City, Monterey county, Cal., at the recent Palo Alto sale, foaled a bay colt sired by Whips, 2:27½. Mr. Corey has named the little fellow Las Palmas after his stock farm, and expects him to trot both himself and the name into the turf fame in the near future. He claims that name for his colt."

Remember entries close for the spring meeting of the Capital Turf Club, Sacramento, on Monday, May 2, 1892.

Training
The Trotting Horse.

BY CHARLES MARVIN.

This great practical horse book is a handsome, three hundred page octavo, bound in cloth, elegantly printed, superbly illustrated, and explains in every detail the remarkable success of CHARLES MARVIN and the whole plans and methods pursued at Palo Alto as to breaking, training, shoeing, gaiting, driving, keeping, racing and breeding trotters.

Read what J. C. Sibley, the owner of St. Bel, says of this book: "In this work Marvin has let out all the mysteries of the craft, and it is so simple and plain that any breeder, owner, trainer or rubber who has any relish for his business can take a colt as a yearling and develop to the highest and fullest extent that colt's capacity as a trotter. The work impressed me so strongly that I have ordered twenty copies, and shall place one in the hands of every rubber on our farm."

Mailed postpaid for $3.50. Address

CONDITIONS.

Entry blanks can be obtained from the Secretary. Each entry must plainly state name, age, color and sex of horse, name of sire and dam, and name of owner. The colors of rider or driver must also be given with the entry. Owner should not overlook this last item; it is a very useful piece of information for the public. Under no circumstances will any conditional entries be received. No added money will be given for a walk-over.

Two and one-half per cent. of purse must accompany all nominations, and all persons will be held for the entrance fee of 10 per cent.

All purses will be divided into three moneys: 70, 20 and 10 per cent.

A horse distancing the field only entitled to first money.

The rules of the National Trotting Association will govern these races. The Association reserves the right to alter, amend or postpone any or all of these races should the board of directors in their judgment and for cause deem it expedient so to do. Parties intending to be present at any of these meetings, and desiring stalls for their horses, are requested to write the Secretary in advance, stating what horses they have and what stalls they are likely to require.

In the event of any race not filling, if the Association deems proper to start the race, they reserve the right to withhold from the purse the entry of the missing horse or horses. In all races five or more are required to enter and three to start. In all races where not otherwise specified the entrance is 10 per cent.

Entries close with the Secretary, John A. Todd, Spokane, Wash., June 6, 1892 6, p. m.

Ehtries must state plainly colors of rider or driver. Horses will postively not be allowed to start unless the colors are worn.

The Secretary will take pleasure in replying to any and all communications with reference to transportation, track facilities and any other desired information.

A FEW FACTS.

The attention of the horsemen of the West is respectfully called to the following facts: Our track is conceded by all to be the fastest and safest in the West, and holds the trotting record, also the fastest stallion record for the North Pacific Coast. Our city to-day is the liveliest in the Pacific Northwest. Our people are hospitable and progressive and turn out en masse to the sport of Kings. If you want to get your horse acclimated before entering the Montana Circuit there is abundant opportunity in this program. If you want to sell, this is a good market for a good individual. It will pay you to spend a week with us.

Australian Thoroughbred Blood

Loyalist and Chesterfield

Two Sons (from Grandly-Bred Mares) of THE MARQUIS, one of Australia's Greatest Sire,

Will make the season of 1892 at the SOUTHER FARM, San Leandro, Cal.

These horses can hardly fail to produce speed and staying qualities from the strains of thoroughbred blood in this State.

Mares that prove not to be with foal may be returned without service fee in 1893, provided the horse bred to is alive and at the Souther Farm.

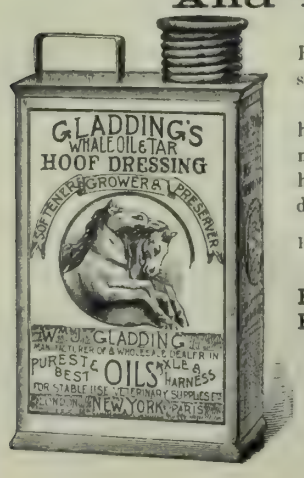
LOYALIST - - - - $100, INCLUDING KEEP OF MARE TILL JULY 1st, 1892.

Bay horse, foaled 1884. Winner of the Brunswick Stakes, worth about $7,000, one and one-quarter mile in 2:08¼.

LOYALIST'S mile and a quarter in 2:08¼ was the best on record in Australia when made, and has only been surpassed by Abercorn and the great Carbine. His sire was a race-horse and a sire of race-horses; his dam was a winner and has produced winners. Loyalist has proven himself a race-horse, and he will produce race-horses.

CHESTERFIELD - $75, INCLUDING FREE KEEP OF MARES UNTIL JULY 1st, 1892.

Bay horse, no white, foaled 1876. Bred by Mr. C. B. Fisher, Victoria. (See Australian Stud Book, Vol. 2, page 201)



CHESTERFIELD was a good race-horse and a first-class weight packer. In ten important stakes he was first in four, second in four and third in two. He will produce great two-year-olds from our California mares; in his own two-year-old form he took up 128 pounds and won the Flying Handicap at Wollongong.

And Take no Other.

This design shows label on Gladding's Whale Oil and Tar Hoof Dressing and Liniment; get the genuine; take no substitute.

It is used by numerous horsemen who are owners of good horses, and from the good results it has given they recommend it to others; it will positively soften and toughen horses' feet that have become hard and brittle from constant driving on hard roads.

Packed in quart screw top cans, with a brush for each can. Also 1 gallon cans, with screw top.

DESCRIPTION.

BAY ROSE is a dark bay or brown, with black points, 16½ hands high, and weighs 1,150 pounds. He is remarkably intelligent, of good dispotition, and a pure-gaited trotter. He was foaled in 1881. His colts are large, stylish, rangy animals, and inherit his qualities of speed and endurance. He is the only horse that won a heat from Palo Alto in 1889.

TERMS, $200 FOR THE SEASON.

Return privileges 1893, provided neither the mare nor stallion change ownership. Good pasturage $3 per month. First-class care taken of mares in any manner that owners may desire, but no responsibility assumed for escapes or accidents.

Limited to a few approved mares.

George Washington
11,628.

2-year-old Record, 2:44;
3-year-old Record, 2:30;
4-year-old Record, 2:20.

GEORGE WASHINGTON is a handsome bay horse, hind feet white, foaled 1886, bred by Thomas Smith of Vallejo, stands 16 hands high, and weighs 1200 pounds.

PEDIGREE:

GEORGE WASHINGTON, by Mambrino Chief Jr. 11,622, record 2:34. George Washington's dam was Fanny Rose (full sister to Prince Allen, 2:27) by Ethan Allen Jr. 2903 (sire of the dams of George Washington 2:20 and Bessie S., 2:29¼, also of Lynwood, sire of Lynette etc, three-year-old record 2:25½; also sire of Prince Allen 2:27) second dam, Jenny Lind, thoroughbred, dam of Prince Allen 2:27.

GEORGE WASHINGTON has proven himself a great race horse, and would have been given a much lower mark last season had it not been for an accident. As an individual, he is all that can be asked, being perfect in form, intelligent and of kind disposition, and represents the highest type of a trotting sire. As he will be put in training for the campaign of 1892, he will be allowed to serve only a limited number of approved mares.

TERMS: $100 FOR THE SEASON.

Mambrino Chief Jr.

WILL MAKE THE SEASON OF 1892 AT $50.

McDONALD CHIEF, 3,583.

Seal brown horse, 16 hands high, and weighs 1175 pounds, foaled June 24th, 1885, got by Clark Chief 89, first dam by Berthune, son of Sidi Hamet grandam by McDonald's Copperbottom. Bred by Thos. Van Meter, Clarke Co. Ky., passed through the hands of Isaac Smith of Lexington, Ky., to Rufus Ingalls of Chicago, Ill., to Thomas Smith of Vallejo, Cal. Trial to wagon, 2:32, has wonderful bone and muscle and very pure-gaited. He sired Catherine, 2:28¼, Mambrino Chief Jr., 2:34, trial 2:26, sire of George Washington, 2:20, Maud, 2:29¾, Highland Chief, 2:30, Daisy S., 2:32 at three years old, trial one-half mile 1:12, Peat Treat 2:23 and a number of others with the ability to beat 2:30 with proper handling.

WILL MAKE THE SEASON OF 1892 AT $40.

Mares not proving in foal may be returned next season Free of Charge. Season commences February 1st. Good pasturage at $3.00 per month, and excellent care taken of Mares in any manner that owners may desire, but no responsibility for accidents or escapes. DIRECTOR JR.

WILL MAKE THE SEASON OF 1892 AT THE ASYLUM RANCH, SAN RAFAEL.

DESCRIPTION.

DIRECTOR JR. is a grandly-formed stallion, a handsome black in color; stands 15.3 hands; weighs 1,175 pounds. In appearance and disposition he is more like Director than any other son of that famous sire. He has never been trained for speed, but can easily show a 2:20 gait on the road, and will surely get a mark much below that this fall, as he will be put in training for this season's campaign. Up to the present time he has been in the stud in Oregon and never given an opportunity to show his speed. His colts, like himself, are all grand lookers, show great trotting action, intelligence and gameness. A three-year-old now in training has shown a mile in 2:21, and Directwood, a two-year-old son, won every race in which he was entered last year, and could have gone in the thirty list had his owner so desired. At the Oregon State Fair last year Director Jr. and five of his get were awarded first premiums.

PEDIGREE.

It will be seen that Director Jr. is bred on blood lines almost identically the same as Direct, 2:06, the Greatest Harness Horse in the World.

DESCRIPTION.

MELROSE is a handsome bay stallion, foaled in 1889; stands 15.3 hands high and weighs 1100 pounds. In conformation he is symmetrical throughout, splendid bone and muscle, stylish and a grand individual in every respect. At twenty months old, with very little work, Tom Murphy drove him a mile in 2:35. As he was growing fast it was decided better to cease working him until this Fall, when he will be prepared for the track and put in the list, barring accidents.

His splendid individuality and fashionable breeding makes him one of the most desirable young stallions on the Coast.

Daisy and Luella are full sisters by Nutwood 600, out of Ruth Ann. Daisy, dam of Anteenut, also dam of Eva G., 4-year-old trial 2:35, and Ella H., 3-year-old trial 2:30.

Third dam by Boston Boy, son of David Hill's Black Hawk, out of Boston Girl.

ANTEENUT stands 16 hands high; blood bay; best disposition; square trotter; quite speedy; had no track work; never worked for speed. Considering the breeding of Anteenut on sire and dam's sides he should certainly reproduce speed, being bred in the height of fashion. Will make the season of 1892 at Santa Rosa.

The ELECTIONEER Trotting Stallion

ELECTION

Bred at Palo Alto by Gov. Leland Stanford,
WILL MAKE THE SEASON FROM FEB. 1st to JULY 1st, 1892, at

Brookside Farm, Mountain View Santa Clara Co.

ELECTION is a bay horse, 8 years old; black points; 15½ hands high; weighs 1075 pounds; fine finish; great quality; kind disposition and pure trotting gait.

PEDIGREE.

By ELECTIONEER, the Greatest Sire of Early and Extreme Speed.

First Dam LIZZIE H., by Hambletonian (725), sire of Graves, 2:19, and 13 others in 2:30 list, and grandsire of Frank M., 2:17, Sensation, 2:22, Steve Whipple, 2:23, Elector, 2:21¾, Dawn, 2:18¾, and many other fast ones.

Second Dam LIZZIE HARRIS, by Comus, son of Green's Bashaw, sire of seventeen in 2:30 list.

Third Dam by ARNOLD HARRIS, son of Whalebone and Sportsmistress, daughter of American Eclipse.

WHALEBONE and SPORTSMISTRESS were both stout, weight-carrying thoroughbreds.

PRIZES.—I will pay $200 for the first of Election's get that goes in the 2:30 list; $150 to the second, and $100 each for every one after that. This offer to hold good so long as I own the horse and stand him for public use.

ELECTION combines blood from both sire and dam that trains and breeds on and brings the highest prices.

*Balkan.

BALKAN 8848

Record 2:15.

Will make the season at Oakland Race Track beginning February 1st. But a limited number of mares will be accepted, in order that he may be prepared for the great contests of the year. He reduced his record, 11¼ seconds, in nineteen days last fall, and as he is perfectly sound there is every assurance that he will be able to compete with the fastest, especially at two-mile heats.

DESCRIPTION.

Seal brown (no white) with black points, 16 hands 1¼ inches in height, beautifully proportioned and elegantly finished. Balkan is the one horse whose limbs are so correctly formed that a plumb-line from the shoulder drops through the center of the arm, the knee, the cannon-bone, pastern and hoof; consequently his action is straight forward without the slightest side swing, making a pure, frictionless gait. His style and carriage are so lofty that it is universally admitted that in these respects he has no superior on the turf. In a race he is as steady and level headed as possible, and trots his last quarter the fastest.

PEDIGREE.

By Mambrino Wilkes, son of George Wilkes, sire of Harry Wilkes, 2:13½, and 74 others in the 2:30 list, grandsire of Allerton, 2:09¼; Axtell, 2:12 (three years), and hosts of other noted race horses, dam Fanny Fern by Jack Hawkins, son of Boston, sire of second dam of Maud S., 2:08¾, and Jay-Eye-See, 2:10, and grandsire of second dam of Sunol, 2:08¼. The dam of Jack Hawkins was the famous Keenon mare, the great grandam of Sunol, 2:08¼. Jack Hawkins sired the second dam of Direct, 2:06, so that Balkan, while by a son of George Wilkes, is closely related on the dam's side to the fastest horses of the times. His sire, Mambrino Wilkes, by George Wilkes, dam Lady Chrisman, by Todhunter's Mambrino, son of Mambrino Chief 11, grandam by Pilot Jr., has produced Gus Wilkes, 2:22, Bay Wilkes, 2:25, Alpheus, 2:27, Clara P., 2:29½, Balkan, 2:15, and numbers in the thirties. His dam, Fanny Fern, produced Mollie Drew, 2:27, Balkan, 2:15, Fred Arnold, trial, 2:27, and several in 2:40 and better. If there is anything in the science of breeding, Balkan, coming from a producing sire and a producing dam, should be unexcelled as a producer. He is just seven years old.

RESUME.

Considering the size, style, beauty, gait, speed, endurance and unexceptionably fashionable breeding of Balkan it is respectfully submitted that he offers as great attractions to breeders as any of the horses that get a service fee of $500 and $1,000.

AND HIS SERVICE IS OFFERED AT $100 FOR THE SEASON.

The services of no other young horse of his conformation, breeding and quality, with such a record, is offered at so low a figure.

Bear in mind that colt stakes will soon be given for the get of stallions with records of 2:15 or better. If you want to raise colts which will be eligible to enter in all stakes, BREED TO BALKAN, as he is the only horse in this region with a record of 2:15 whose services are offered to the public.

Good pasture and excellent care guaranteed for mares sent to him.
This horse can be seen at The Oakland Track, in charge of

ELECTIONEER,

ANTEEO WILKES.

Black horse, foaled May, 1889; sired by GUY WILKES, race-record fourth heat, 2:15¼.

First dam Amy Fay, by ANTEEO, race record 2:16¼, sire of Myrtle, three-year-old record 2:19½, Alfred G., four-year-old record 2:19¾, James Madison, record 2:17¾; second dam by Alexander, record 2:31¼, son of George M. Patchen Jr., record 2:27, and grandsire of Yolo Maid 2:12; third dam by Naubuc, son of Toronto Chief, record 2:24¼ and Gypsy Queen, ten-mile record 28:30, and full brother to the famous trotter, Thomas Jefferson, record 2:23; fourth dam Sacramento Belle, ten-mile record 31.07, one-mile record 2:38.

Anteeo Wilkes as an individual is worthy of his great blood lines; he is 15.3 hands high and of perfect form. Although handled but little and never driven once by a professional driver he has trotted a mile in 2:52 quarters in forty seconds without shoes, as a two-year-old, with the marked purity of gait, for which the Guy Wilkes trotters are noted. At close of season will be trained for a great record.

Anteeo Wilkes will make the season of 1892, at the stables of his owner, cor. 45th and Watts street, near Oakland race track; look for sign board on Park Ave., leading from San Pablo Avenue to race track.

DESCRIPTION.

DEXTER PRINCE is a blood bay, sixteen hands high, weighs over 1,100 pounds; has great power and substance, and the highest finish. When two years old, at Palo Alto, he was timed quarters by Governor Stanford in 32½ seconds, and he was driven eighths by Mr. Marvin at a faster rate of speed than that. He is a sure foal-getter, and invariably sires foals of good size, of fine form and finish, and the highest rate of speed.

ABDOL 17,716.

RECORD, 2:28.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

Abdol was foaled in 1883, bred by John Watson, Oakland, and is one of the finest sons of the Grand Moor. He is a handsome black in color, stands 16 hands high, and weighs 1,200 pounds. He is a horse of splendid proportions, exquisite style and perfect trotting action. He is remarkably level-headed, intelligent and of kind disposition, and possesses the qualities of speed and gameness to a remarkable degree. His record is no mark of his speed. When it was made it was the intention to keep him in the 2:30 class. He has shown in his work last quarters in 34 seconds—a 2:16 gait—and can get away equally fast.

TERMS AND DESCRIPTION.

SILVER BOW is a handsome bay, no white; stands 15.3; weighs 1,150 pounds; was foaled June 26, 1887. A glance at his pedigree will show that he is bred in the purple and inbred to Hambletonian 10. He will make the season of 1892 at our farm, one and a half miles from Milpitas, on the Oakland road. Season from February 1st to June 1st, at which time all bills are due and payable in United States gold coin. Limited to fifteen outside mares.

SERVICE FEE, $150 for the season. Last season we did not give him a fair show; he served thirty-nine mares and did service up to June, and was compelled to start in races in July against the best horses in Montana, being very short of fast work. At Butte, Montana, he won the $2,500 purse, Free-For-All, defeating Faust, 2:18½, Steve Whipple, 2:23, Ida D., 2:25, and Frank M., 2:18, Faust winning the first heat in 2:20, Silver Bow the second in 2:22¼, Frank M. the third in 2:22, and Silver Bow the fourth and fifth in 2:24½ and 2:21¾. He won nine races in all last season, and had it not been that he was troubled badly with a tender mouth, he would not have lost a single race.

With his speed he will make a wonderful record the first time he starts on a good track and in perfect condition. His oldest colts are yearlings, and are very promising animals. We have one of his colts foaled May 23, 1891, which is a wonder, showing a burst of speed and perfect trotting action surpassing anything I have ever seen except in a carefully trained colt. I have also three others by SILVER BOW which are marvels of beauty and speed. We have reserved one hundred and fifty acres for pasturage for mares, and give the best of feed at $5 per month and the most careful attention, but no responsibility for accidents or escapes. DESCRIPTION AND TERMS.

Not only is Memo full brother to Frou-Frou, the champion yearling trotter in the world, but he is also one of the very best-bred young stallions in service, having three crosses of Rysdyk's Hambletonian, one of Harry Clay, sire of Green Mountain Maid (dam of Electioneer, etc.), and Long Island Black Hawk. Through Flaxtail he traces to Canadian Pilot (sire of Pilot Jr. 12), through Bull Pup, sire of Rowdy Boy, 2:13¾, and two others. Sidney, Memo's sire, is universally known and recognized as the best young sire in the world, as a producer of extreme speed at an early age. The average speed of his progeny is lower than that of any of the get of the twelve leading stallions of America.

Memo trotted in public in his two-year-old form, obtaining a record of 2:49, though he was close to Grandee in a race on the Bay District Track, the second heat of which was made in 2:31½, the first in 2:32. He exhibited phenomenal speed when three years old, for on the Oakland track he was timed a mile in 2:20¼, and frequently trotted quarters in from 32½ to 34 seconds.

He is sixteen hands high, and of powerful build throughout. His color is a glossy black, with both forefeet white. His disposition is all that could be desired, and his action superb. He is a sure foal getter, only one mare being reported not in foal during his last season.

Terms—$100, with usual return privileges, for a limited number of mares. Season to close JUNE 15th, when he will be prepared for track purposes.

Good pasturage at reasonable rates. No responsibility assumed for accidents or escapes. For further particulars, address

JAMES P. KERR,
313 Bush Street, San Francisco, Cal.

CYRUS R., 2:17 3-4.

The Fastest Son of Nutwood, 2:18 3-4, now in California.

Will make the SEASON of 1892 at the stable of T. W. BARSTOW, San Jose, Cal.

TERMS, $75 FOR THE SEASON,

With the usual return privilege, providing the stallion or mare does not change ownership.

DESCRIPTION—Coal black horse, small star; stands 15¾ hands high; weighs 1,100 pounds; well-formed and of good disposition. This horse got a record of 2:17¾ with only four weeks' work; he can show a half-mile in 1:06½ and one-eighth in 16 seconds.

PEDIGREE—Got by Nutwood 600, first dam Belle, by Jack Roberts; second dam Young Nance, by Shakespeare, thoroughbred. Jack Roberts by Eclair, and he by old pacing Pilot; the dam of Jack Roberts was by Copperbottom. CYRUS R. has two crosses of the great Pilot blood, once through Nutwood and again through Belle his dam.

SPECIAL NOTICE—No service fee if this horse does not trot in 2:12 or better in 1892, barring accidents.

ANTEROS NUTWOOD.

PEDIGREE—By Anteros 6020, full brother to Anteeo, 2:16¼, Antevolo, 2:19½, by Electioneer, the greatest sire the world has ever known. First dam Newark Belle, by Nutwood, 2:18¾, the greatest living sire; second dam Tillie, 2:40, by San Bruno, he by David Hill, and he by Vermont Black Hawk; third dam by Young Grey Eagle.

DESCRIPTION—ANTEROS NUTWOOD is a handsome bay horse with black points, no white; stands sixteen hands one inch high; weighs 1,150 pounds. He is a horse of immense power, and yet so highly finished as to give him the appearance of a thoroughbred. He gives promise of trotting as fast as the celebrated Arion 2:10¾, as he can show better than a 2:20 clip to a road cart without training, and is of the same blood as the phenomenal Arion, 2:10¾, two years old. No service fee will be charged if this horse does not secure a record of twenty-five or better in 1892, barring accidents.

LIMITED TO 20 OUTSIDE MARES AT $50 EACH FOR THE SEASON,

With the usual return privileges by paying difference in price if any. Excellent pasturage at $3 per month and the best of care, but no liability assumed for accidents or escapes. Season to commence February 1st, and end June 1st, 1892.

NUTWOOD WILKES is a handsome chestnut in color, stands 15½ hands high, is level-headed, kind and intelligent.

RAPID TRANSIT,

Limited to Fifteen approved Outside Mares at $75 for the Season.

RAPID TRANSIT is a fine-looking bay horse, stands 15½ hands high. He is by DIRECTOR 1989, 2:17; dam Lida W., record 2:18¼, dam of Nutwood Wilkes, 2:20½ at 3 years. (See above tabulated pedigree.) He is a horse of splendid individuality and excellent blood lines.

LONG BRANCH.

Limited to Fifteen Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

LONG BRANCH is a magnificent bay horse, 15¾ hands high, sired by Antevolo, 4-year-old record 2:19½ (brother to Anteeo, 2:16¼, sire of seven with records from 2:17¾ to 2:30), by ELECTIONEER 125 (sire of 100 trotters with records from 2:08¼ to 2:30, 22 of which have records better than 2:20), dam Zola (dam of Maud C., 2:19), by Steinway, 3-year-old record 2:25¾ (sire of seven with records from 2:10 to 2:28¾, including the dam of Maud C., 2:19, and Bourbon Russell, 2:30), second dam Fanny Malone (grandam of Charles Derby, record 2:20, and Maud C., record 2:19).

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD.

Limited to Fifty Outside Mares at $50 for the Season.

CALIFORNIA NUTWOOD is a handsome chestnut horse, stands sixteen hands one and one-half inches high, and is the sire of Maud C., 2:19; Annie C., 2:25; Albert H., 2:27¾, and several others with trials from 2:37 to 2:50. He is by the greatest living sire, Nutwood 600, record 2:18¾ (sire of 77 with records from 2:11½ to 2:30; 17 from 2:11½ to 2:20, and half-brother to Maud S., 2:08¾, the fastest trotter in the world on a regulation track); dam by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31, record 2:27 (sire of ten with records from 2:18 to 2:30; the best son of Geo. M. Patchen, record 2:23½, made in 1860; the fastest and gamest representative of the Clay family). This pedigree demonstrates that California Nutwood represents the best strains of Hambletonian and Clay blood, a combination that cannot fail to produce fast and game race horses as well as great broodmares. He is a horse of splendid conformation, stylish, level-headed, pure-gaited, speedy, game and intelligent, qualities that he transmits to all of his get. He gets bays and chestnuts from all kinds of mares. He is just the kind of a horse that a poor man can make no mistake in breeding a good mare to, as he will get a horse large enough for work on the ranch or road, besides a chance of producing a very fast and valuable race horse.
